RUSSIANS OVERWHELMINGLY DEFEATED BY THE JAPANESE

ADMIRAL TOGO REPORTS HIS VICTORY.

Washington, May 29.—An official telegram from Tokio states that Admiral Togo reports to his government that the total losses sustained by the Russian fleet Saturday and Sunday were: Two battleships, one coast defense armor clad, five cruisers, two special service ships and three destroyers—all sunk. In addition there were captured two battleships, two coast defense armor clads, one special service ship, one destroyer and over two thousand prisoners. Admiral Togo adds that Japanese fleet was undamaged.

THE YACHT ATLANTIC WILL WIN THE CUP

The Fast American Boat Has Passed the Scilly Islands.

Capt. Barr Is Making Fast Progress to the Lizard.

London, May 29, 1:47 a. m.—Barring accidents, the American three masted schooner yacht Atlantic, owned by Wilson Marshall, New York Yacht club, is winner of the Kaiser cup.

She passed abeam of Scilly islands at 9:57 o'clock this morning.

There was a light southwest wind and a smooth sea.

If the breeze holds good the Atlantic should reach the finish line about 3 o'clock this afternoon.

No other yachts have yet been sighted.

The Lizard, May 29.—The American schooner yacht Atlantic was ten miles off the Lizard at 4:45 p. m. and thirteen miles south of Penzance. All were well on board and she had a splendid voyage. Her crew heartily responded to the cheers of the passengers and crew on board a passing steamer.

TEN YEARS IN PRISON

Sentence For Milligan Who Made Suicide Pact With Girl.

Milwaukee, May 29.—Arthur B. Milligan, whose home is in Brooklyn and who came to Milwaukee from Chicago on Jan. 20 with Florence Grove, with whom he entered into a suicide pact, pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the municipal court and was sentenced to ten years at Waupun, the extreme penalty. Milligan was also a confessed embezzler and forger and has been in the county jail since Jan. 23, waiting trial on the charge of murder in the third degree.

In accordance with a suicide pact, the girl made four attemiptes to take her life by drinking poison on the afternoon of Jan. 22 and on the morning of Jan 23.

After her death Milligan, who had procured the poison "lost his nerve," fled from Milwaukee and was later arrested at Racine.

The story of the suicide as told by Milligan was sensational in the extreme, showing how the girl had tried to end her life at four different times, while Milligan looked on. The story was mostly a repetition of Milligan's confession at the time of his arrest.

EXPERT FROM SCOTLAND ARRIVES AT CHICAGO.

Chicago, May 29.—James Dalrymple, the street railway expert from Glasgow, Scotland, upon whom Mayor Dunne is depending for details that are to aid in making municipal ownership practicable in Chicago, arrived here today over the Lake Shore railway. He was conducted to the Auditorium Annex, where a luncheon had been arranged at which Mayor Dunne and other city officials were present.

JUDGMENT POSTPONED.

Montreal, May 29.—The judgment in the Gaynor-Greene case by Judge La Fontaine, extradition commissioner, has been postponed for another eight days, the judge not being ready.

COURTS NOW THE CENTER OF INTEREST

Startling Developments Expected In the Strike Hearings.

Chicago, May 29.—The courts, federal and state, are likely to be centers of interest in connection with the teamsters strike for the next day or two. Developments of an unusual nature in the hearing before United States Master in Chancery Sherman, are looked for, while the grand jury dragnet is expected to reveal surprising facts regarding "graft" charges. A sensation in the federal injunction proceedings was today said to hang upon subpoenas issued for Arthur Dixon, leading member of the Chicago Team Owners' association and Thomas J. Cavanaugh, secretary of the same order. Their testimony, it was said would form an important part of an inquiry into peculiar relations between the team owners and the teamsters unions said to have an important bearing on the continuance of the strike. The Employers Teaming company expected to add many drivers to its list of non-union teamsters today and make a special effort to care for the lumber concerns affected by the strike.

Additions to the strike forces were expected today when all the firms in the Hardwood Lumbermen's association began to make deliveries to strike bound firms. There are twenty-five lumber firms in this association, employing about 125 teamsters. The drivers for twelve of the firms are on strike, and the others probably will follow. "We are going ahead with our deliveries," said Theodore Fathaus, president of the association, "and by night I expect every driver in our line of business will have quit. We are ready to replace the union men immediately with non-union drivers and anticipate no delay to our customers."

Secretary Stevens of the Box Manufacturers association said today: "There is no occasion for the box makers to tie up their business. We estimate that the houses thus far affected by the strike are about 4 per cent of our customers."

Efforts toward a general resumption of teaming in the lumber district met with considerable success today. Non-union drivers were put upon the wagons. As a result, three more of the larger firms claimed to be doing business on a good sized scale.

A riot call was turned in from the lumber district today when a disorderly crowd began throwing sticks and stones at a non-union driver whose wagon had become stuck in the mud.

Upon the arrival of the police, the crowd fled. No arrests were made and the driver was unhurt.

ADMIRAL ROJESTVENSKY SINKS AN AMERICAN SHIP

Tokio, May 29.—News has been received here that Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet sunk an American steamer off Formosa, about May 21. The name of the steamer is unknown. Her crew was saved.

Washington, May 29.—In the absence of any official information whatever regarding the reported sinking of an American steamer by Vice Admiral Rojestvensky, officials in Washington profess a disinclination to discuss publicly any international aspects the case may have. Much depends on the action of the vessel when she was halted, what cargo she carried was contraband, and on other matters. If the vessel refused to stop when the Russians ordered it to, the latter, according to the view here, exercising their rights under the existing war conditions, had a right to sink her on the spot. Many Americans, as well as vessels of other nationalities, are asserted to be carrying contraband of war in the Far East, and if the vessel sunk was doing this, she was liable to seizure under the law as to prizes and disposed of according to the rules of war.

The Post today says that acting on instructions of President Roosevelt, Acting Secretary of State Loomis has telegraphed Minister Griscom at Tokio to inquire into the sinking of an American merchant steamer by the Russian Baltic fleet, off Formosa.

UNPAID TAXES AMOUNTING TO $18,000,000 DUE NEW YORK

New York, May 29.—Unpaid taxes amounting to almost $18,000,000 in Greater New York are made payable by the decision of the supreme court of the United States, upholding the state tax on corporation franchises. Among the companies affected and the sums due from them under the law are the following:

The Manhattan Elevated Railroad company, $4,221,551; Consolidated Gas company, $1,489,966; Metropolitan Traction company, $6,025,184; Brooklyn Rapid Transit copanly, $2,222,656; Brooklyn Union Gas company, $931,268, and the New York & Harlem company, $984,024.

The case has attracted much attention from the time of its inception, not only because new principles of taxation were involved in the settlement, but because of the large interests involved. It constituted a direct attack upon the special franchise tax law of the state of New York of 1899, when President Roosevelt was governor. The law subjects to a system of general ad valorem taxation the special and local franchises of the public utilities, such as street cars, electric light gas and telephone plants, occupying the public streets.

CUTTER TO LOOK AFTER JAPANESE POACHERS.

Seattle, May 29.—Horace A. Taylor, assistant secretary of the treasury, has reached this city from Washington and states that orders have been issued for the revenue cutter Perry to start imemdiately for the Aleutian islands to discover if Japanese fishermen are poaching in American waters. If found that it is so, Mr. Taylor asserts, the department of commerce and labor will take the matter in hand and endeavor to stop the operations of the fishing fleet.

Togo Sinks Thirteen Warships and Captures Six More---The Japanese Fleet Is Undamaged.

Admiral Nebogatoff and 3,000 Russians Captured--- Rojestvensky Seems to Have Escaped.

In the great naval battle fought Saturday and Sunday in the Straits of Korea, the Japanese obtained a complete and overwhelming victory. Late advices show that Rojestvensky's fleet, composed of all his most effective and powerful ships, were completely shattered. According to the latest information, two Russian battleships, one coast defense armor-clad, five cruisers, two special service ships and three destroyers were sunk, and there were captured two battleships, two coast defense armor-clads and one special service ship.

Rojestvensky's flagship escaped, badly damaged, and with other vessels of his broken fleet is being pursued by the Japanese. Admiral Nebogatoff was captured with 3,000 other prisoners. It seems probable that in their crippled condition other Russian vessels will fall into the hands of the Japanese before they can reach Vladivostok. While London rumors say that several Japanese vessels were lost, Admiral Togo officially reports that his squadron was not damaged. A number of Russian vessels still remain near Shanghai, but it is evident that as a fighting force the great fleet has been destroyed. No details of the battle have yet been permitted to pass the Japanese censor, but Tokio dispatches make it clear that Togo is pressing his advantage and harrassing the Russian vessels, which are attempting to take refuge at Vladivostok, and make more complete his already sweeping victory.

Tokio, May 29, 4 p. m.—Rear Admiral Nebogatoff, (former commander of the Fourth division of the Pacific fleet and recently commander of the information squadron, composed of scouts and merchantmen) with 3,000 other Russians, is among the prisoners captured by the Japanese. Vice Admiral Rojestvensky appears to have escaped. The battle began Saturday morning and the Japanese are still in pursuit of the Russians.

Washington, May 29.—According to advices received by the navy department from Tokio, the Japanese, in addition to ships already named, captured the Russian battleship Sissoi Veliky, and the Russian flagship was seriously damaged.

London, May 29.—A dispatch to the London Evening News from Tokio says eight captains of Russian warships were drowned during the battle of Sunday.

Washington, May 29.—Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister here, has received a cablegram from his government relative to the naval fight of Saturday and Sunday, which, he says, while lacking in detail, conveyed the information that the Japanese victory had been "absolute and overwhelming."

Tokio, May 29, 2:15 p. m.—It is officially announced that Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet has been practically annihilated. Twelve warships have been sunk or captured, and two transports and two torpedo boat destroyers have been sunk.

Tokio, May 29, 2:50 p. m.—In the battle fought Saturday in the straits of Korea the Russian battleships Borodeno and Alexander III, the armored cruisers Admiral Nakahimoff, Dmitri Donakoi and Vladvimir Monomach, the coast defense ironclad Admiral Oushakoff, the protected cruisers Svietlant and Jemtchug, the repair ship Kamtchatka and the cruiser Irtessin were sunk.

The battleships Orel and Nicolai I., and the coast defense ironclads Admiral Seniavin and General-Admiral Apraxine were captured.

Washington, May 29.—Official announcement of the result of the naval engagement between Japanese and Russian fleets was received at the state department today in the following cablegram from Minister Griscom, dated Tokio, May 29:

"Admiral Togo has informed his government concerning the fight which took place on Saturday afternoon and Saturday evening. According to his report the Japanese fleet under his command destroyed and sunk one battleship of the Borodino class and four other large Russian war vessels. Two or three more were captured. None of the large Japanese men of war received serious injury.

"The battle was still in progress on Sunday. A great Japanese victory is announced here as the general result of the engagement, but few details have been received."

Washington, May 29.—A cablegram received here from American Minister Griscom at Tokio, dated this morning, says that Admiral Togo is claiming a great victory. It says that Admiral Togo reports that the result of the fighting of the fleets Saturday afternoon and evening were one battleship of the Borodino class sunk, and four other large vessels sunk and two or three more vessels captured. All the large vessels of the Japanese fleet escaped injury.

London. May 29, 12:35 p. m.—Up to noon today the foreign office was still without news of the naval battle from any British source in the Far East. The Japanese legation was similarly without news from its government.

Reports are current on the stock exchange purporting to be from authoritative sources to the effect that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's flagship (Kniaz Souvaroff) was among the vessels sunk and that the Japanese are following up the Russians and picking off their ships one by one.

Operators on the stock exchange were cheerful over the Far Eastern news hoping that the battle might prove decisive and lead to peace. Consols went up 5-16 and Japanese bonds rose from 2 to 3½ points. In Russians no business was transacted. Nominally prices were unchanged. Americans were 1 to 1½ points over parity. Orders from Paris forced the prices higher.

The failure was announced of the Economic bank of Bishop's Gate, a small concern of no importance whatever.

Washington, May 29, 9 a. m.—Minister Takahira of Japan received his first information of the practical annihilation of the Russian fleet in the Straits of Korea from the Associated Press a few minutes after he arose today. When the bulletin from Tokio containing the Japanese government's official announcement that Rojestvensky had lost twelve warships was read to Minister Takahira over the telephone, he carefully repeated the words of the dispatch, and then expressed satisfaction at the apparent result of the great conflict. The minister and other members of the Japanese legation remained in their offices nearly all night eagerly awaiting news of the battle. Up to this hour no official advices have been received at the legation. Aside from the press dispatches, the only information received at the legation was contained in a pri-

SECRET OF FORGERS

Laid Bare By William A. Pinkerton In an Address.

Criminals Eventually Profit Little By Ill-Gotten Gains.

Washington, May 29.—The methods of the professional forger and his decline during the last fifteen years was the subject of a paper read by William A. Pinkerton at the International Association of Chiefs of Police convention in this city. Mr. Pinkerton said:

"A professional forgery band consists of first, a capitalist or banker; second, the actual forger, known among his associates as the 'scratcher;' third, the man who acts as confidential agent for the forger, known as the 'middle man;' fourth, the man who presents the forged papers at the bank for payment, known as the 'layer down' or presenter.

"When it is necessary to have a capitalist or backer connected with a band he furnishes the funds for the organization, frequently lays out the plans for work and obtains the genuine paper from which forgeries are made. He will, when necessary, find the engraver, the lithographer, and most important of all, the 'professional forger,' who will do the actual forgery work.

"The professional forger has, as a rule considerable knowledge of chemicals, which enables him to alter drafts, checks, bills of exchange, letters of credit, or to change the names on registered bonds. He is something of an artist, too, for with a fine camel's hair brush he can restore the most delicate tints in bank safety paper, which tints have been destroyed by the use of acids. In fact, no bank safety paper is a protection against him.

"When the amount of the genuine draft or check is perforated in the paper, certain forgers have reached such perfection in their work as to enable them to cut out the perforation, put in a patch about the same as a shoemaker does with a shoe and then skillfully color the patch to agree with the original, so that it becomes a very difficult matter to detect the alterations even with the use of a microscope. This done and the writing cleaned off the face of the draft, check, letter or credit or bill of exchange, with only the genuine signature left and the tints on the paper restored, the forger is prepared to fill up the paper for any amount decided upon.

"The backer or capitalist is rarely known to any member of the band outside the 'go-between' whom he makes use of to find the forger. He very rarely allows himself to become known to the men who 'present' the forged paper at the banks. If the forgery scheme is successful, the backer receives back the money paid out for the preparation of the work as well as any amount he may have lent the 'band' to enable them to open accounts at banks where they propose placing the forged paper. He is also allowed a certain per centage running from 20 to 30 per cent, but where the backer and forger are working together, their joint per centages is never less than 50 per cent.

"It is an invariable rule followed by the backer and forger that in selecting a middle man select one who not only has the reputation of being a 'stanch' man, but he must also be a man who has at least one record of conviction standing against him. This is for the additional protection of the backer and forger, as they know that in law the testimony of an accomplice who is also a former convict must be strongly corroborated to be believed.

"Out of their first successful forgeries a certain sum from each man's share is held by the middle man to be used in the defense of any member of the band who may be arrested on the trip. This money is called 'fall money' and is used to employ counsel for the men under arrest or to do anything for them that may be for their interest.

"When a 'middle man' is exceedingly cautious and not entirely satisfied with the 'presenters' he will sometimes have an assistant. This is where the 'shadow' comes in. This shadow will under the direction of the 'middle man' follow the 'presenter' into the bank and report fully on his actions. He sometimes catches the 'presenter' in an attempt to swindle his companions by claiming that he did not get the money, but had to get out of the bank in a hurry and leave the check or draft, as the paying teller was suspicious.

"A 'presenter' caught at this trick is sometimes sent into a bank to present a forged check where the bank has been previously warned of his coming by an anonymous letter. This is done as a punishment for his dishonesty and as a warning to others against treachery.

"That the professional forger eventually profits but little by his ill-gotten gains is well illustrated by the fate of the most prominent of them all. One of the first professional forgers in this country was Monroe Edwards, who died several years ago in Sing Sing prison. George Eagles, a 'free hand' forger and skillful in his time in altering stolen bonds, who was associated with George T. McDonnell, the Bidwell Brothers and Edwin Noyes Hills, was looked upon by his associates as one of the cleverest men of his kind at the time. He accompanied McDonnell and the Bidwells to Europe and assisted in the bank of England forgeries, which netted them thousands of dollars.

"George Eagles and the Bidwells died poor, Edwin Noyes Hills, having reformed is selling a book published by the Bidwell brothers. George McDonnell is now serving a short sentence in California.

"George Wilkens, for a long time the most successful 'free hand' forger, died a pauper in Bellevue hospital, New York city, in April, 1902.

"Wilkens operated throughout this country and Europe with such men as Andrew Roberts, Valentine Gleason, Henry Cleary, Walter Sheridan, Carter Seseovich, Al Wilson, William P. Bartlett, Edward Burns, Steve Broadwell (the man with the cough), Joseph Chapman and Joseph Reilly, obtaining large returns for their crimes, but mostly now dead or without means.

"Charley Becker, alias 'the king of forgers,' the most expert man in his particular line in this country, was released Sept. 27, 1905, from San Quentin, Cal., after having served a term of seven years, and is now poor and in bad health. Many of his associates died in state prisons.

"Forgery, like all other criminal occupations, does not pay. We have in the last twenty-five years had to do with the conviction of possibly 500 forgers, and today I do not know of a single one of them who is out of prison who has any money, and, like a great many other professional criminals, had they directed their talents in other directions the majority might be successful business men."

N. P. DIMOND AND HYDE

Must Come to District of Columbia For Trial.

Washington, May 29.—In the cases of Frederick A. Hyde and N. P. Dimond, charged with complicity in land frauds, the supreme court of the United States today affirmed the decision of the circuit court for the Northern district of California. That decision directed the removal of the two men to the District of Columbia for trial, and denied the petition for a writ of habeas corpus. Justice Brown delivered the opinion.

Hyde and Dimond were indicted under section 5,440 of the revised statutes, with John A. Benson and J. T. Schnelder, for conspiracy to defraud the United States out of large tracts of public lands. The indictments in their cases, as in that of Benson, were returned in the supreme court of the District of Columbia, and they have so far resisted all processes to bring them into this jurisdiction, even to the extent of carrying the case to the supreme court of the United States, where it was today decided against them. The defendants are all residents of the Pacific coast states, and some of them are reputed to be very wealthy.

CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

Indictments In Connection With Handling Estate.

New York, May 29.—Armitage Mathews, a lawyer, and secretary of the Republican county committeee, Samuel I. Ferguson and John W. Wooten, lawyers, have been indicted on charges of conspiracy and grand larceny in connection with their handling of an estate for David Rothschild. Rothschild, who was president of the defunct Federal bank, is serving a sentence in Sing Sing for irregularities in handling the bank's funds. The banker is named in the indictments against the three lawyers, but as a witness before the grand jury he turned state's evidence against the others.

The indictments allege that after the death of a man named Welsell, who left an estate valued at $72,000, Rothschild, Ferguson, Wooten and Mathews conspired to get the property, succeeded in having Rothschild appointed temporary administrator, and obtained possession by fraudulently pledging and hypothecating assets of the estate as security.

The indictments allege that Rothschild, Ferguson and Wooten agreed to pay Ferguson all fees and emoluments payable to Rothschild as administrator, and it was agreed by Ferguson to pay Wooten one-quarter of these. Mathews, it is charged, being assistant secretary of the Bankers' Security company, had that company give a bond of $400,000 for Rothschild. For that service Rothschild agreed to pay 3 per cent of all the money borrowed on the assets of the Welsell estate.

Mathews was assistant district attorney in 1897 and was a member of the board of aldermen in 1902.

BAD BLOW OUT

Blast Furnace Suffers Considerable Damage to Cupola.

Small Sized Volcano Turns Loose at West Duluth.

The blast furnace of the Zenith Furnace company blew out on Saturday, causing about $7,000 damage. The cause is not given out, but it is understood that a strong formation of gas in the furnace caused the disaster.

The heat was terrific, and to onlookers appeared as a glorious sight. A pillar of fire shot up out of the cupola into the air for many feet, and was likened by one man today to a volcano vomiting lava and fire.

The intense heat burned out part of the brick lining clear to the top of the chimney and burned through some of the metal work. Brick fragments are scattered about the property of the furnace company for a great distance, but luckily nobody was hurt.

It will take fully a month to repair the damage, which is serious to the plant. It is considered fortunate that the plant was not damaged worse than it is.

WILL HOLD RACE

Duluth Yacht Club Will Open the Season Tuesday.

The Four New Boats Launched Sunday Will Be Entered.

The first yacht race of the season for Duluth will be pulled off on the bay tomorrow under the auspices of the Duluth Yacht club. Six or more boats will participate. Among them will be the four new cat boats which were received last Saturday, the sloop Sea Gull, owned by William L'Estrange, and the sloop Stranger, owned by C. Z. Driesbach.

The match will be merely a friendly contest, as much to try out the new boats as anything else. It has been arranged on short notice, but members of the club are showing a good deal of interest in the affair, and if weather conditions are favorable it is expected that there will be quite a crowd of spectators. The race will be over the regular course, which measures five and one-half miles around. Unless the wind is light the boats will pass twice around the course, making a total of eleven miles. If the wind is not very strong they will go around only once. A suitable prize will be offered the winner. The signal for starting will be given at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The four new boats, the Thistle, Folly, Spray and Florence, were launched yesterday morning and were tried out in the afternoon. There was so little wind that it was difficult to judge of their speed. It is believed they will be entirely satisfactory, however. The result of tomorrow's race will be awaited with keen interest by club members because this will be the first appearance of the new craft in a contest of this kind.

The recent arrivals measure eighteen feet in length, while the last year's boats of the one-design class are twenty-eight feet long. The new boats are very shallow, and light, designed for speed. They will be entered in a number of races during the summer season. Yacht racing will come in for more attention in Duluth this year than it ever has before, and numerous fast contests will be pulled off. The regular weekly club races will start before very long now.

SUPREME COURT HAS ADJOURNED

All Cases Go Over to Term Beginning Oct. 9.

Washington, May 29.—The supreme court of the United States today adjourned for the term, all pending cases being continued until the next term, which will begin Oct. 9 next.

In the three cases of George E. Green, charged with conspiracy to defraud the government, the supreme court postponed consideration of the motion to dismiss until the hearing of the cases on their merits, and set the hearing for the first Tuesday of the next term. Green was indicted in the District of Columbia, with George W. Beavers, in connection with the sale of supplies to the postoffice department, and has sought to evade removal to this city by habeas corpus.

In an opinion by Justice Brown the supreme court today decided the case of the board of trade of Chicago vs. the Hammond Elevator company adversely to that company. The case involved the elevator company's right to appoint the board's quotations. The case turned largely upon the technicalities as to jurisdiction, but these were all overruled by the decision, and the opinion of the circuit court for the northern district of Illinois was reversed.

CONSTIPATION is caused primarily by lack of certain elements in the food which tend to more or less imperfect digestion, and to make the liver sluggish and torpid.

The bowels carry away and discharge the fecal matter—that is the refuse matter of the system. If the bowels are constipated, the fecal matter clogs and congests the natural passages, the poisonous excretions are retained in the body. They set back like a stream dammed up, and are absorbed into the system and carried all over the body in the blood.

That's the reason your head aches, your tongue is coated, your mouth tastes like a garbage can, black specks float before your eyes, and you are generally unhappy. It's constipation poisoning.

SMILE WHEN YOU EAT.

Digestion Aided By a Pleasant Spirit.

A writer in a well-known magazine advises 'smile when you eat." There is one of the greatest of all examples of good advice done up in small but concise and complete package. Doctors and writers from time immemorial have offered the same beneficent suggestion. We are told that "good digestion waits on appetite," but how much more true is the aphorism that "good digestion waits on good humor?" It is a curious fact, but a fact, nevertheless, as the observer will find out if he or she watches the diners in a big hotel dining-room, for example.

The sour-faced, growling old sinner over in the corner looks dyspeptic, and if one watches the amount of food and character of it one is pretty certain to find that tea and toast form a favorite combination, and that everything is disposed of in small quantities, giving every outward indication of poor digestion, and little, if any, appetite. Then there is the big, hearty, round-faced man who laughs continually in a big, hearty way, and is joking all through his meal. He doesn't content himself with toast and tea. He has good, solid, substantial food, and is very apt to have some that isn't any too digestible, either, as delicacies, says the Boston Traveler.

There is no evidence of poor digestion about him or poor health. It is a good rule to stop fault finding with the food, to stop having one's little differences at the table. If husband and wife must quarrel leave it until some other time; don't mix it with food; it's worse than a combination of pickles and ice cream. Laugh and be merry at your meals, hard though it may be, and if the waitress happens to spill hot soup down your neck, reward her with a joke. Cheer up at meal time and digestion tablets will become just what they are by nature, "drugs."

WISHING TO BE CLEVER.

Every Girl Sometime Desires to Be So.

Nearly every girl goes through a wishing to be clever age; some unfortunately reach it. A gift at repartee seems to affect its subject like betting on the races. It would be much better in many cases if failure were experienced at the start. Mere cleverness and the practice of it seems intoxicating, though, and the one who practises it seldom awakens from the glamour of her own artificiality, which is perhaps a happy thing for her, says an exchange.

Humor and wit are the spices which make life worth while, but they are as utterly different from mere cleverness as day and night.

Humor seems round, large, kind, and always mirth provoking. Cleverness is sharp, insinuating, and more sensational than laughter-loving.

The clever person is always like a great event, his shadow is cast before him and he must live up to it. He does seem a necessary adjunct to society. Society must be amused. He carries a talent about with him which society overworks. Cleverness is like sin, it never stands still. The clever person becomes dizzy with his own success and overreaches himself. His so-called wit nearly always has a critical or risque sting.

Did you ever notice how often the clever woman is passed by for the comfortably commonplace one? The reign of the clever woman is comparatively short—at least she may go on reigning, but in new and strange courts, for her immediate subjects are constantly passing her by, forgetting her for some one who is real.

Cleverness is nice and would last if it were honest, but how seldom it is. Nearly always the girl who is known for saying smart and clever things will overreach herself. She is jealous of her reputation for quick replies and she is nearly sure to say something without the ring of truth just for the sake of her socalled wit. Very soon she descends to being merely funny. There are moments when the clever girl's friends do like to venture a few serious sentences in the conversations of life; then to be met by her superficial replies is disappointing. It is then she begins to lose her power. To be studiedly funny is fatal.

This may be a superficial, rapid and strenuous age. Its very intensity makes truth and reality the things to be desired. It is in this age, with its artificialities, that we hear so much about so-called heart interest. The reign of the eternal commonplace seems well heralded. An amusing illustration of the attitude toward clever women by at least a part of mankind is given in the story of a boy bringing his college chum home to dine. The college chum was a great, big, sincere fellow, with merry eyes. At the dinner party he had to take in the imposing sister of his host. After a moment he said joyfully: "Say, we-re getting on, aren't we; but do you know I was awfully scared when I found I had to take you in? You see, Jack had told me you were so awfully clever. And say, now that I have met you, you aren't clever a bit."

And the clever woman said it was the nicest compliment she had ever had.

KENT'S ANGEL

By Charles Sloan Reid.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Kent sat with his chin in his hands and stared at the little coloress face on the pillow. A small lever clock on the mantel shelf ticked softly, and beyond this there was no sound in the room, save the occasional hushed crackling of the embers in the fire-place, from which a faint uncertain glow spread away through the cabin, revealing fitfully the rude logs of the walls, the punch-eon stools, the bare joists overhead —and the face of the child on the bed. Kent had removed his shoes and set them at one corner of the hearth, in order that his footsteps might be noiseless, should he chance to move about the floor. Occasionally, the sound of rain pattering upon the roof reached the man's ears; and when he thought of the darkness outside he shuddered. Up on the side of the hill was a new-made mound heaped above the mother of the child; and Kent wondered if "Marth" could feel the cold raindrops that beat upon her grave. They fell upon his heart distinctly enough and chilled his frame. The little girl was ill when Marth died, and she had grown gradually worse, until now she seemed scarcely to breathe. Kent's fingers clawed into his cheeks, and his eyes stood bleared. He could not understand how it shoud all happen to us. Rebellion, as against unseen and incomprehensible forces, rose in his breast, but the impotence of human effort appalled him. He had resorted to every home remedy of which he knew, and all without appreciable effect. And now he was waiting, just waiting for—he knew not what.

A gust of wind swept through the cat hole under the cabin door and stirred the embers in the fireplace viciously. A flame leaped up and for a moment lighted the interior brightly. The child's eyes opened and the blue orbs stared for a moment into the face of the man. Then a small hand was extended weakly from under the covering. Kent slipped from the stool to his knees and caught the little wasted hand to his lips, while two big tears splotched the bed clothing. Was it a sign for the better, or was it to be the one bright moment before the last, just as Marth had had? But the eyes of the child still glared, though now at the joists overhead, and a faint red glow had appeared in either cheek.

At this moment the latch string at the door was gently pulled from the outside, and the door was opened. It was a woman, a young woman with a beautiful face and sad eyes who stood in the opening. For a moment she stared at Kent and the child, then she closed the door softly behind her and came slowly forward to where the man knelt at the bedside. He had not turned his head, though he had been conscious of the entrance of someone, for the draft from the doorway had fanned his cheek. The woman laid her hand upon Kent's shoulder tenderly, and spoke.

"How is the child, Joe?" She had bent forward and was looking into the little girl's face as she asked the question.

Kent looked up. The voice was like Marth's, the face that he gazed into was like Marth's, the tenderness that beamed from the eyes was like that which had beamed from the eyes of Marth.

"Oh, it's you, Marg'et?" said Kent.

"Yes, me, Joe. I couldn't sleep thinkin 'bout you an' the child."

Margaret was Martha's twin sister.

"Seemed to me Marth was whisperin' that ye needed some'un here tonight, so I come," she added.

Kent caught her hand in both his and stroked. His lips moved, but no sound issued from his throat for some seconds. But presently he said:

"Ye're good, Marg'et, ye're an angel. I jes' been settin' an' waitin', wonderin' what I'd do if the little 'un there went after Marth. Reckoned I'd go too, somehow, Marg'et. Wouldn't feel like eatin' no more, gal—an' it wouldn't take long that way, would it, Marg'et?"

He turned a beseeching look toward the face above him, while he still held the woman's hand.

"'Twouldn't hardly be Christian, Joe, I reckon, jes' to stop eatin' that way, of yer own free will."

"No, reckon not, Marg'et. But, somehow—"

Margaret had touched the child's brow with her free hand, then she turned to gently withdraw the other from Ken't grasp.

"Don't take it away yet, Marg'et," she pleaded, still clinging to the hand. "It—it feels like Marth's—jes' like Marth's ye know, gal—an'—an'—I want to hold it jes' a minute longer."

Margaret sat down upon the edge of the bed, and Joe closed his eyes, as one going to sleep, and, carrying the hand to his cheek, for a moment held it pressed there.

But presently Margaret leaned forward and said gently: "Let go now, Joe. Somethin' must be done for the child quick."

Kent started up.

"Gettin' wuss, Marg'et? God, it's hard!"

"It may be a turn for the better, if we work fast, Joe."

"Work fast? How do ye mean, Marg'et?"

"The mustard, Joe. Marth had a box o' mustard somewhere, a yellow box it was, with a lion an' some other varmint on it."

"Yes, I've see'd that box," and Joe arose to get it.

Margaret set the kettle on some coals that she raked from the fireplace, and a few moments later was mixing a plaster of mustard. This she spread upon three cloths, while Joe looked on anxiously.

"Now, Joe," she said, "ye'll have to lift the child's head, an' let me git one o' these on the back of her neck as quick as you can."

Kent lifted the little hot head from the pillow, and Margaret adjusted the plaster to the back of the child's neck. Then she wrapped two others about the little one's wrists. The fevered eyes of the tiny sufferer regarded Kent and Margaret wonderingly. The red spots in the cheeks deepened, and the breath was fitful.

"Poor thing," murmured Margaret, and she quickly buried her face in the pillow beide the child's head to conceal the tears from Joe.

Kent fell to his knees by the bedside and again dropped his chin into his hands and stared wide-eyed and motionless. Once more, there was no sound in the cabin, even the fire in the chimney crackled no more; but the patter of the rain on the roof kept up a dull monotone as the minutes passed. It seemed hours to Kent before there was a movement on the part of either of those before him. But at last Margaret lifted her head and looked into the child's face. Then she turned her ear to its lips, and a smile passed her own. The little one was sleeping peacefully, and its breathing was soft and regular. Margaret sat upon the edge of the bed and, reaching out, laid her hand upon Joe's shaggy head.

"The child's better, Joe," she said.

Again Kent caught her hand and held it caressingly. "Ye're an angel, Marg'et," he murmured.

Then there was silence for some time. But after a little while, Margaret spoke, her words falling in a low tone, but unspeakably sweet, upon Joe's ear.

"Joe," she said, "I don't see how ye can go on here without any woman in the house; an'—an'—Joe, if ye—need—me; Parson Granger will be passin' through the settlement tomorrow."

Joe looked up into Margaret's eyes, with a sudden deep joy in his own. Then he arose and gathered her into his embrace. A few blissful moments he held her; then she released herself and, going to the fireplace, she took off her shoes and sat them beside Joe's in the corner.

JUNE IS THE SHINE MONTH

Longest Day of Year Included In Its Calendar.

In June, which begins Thursday, the greatest amount of sunshine of the year is due in this latitude, and on June 21 more sunshins is due than on any other day of the year. That day the sunshine should continue for fifteen hours and fifty-five minutes, which is a minute longer than for four days previous and three days following. On that day there occurs what is known as the summer solstice, because the sun seems to stand still in its northerly or southerly course; that is, the sun reaches its farthest northern point, or rather, the North pole is tilted to its farthest point toward the sun.

June is supposed to furnish 474 hours and 55 minutes of sunshine, as the following table will show:

A DECISION NOT REACHED

Second Committee From Golf Association Will Visit Duluth.

It has not yet been decided for a certainty whether the state golf tournament will be held in Duluth this year. Much depends upon the weather from the present time to July 1. If weather conditions are such as to make the grass grow at a reasonably rapid rate Duluth will in all likelihood get the tournament, for the poor growth of grass on the greens is about all that stands in the way of a decision favorable to this city. A committee from the State association will visit the links July 1 to look over the grounds of the Northland Country club.

The first committee appointed by the States association to visit the links was in the city yesterday. It consisted of John Rees of the Brynmawr club of Minneapolis, H. P. Bend of the St. Paul Golf club, Wendell Hertig of the Minneapolis club, C. S. Albert of the Minneapolis club, and C. D. Thompson of the local organization. Accompanied by State President Charles A. Tuller of Minneapolis and several Twin City and Duluth golfers, they inspected the links yesterday. They reported that an opinion as to the suitability of the greens for the purpose desired could better be determined a month later, and recommended to the president that a second committee be appointed to visit Duluth at that time. This will be done.

The grounds were found to answer all requirements except for the fact that there was found to be a scarcity of grass on the greens, a condition brought about by unusual weather conditions of the past few weeks. It is believed that with the proper care this objectionable feature will be done away with. The links were found of ample size for the tournament. It is not likely that the tournament will be held before Aug. 15.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Country Around Yankton Flooded With Counterfeit Half Dollars.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Yankton—The country around Yankton has been flooded recently with counterfeit half dollars, so skillfully made as to impose upon experts. A man was arrested Saturday after passing one of them, and a number were found in his person.

Sioux Falls—Superintendent Button of the South Dakota Children's home has returned from Yankton, where he went for the purpose of bringing to the home several children who had been ordered turned over to the home authorities. Upon arriving at Yankton he found that one of the children, a 10-year-old girl, named Lizzie Bailey, had disappeared. It is thought she was taken by her mother to the Nebraska side of the Missouri river. Papers also had been sworn out and served on Mrs. Hausman, mother of three children, who were to have been taken away from her. Mrs. Hausman begged so piteously to be permitted to remain with the children over night that the sheriff granted her request. In the morning the Hausman home was deserted, and it was found that the mother and children had gone to the Nebraska side of the river. In the past few weeks five families of Yanktons, including thirteen children, have left the state rather than have their children taken by the home authorities.

Roubaix—The vicinity of Custer Peak will be planted with 5,000 pine seedlings and 300 pounds of pine seed immediately. Mr. Miller, representing the United States forest reserve, arrived from Lead today, and is supervising the work of covering the area which has been stripped of its original growth of pine timber. If this attempt is successful, large tracts will be planted within the next few years. The United States has a nursery at Halsey, Neb., which is one of the largest in the United States, and it was from this nursery that the seedlings were sent.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—Five thousand people greeted Vice President Fairbanks at the station Sunday night as he passed through en route to Portland, Or. From the rear platform of his train he bowed his acknowledgments to those who were not near enough to hear, and in a brief speech took occasion to congratulate North Dakotans on the prosperity evidenced on all sides, and predicted still greater things for the future. He paid a compliment to Senator Hansbrough, and announced that he would shake hands with every one who could get near enough. In the fifteen minutes that he stopped he personally greeted several thousand people. A huge cluster of American beauty roses was presented to him by the citizens' committee.

Fargo—The bitterly fought case of the Farmers' Elevator company of Denbigh against the Pennsylvania Fire Insurance company was decided in favor of the defendant by a jury in the United States court. This is the third suit by the elevator company for insurance and all have been lost. The elevator was burned and the insurance companies claimed fraud in the amoun: of wheat in it. They alleged seventy-six forged wheat certificates, and the agent created a sensation in court by refusing to answer questions on the ground that he might incriminate himself. The Edwards-Wood Commission company was the mortgagee of the elevator at the time of the fire.

Attaches of the Washington hotel found Westley F. Arnold dead in bed. He registered four or five days ago, but little is known of him. Among his personal papers was an insurance policy of $1,000 in favor of his mother recently taken out at Watertown, S. D.

Wahpeton—Prof. Wanner of the high school and Prof. Moli of the R. R. V. U. will leave here about June 9 for Europe. They will make a trip on wheels through Germany and will devote several weeks to study in Paris and Berlin. Prof. Moli has been engaged as professor of modern languages in the science school.

The government has acquired title to the site for the proposed Indian agricultural school in this city and the deeds were filed today. Plans and specifications for the buildings have been drawn and it is expected that bids will be advertised for in ten days or two weeks and that building operations will be commenced about July 15. The scheme for the building is as follows: Two dormitories, a schoolhouse, a building for employes' quarters and mess hall, kitchen, etc., for pupils, a laundry and warehouse, and sewer, water and electric light systems.

Jamestown—Another important business enterprise for Jamestown has been organized and will shortly be in operation. It is a national bank, the stock of which has been subscribed by local capitalists, and an application for a charter forwarded to Washington. The name selected for the approval of the departmnet is the Citizens' National bank.

The new institution will have a capital stock of $50,000. A location has been secured and the bank will be opened for business early in July. The growth of the city warrants the establishment of a third banking business and the stock has been taken by business men.

James Adams, a stranger, was held up and robbed of $38 at the west end of the Northern Pacific freight house. He was knocked down by a slungshot in the hands of an assailant who jumped upon him from behind a freight car. He was taken to the hospital and has remained unconscious most of the time since. The police have been unable to find any trace of the holdup.

DESCENDED FROM IRISH

Are the Italians, Says a Smith College Professor.

Boston, Mass., May 29.—That the Italians are of Irish origin is the claim made by Miss Amy A. Bernardy, professor of Italian at aristocratic Smith college, Northampton, Mass. She claims to have given the question a great deal of research and advances many proofs in support of her claim. She points to recent archeological discoveries in Ireland which disclosed architecture very much like that found in ancient Rome as one proof. Then she shows how the burial and funeral customs of the ancient Romans and the Irish were the same. Continuing her argument, she says:

"From the roman excavations and from the study of Roman traditions and Roman texts, we are led to believe beyond dispute that representatives of the Aryan race settled in prehistoric times in the valley which was to be later the forum, that the Celtic type had a period of strong influence on the land where Rome was to be, and that all the manifestations and traditions of that time and of the following, well down into the centuries of Rome, were strongly impressed with their original characters—Aryan ritualism, and Celtic tradition.

"On the other hand, we know from the pages of ancient Irish manuscripts how many Aryan traditions were brought and settled in the isle of Erin, how much Aryan ritualism is contained in the traditional lore of Ireland's most secluded inhabitants, the unmixed descendants of indigenous Hibernians, of aborigine Celts, akin to the early Italian population. • • •

"From all this one idea emerges with startling distinctness: Through geographical and historical reasons the Irish Celts represents the most recent Aryan group settled in Europe, the population which preserves in greater measure and with greater purity the religious and social tradition of the ancient Aryans, the most ancient inhabitants of the Roman forum.

"Ireland of today is still in a comparatively large part Ireland of 2,000 years ago, and the value of the Irish spirit and tradition, thus preserved, is of inestimable value. An effort must be made to collect on a large scale surviving traditions, to explore monuments so well preserved that they can hardly be called ruins, to gather information as broad and complete as possible from the unexplored mounds, 'crannogs,' and burial grounds of Ireland. For it is Ireland, perhaps, which holds in her millenial tombs as well as in her customs of today and of yesterday the last word about the enigma of earliest Rome."

FIGHTING THE EXCLUSION ACT

Indianapolis, Ind., May 29.—The fight of the Chinese in this country against deportation under the exclusion act, and against the legality of the exclusion act itself, is to be waged by the famous Six companies. And the fight is to be directed by Moy Kee of this city.

Moy Kee was brought to this country when 8 years old, in 1856, and he is now 57 years of age. He is very wealthy, being a merchant, and he is besides a well-educated man. He is broad and liberal in his views, and with his wife is received in exclusive society here. He exerts not a little influence in state affairs, as he is a citizen. Besides, he is supreme grand master of the Chinese Free Masons and when Prince Pu Lun visited Indianapolis last July he made Moy Kee a mandarin.

He is known locally as the mayor of Chinatown. He is famous for his generosity and entertains lavishly. He contributed a large sum to the Japanese Red Cross fund and was decorated by the mikado.

While Moy Kee will not admit that he is to lead the big fight now begun, he talks freely about the exclusion act.

"America is a great country," he said. "It is too great a country to resort to such nefariousness as excluding thrifty Chinese. I shall devote my time to using arguments for the repeal of the exclusion act. My countrymen that are here have proven their worthiness as citizens. They obey the laws and are industrious. Can as much be said of the hordes of immigrants from other countries?

"My people are honest. They come to help build up the farms and cities. In the Far West they follow agricultural pursuits. There are millions of acres of untilled land in this country. The Chinese can make these deserts bloom.

"It is manifestly unjust to the Chinese to say that they are inferior to others who come here. In the arts and sciences the Chinese acknowledge no superiors. The race in this country has suffered from early impressions of the people on the coast. I believe that the Chinese stand higher today on the Pacific coast than they did ten years ago. The people have learned that many of the lurid tales about Chinese were pure fakes.

"I claim for my race high-mindedness, honesty, and industriousness. In our right to secure the repeal of the exclusion act you will find us honorable—straightforward. We will use only such arguments as all the people may understand."

About the attack upon the legality of the exclusion act Moy had nothing to say.

It is known, however, that the Six Companies, the mysterious society which owns, body and soul, every Chinaman in this country, has retained the ablest lawyers in the country. It controls vast wealth and is willing to spend freely to win this case. These will maintain that when the treaty with China expired the exclusion act became inoperative. They propose to have the United States supreme court pass on the question.

If this contention is sustained the Chinese will flood the country. Meantime they are being smuggled in across the Canadian border at the rate of thousands a month.

LITTLE BUSINESS TALKS.

...all kinds of weather and all seasons.

Store location is important; some corners or localities seem to catch the trade currents while others do not. But the merchant who relies too much upon location is apt to rely too little upon publicity—and then the best location soon gets the reputation of being an "unlucky one."

SECRETARY HAY LIVING QUIETLY AT PARIS.

Paris, May 29.—The following authoritative statement was given out here today: "Mr. Hay is spending a few days in Paris and is, by order of his physician, observing a strict after-cure regime. He has not called at the foreign office and does not expect to. He has not been presentd to President Loubet, nor has he asked it. It is understood that he has explained through Ambassador McCormick that his state of health makes it impossible for him to have that honor. He makes no visits and receives none, social or official."

ARRANGING SCHEDULE

Meeting Being Held to Settle Running Time of Bridge.

This afternoon a meeting is being held in the office of the board of public works to decide upon a schedule for the car on the ferry bridge.

Hitherto a 20-minute schedule has been in effect, and the car did not connect regularly with the street cars on either side of the canal. The result has been that there have been many complaints made to the office of the board about the time that it is necessary to wait both for the bridge car and the street cars, and the delay that is experienced in making the trip across the canal.

The members of the board are anxious to arrange for a schedule which will make the bridge car connect with the street cars on both sides of the canal; so that the trip to the Point can be made without any delay.

Double the number of trips will be made by the bridge car, giving a 10-minute schedule, and on Sundays and holidays and during the busy hours of the day extra trips will be made, but not at such times as will disarrange the regular schedule.

Representatives of both the Interstate Traction company and the Duluth Street Railway company are present at the meeting this afternoon, and it is expected that some schedule that will be satisfactory to all parties as well as to the citizens in general can be arranged.

CONSIDER LICENSES

Three Different Varieties Will Be Discussed By Aldermen.

Tonight might well be called "license" night at the council, as the principal matters of interest due to come up are in connection with licenses.

The question of granting a license to conduct a dancing pavilion in Lincoln park will again be up for consideration, and the West enders will doubtless be out in force again to oppose their pet aversion.

The Parlor theater license will also be up again, and the council will have to take some action in the matter, as it has now been laid over twice.

Joe Sheehy's employment license may also come up again. Sheehy is now out of jail pending an appeal of his case, and he has engaged a prominent attorney from Minneapolis to fight his case. He will doubtless use every effort to have his license renewed.

WARRANTS OUT

Twenty More Owners of Dogs Will Be Arrested.

Treasurer Issues 137 Dog Licenses In Four Hours.

Twenty warrants for owners of dogs who have neglected or refused to take out licenses were issued this morning and will be served this afternoon by the four police officers who have been detailed to enforce the collection of the licenses.

The officers have set out to round-up every dog in the city, if it can possibly be done, and they are making a house to house canvass for the names of delinquent owners. This list is handed over to the city attorney every morning, and warrants are sworn out for those whose names are contained on it. Already over a score of men have been arrested and paid the fine of $5 and costs, in addition to the regulation license fee, and warrants are now out for twenty more.

The energetic manner in which the police have gone after dog owners has created no little sensation. This morning, between the hours of 8 and 12 a. m., 137 dog licenses were issued by the city treasurer, or an average of thirty-four per hour, or a little more than one every two minutes. It was nothing short of a stampede, and the applicants crowded into the office faster than the clerk could issue the licenses.

Saturday afternoon the police were besieged with frightened owners of dogs, who wanted to get their license and could not because the city treasurer's office was closed. They tendered the money to the police department, fearing that if they waited until Monday morning they would be arrested.

The number of licenses issued this year will probably exceed the number issued in any previous year. Already the 1,200 mark has been passed, and the total number issued a year ago was only 1,276. If the owners continue to come in as they did this morning the 1,500 mark will be reached by tomorrow night.

The canvass that is being made by the four policemen will be completed this week and by Saturday they will probably be ready to return to their regular beats. The force has been more or less crippled by their absence, and next year the department will probably request the council to appoint a special officer to take charge of the work, or else arrange for the plan of impounding dogs found without tags, which is in use in other cities.

TEACHERS' UNION

May Withdraw From Chicago Labor Federation.

Chicago, May 29.—Professional men and women of this city, in voicing their opposition and protest to the unionizing of public school teachers by the affiliation of the Chicago Teachers' federation with the Federation of Labor, declare that such a move degrades the profession of teaching and places the question before all the public school teachers whether teaching in the public schools is to be a profession or merely a job at so much a day.

It is announced that the agitators in the Chicago Teachers' federation, who brought about the affiliation of that organization with the Federation of Labor, are seeking to secure the co-operation of the labor organization in opposing the reappointment of members of the board of education who have interfered in any way with efforts to dictate to the school board. These agitators also desire to have the list of new appointees upon the board of education submitted to the labor unions for approval, in order that pledges to the policy of the labor unions might be secured by such appointment.

Some of the present members of the Chicago Teachers' federation say that at the regular meeting of the organization to be held June 10 an effort will be made to separate the teachers from the Federation of Labor and to end the reign of the radical agitators in the organization. If the effort fails, wholesale withdrawals from the organization are promised.

GRISCOM TO RETURN

From Japan as Assistant Secretary of State.

Washington, May 29.—Lloyd Griscom, the American minister to Japan, is to be recalled and appointed assistant secretary of state. The transfer will not take place until fall, when a number of diplomatic changes will occur.

Mr. Griscom will succeed Francis B. Loomis, who is to be given an appointment as ambassador, not to Mexico, as has been expected, but probably to Brazil. Mr. Thompson, minister at Rio de Janeiro, will be transferred to Mexico in succession of Ambassador Conger, who will retire in September or October.

In bringing Griscom to Washington, President Roosevelt is actuated by a desire to have in the state department an official who is congenial to Secretary Hay and who thoroughly understands the Far Eastern situation.

Griscom has done splendid work in Japan, far better than was expected in view of his youth and his inexperience in Oriental affairs. It is no secret that when he first arrived in Tokio the Japanese were astonished that the American government had not sent an older diplomat, but the Japanese government has let it be known that it regrets Griscom's departure, but it has not made, nor will it make, any effort to retain him. That is the province of the president of the United States.

By leaving Tokio, Griscom suffers a pecuniary loss, as his salary will be more than cut in half.

COUNT KILLED IN DUEL.

Budapest, May 29.—Count Stefan Keglevich was killed today by Karl Hencz of the People's party in a duel fought with swords. The meeting was the outcome of a heated dispute in the chamber of deputies. Keglevitch, who was wounded in the region of the heart, died almost instantly.

WILL FORM ESCORT

Naval Reserves Will Participate In Flower Sprinkling.

Women's Relief Corps to Hold Ritualistic Service From Boats.

In following their usual custom of sprinkling flowers on the waters of the bay or lake in commemoration of the sailor dead, the ladies of the Woman's Relief corps will be assisted in this interesting ceremony tomorrow by a large detail of the Duluth Naval Reserve, orders to that effect having already been issued by Commander Guy A. Eaton.

In view of the assistance that the Duluth sailors can render, it has been planned to make the observance on a much more elaborate scale than in past years and, providing the weather does not interfere with the plans the ceremony on the lake tomorrow will be a very pretty and impressive one.

Immediately following the regular exercises at the Armory tomorrow afternoon, a procession will be formed at Second avenue east, with the right on First street. It will be made up of police, ladies of the Women's Relief corps, old soldiers, Sons of Veterans, Naval militia, a band and a number of school children.

The procession to the viaduct will be headed by a detail of police. Following, in order, will come Commander Eaton of the Naval Reserve, the band, staff officers, an armed escort of eighteen sailors with an officer, the First division cutter crew of thirteen men and an officer, the Second division cutter crew of the same number, a crew of nine sailors and an officer for one of the United States lifeboats, the ladies of the W. R. C., members of the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans and citizens.

The line of march will be down Second avenue east to Superior street and west on Superior street to Lake avenue.

At the Lake avenue viaduct the boat crews and a delegation of the W. R. C., G. A. R. and S. of V. will go to the Naval Reserve boathouse, where Commander Eaton's launch, two cutters and the lifeboat will be in waiting.

All signals will be given from the commander's launch, which will carry the choir and the signal squad.

The Second division cutter will carry the president, secretary and three members of the W. R. C., three members of the G. A. R., a clergyman, three members of the S. of V., and high school children.

Lieut. John Lawrence will be in command of the armed escort of sailors. Lieut. Scully will be in command of the First division cutter, Ensign Edwin Melby of the Second division cutter, and Ensign Paul Clarkson of the lifeboat.

Commander Eaton will be supported by Lieut. S. S. Williamson, acting executive officer; Lieut of the Junior Grade James A. Wharton, as signal officer; Lieut. of the Junior Grade Alfred Engels, assistant paymaster, and Lieut. of the Junior Grade F. J. Patton, assistant surgeon.

The fleet, providing the weather is fine and the water not too rough, will pass out through the ship canal into the lake where, at some distance to be designated by the commanding officer, the boats will assemble, and the W. R. C. will hold some beautiful and impressive ritualistic services in commemoration of the sailor dead, music being furnished by the choir. After these services, flowers will be sprinkled over the water, while the cutter crews and the armed escort on shore will salute.

After the exercises the boats will return to the basin above the north pier, where the passengers will disembark.

If the weather conditions are not favorable the ceremonies just mentioned will take place on the bay instead of the lake.

"Red Feather" Coming.

Grace Van Studdiford in "Red Feather" will be seen for the second time on Friday and Saturday evening, June 9 and 10, at the Lyceum theater. Nothing has been seen in many seasons that nearly approaches "Red Feather" from the standpoint of magnificent staging. The array of beautiful women in the ballroom scene in their Parisian gowns, the brilliant showing of military uniforms and the dazzling ballet contribute a scene of unusual splendor. The chorus, musically, supersedes the very best comic opera companies ever organized. "Red Feather" is now voted superior to De Koven's masterpiece "Robin Hood."

Decoration day, rain or shine, is the grand opening day of both pavilions. Two orchestras, afternoon and evening. No intoxicating liquors sold on the premises.

MATT GALLAGHER DEAD.

Well Known Minneapolis Man Passes Away.

Minneapolis, May 29.—Matthew Gallagher, manager of the Unique theater, died at 6:30 Saturday evening at St. Barnabas hospital of complications following an operation for appendicitis. The operation was performed May 18. Mr. Gallagher had rallied from the shock of the operation and was convalescing so rapidly that he had been able to leave his bed. Death came suddenly and unexpectedly yesterday while he was sitting in a chair at the hospital.

Mr. Gallagher was born in Onalaska, Wis., and came to Minneapolis with his parents in 1872. He attended the public schools of the city and graduated from the university of Minnesota. He practiced law a number of years and served one term in the state legislature of 1892-93 as a Democrat. Though he always took an active interest in politics, he never held another office. The widow and a son, George, 7 years of age, two brothers and three sisters and his father survive him.

NO FLEAS IN EDEN.

Dowie Says Mosquitoes Will Also Be Exterminated.

City of Mexico, May 29.—John Alexander Dowie will secure water to irrigate the 2,000,000 acres of land which he has arranged to purchase in the state of Tamaulipas by tunneling into four extinct volcanoes. The volcanoes are within the boundaries of the tract, and are full of water. Engineers believe that an inexhaustible supply of water will be secured from subterranean sources.

Dowie has agreed to pay $2, Mexican currency, per acre, or a total of $4,000,000. He will establish seven cities as well as several agricultural settlements. The Mexican colony will be known as Eden so that there may be no confusion with the parent colony in the United States.

Dowie announces that mules and hogs will not be allowed within the boundaries of the Mexican tract, and that an attempt will be made to exterminate the fleas and mosquitoes.

BRUTE'S DEATH

Result of Feud Among Five Points' Gang.

New York, May 29.—"Eat 'Em Up Jack" McManus' death from wounds he received at the hands of the Five Points' gang is supposed to be the result of a feud which soon may result in other battles and killings. "The Brute's" death has stirred the Paul Kelley gang to vengeance on the Points, and the blood of all the gang members has been so heated by the series of fights in the last few days that open threats have been made against certain police officers who have interfered with the gangs.

"Eat 'Em Up Jack" was a valued member of the Paul Kelly association, and his death means that the lives of "Nigger Mike," "Chick" Fricker and others of the points are only valuable if led in secluded or well fortified places.

In the flowery days of McGurk's Suicide Hall, McManus was McGurk's chief bouncer. He got his name, "The Brute," from his face, which bore the marks of knives, nails and bullets and, once seen, was always remembered.

He began life as a pugilist and was well known at one time as the champion lightweight of New England.

ROOSEVELT AND MILES

Controversy Looms Up In Boston In Unexpected Way.

Boston, Mass., May 29.—The Miles-Roosevelt controversy is again looming up here in quite an unexpected way. The president is to visit the state of Massachusetts during June and will be the guest of the commonwealth a share of the time during his stay, and he must be received by the state authorities. Herein the impending trouble lies.

Lieutenant Governor Guild has received a letter from the president's secretary, William Loeb, relative to President Roosevelt's visit. The president will go to Worcester June 21 to attend the commencement exercises of Clark university. On the 22d he goes to Williamstown to attend the Williams college commencement. That night he will return to Oyster Bay and remain there until the 27th, when he will again come to Massachusetts to attend the Harvard commencement on the 28th.

Governor Douglas has not yet decided as to the form the courtesies to be extended to the president shall take. It is proposed to send a deputation of the governor's military staff to meet the presidential train after it crosses the state line and accompany the chief executive of the nation to his destination.

Here comes up the perplexing question: "Who shall constitute this delegation, which must include the chief of the governor's staff? Gen. Miles is head of Governor Douglas' military family. At least that is the view the public takes of it here.

When Gen. Miles was appointed on Governor Douglas' staff it was given out that his designation was to be "chief of staff" in spite of the fact that the adjutant-general has always been chief of the governor's staff, and Gen. Miles was not to be adjutant-general.

William Stopford is the adjutant-general. He was asked by the correspondent:

"Whom will the governor send to represent him on the escort to be furnished the president?"

"I don't know I'm sure, but I suppose his excellency will designate his chief of staff for one; I believe that has been the custom on similar occasions in the past."

"You mean Gen. Miles?"

"Gen. Miles is not chief of staff."

"Who is, then?"

"The adjutant-general."

"How long since?"

"Since the constitution of the commonwealth was adopted."

"Then you are the chief of the governor's staff?"

"Certainly."

"And what then is Gen. Miles?"

"He is the military adviser of the governor."

Here Gen. Stopford ended the colloquy, declining to discuss the matter further.

Now it is up to Governor Douglas to designate who shall receive the president.

Roosevelt and Miles are not on cordial terms with each other, to say the least, and Governor Douglas is aware of the fact, but he will not discuss it at the present time. If he decides Gen. Miles shall do the honors for the state it will not be a pleasant duty, for Gen. Miles can not have forgotten the reprimand to him by Roosevelt.

Altogether the situation just now is a little mixed, and unpleasant possibilities are looming to view to some of Boston's leading citizens who wish to honor the president without a hitch.

SAYS HE SAW ANGELS.

An Ohio Boy Who Claims Divine Inspiration.

Fremont, O., May 29.—After ten hours of unconsciousness, several days ago, Chauncey Boyer, 15-years-old, son of John Boyer, a well-to-do farmer here, awoke and declared that he had been in the presence of angels and had received divine communication.

The boy reads his Bible, talks for hours over his visions and exhorts all about him to be saved. His visitors have numbered several hundred and many conversions have occurred among them.

The physicians declare that the boy is perfectly sane. The boy claims to be in constant communication with the Lord, and says he is guided by the Holy Spirit in all he says and does.

ARRANGING SCHEDULE

Meeting Being Held to Settle Running Time of Bridge.

This afternoon a meeting is being held in the office of the board of public works to decide upon a schedule for the car on the ferry bridge.

Hitherto a 20-minute schedule has been in effect, and the car did not connect regularly with the street cars on either side of the canal. The result has been that there have been many complaints made to the office of the board about the time that it is necessary to wait both for the bridge car and the street cars, and the delay that is experienced in making the trip across the canal.

The members of the board are anxious to arrange for a schedule which will make the bridge car connect with the street cars on both sides of the canal, so that the trip to the Point can be made without any delay.

Double the number of trips will be made by the bridge car, giving a 10-minute schedule, and on Sundays and holidays and during the busy hours of the day extra trips will be made, but not at such times as will disarrange the regular schedule.

Representatives of both the Interstate Traction company and the Duluth Street Railway company are present at the meeting this afternoon, and it is expected that some schedule that will be satisfactory to all parties as well as to the citizens in general can be arranged.

CONSIDER LICENSES

Three Different Varieties Will Be Discussed By Aldermen.

Tonight might well be called "license" night at the council, as the principal matters of interest due to come up are in connection with licenses.

The question of granting a license to conduct a dancing pavilion in Lincoln park will again be up for consideration, and the West enders will doubtless be out in force again to oppose their pet aversion.

The Parlor theater license will also be up again, and the council will have to take some action in the matter, as it has now been laid over twice.

Joe Sheehy's employment license may also come up again. Sheehy is now out of jail pending an appeal of his case, and he has engaged a prominent attorney from Minneapolis to fight his case. He will doubtless use every effort to have his license renewed.

WARRANTS OUT

Twenty More Owners of Dogs Will Be Arrested.

Treasurer Issues 137 Dog Licenses In Four Hours.

Twenty warrants for owners of dogs who have neglected or refused to take out licenses were issued this morning and will be served this afternoon by the four police officers who have been detailed to enforce the collection of the licenses.

The officers have set out to round-up every dog in the city, if it can possibly be done, and they are making a house to house canvass for the names of delinquent owners. This list is handed over to the city attorney every morning, and warrants are sworn out for those whose names are contained on it. Already over a score of men have been arrested and paid the fine of $5 and costs, in addition to the regulation license fee, and warrants are now out for twenty more.

The energetic manner in which the police have gone after dog owners has created no little sensation. This morning, between the hours of 8 and 12 a. m., 137 dog licenses were issued by the city treasurer, or an average of thirty-four per hour, or a little more than one every two minutes. It was nothing short of a stampede, and the applicants crowded into the office faster than the clerk could issue the licenses.

Saturday afternoon the police were besieged with frightened owners of dogs, who wanted to get their license and could not because the city treasurer's office was closed. They tendered the money to the police department, fearing that if they waited until Monday morning they would be arrested.

The number of licenses issued this year will probably exceed the number issued in any previous year. Already the 1,200 mark has been passed, and the total number issued a year ago was only 1,276. If the owners continue to come in as they did this morning the 1,500 mark will be reached by tomorrow night.

The canvass that is being made by the four policemen will be completed this week and by Saturday they will probably be ready to return to their regular beats. The force has been more or less crippled by their absence, and next year the department will probably request the council to appoint a special officer to take charge of the work, or else arrange for the plan of impounding dogs found without tags, which is in use in other cities.

TEACHERS' UNION

May Withdraw From Chicago Labor Federation.

Chicago, May 29.—Professional men and women of this city, in voicing their opposition and protest to the unionizing of public school teachers by the affiliation of the Chicago Teachers' federation with the Federation of Labor, declare that such a move degrades the profession of teaching and places the question before all the public school teachers whether teaching in the public schools is to be a profession or merely a job at so much a day.

It is announced that the agitators in the Chicago Teachers' federation, who brought about the affiliation of that organization with the Federation of Labor, are seeking to secure the co-operation of the labor organization in opposing the reappointment of members of the board of education who have interfered in any way with efforts to dictate to the school board. These agitators also desire to have the list of new appointees upon the board of education submitted to the labor unions for approval, in order that pledges to the policy of the labor unions might be secured by such appointment.

Some of the present members of the Chicago Teachers' federation say that at the regular meeting of the organization to be held June 10 an effort will be made to separate the teachers from the Federation of Labor and to end the reign of the radical agitators in the organization. If the effort fails, wholesale withdrawals from the organization are promised.

GRISCOM TO RETURN

From Japan as Assistant Secretary of State.

Washington, May 29.—Lloyd Griscom, the American minister to Japan, is to be recalled and appointed assistant secretary of state. The transfer will not take place until fall, when a number of diplomatic changes will occur.

Mr. Griscom will succeed Francis B. Loomis, who is to be given an appointment as ambassador, not to Mexico, as has been expected, but probably to Brazil. Mr. Thompson, minister at Rio de Janeiro, will be transferred to Mexico in succession of Ambassador Conger, who will retire in September or October.

In bringing Griscom to Washington, President Roosevelt is actuated by a desire to have in the state department an official who is congenial to Secretary Hay and who thoroughly understands the Far Eastern situation.

Griscom has done splendid work in Japan, far better than was expected in view of his youth and his inexperience in Oriental affairs. It is no secret that when he first arrived in Tokio the Japanese were astonished that the American government had not sent an older diplomat, but the Japanese government has let it be known that it regrets Griscom's departure, but it has not made, nor will it make, any effort to retain him. That is the province of the president of the United States.

By leaving Tokio, Griscom suffers a pecuniary loss, as his salary will be more than cut in half.

COUNT KILLED IN DUEL.

Budapest, May 29.—Count Stefan Keglevich was killed today by Karl Hencz of the People's party in a duel fought with swords. The meeting was the outcome of a heated dispute in the chamber of deputies. Keglevitch, who was wounded in the region of the heart, died almost instantly.

WILL FORM ESCORT

Naval Reserves Will Participate In Flower Sprinkling.

Women's Relief Corps to Hold Ritualistic Service From Boats.

In following their usual custom of sprinkling flowers on the waters of the bay or lake in commemoration of the sailor dead, the ladies of the Woman's Relief corps will be assisted in this interesting ceremony tomorrow by a large detail of the Duluth Naval Reserve, orders to that effect having already been issued by Commander Guy A. Eaton.

In view of the assistance that the Duluth sailors can render, it has been planned to make the observance on a much more elaborate scale than in past years and, providing the weather does not interfere with the plans the ceremony on the lake tomorrow will be a very pretty and impressive one.

Immediately following the regular exercises at the Armory tomorrow afternoon, a procession will be formed at Second avenue east, with the right on First street. It will be made up of police, ladies of the Women's Relief corps, old soldiers, Sons of Veterans, Naval militia, a band and a number of school children.

The procession to the viaduct will be headed by a detail of police. Following, in order, will come Commander Eaton of the Naval Reserve, the band, staff officers, an armed escort of eighteen sailors with an officer, the First division cutter crew of thirteen men and an officer, the Second division cutter crew of the same number, a crew of nine sailors and an officer for one of the United States lifeboats, the ladies of the W. R. C., members of the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans and citizens.

The line of march will be down Second avenue east to Superior street and west on Superior street to Lake avenue.

At the Lake avenue viaduct the boat crews and a delegation of the W. R. C., G. A. R. and S. of V. will go to the Naval Reserve boathouse, where Commander Eaton's launch, two cutters and the lifeboat will be in waiting.

All signals will be given from the commander's launch, which will carry the choir and the signal squad.

The Second division cutter will carry the president, secretary and three members of the W. R. C., three members of the G. A. R., a clergyman, three members of the S. of V., and high school children.

Lieut. John Lawrence will be in command of the armed escort of sailors. Lieut. Scully will be in command of the First division cutter, Ensign Edwin Melby of the Second division cutter, and Ensign Paul Clarkson of the lifeboat.

Commander Eaton will be supported by Lieut. S. S. Williamson, acting executive officer; Lieut of the Junior Grade James A. Wharton, as signal officer; Lieut. of the Junior Grade Alfred Engels, assistant paymaster, and Lieut. of the Junior Grade F. J. Patton, assistant surgeon.

The fleet, providing the weather is fine and the water not too rough, will pass out through the ship canal into the lake where, at some distance to be designated by the commanding officer, the boats will assemble, and the W. R. C. will hold some beautiful and impressive ritualistic services in commemoration of the sailor dead, music being furnished by the choir. After these services, flowers will be sprinkled over the water, while the cutter crews and the armed escort on shore will salute.

After the exercises the boats will return to the basin above the north pier, where the passengers will disembark.

If the weather conditions are not favorable the ceremonies just mentioned will take place on the bay instead of the lake.

"Red Feather" Coming.

Grace Van Studdiford in "Red Feather" will be seen for the second time on Friday and Saturday evening, June 9 and 10, at the Lyceum theater. Nothing has been seen in many seasons that nearly approaches "Red Feather" from the standpoint of magnificent staging. The array of beautiful women in the ballroom scene in their Parisian gowns, the brilliant showing of military uniforms and the dazzling ballet contribute a scene of unusual splendor. The chorus, musically, supersedes the very best comic opera companies ever organized. "Red Feather" is now voted superior to De Koven's masterpiece "Robin Hood."

MATT GALLAGHER DEAD.

Well Known Minneapolis Man Passes Away.

Minneapolis, May 29.—Matthew Gallagher, manager of the Unique theater, died at 6:30 Saturday evening at St. Barnabas hospital of complications following an opeartion for appendicitis. The operation was performed May 18. Mr. Gallagher had rallied from the shock of the operation and was convalescing so rapidly that he had been able to leave his bed. Death came suddenly and unexpectedly yesterday while he was sitting in a chair at the hospital.

Mr. Gallagher was born in Onalaska, Wis., and came to Minneapolis with his parents in 1872. He attended the public schools of the city and graduated from the university of Minnesota. He practiced law a number of years and served one term in the state legislature of 1892-93 as a Democrat. Though he always took an active interest in politics, he never held another office. The widow and a son, George, 7 years of age, two brothers and three sisters and his father survive him.

NO FLEAS IN EDEN.

Dowie Says Mosquitoes Will Also Be Exterminated.

City of Mexico, May 29.—John Alexander Dowie will secure water to irrigate the 2,000,000 acres of land which he has arranged to purchase in the state of Tamaulipas by tunneling into four extinct volcanoes. The volcanoes are within the boundaries of the tract, and are full of water. Engineers believe that an inexhaustible supply of water will be secured from subterranean sources.

Dowie has agreed to pay $2, Mexican currency, per acre, or a total of $4,000,000. He will establish seven cities as well as several agricultural settlements. The Mexican colony will be known as Eden so that there may be no confusion with the parent colony in the United States.

Dowie announces that mules and hogs will not be allowed within the boundaries of the Mexican tract, and that an attempt will be made to exterminate the fleas and mosquitoes.

BRUTE'S DEATH

Result of Feud Among Five Points' Gang.

New York, May 29.—"Eat-Em Up Jack" McManus' death from wounds he received at the hands of the Five Points' gang is supposed to be the result of a feud which soon may result in other battles and killings. "The Brute's" death has stirred the Paul Kelley gang to vengeance on the Points, and the blood of all the gang members has been so heated by the series of fights in the last few days that open threats have been made against certain police officers who have interfered with the gangs.

"Eat 'Em Up Jack" was a valued member of the Paul Kelly association, and his death means that the lives of "Nigger Mike," "Chick" Fricker and others of the points are only valuable if led in secluded or well fortified places.

In the flowery days of McGurk's Suicide Hall, McManus was McGurk's chief bouncer. He got his name, "The Brute," from his face, which bore the marks of knives, nails and bullets and, once seen, was always remembered.

He began life as a pugilist and was well known at one time as the champion lightweight of New England.

ROOSEVELT AND MILES

Controversy Looms Up In Boston In Unexpected Way.

Boston, Mass., May 29.—The Miles-Roosevelt controversy is again looming up here in quite an unexpected way. The president is to visit the state of Massachusetts during June and will be the guest of the commonwealth a share of the time during his stay, and he must be received by the state authorities. Herein the impending trouble lies.

Lieutenant Governor Guild has received a letter from the president's secretary, William Loeb, relative to President Roosevelt's visit. The president will go to Worcester June 21 to attend the commencement exercises of Clark university. On the 22d he goes to Williamstown to attend the Williams college commencement. That night he will return to Oyster Bay and remain there until the 27th, when he will again come to Massachusetts to attend the Harvard commencement on the 28th.

Governor Douglas has not yet decided as to the form the courtesies to be extended to the president shall take. It is proposed to send a deputation of the governor's military staff to meet the presidential train after it crosses the state line and accompany the chief executive of the nation to his destination.

Here comes up the perplexing question: "Who shall constitute this delegation, which must include the chief of the governor's staff? Gen. Miles is head of Governor Douglas' military family. At least that is the view the public takes of it here.

When Gen. Miles was appointed on Governor Douglas' staff it was given out that his designation was to be "chief of staff" in spite of the fact that the adjutant-general has always been chief of the governor's staff, and Gen. Miles was not to be adjutant-general.

William Stopford is the adjutant-general. He was asked by the correspondent:

"Whom will the governor send to represent him on the escort to be furnished the president?"

"I don't know I'm sure, but I suppose his excellency will designate his chief of staff for one; I believe that has been the custom on similar occasions in the past."

"You mean Gen. Miles?"

"Gen. Miles is not chief of staff."

"Who is, then?"

"The adjutant-general."

"How long since?"

"Since the constitution of the commonwealth was adopted."

"Then you are the chief of the governor's staff?"

"Certainly."

"And what then is Gen. Miles?"

"He is the military adviser of the governor."

Here Gen. Stopford ended the colloquy, declining to discuss the matter further.

Now it is up to Governor Douglas to designate who shall receive the president.

Roosevelt and Miles are not on cordial terms with each other, to say the least, and Governor Douglas is aware of the fact, but he will not discuss it at the present time. If he decides Gen. Miles shall do the honors for the state it will not be a pleasant duty, for Gen. Miles can not have forgotten the reprimand to him by Roosevelt.

Altogether the situation just now is a little mixed, and unpleasant possibilities are looming to view to some of Boston's leading citizens who wish to honor the president without a hitch.

SAYS HE SAW ANGELS.

An Ohio Boy Who Claims Divine Inspiration.

Fremont, O., May 29.—After ten hours of unconsciousness, several days ago, Chauncey Boyer, 15-years-old, son of John Boyer, a well-to-do farmer here, awoke and declared that he had been in the presence of angels and had received divine communication.

The boy reads his Bible, talks for hours over his visions and exhorts all about him to be saved. His visitors have numbered several hundred and many conversions have occurred among them.

The physicians declare that the boy is perfectly sane. The boy claims to be in constant communication with the Lord, and says he is guided by the Holy Spirit in all he says and does.

RUSSIA MUST BRING THE WAR TO A CLOSE

And Renewed Efforts to Bring About Peace Now Expected.

No Further Chance of Russian Army or Navy Winning.

Washington, May 29.—At close of official day the news of Japan's victory had turned the thoughts of officials towards peace, and prominent diplomats are holding their summer plans in abeyance awaiting developments and instructions from their governments. Thus far it has been impossible to ascertain if any direct steps in the direction of peace have yet been taken.

Paris, May 29, 5:20 p. m.—The late dispatches of the Associated Press, showing the crushing nature of the Russian naval defeat have led to the comment that Russia had played her last card and must bring the war to a close. The semi-official Temps this afternoon makes an urgent appeal on the subject, voting the sentiment of the allied nations that Russia should abandon a struggle which has become hopeless and make the best peace possible. The paper says Rojestvensky was the last hope and his defeat leaves Japan master of the seas without any further chance of the Russian navy or army achieving a victory.

St. Petersburg, May 29.—In diplomatic circles generally the belief is held that if Rojestvensky's defeat is as complete as reported, it is sure to be followed by renewed efforts to bring about peace.

London, May 29.—Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister in an interview with a representative of the Associated Press said: "We all rejoice at Togo's victory. We had confidence he would not be so badly beaten as it was supposed the Russians thought he would be, but at the same time we were not entirely free from anxiety concerning the outcome of this long expected battle. Now we feel quite easy in our minds and the remainder seems easy.

"Regarding whether this fight will prove a step in the direction of peace, we cannot judge. Outsiders cannot express an opinion of any value of this point. The question must be regarded from the Russian standpoint. One thing is certain—this makes the Japanese further naval and military operations very easy. If the war continues Vladivostok may become a second Port Arthur. It seems impossible under the conditions that Russia will send more ships to the Far East."

COMPOSITION OF THE OPPOSING FLEETS, WHICH HAVE MET IN BATTLE.

Appended is given the make-up of the two opposing fleets that have come in conflict. The table is copied from a recent number of the London Times, and is believed to be correct. The numerals before figures referring to armament give the number of guns carried, as "IV. 12-inch, etc.," means four 12-inch guns. The naval expert of the London Times, in discussing the relative strength of the opposing fleets, asserts that, "taking all the points into consideration, it may be said that the aggregate gun force of the fleets is nearly equal, the superiority rather inclining to the side of the Russians, because of the newer type of so many of their ships carrying the heaviest guns." The aggregate of the Russian crews numbers 10,200, while the Japanese naval fighting men are figured at 13,500.

Alleges Complaining Witness Is Trouble Maker For Neighborhood.

The case of the state against Frank Van Flattern, who is accused of assaulting Henry DeMeyers, with intent to do great bodily harm, is likely to reach the jury some time Wednesday morning. It is expected that all the testimony will be in by the time court adjourns this evening, but as there will be no session of court tomorrow, on account of Memorial day, the arguments will not be made until Wednesday.

Witnesses were called by the state this morning to testify to the relative positions of Van Flattern and DeMeyers at the time the latter was shot in the shoulder, and two of the police officials who were called at the time of the trouble, testified that Van Flattern admitted the shooting, stating that he shot the first time in the air to frighten DeMeyers away and that the second time he shot "to get him," expressing regret that the bullet did not strike DeMeyers in the head instead of the shoulder.

Just before the noon adjournment, M. H. McMahon, who is representing Van Flaatern, outlined the defense to the jury.

Mr. McMahon said he expected to prove that on the evening of April 9 last Van Flattern was entertaining a small party at his house, where a keg of beer was on tap; that DeMeyers came in the house during the festivities and was politely invited to get out by Van Flattern. He stated further that DeMeyers went out the door, and, standing just outside, began a wordy battle with the proprietor that was likely to aggravate the latter.

Rene Van Flattern, a brother of Frank Van Flattern, is said to have taken hold of DeMeyers and walked him away to some distance, pleading with him to stay away and not make trouble. DeMeyers is said to have come back and was a second time taken away by Van Flattern's brother. It is alleged that he came back a third time, taking position outside the Van Flattern domicile, commenced a line of abuse which included some very uncomplimentary things about the Van Flattern family in general, with epithets addressed to Mrs. Van Flattern, which so angered the husband that he rushed in the house and seized his weapon, firing a shot in the air to drive DeMeyers away. The latter is claimed to have picked up a large stone, which he hurled at Van Flat- tern, striking him in th causing a bruise tha treatment by a physici

Mr. McMahon clair blow in the shoulder Flattern to fire again shot, which struck De intentional.

Mr. McMahon lai stress to the fact tha tempt to show that DeMeyers had been a trouble-maker in the neighborhood and had been on several occasions warned to keep away from the Van Flattern home.

Henry DeMeyers, the complaining witness is the young man who some months ago figured prominently in a divorce action in district court between his brother and the latter's wife, Henry being accused of having relations with his brother's wife that were not proper.

OLD LAWYER DEAD.

New York, May 29.—William Bedloe Crosby, one of the oldest lawyers in New York and who was a paymaster in the navy during the Civil war, and counsel general to Rome under President Grant in 1872, is dead from heart disease at Dobbs' Ferry. His maternal grandfather was Benjamin Franklin Butler, attorney general of the United States under President Van Buren.

THE SAPPHIRE'S COLOR.

It is said that among the hideous debris found on the scene of the assassination of the Grand Duke Sergius was a stone, perfectly black in color, which is supposed to be the large sapphire worn in a ring by the grand duke, says the Boston Herald. The black hue is asserted to be the effect of the chemicals used in the bomb.

Next to diamonds, sapphires are the hardest stones known, and to the unaided eye no purer, truer hue exists than that of the sapphire. Being of the color of the sky, it is regarded with awe by the superstitious, but the most valuable stones are the color of the corn flower. A visitor to the workshop describes a wooden bowl two-thirds full of the finest sapphires which an old Persian workman had been busy in detaching from their settings.

The glory of these gleaming gems in the rays of brilliant light which found their way into the interior of the vaulted place was indescribable. They were not for sale, but the property of the mother of the Khedive, the most powerful lady of the realm. She wished to have all obtainable sapphires set so that they might be fastened as a trimming upon her jacket. They were far more effective falling through the Persians' slender yellow fingers as he swept them together in the bowl.

AN ICE WATER TREE.

In the island of Madagascar there grows a tree, which, at first sight, might be mistaken for a banana tree, but instead of bananas this tree gives the traveler a drink or pure, ice water, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. The native know it well, and when guiding travelers through a forest in which they can find no spring, they simply thrust their spear into a leaf stalk of one of these trees, and quarts of deliciously pure water gush out.

EVERY DAY SUNDAY.

An old sailor, who arrived in Philadelphia on Easter Sunday, said to a Philadelphia Record reporter: "I've seen every day in the week celebrated Sunday. That shows how folks' religions differ. The Greeks observe Monday, then the Persians stop work and pray on Tuesday; Assyrians wouldnt' think of staying away from church on Wednesday; the Egyptians worship on Thursday, the Turks on Friday, the Jews on Saturday, and the Christians on Sunday. So you see that if you could travel fast enough you could experience that phrase used thoughtlessly by so many, as though impossible, 'a week of Sundays.'"

THEY EAT ANIMALS.

Marvelous Workings of the Insectivorous Plants.

An interesting collection of carnivorous plants in the University of Pennsylvania, including a pitcher-plant that may entrap so large an animal as a rat, is described by a correspondent in this manner:

"In an unpretentious looking building attached to the University of Pennsylvania, visited but seldom even by the students themselves, is one of the most remarkable collections of plants in the country. Visitors rave over the collection of orchids in this vivarium, but overlook a corner where the plants that catch and eat their food like living animals thrive in a temperature that reminds one of a Turkish bath.

"These curious plants are to be seen in the very act of trapping and digesting their food. There you see the Pinguicula caudata, a small and modest-looking plant that has shy looks and a pretty flower, but it holds to insects with the tenacious grip of fly-paper, and in time absorbs them. All over the leaves of this pretty plant are dead insects that have been caught and are being slowly digested. A few of these plants placed on the table in a house infested by flies would, it is said, in time gather all the pests to its bosom and dine off their remains.

"From the tropics has come the Drosera dicholomo, another of the 'eat-'em-alive' variety of plants. As a trap for the festive mosquito this plant is said to have no superior. Its appetite is unlimited, its ardor in the work of luring insects to their doom is tireless, and it is ready for business by night or day, for so far as the observations in the vivarium go, this death-trap for flies requires no sleep. Its sole diversion is to eat, and its only item of diet isinsects.

"But the most extraordinary of all these tropical plants are the nepenthes. The name is from the Greek, meaning removing sorrow. It has been applied to a magic potion, calculated to banish the remembrance of grief and enliven the spirits. The word is now used figuratively to express any remedy which gives rest and consolation to an afflicted mind. The humorist who named the plants at the vivarium nepenthes did so because they settle once and for all the troubles of any animal that comes to drink from the pitcher-like structure that is suspended alluringly from each leaf. Having captured the thirsty one, the plant eats it at its leisure.

"The innocent looking fluid with which the pitcher of this plant are filled is not water, but a stupefying liquid that numbs the senses of the rat, mouse or roach that seeks to assuage its thirst. Having stupefied the intruder, the plant prevents its escape by closing the entrance to the pitcher. In the lid of this curious receptacle are two spikes in appearance like the of this strange plant, the prisoner is drawn into the interior of the pitcher. Juices are employed to dissolve the body, and in time the creature is absorbed, and goes to nourish the plant at whose cup the victim came to drink."

RECEIVED AS MEMBERS.

An Interesting Ceremony at French Catholic Church.

Interesting ceremonies took place last evening at the Church of St. John the Baptist, the French Catholic church, at the West end. Ninety young women were received into the Young Ladies' sodality in the presence of a large congregation and with many pretty features. The hour was 7:30 o'clock. The young women marched from the hall to the church, walking in pairs, and they were preceded by four little maidens with baskets of flowers and sixteen girls somewhat older. In the church there was singing by a quartet and a fine sermon by Rev. Father Hartman.

Following this there was a procession about the church, the younger girls strewing flowers in the path of those who were to be received, and then the formal reception of the new members took place. Afterward there was mere singing, the benediction of the sacrament took place and a collection was taken up by Miss Sophie Daoust and Miss Delcine Lemay. The quartet was composed of Misses Delia Chevrette, Georgiana Chevrette, Georgiana Grignon and Anna Dion.

THEY WARN MEN AWAY

Union Men Ask Others to Remain Away From Chicago.

"Working men, beware! Do not go to Chicago; there is a strike on there."

A sign worded as above, and painted at the order of the executive committee of the Duluth Federated Trades' assembly, will be seen on the streets of Duluth this evening and tomorrow. It will probably be carried up and down Michigan street, in front of the row of employment agencies, in an effort to keep strike-breakers from leaving this city for Chicago.

The employment agents, whose offices have been used in securing men to work as teamsters in Chicago assert that they have in no way broken the city ordinance, and that such recruits as have been secured have enlisted in the strike-breaking service with full knowledge of what they were doing. Thirty more men were sent out yesterday, in addition to the fifty-nine who left Saturday evening.

The Trades' assembly will probably go no farther than to do what they can to prevail upon men to stay away from Chicago, and it is not considered likely that the employment agents in question will be prosecuted for a violation of the ordinance. The form of agreement which the strike-breakers are requested to sign before they are furnished with transportation to Chicago, reads as follows:

"We, the undersigned, hereby apply for positions as teamsters in Chicago, to receive $3.50 a day and board as long as the strike lasts. Transportation is to be furnished from Duluth to Chicago, and if we work until the strike is settled, return transportation is to be given. We are willing and prepared to do any sort of teaming assigned to us."

The employment agent whose office is used in getting the men asserts that his firm has nothing to do with enlisting men in the strike-breaking service, merely allowing the representative of the Chicago Employers' association quarters in the office temporarily while in the city.

The agent says that the proposed new ordinance, forbidding the solicitation of labor without a license, cannot be made legal, but that such a law would be more of a benefit to the employment agents than anything else, by keeping out the curbstone solicitors.

No Word of Man Hunt.

Since Deputy Sheriff Owen Gately left Saturday for Eveleth to join in the pursuit which is being instituted in the northern swamps and forests for Michael Capen, the alleged murderer of Frand Polcar, no word has been received at the sheriff's office as to the progress that has been made. It is believed that the man-hunt may have proceeded to some distance from any of the range towns or points where there is telephonic or telegraphic communication and that for this reason it may be a day or two longer before any word is had from the officers.

CHECKING OVER BIGELOW'S ASSETS.

Milwaukee, May 29.—Frank G. Bigelow, the defaulting bank president, was examined at length today before the referee in bankruptcy. A list of Bigelow's assets covering many typewritten pages were gone over from start to end, each item being taken separately. As each item was read, Mr. Bigelow answered as to the value. A large number of assets such as mining stocks were pronounced without value. Other items were appraised at their face and still others were pronounced to have depreciated to the extent of half or more of their supposed value. Mr. Bigelow's attorney after the examination said he could not make an estimate of the value of the assets.

CHINA'S PROGRESS.

The fact of Chinese progess in Western methods cannot be denied, says Professor Jeremiah W. Jenks, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews. The further fact, that this progress will soon be greatly intensified, is also beyond question. It is, therefore, important to inquire what are the motives of the Chinese government in encouraging this development. The motives determine the use, hostile or friendly, to be made of the new power. Are the Chinese enamored of Western learning? Do they humbly think that they are being improved by the adoption of Western manners? Quiet conversation with friendly Chinese who have confidence in your discretion and sympathy will soon dispel any such belief.

The humiliating experiences of 1895 and 1900 showed the Chinese that in war they were no match for the Westerners. The loss of territory to France, to England, to Germany, to Russia, to Japan, within the last few years, and the aggressive threats of the representatives of most of these powers at different times, convinced them that China, as a territorial and governmental entity, would soon cease to exist if they did not make themselves able to resist foreign aggression; have convinced them, therefore, of the absolute necessity of adopting foreign learning so far as it is necessary to strengthen them for war.

Those of the Chinese who have studied abroad, and have become familiar with the foreign home and with the moral excellence of some of the Western doctrines as actually lived by some of the best of the foreign people, believe that in many individual particulars Western customs are superior to their own, but this belief is by no means general even among the higher classes, and probably, with scarcely an exception, they all believe that in many individual particulars Western customs are superior to their own, but this belief is by no means general even among the higher classes, and probably, with scarcely an exception, they all believe that in very many respects the Chinese civilization, and particularly the Chinese ideals of life, are superior.

The Chinese are making little effort to cultivate Western art, to study Western literature, to adopt the Western religions, to adopt even Western methods of government, except so far as these things contribute directly to their power of resistance to Western aggregession It is probably not at all unjust to conclude that the Chinese are not adopting Western methods because they recognize their essential superiority, but because they will thereby be better enabled to meet the Westerners on even terms in the contest which they believe to be inevitable for the protection of Chinese territory and of Chinese civilization. But the Chinese are not aggressive, and there is every reason to believe that nations that are willing to do justice will receive from them just treatment in return.

A LARGE COMPANY.

Harper's Weekly: "I heard a story the other day about an advance agent," said Maclyn Arbuckle of Henry W. Savage's "The County Chairman" company, "which proves the audacity of some of these gentlemen. This agent was operating in a small town in the interior of a Western state, and the following dialogue took place:

"'What style of piece is your show?' questioned the local manager.

"'Farce comedy,' replied the publicity-promoter.

"'How many people do you carry?'

"'Seventy.'

"The manager was astonished, and the report was circulated all around the village, coming in the course of time to the ears of the hotel keeper. When the advance agent went to make arrangements for his people he found the tavern in a chaotic state. Lumber was being pulled out of rooms that had long been unused, and the landlord was running distractedly up and down stairs.

"'I hear you carry seventy people,' said he. 'By puttin' some in the kitchen and movin' the melodeon out of the settin' room I can take care of forty. The rest of 'em we can put away over the drug store and down at Mis' Ricketts. Seventy people! That's a whole lot of show folks.'

"'Don't worry, my friend,' said the agent. 'We do carry seventy people, but fifty of them are painted on the back drop.'"

TAXING MORTGAGES.

The proposed attempt to tax the mortgages owned by residents of this county is an ineffectual attempt to do something that cannot be done, and that should not be done if it were possible.

The attempt appears to have arisen because of the passage of two laws by the late lamented legislature. One, chapter 61, requires the register of deeds to furnish the county auditor annually with a list of real estate mortgages owned locally. The other, chapter 86, requires among other things that the county auditor shall distribute the lists of locally-owned mortgages among the assessors.

The impression seems to be that these are new laws, when as a matter of fact the only new thing about either of them is the addition of a few words to one that undoubtedly makes it unconstitutional and invalid. The law requiring the register of deeds to prepare a list of mortgages has been on the statute books since 1878, as a part of the law from which chapter 86, requiring the auditor to give the lists to the assessor, is copied. The only new thing in chapter 86 is a provision that mortgages owned by banks shall not be included in the lists which the auditor is to furnish the assessors. All the rest is nearly thirty years old, and during all of its life no attempt to enforce it was made until attention was called to it by its re-enactment.

The provision that bank-owned mortgages shall not be included, in the opinion of one of the most prominent attorneys in Duluth, is a violation of the constitution, which prescribes that taxation shall be equal on all classes of property. It is an attempt to create a favored class of mortgages out of those owned by banks, and therefore not worth the paper it is written upon.

So much for the cause of the attempt to tax mortgages. As to the merits of the proposition, there are none. The Herald has already pointed out that a mortgage tax is bad because the land covered by the mortgage has already paid a tax, and the mortgage tax is double taxation. It is bad, too, because the owner of the land, who is the mortgagor, will have to pay whatever tax is collected, either through increased rates of interest or through provisions in future mortgages such as most trust deeds now include, that the owners of the property shall pay all taxes on the mortgages. It is bad, too, because it discriminates against the local money-owner that invests in local mortgages. If he invests in outside mortgages he pays no tax. If outsiders invest in Duluth mortgages they pay no tax. Only the Duluth man that invests in a Duluth mortgage suffers. The result would be that property-owners would borrow money outside, or Duluth money-loaners would lend their money through outsiders, to escape taxation. There would be no Duluth-owned mortgages if the proposed policy were followed out.

The reason assigned by the city assessor for assessing mortgages is that the law required it and he had no option. Therefore, to make it as light as possible, he would assess them at one-third their value, making the tax 1 per cent instead of 3 per cent, the normal tax. If the city assessor is bound to observe the letter of the law, he should assess all property, including mortgages, at their actual value, and he must require every owner of personal property to swear to his returns. All household goods, stocks of merchandise, everything, must be returned at its full value. The law distinctly says that mortgages shall be assessed at their face value. Here is the law, practically as it has been since 1866:

Section 1536 of the Revised Statutes of 1894 says: "All property shall be assessed at its true and full value in money. In determining the true and full value of real or personal property the assessor shall not adopt a lower or different standard of value because the same is to serve as a basis of taxation; nor shall he adopt as a criterion of value the price for which said property would sell at auction, or at a forced sale, or in the aggregate with all the property in the town or district; but he shall value each article or description by itself, and at such sum or price as he believes the same to be fairly worth in money. * * * Every credit for a sum certain, payable either in money, property of any kind, labor or services, shall be valued at the full price of the same so payable."

If the law which has been consistently violated in the interests of fair play and justice since 1866 must be observed in Duluth, it should be observed to the letter. Therefore a $3,000 mortgage must not be assessed at $1,000, as the city assessor proposes, but at $3,000, as the law distinctly states.

Until the constitution is so framed that a fair tax may be levied, however, it will be fairer to property-owners, fairer to the city which will suffer if all investment business is driven away, and fairer to all concerned, if mortgages are not assessed at all, as in the past.

THE TOWN KNOCKER.

The whole tribe of "knockers" is a pestiferous outfit anyway, but about the most contemptible of the family is the fellow that consistently "knocks" his home town. The consistent "booster" is worth fifty of him any day to any town.

Fortunately Duluth has not so many of the species as she had in darker days, but every town has some, and this city is probably not an exception to this rule. As every specimen is a detriment to his community, it is well that every possible effort should be put forth to discourage them.

A community is not a mere collection of houses and people that happened to come together in the same general neighborhood. It is vastly more than that. It is something with individuality, with its good points and its bad points, something to love, to be proud of and to work for. Its individuality is the sum of the characteristics of its environments and of its constituent humanity. Whether that individuality is good or bad depends upon whether its elements are good or bad. Every good element tends to make a good town, and every weakness tends to make the town weaker.

The man that is proud of his town and that is willing to work for its upbuilding is a valuable element, while the man that sits back and "knocks" is worse than worthless. He is a traitor to the community that shelters and feeds him.

But to criticise the weak points in a community and to endeavor to strengthen them does not make a "knocker." The best "booster" is the one that sees the weak points and helps to make them right. It is the one that contents himself with howling about the bad things, that overlooks the good things, and that never attempts to improve conditions, that is the real "knocker."

A real "knocker" in a community is like a rotten brick in a building. He is an element of weakness, and if there are enough like him they will cause the structure to crumble away and degenerate into a heap of ruins.

"Boost," but don't "knock," your home community.

PUSH THE CENSUS.

Next Thursday the actual work of taking the census in St. Louis county will begin, and every possible assistance should be given to the enumerators, not only in Duluth but throughout the county. The preliminary work has been such as to promise that a thorough canvass will be made, and that all the superintendent and his assistants can do to make it a success will be done.

They will not be able to do it all, however. Every citizen should be interested in seeing that the count is complete, and if he sees a chance to ensure that it is complete he should not overlook it. Through misunderstanding, usually, there are impediments in the way of a thorough count. Some people do not understand the purpose of the census, and imagine that it is something that is going to involve expense or trouble later. Others hesitate to give up facts because of a fear that they will be generally circulated. Those who know the real situation should lose no opportunity to disabuse the minds of such people. While the facts called for are sometimes distinctly personal, they are not to be made public except in the mass. The state does not care how old a woman is, but it does want to know how many women there are of her age in the state. The facts as to individuals are not made public, but are simply added with those as to other individuals and the totals only are published.

Every city, every village, every township; every city, village or township officer; every public or private association; every newspaper and every citizen, should join hands to make the census complete.

DEATH IN THE CUP.

Samples of the liquors sold in Duluth have recently been collected, and have been sent to St. Paul for analysis by the state dairy and food department. The same thing has been done in the other communities of this county. So long as men will use whisky, it is one of the functions of the state to compel dealers to give them stuff that is as pure as may be made, and it is to be hoped that nothing will prevent the department's giving the matter a thorough sifting, followed by prompt and vigorous action where the facts developed warrant such action.

The Herald has before pointed out the evils of impure and adulterated whisky. The best whisky, when abused, leads to enough evil, without the state's permitting whisky full of the rankest poisons to be passed over the bars. It is said that stuff is made in Duluth, for sale here and elsewhere, that costs but a few cents per gallon, because it is made up of cheap and evil adulterations, prolific in hideous results. It carries madness and death, and every man found making it or selling it should be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law.

THE FIELD SURVEY.

Down in Texas, when the legislature adjourned, members had to sell their per diem warrants at a discount. In Minnesota they got that long, green stuff that goes for face value anywhere.

Patti's voice, it is said, has earned her $5,000,000. It seems as though it would be worth that much if some people would just keep still.

It is said that 70 per cent of the pill product of this country is made in Detroit, which is therefore entitled to the name of the "Pill City." Fortunately, little of the output is consumed at home.

It has developed, as a result of a clever check forgery in the East, that five of the best check forgers in the country are pensioned by the American Bankers' association upon their agreement not to forge any more checks. Most of us do not get our pay for being good in that way.

There has been another increase in the price of diamonds, so it will cost the young man more than it would if he had bought that engagement ring a little while ago. The price can never get so high as to make diamonds worth more than being engaged, however.

If your life is monotonous, and your system demands excitement, you might take note of the fact that there is once more an opening in Chicago for the innocent bystander, who leads a life of peril singularly inconsistent with his dove-like, inoffensive character.

The Gary Graphic takes issue with The Herald on the policy of raising poppies in this country, and says that it will not make any difference in the use of opium if the farmers make a little money raising poppies. This sounds like the argument that "if I don't sell it, somebody else will," which the saloon man is said to make when his business is attacked.

The Owatonna Journal said that the woman behind the apron exercises more influence than the man behind the gun; the Mankato Free Press added that the woman behind the rolling pin is not so slow; whereupon the Fairmont Sentinel cynically remarks that the woman behind the tongue can put them all to route.

From Minnesota exchanges comes the news of a general campaign that threatens to bring trouble upon the yellow head of the persistent dandelion.

The Weather.

"The loggers and pulp wood cutters in some parts of the continent appear to get along no better together than the sheepmen and cattlemen do in others," said G. D. Grace of Minneapolis at the Spalding. "A vigorous protest recently came from the British Columbia Loggers' association against the proposed action of the provincial government in leasing nearly 175,000 acres of land to the Pacific Coast Paper & Pulp company, on the ground that the property in question contains timber of more value to lumbermen than to pulp manufacturers.

"The loggers' association, through its secretary-treasurer and president, has asked that the government fully investigate the condition of the timber on the land before granting the lease. The loggers assert that they are willing to employ an expert cruiser, to work with another expert employed by the government, to go over the proposed grant in order to be able to make an intelligent report concerning the class of timber standing on the land. The lumbermen claim that the forests in that section are made up largely of cedar, which is of considerable importance to loggers and millmen of the coast."

"The rapid advancement the West is making is evidenced by the fact that in the state of Washington alone there are now half a dozen projects for electric lines in different parts of the state, several of them paralleling steam roads," said J. S. Holmes of Seattle at the Lenox. "Different opportunities for investment are offered in as many sections as there are projects, the promotion of connections by electric lines between the smaller towns and through productive territory having grown to be a business that appeals particularly to communities which would be benefited.

"A scheme for traversing the Big Bottom country has recently been presented to the Commercial club of Centralia, but was not regarded at the time as having a business ring to it and was allowed to go by default. Another project for getting business out of Lewis county by the construction of a road is now being considered, and the Centralia people have expressed themselves as interested, the chances being that the scheme will be pushed through.

"In Davenport there are three plans on paper to build in as many directions."

"The United States appears to be getting the worst of it in matters of immigration," said J. S. Elson of Winnipeg at the St. Louis. "She is losing some of her best citizens and gaining many of Europe's worst. Thousands of Americans are pouring into the Canadian Northwest. The movement of people from this side of the line into Canada has not been in the least checked by all the newspaper talk against it.

"While this exodus of Americans is going on the immigrants from Europe continue to arrive in unprecedented numbers. The people seeking Canadian farm lands are of that fine class which did so much toward redeeming the West from the Wilderness, and who carry into their new homes not only the habits and traditions of this country, but also substantial sums of good American money. One week is not fairly provided with capital is an exception.

"On the other hand the inpouring immigrants are for the most part from sections of Europe whose people have been found most difficult to assimilate in the United States, and who have contributed far more than their proportionate share to the country's criminal and pauper population. It seems to be a one-sided bargain.

"There appears to be no end to Winnipeg's boom. The town's growth is a solid and substantial one, and there is little danger of a disastrous breaking of the boom. Business in all lines is good. The city has the right kind of backing to be a success, and every month this backing is added to and made stronger, largely through the medium of the men and women who recently were residents of the United States. The great Canadian Northwest is settling up at a rapid rate. It is a good country, with fine possibilities."

Up to Malachi.

Everybody's Magazine: He was an exceeding fine type of what is called the old school clergyman, with a deep-seated conviction of the value of what he had to say and no earthly conception of the value of time. He had been preaching for upward of two hours when he sidled up to what his congregation hopefully thought was meant for a peroration. But their expectations were dashed when he went on:

"And, now, brethren, having assigned the major Hebrew prophets to their relative places in sacred history, we will now proceed to discuss the minor prophets."

Which same he did with earnest emphasis for an hour and a half before he slowed down, and again congregational hope arose, though weakly. The preacher paused, drew a long breath, and proceeded:

"And now, brethren, having assigned both the major and minor Hebrew prophets to their logical positions in sacred history, what place, I ask you, shall we give Malachi?"

At this point a weary, but polite stranger arose in a back pew and placing his right hand on his shirt bosom, bowed profoundly. "Malachi," he said with a Chesterfieldian air, "Malachi may have my place. I am going home."

Had a Chance to Find Out.

Cleveland Leader: While in Texas not long ago James Barton Adams, the author, fell in with an old cattleman, who sang without end the praises of the Lone Star state. "You are not of the same opinion as regards Texas that Sheridan was," observed Adams. "What opinion was that?" inquired the cattleman. "Why, he said that if he owned a farm in Texas and one in hades, he'd sell the one in Texas, as he would rather live in hades." "No, I ain't of that opinion," observed the cattleman, thoughtfully, "and I'll bet Sheridan has changed his mind by this time."

Greatness of Hindsight.

Philadelphia Press: Gen. Linevitch says he could have won the battle of Mukden, which Gen. Kuropatkin lost. Certainly, and when Gen. Linevitch loses a battle see how promptly Gen. Kuropatkin will come forward and say he could have won it. Generals will be generals.

Hotel Gossip.

A Sunday that was full of climatic delights brought the people out yesterday by thousands, fleeing from the city into the parks, the suburbs and the woods as though the city were plague-stricken. Conditions were charming, and when the city folks got to the woods they found them arrayed in their finest. The leaves are near enough to their full growth to add the most delicate shades of green to the darker tints of the evergreens, and the new grass and the May flowers made the foot-ways paths of delight. The cherry trees were just bursting into bloom, scattering their faint fragrance lavishly upon the breezes. So were the June berries, which are evidently so called because they flower in May and fruit in August.

The air was exquisitely fresh and clean and cool and wholesome. The sun was warm and mellow, the breezes were kind and gentle, and altogether the day was a procession of hours full of pleasure.

This morning the sky was overcast, and the wind showed eastern tendencies, but it was not cold, and the sun was enough in earnest so that its rays pushed their way through the clouds occasionally, and made things congenial.

The wind isn't due to stay long in the northeast. The prediction is that it will shift to the northwest early tomorrow, and that it will be warmer again. There will also be showers tonight and possibly Tuesday.

The Million Creditors.

New York World: Paradoxical as it may sound, the creditor classes of the United States are the people with little credit. The depositors in a bank, trust or insurance company or building-loan association far outnumber the borrowers.

In the savings banks alone 7,305,443 depositors are creditors to the amount of their deposits—$3,060,178,611. In the 15,000 banks, loan and trust companies of the United States the amounts due depositors aggregate over $12,000,000,000. All told there are over 10,000,000 depositors.

The amount of money in the United States is less than $3,000,000,000, and the amount in circulation is only $32 per capita. Even this includes national-bank notes, which are not legal-tender money, but only evidence of the banks' indebtedness guaranteed by United States bonds.

Thus there is payable either on demand or on short notice many times as many dollars as there are dollars to pay with. If all the small creditors should simultaneously demand payment of their savings, as Mr. Lawson suggests, every banking institution in the United States would have to default, and the calling of bank loans would cause the failure of the majority of high financiers. The wealth of the rich debtors would be wiped out by the fall in the value of the stocks and bonds which they would be forced to unload on a demoralized market. Not only high finance would topple to its destruction, but all the legitimate business structure which is dependent upon bank credits would crumble in widespread ruin.

But while condemning Lawson's frenzied and vicious advice, it is well to present the truth—that the savings of the many constitute the real working capital and the honest wealth of the United States, and that these millions are entitled to protection against fraud by their debtors in capitalizing monopoly instead of investment, in issuing ficticious securities and in creating artificial values.

Camping With Nature.

There are times when existence means something
Far more than a skirmish for bread—
When the heart is afiood with pure sunshine,
Though dark are the skies overhead;
When the evil that lurks in our nature
Has stolen away to its sleep,
Like a river that showeth no ripple
Though dark are its water and deep,
It is when we are camping with nature,
Alone in fair solitude's arms,
Far remote from the strife of the rabble
And lost to society's charms.
It is then that the soul strong ariseth,
Escaping from thraldom's dark shroud,
Then the silence of earth is sweet music
And solitude maketh a crowd.

"A Gentleman" in America.

New York Sun: Neither a poor man nor a rich man is or can be "a gentleman" in America, in the sense of the term as used in a monarchical country or under an aristocratic system of society. The word "gentleman" is unknown to our law. In the sense of expressing moral qualities, the only sense in which it can be used, the term "gentleman" applies, of course, to every man entitled intrinsically to receive it as a designation of courtesy; but even in that usage it is a term so vague and indefinable that it is not worth talking about. It may be said, however, never to apply properly to any American who boasts of being a "gentleman" because of any accident of his mere material circumstance, or to any American who is troubled in mind lest, on account of them, he should not receive the title. If anybody in America is not a gentleman, it is his own fault.

Just Try Us.

John D.
Junior, he Says he'll withdraw from the mo-nop-oly;
People proclaim that its money is tainted
And it doesn't look nice for a man who is sainted
To handle it, so
Out he will go—
Now isn't it thoughtful of young John D?

John D.
Junior, we
Ain't so particular; try us and see
Think we could hold down the job, so if you
Would like to exchange we are willing all through Just drop us a line
To box 40—
And we'll come with our collar box, Mr. John D.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Fertile Journal: President James J. Hill says that the Panama canal will not hurt the railways. Mr. Hill does not see the point. No one wants the canal to hurt the railways. It is not only hoped that it will prevent the railways from hurting certain sections of the country.

Eveleth Star: Lord, Bower, Jones, Nolan and a dozen others talked of for governor. But don't be discomposed. The list will grow rapidly in a short time.

Elbow Lake Herald: Ray Jones, lieutenant governor, says he may be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. John A. Johnson's supporters are not objecting.

Stephen Leader: Perhaps the president by practicing on common bears was just getting his hand in preparatory to an attack on the Wall street variety.

Torah Standard: The persistent advertiser is the most successful advertiser. You may impress a few people by advertising just once. You may make a sale occasionally in that way. But if you wish to convince the great mass of people, you must keep pounding your claims into their heads.

Madison Independent Press: Say, young man, there is no place in this world for the idle. Loafing about town, holding down a soft spot somewhere during the hours you should be at work at some remunerative employment, and crossing your legs three times a day beneath a table which no effort of yours has helped to provide with the staff of life, but which represents so much of brain and muscle of your father and mother, will never make anything of you other than a fit candidate for the state prison. Get a move on you. Don't be an idler.

Granite Falls Tribune: Without any desire to prohibit the needful and healthful outdoor exercise all children need and are given all too freely in too many instances, we would caution parents about allowing their children the freedom of the streets after nightfall as is too often the case. No good comes from what they see and hear after dark on the streets. They meet companions more or less congenial who frequently entice them to wrong doing and very soon parents lose all control of their children.

Little Falls Herald: The Wisconsin legislature has at last passed a railroad commission bill satisfactory to La Follette. The "little anarchist" has triumphed at last. And with him triumphed the people.

Paynesville Press: There are evidences of a lively congressional campaign in the Sixth district next year. In the list of ligibles mentioned thus early may be found Ripley Brower, Frank Eddy and A. L. Cole. Any of these gentlemen would be able to keep Congressman Buckman out of mischief next summer.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel-Free Press: No doubt that the man who said it would take 200 years to build the Panama canal got the project mixed with an effort to smash the Standard Oil trust.

Virginia Enterprise: "Times" are good in Virginia, this year and we would admonish our citizens to lay up something for a rainy day—even though it be nothing more than a borrowed umbrella.

Brainerd Arena: This proposition to purchase Panama canal supplies in the open markets of the world, may develop into such a debatable proposition that the senate will be unable to find time to properly consider railroad rates.

Wabasha Herald: Our chief reason for listening to Wagner music is that it makes us appreciate all the more the music always played as an encore.

Crookston Journal: Good manners pay even if they do not make friends, because we cannot try to make others happy and to radiate sunshine without feeling better and purer ourselves.

Brainerd Tribune: Highwaymen in Portland, Oregon, wear full evening dress. This is exposition year, and the whole population intends to show that the town is up-to-date.

Big Fork Compass: By the way the state press is jumping on ex-Governor Van Sant, it is time for some hero to rise and claim the honor of having been the original anti-van santer.

"Cut-Foot" Pete Laments.

A. M. Greeley in Bemidji Pioneer: "Some of them green guys that come into the woods looking for claims give me a pain in the back," says Cut Foot Pete vehemently. "I have no time for a man who eats soup with a needle, nohow. I eat rabbit with the hair on and trim its boues pretty fine myself.

"So durn many sky cruisers and fool dudes are breaking into the woods now, with their pockets full of plats and hunting cheap information, that I am 'bout ready to pull out. Met a guy last fall prancing through the swamp with gloves on and packing a parasol. That knocked me silly at the first dash, but I come to in time to grab him and slam him into the mud. He's sticking there yet far's I know.

"They come from all parts of the Union and some from Iowa. They think they can get a claim right in town with street cars running across it, and they want pine on it so thick that you have to grease yourself to get through it. They are about as shy of sense as oleomargarine is of cow.

"One fellow with a mosquito-bar overcoat stuck to my tracks last week like a weasel to a henroop.

"He wanted a claim bad and I waltzed him over hell's half acre, trying to shake him off gently. I put soap in his coffee and soaked the pork in kerosene before feeding him, but he stayed by me like a Democrat hangs to a office. Finally one night at a stopping place, while he heaved a few snores, I slipped a fat porcupine under his blanket. He was a sound sleeper, but his rest was broken some. The next morn his clothes would hardly go on. He hit the trail for his happy home outside. He said he liked the woods all right and could stand hardships pretty well, but he lost heart when he ran agin backwoods bedbugs. Said he'd been bit by bedbugs at home, but he had never before met the breed that would bite to the bone and then would jab in a stake to mark the hole they had made."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: When a man gets in debt he has a chance to get out by dying.

With the aid of dressmakers a woman can have a figure without shape.

Being good is mostly an accident of there being no chance for the other thing.

It's pretty exciting to think how fond of a woman you could be if you weren't married to her.

It is hardly worth while to pretend to be as surprised at a thing you know as of one you do.

Washington Star: "Do you favor government ownership of railways?"

"No," answered the man who travels. "Some of the porters are haughty enough now. I don't know what they would be if they were to loom up as government officials."

Columbus Dispatch: "Why," answered the inquisitive person, "do you think the world is growing wiser?"

"Because of a statement I read in a newspaper to the effect that lobsters are getting scarce," answered the student of cause and effect."

Philadelphia Press: "What business is Miss Gaddie in?"

"Oh, she's in everybody's business."

"Ah! Wholesale, eh?"

"Yes; except when it comes to a scandal. She retails that."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "I see that New York talks of giving the mayorality to President Roosevelt when he finishes his present job."

"That's just like the New Yorkers, they think they are offering him a promotion."

Cleveland Leader: Barber—Razor all right, sir?

Patient—I wouldn't know I was being shaved.

Barber—Thank you, sir.

Patient—It's more like being flayed, you know.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "I see that Mayor Dunne of Chicago has refused to accept any railway passes."

"I suppose it's too early for him to take a vacation."

Collier's Weekly: "What reason does he give for not paying his wife alimony?"

"He says that marriage is a lottery, and hence alimony is a gambling debt."

Cincinnati Enquirer: Mrs. Bickering—There you go again! You are always finding fault.

Bickering—That's right, my dear. And I'll never forget the day I found you.

Philadelphia Ledger: "We don't hear so much nowadays about that fluuid air."

"No, I guess most of what we used to hear was merely hot air."

Detroit Free Press: "That after-dinner speaker took everybody off their feet, didn't he?"

"It was the only thing left for him to do; they were off in their heads before he began to talk!"

Fads in Schools.

New York World: The New York Globe has performed a public service by polling some thousands of parents on the question whether the so-called "fads" should be retained in the schools. Subject to the inevitable inaccuracies of such polls, the result seems conclusive. Parents demand that the special studies shall stay.

The affirmative vote is strongest where it should be strongest—6,656 to 841 for physical training. There is no question whatever that there should be bodily culture for the children of the crowded city. The only problem is how best to supply it.

The vote for drawing is 6,267 to 1,068, for music 6,341 to 1,080; even for sewing the verdict is 5,306 to 1,720, but apparently less than a majority would care to have boys taught to sew.

One and all, practically every parent wishes this to be understood: "Provided that the essentials do not suffer from neglect." What are the essentials? And how shall they be kept from suffering, with the multiplicity of demands for special training and for the shortening of the time devoted to ordinary studies? These are not easy problems.

Where They'd Be Handy.

Gen. Miles has a story of a corporal in a regiment under his command in the old Indian-fighting days. This corporal was much chaffed by his comrades for his oft-repeated expressions of belief in "fatality" and "destiny."

One days it appears that the corporal, while off duty, was preparing to take a little hoseback exercise and recreation. A private observed that the corporal took care to attach a brace of pistols to his saddle. "Hello!" shouted a private to the corporal, "what are you taking the guns for? They won't save you, if your time has come?"

"True for you," grimly responded the corporal; "but I may happen to meet an Apache whose last day has come."

Life's Drawbacks.

Oh, these are joyous, happy days,
Each morning dawneth clear,
And every bird that sings a song
Doth sing a song of cheer.
The house is banked around with blooms
Of roses white and red,
And, oh, the grass is velvet soft
And grateful to the tread;
The morns are cool, the noons are warm
And pregnant with delight,
And—darn my skin! I recollect—
That ice bill's due tonight!

I like to rise at early morn
And hear the caroling
Of birds the while the day is born,
I love to hear them sing;
I love to see the sparkling dew
Upon the green lawn spread,
And see the dew-washed skies of blue
Spread their arch overhead;
Forget-me-nots, all nestled low,
Do fill me with delight—
Oh, darn it all! I've got to mow
That measly lawn tonight!

How the Railroads Tested the Bohn Refrigerator.

Before the Pullman Company and the great railroads adopted the Bohn Syphon System of refrigeration they gave it many tests. Cars of fruit were sent from California to New York. The fruit in the Bohn cars was better kept and brought the highest price. The cost of ice was less than in any other car.

In dining cars the Bohn Refrigerators kept food longest, were more easily cleaned, used least ice and maintained lowest temperature.

We sell these wonderful refrigerators exclusively and will take them back after ten days' trial and refund money if not satisfactory. The Bohn Refrigerators are economy by the year and they cost little more than so-called "cheap" refrigerators. Come in and see them.

Thorson started in to pitch for the Duluth men, and after a bad spell in the first inning, did well until the end of the seventh. FIFTEEN ARE POISONED

Boarders Made Ill By Eating Some Unknown Poison.

Fifteen boarders at O. O. Carlson's place at 328 St. Croix avenue, were attacked with nauseau as the result, it is believed, of eating some poisonous matter contained in the food served for breakfast yesterday morning.

The boarders began to be sick shortly before noon, the symptoms being vomiting and a violent headache. Dr. T. D. Tilderquist was summoned and administered antidotes. Most of the patients recovered after a few hours' illness, and experienced no bad effects.

The berakfast yesterday consisted of eggs, milk, toast, Frankfort sausage, bread, cake and coffee. It was thought at first that the sausage was to blame, but two boarders who had not eaten it were sick. Milk was the only article that was taken by all, although some of them had it only in their coffee.

The following were the persons who were affected by the mysterious poison: O. O. Carlson, William Westerlund, Elmer Nappa, Jonas Uro, Andrew Haaken, Otto Laine, Amos Smith, Otto Raingan, Richard Haaken, Ethel Drakla, Peter Corby, Gust Heli - David Anderson, Rano Salo and the 14-months'-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Carlson.

Crookston, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Rotten, rotten," were the jeers and jibes of the thousand or more people who witnessed Saturday's ball game between the White Sox and Crooks, and Umpire Long was hooted from the grounds to his hotel by the mad angry mob eager to "mob" him for rank decisions upon both sides. In the ninth inning, with the score 5 to 1 in favor of Duluth, three men on bases for Crookston and a heavy hitter up to bat, Long called Leighty out on home plate, when, according to the unanimous opinion of the stand, he was safe by four feet. The crowd went wild with rage over the injustice of the act, and but for police interference it is probable that serious trouble would have resulted. The game was one of the most exciting of the season here. Sorenson for the locals did fine work in the box, but the support in left field and infield was disheartening.

In the first Bennett took a base on balls from Sorenson, Weller struck out. Menelce took the same medicine with three of Sorenson's twisters, and "Artie" made a clean swat to center which brought in Bennett and the first run of the game.

Through the second there was nothing doing but a continuous procession. In the third Weller and O'Dea came in on Leighty's error and Menelce made second on the same misplay. Sorenson got in his work, however, and the base-running stopped. Crookston went out one, two, three for various reasons, either strikeouts or pop-ups. In the fourth McAleese fanned, McShane bunted to Leighty and the error column was, for a wonder, not graced. Erickson went out on Sorenson's out-twist, and Crookston came up for the first score on their side of the board. Livingstone made first on a pretty single, a bunt to McShane which was too slow to catch him at first. Koltenback struck out, Schlatter went out on a foul, Livingstone stole second prettily and came in on Ludvig's liner to left. Leighty struck out, or Ludvig might have come in from second.

The remainder of the game up to the first of the ninth was a series of goose eggs for both teams, and a battle royal between the "spittiers," Sorenson did pretty work and came in for the liberal applause of the large crowd attending the game. He has a whirlwind throw which is a puzzler to even Artie O'Dea's terrible bunch, and with proper support in the box, first base and short, would have won his game easily.

In the ninth McAleese for Duluth landed a pretty "slow ball" without the customary Sorenson twist and sent it clean over the fence and into the river nearly a quarter of a mile away. McShane, the next Duluth man up, went to the bench on a fly. Erickson made a sweeping line drive to center which went through several hands, Bennett went through short for a single handily. Weller took one on balls and Menelce hit a pretty one, bringing in Erickson and the final score.

The score stood 5 to 1 in favor of the White Sox at this stage of the game, and the local fans were doing an almighty power of rooting for the home team when Livingstone came up to bat and landed a two-bagger to left. Koltenback hit a little one into Artie's paw, and in the scrimmage which resulted from a wild throw and passed ball Livingstone scored. Excitement at this stage of the game was intense. With one man left, Schlatter lifted a peach, Ludvig singled prettily and Leighty singled through short. Sperry up to bat and a heavy hitter brought a feeling of relief and put up the odds on Crookston's chances. Ludvig went dead on second trying to steal a base, and Leighty coming in on home was pronounced "out" by his umps, when, in the opinion of the entire crowd of onlookers, he was safe by at least four feet. The grand stand swept into the diamond and a grand rush would have been made for the lengthy gentleman "Long" had he not ducked under cover of the under house and vamoosed. The crowd then turned, and catching him at the other entrance of the park, surrounded him, hooted, jeered, threw pebbles and generally made life miserable with "Rotten-egg him," "You robber," "Thief," "Bought body and soul" and kindred cries. Down town about the streets the mob followed until he had reached his hotel, when policemen were summoned to disperse the angry gathering. Feeling is intense over the alleged rank decision at the end and at others throughout the game, and if Long appears at a Crookston game again he will want to be armed with a coat of mail and a Gattling gun.

Duluth outplayed Crookston at every point in yesterday's game except at bat. The Crookston team batted the ball all over the field, but were unfortunate in placing them. Reeves at short had his boots on all the time and at critical times and was assisted in his good work of muffing by nearly every man on the team. Schlatter played a star game at first as did Olson in left field, the latter spoiling what looked like two good hits. Brennan pitched good ball allowing but four hits. He tossed the ball over first base about ten feet on one occasion after a ball had been batted to him, the play costing two scores. He also allowed too much base stealing and was evidently disheartened at the support given him.

Duluth played a snappy game throughout and the men exceptionally fast on the bases. Neighbors made two of the four hits. Duluth did not make an earned run, but took advantage of every error made during the game.

As a result of Reeves' slow work he was released tonight. Ludvig will play third instead of right field, Leighty will go from third to short and Fitzsimmons will play in the right garden.

President Kent came over from Grand Forks to watch the work of Umpire Long, which was much better yesterday. The attendance at the game was exceptionally large.

BREAK EVEN.

Fargo and Grand Forks Each Take One.

Fargo, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Saturday afternoon it was simply a case of the locals being outplayed in all departments of the game by Grand Forks. The visitors made more hits and naturally won the game with ease. Houcks was up for the Forkers and was found for only a half a dozen hits, all singles, but Troh's triple. He was steady when he needed to be, one time leaving three of Fargo's men on the base lines. Hanson worked hard for Farso. He never let up a minute despite his poor support. Some of the scores, however, were directly due to his own work in hitting Varco and allowing three bases on balls. In the eighth he let down and four hits with his own error and that of French, coupled with some weird throwing around the bases let in a quartet of scores that Grand Forks did not really need.

The batting order was again given a shaking up but the hoodoo still did business at the same old stand. The score:

Fargo, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—It was a pitcher's battle at the league park yesterday afternoon and Berrigan for Fargo had the best of it, winning 2 to 0 in a brilliant game. The contest was a regular league game.

Berrigan nor Converse allowed but three hits each, and each man issued one pass, but Fargo bunched on Converse in the sixth. Jarvie was first up and drove a hot one to Varco, which the little Minnesota U. boy booted just long enough for the catcher to register on the initial sack. Berrigan dumped a small one to the pitcher which sacrificed Jarvie half way around. Donovan made a desperate effort to knock the cover off, but a bounder to the pitcher retired him at first. With two gone and a man on the lines "Pinch-Hitter Bill" Mehl marched to the plate and binged the first ball over, for two sacks and Jarvie raced home.

Rose came up determined to follow the illustrious example set by his sawed-off predecessor and made an awful smash for a single to center. The ball was going so fast it got through Spike Anderson's pins and rolled clear to the fence, Mehl racing home and Rose reaching third corner. That was all the run getting in the game.

It was a case of the Forkers bunching both their errors in one inning and Fargo getting two of her three hits and her only sacrifice at the same time.

The game was perhaps one of the most brilliant ever played on the local grounds. Both teams did snappy work and the contest was ended in an hour and thirteen minutes.

Berrigan was in magnificent form. He had lost his two former games and there was a sentiment that it was up to him to make good. He did what was expected of him. The twirler keeps the fans on the anxious seat over his predilection to take chances. He likes to waste a ball and gets himself into a lot of holes, but he has plenty of nerve and time after with three balls and two strikes he would curve the next one. He had the heavy hitters on his staff in great shape. He is a youngster and was formerly with the Wisconsin U.

Berrigan started in the first half of the game to go after the strike-out record, getting six in the first four innings. His greatest feat was in the fourth, where he struck out the first three men up, the great sluggers, Chandler, Anderson and Hanrahan.

ORPHANS WIN,

Take Two Close Games From Winnipeg Nine.

Winnipeg, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Orphans took both games of a double-header from Winnipeg here Saturday afternoon.

The first game was called, by agreement at the end of the seventh inning. The feature of the game was the fast fielding of the visitors. Three fast doubles were worked in, and they robbed the home team of three good chances to score. A batting rally in the seventh came to late to be of any use.

The second game was an exhibition of ragged fielding and heavy hitting. The visitors excelled at both, but managed to bunch their hits in the ninth, hammering out three runs and winning the game. The scores:

CORNELL EIGHT

Breaks Record In Annual Henley Course Regatta.

Philadelphia, May 29.—Record time was made Saturday in the third annual regatta of the American Rowing association over the Henley course on the Schuylkill river. In the eight-oared junior college event, the Cornell crew took first honors and broke the record for the course, which is the same length as the English Henley, one mile, 550 yards. Cornell's time was six minutes and thirty-four seconds.

The best previous time was that made by the Argonaut crew of Toronto in 1903, when it rowed the course in 6:36. Cornell held the lead throughout. The Yale freshmen were second and the University of Pennsylvania junior crew was third.

Much of the interest of the regatta was centered in the Vesper club's eight, which is to row at the English Henley. The University of Pennsylvania crew, past and present, was the only entry against the Vespers, and the latter held them all the way down the course. It was a close race and the aspirants for Henley honors won by the close margin of three-fifths of a second. Vesper's time was 6:43 4-5.

The eight-oarded shell race for school crews was won by the Stone school of Boston in easy fashion.

INTERNAL TRADE

Movements Received By Department of Commerce and Labor.

Grain Receipts For Four Months Show Decrease From 1904.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The reports of internal trade movements, as received by the department of commerce and labor, through its bureau of statistics, show increased grain receipts for the month of April, if contrasted with similar arrivals for a corresponding month in 1904. While gains were also indicated for March by a like comparison, the losses sustained in January and February were so heavy as to cause the total grain receipts for the first four months of 1905 to fall greatly below those for a similar period in 1904.

At twelve interior primary markets the total inbound grain movement aggregated 34,590,526 bushels, in contrast with a similar movement of 27,624,189 bushels during a corresponding month in 1904. Of the different cereals, wheat arrivals amounted to 8,853,054 bushels in 1905 and 6,880,211 bushels in 1904; corn to 13,385,182 bushels in 1905 and 9,-715,646 bushels in 1904; oats to 8,466,-665 bushels in 1905 and 7,855,785 bushels in 1904; barley to 3,403,764 bushels in 1905 and 2,779,988 bushels in 1904; and rye to 481,861 bushels in 1905 and 392,-559 bushels in 1904. The total gain receipts at these markets during the first four months of the current year amounted to 184,663,362 bushels, a loss of over 10,000,000 bushels as compared with a like movement in 1904.

The receipts of wheat at the spring wheat markets of Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Duluth and Chicago, for the present crop year, to and including April 29, amounted to 129,225,440 bushels, as compared with 133,922,928 bushels for a similar period in 1903-4, and 150,918,322 bushels in 1902-3. Of the curent season's movement, arrivals at Minneapolis totaled 76,586,580 bushels; at Milwaukee, 6,469,076 bushels; at Duluth, 22,620,348 bushels and at Chicago, 23,549,-436 bushels. As compared with the 1904 figures, losses were sustained at Minneapolis, Milwaukee, and Duluth, while increases were indicated for Chicago.

At the winter wheat markets of Toledo, St. Louis, Detroit and Kansas City, the grain arrivals during the crop year from July 1, 1904, to and including April 29, 1905, amounted to 54,-297,261 bushels of which Toledo received 2,680,136 bushels, St. Louis 19,248,-600 bushels, Detroit 2,087,023 bushels, and Kansas City 30,281,502 bushels. The total corresponding arrivals at these cities for a similar period in 1904 aggregated 69,555,973 bushels, and in 1903, 70,762,506 bushels. The losses indicated for the 1905 movement were caused by heavy shrinkages in the receipts of what at all of the four markets named. The decrease at St. Louis, as compared with the 1904 figures amounted to nearly 4,000,000 bushels, while that of Kansas City totaled approximately 8,000,000 bushels.

During the month of April, grain arrivals at Chicago totaled 15,821,351 bushels, an amount approximately 6,-000,000 bushels more than that for a month in 1904, and over 5,000,000 bushels heavier than that for 1903. Shipments for the month amounted to 14,-530,504 bushels in 1905, 6,222,134 in 1904, and 14,346,641 bushels in 1903. The gains made during the present year both with regard to receipts and shipments, were due almost entirely to a greatly increased corn movement, the low rates which generally prevailed, combined with an exceptionally heavy crop, having caused a very free movement of this grain. Arrivals of all cereals at Chicago during the first four months in 1905 aggregated 75,764,719 bushels, as against 62,855,262 bushels in 1904, and 67,374,862 bushels in 1903. As in the case of the monthly movement, increases shown for the present year were almost entirely due to to a heavy inbound corn movement, the receipts of this cereal being over 15,000,000 bushels heavier than those for a like period in either 1904 or 1903. Grain shipments form Chicago during the present year to April 29, amounted to 48,952,836 bushels, a movement over 11,000,000 bushels heavier than that for 1904, but differeing but little from similar withdrawals in 1903.

April arrivals of grain at St. Louis during April totaled 2,980,307 bushels, a movement 800,000 bushels less than that in 1904, and 2,000,000 bushels smaller than that in 1903. Shipments for the month, which amounted to 3,330,573 bushels, were approximately 1,700,000 bushels lighter than the arrivals for April, 1904, and about 3,000,-000 bushels less than those for 1903. The inbound movement of cereals at this market during the present year, to April 30, amounted to 15,847,374 bushels, while a similar movement in 1904 totaled 21,943,187 bushels, and in 1903, 26,476,547 bushels. The heavy decrease indicated for the present years was due to lighter arrivals of all five ceerals named, although the decreases in wheat and corn receipts weree xceptionally heavy. The outbound grain movement at St. Louis during the present year, to April 30, aggregated 15,437,805 bushels, being nearly 5,000,000 bushels below a like movement in 1904, and over 11,500,000 bushels smaller than that for 1903. The present year's wheat arrivals at this city were approximately 5,000,000 bushels below those of 1904, while the corn arrivals were more than 3,000,000 bushels smaller.

Cereal movements at Kansas City during April, which amounted to 3,218,-000 bushels, although over 1,000,000 bushels more than a like movement in 1904, were approximately 1,300,000 bushels below that for a corresponding month in 1903. Shipments, which amounted to 2,220,000 bushels during the fourth month of the current year, differed but little from a similar movement in 1904, and were about 2,000,000 bushels lighter than that for 1903. The total cereal receipts at this city during the year to April 30 amounted to 12,-835,200 bushels in 1905, 18,560,800 bushels in 1904, and 19,152,600 bushels in 1903. Decreases shown in the present year's movements were caused almost entirely by lighter wheat and corn arrivals, the decrease in the former grain as compared with the 1904 movement being approximately 5,000,000 bushels. Grain shipments from this city during January, February, March and April aggregated 10,075,400 bushels, an amount smaller than the outbound movement for either 1904 or 1903 by over 5,000,000 bushels.

The receipts of live stock at the five markets of Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Louis and St. Joseph, during the month of April, aggregated 2,-618,121 head, a slight gain over corresponding movements of either 1904 or 1903. Cattle were received to the amount of 535,654 head, calves 60,365 head, hogs 1,208,402 head, sheep 781,633 head, and horses and mules 32,067 head. As compared with a similar movement in 1904, losses were sustained in the receipts of cattle and hogs, while gains were made in the arrivals of calves, sheep, horses and mules. For the first four months of the current year the arrivals of all kinds of live stock at these markets totaled 11,429,655 head, in contrast with 11,414,385 head for a like period in 1904, and 10,065,769 head in 1903. Of the 1905 movement, hogs numbered 5,256,948 head, showed a decided decrease if compared with like receipts in either 1904 or 1903. According to the present year's figures, Chicago leads with reference to the receipts of cattle, hogs and sheep, while St. Louis has received the greatest number of horses and mules. The cars required to handle the total live stock arrivals at these five markets during the first four months of the current year numbered 203,700, while in 1904, 213,232 cars weer employed, and in 1903, 197,264 cars.

At Chicago receipts of live stock during April amounted to 1,205,967 head, being a very slight gain over like movements in 1903 or 1904. The different animals were received in the following numbers: Cattle, 236,664 head; calves, 54,097 head; hogs, 559,638 head; sheep, 341,653 head, and horses, 13,915 head. Total live stock shipments for the month from this city were 414,272 head, in contrast with 360,631 head in 1904, and 228,688 head in 1903. The number of animals required for city use and consumption in April, 1905, totaled 791,695 head. During the first four months of the present year receipts of live stock at Chicago totaled 5,486,314 head, while a similar movement in 1904 amounted to 5,552,305 head, and in 1903 to 4,986,089 head. Shipments for the same periods were 1,707,982 head in 1905, 1,571,837 head in 1904, and 999,504 head in 1903. The shipments of packing house products from Chicago during the month of April amounted to 175,057,414 pounds, in contrast with 189,011,455 pounds for a like month in 1904, and 163,251,384 pounds in 1903. For the four-month period similar shipments during the current year totaled 783,338,152 pounds, of which 9,937,400 pounds were beef, 44,252,400 pounds carmed meats, 212,484,220 pounds cured meats, 343,556,324 pounds dressed beef, 10,028,100 pounds dressed hogs, 49,844,029 pounds hides, 104,606,079 pounds lard, and 8,629,600 pounds pork. The total shipments of packing house products during the first four months of 1904 amounted to 861,960,522 pounds, while a similar movement in 1903 totaled 725,525,943 pounds.

Kansas City livestock receipts during the month of April totaled 394,117, an amount approximately 12,000 head greater than that for a similar movement in 1904, but about 63,000 head less than that for 1903. Total live stock shipments for the month were 81,840 head in 1905, 68,818 head in 1904, and 91,870 head in 1903. For the four month period, live stock arrivals at Kansas City aggregated 1,783,971 head, in contrast with 1,679,445 head for a like period in 1904, and 1,588,524 head in 1903 while shipments for the current year, which amounted to 318,242 head, were somewhat smaller than similar movements in 1904, but larger than those for 1903.

At Omaha, during April, arrivals of live animals totaled 395,099 head, as against 446,108 head for a like month in 1904, and 375,985 head in 1903. Shipments during the fourth month of the present year, which amounted to 115,-974 head, were approximately twice the size of similar movements in 1904 or 1903, due almost exclusively to a greatly incerased outbound movement of sheep. Durin gthe first four months of 1905 the inbound movement of live stock at Omaha totaled 1,621,966 head, being somewhat below a similar movement in 1904, but about 100,000 head larger than that for 1903.

At St. Louis inbound movements of live stock during April totaled 310,558 head in 1905, 300,469 head in 1904, and 259,353 head in 1903. The improved condition of the present year's receipts, as compared with those of April, 1904, was caused by heavy arrivals in all four of the different classes of animals named, although the increase in the arrivals of cattle was largest either from an actual or relative standpoint. The outbound movement of live stock during the month from this city totaled 64,458 head, an amount somewhat smaller than a similar movement in 1904, but appreciably larger than that for 1903. The first four months of the present year witnessed arrivals of live stock at St. Louis to the amount of 1,347,894 head, as against 1,364,425 head in 1904, and 1,035,078 head in 1903. The total live stock shipments for the same periods were 261,505 head in 1905, 279,-277 head in 1904, and 211,119 head in 1903. Of the current year withdrawals of hogs constituted approximately 60 per cent of the outbound movement of live stock.

St. Joseph's inbound movement of live animals for the month of April totaled 312,380 head, an amount about 25,000 head in excess of a similar movement in 1904, and 68,000 head greater than that for 1903. Shipments for the fourth month of the present year amounted to 66,933 head, in contrast with 54,330 head in 1904, and 24,020 head in 1903. The four months' live stock arrivals at this city equaled 1,189,510 head in 1905, being somewhat greater than similar movements in either of the two preceding years. Shipments for the first four months of the current year were 165,682 head, in contrast with 159,-210 head in 1904, and 79,391 head in 1903.

Navigation on the Great Lakes was declared open on April 8, when several boats left Duluth bound for Eastern lake ports. This opening was nearly a month earlier than that which occurred in 1904, and the traffic for the fourth month of the current year was therefore much heavier than that for a similar month of the preceding year. During April of the present year 2,108,-130 net tons of freight were received at the above lake ports, as compared with 350,381 net tons for a corresponding month in 1904, and 2,704,735 net tons in 1903. Shipments for similar months totaled 3,078,946 net tons in 1905, 360,443 net tons in 1904, and 3,299,755 net tons in 1903. During the first four months of the curernt year the traffic movement of the Great Lakes amounted to 2,823,509 net tons, while similar receipts during 1904 were 852,449 net tons, and those for 1903, 3,515,703 net tons.

Think what a relief it would be to you to be rid of these troubles and to avoid the almost certain consequence of Piles.

Dr. Perrin Medical Co., Helena, Mont.

FOR YOU.

Here are some facts for dyspeptics.

Are you one?

Probabiy; because most people are, though they ignore it.

First, please bear in mind that Dyspesia, or Indigestion, is more than ailment.

It is a disease.

It is a disease, with ramifications into the uttermost, innermost part, of your body.

It does not always begin in your stomach.

No, indeed. It may begin in your mouth.

Your saliva may be of the wrong chemical formula to begin the work of digestion, and so the whole process may go wrong from the very beginning.

Or, everything may be all right, but your liver.

Or, maybe it seems to be in your heart.

Or, you may have a deep-chested lung cough.

Ten times out of eleven, those symptoms point to the plain, everyday common or garden variety of indigestion.

This may seem hard to believe, but if so, it is only because for many years, even after the discovery of the circulation of the blood by Harvey, doctors remained in the densest ignorance concerning the workings of the processes of digestion.

So, of course, of IN-digestion, they knew less.

And of a cuer today, they have no knowledeg at all—any of the 140,000 that are "practicing" in the United States.

Except—about 40,000, who use and recommend Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Here we have a medicine which attacks the troube with all of the most modern engines of medical warfare, which are indeed needed to conquer such a malignant, pestiferous, all-pervading disease.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets drive INdigestion OUT.

They contain ingredients which act curatively, not merely upon the stomach, but upon every vessel, organ or gland, throughout the entire body, which is in any way concerned in the great and important work of digesting your food.

In this way, they throughly purge your entire system of any possible disease-taint, and thereby restore you to a condition of perfect and natural health.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are unique in the entire history of medicine.

They are a specific remedy for just one disease and this disease they positively and never-fallingly cure.

Try them.

FIRE ON SHIPBOARD.

Old Dominion Steamship Hamilton Badly Damaged.

Norfolk, Va., May 29.—With fire raging in her forward hold and her crew exhausted from two hours and a half of hard work fighting the flames, the Old Dominion steamship Hamilton, after leaving port early yesterday morning for New York returned to Norfolk yesterday afternoon. There were no pasengers aboard.

When the Hamilton was about five hours out the automatic fire alarm went off in the engine room and indicated that the fire had broken out somewhere between decks in the forward hold.

The hold was flooded and word was sent to the offices of the seamship company as soon as the capes were reached.

One of the large tugs of the company was sent to the aid of the distressed ship, but by the time it was sighted the fire had been gotten under control sufficiently to permit the vessel to steam back to Norfolk at full speed.

Rev. Alex. Milne Preaches to Veterans on Memorial Sunday.

Pilgrim Church Crowded to the Doors—Fine Music.

Rev. Alexander Milne of Pilgrim Congregational church preached the annual memorial sermon to G. A. R. posts and kindred orders yesterday morning at Pilgrim church. The church was packed to the limit of its capacity with G. A. R. men, Sons of Veterans, members of the National Guard, the Naval Reserves, and ladies of the concordant orders of the G. A. R. The veterans occupied the center of the church in front; a detachment of the national guard in command of Major Resche, and another detachment of Sons of Veterans, sitting immediately behind the old soldiers. On the east side of the church in front were the naval reserves in their jacky uniforms and on the west side of the church were more old soldiers and members of the concordant orders. The organ loft and rostrum were tastefully draped in the national colors and the church presented a splendid appearance.

The ranks of the veterans are thinning but those who were cut headed by their standard bearer paced along like youths as they marched to church. For the time, forty years had been erased from their ages and they were young men once more.

A special program of music was given by the choir, which was exceedingly appropriate and well rendered. After the opening ceremonies had been gone through with the church quartet and choir sang: "To Thee O Country," in splendid style. After the reading of the scriptures, H. G. Gearhart sang in a magnificent bass, "Arm, Arm Ye Brave." "Recessional" was sung by the quartet and the postlude on the organ was "Hail Columbia" played by Miss Carlotta L. Simonds.

The text was taken from Second Timothy, iv, 6-8: "For I am already being offered, and the time of my departure is come. I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness."

Mr. Milne then addressed the congregation as follows:

"Members of the Grand Army of the Republic, other veterans of the Civil war and kindred orders, on behalf of this congregation I bid you welcome to this place of worship. We are honored and inspired by your presence. The sight of you calls to mind the most critical period in our nation's history, when the fate of the nation through four terrible years hung trembling in the balance. Never was a louder call for a passion of patriotic devotion and sacrifice, and never was such a call more splendidly answered. Drawn by the nation's need the tide of patriotic emotion rose to its highest, sweeping from the heart to the remotest finger tip of the body politic. Men discovered what it meant to love, and in love they found the way of sacrifice even unto wounds and death. In that baptism of love and fire, crowned by victory, the nation was exalted, and we, looking back, see that that experience was a veritable mount of transfiguration. Men learned what love of country meant; they caught a vision of her beauty and of the splendor of her mission.

"A generation has passed away since that day of great deeds and mighty exultation, but there will never arise on this continent a generation which neither knows or rejoices in the story of your valor. What you did, what you helped to win and to furnish has become an essential and glorious part of history. The splendor of these pages you helped to write can never be dimmed because they tell the story of a war for freedom and justice for humanity and God. They form a canto in the epic of the good fight in which all heroes for right and truth, for individual liberty and social justice have nobly contended.

"It is more than probable that more than once in these later years as you have attended church in a body, you have listened to sermons from this great word of St. Paul. What could be more appropriate? The old hero in the prison in Rome, facing death, gives us one of the most stirring messages ever uttered by human voice or inscribed by pen. His life had been devoted to the most toilsome labors and the most abundant sacrifices for the good of mankind. The total reward of all his work and suffering, besides the garments he wore, were an old cloak and a few books and parchments, but he would not have exchanged them for the patrimony of Caesar. Poorer almost than the very poorest he had a treasure which money could not buy laid up in heaven where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt and where thieves do not break through and steal, and with his treasure, there also was his heart. He had but one fear, that he might be unfaithful to the great trust the Lord had given committed to him. In all that man or human power could do he was more than conqueror. Death brought no trembling. For him it was better to depart and to be with Christ.

"Paul is not passing a judgment of approval upon his own life, although he might well have done it without violation of humility or of modesty. He had fought a good fight. More heroic battle was never waged by man. A finer courage, a more obstinate steadfastness was never seen. But what he said was 'I have fought the good fight.' The definite article is in the original and it is necessary to bring out his meaning. He meant that he had been a soldier in the army of the Lord. In the war for the good of humanity and the truth of God he had fought. He had not fought, struggled and battled for the prizes, to attain which so many labor and spend themselves. He had not sought wealth or fame or high position, or comfort or happiness, but truth and righteousness and God. He had toiled and agonized to bring men to the knowledge and to the acceptance of Christ. No man ever battled for righteousness but had in his heart an inspiring faith in God and right. What was true in the case of the apostle is true to a greater or lesser degree of every hero in the battle for righteousness and humanity. The true hero is the man of faith. Men fight not as wild beasts struggling for the mastery, but as contending for great ideas, for the establishment of some great cause, for the righting of some glaring wrong, for the removal of some iniquity, for the uplifting of man, for the enthronement of God.

"The tallest intellectual and moral stature is attained when the greatest questions are discussed, truth, right, justice, freedom; and this is the same as to say that faith is essential to greatness in men and nations. Is not this completely illustrated in the career of that divinely gifted man who was the nation's chosen and trusted leader in the dark days of the conflict between the North or South? Lincoln was an ambitious man. He was not satisfied with the narrow limitations of his lot by birth. He was like him whom Tennyson describes:

"'Who breaks his birth's invidious bar,
And grasps the skirts of happy chance,
And breasts the blows of circumstance,
And grapples with his evil star.'

"But that he was ambitious was not the whole secret. The innermost motive of his life, the dynamic of his power was an undying faith in justice and freedom. Abraham Lincoln was pre-eminently a man of faith and of the force that faith gives. Had the circumstances of his life been different he would perhaps have been as pronounced a Christian believer and champion of the faith as was William E. Gladstone. The Christian teachings he listened to and the forms of Christian worship and life with which he was familiar were rather crude and repellant to his intelligence and common sense, but he was a profoundly religious man and had a deep reverence for God, and having an indestructible faith in truth and justice and freedom. He was not consumed by an ambition like Napoleon, which drove him ceaselessly onward and upward; he cherished a great faith, he became the champion of a great idea, he rose to leadership not by the happy accident of political circumstance but by inherent fitness and consummate power. As we compare him with others who in that day seemed to be somewhat and thought themselves greater than he, we say, 'He alone is wise; all the rest are fleeting shadows.' He, like Paul, fought the good fight, he kept the faith. When the light of faith had gone out in other hearts it shone in him like a pillar of fire; faith in the nation as the home of freedom and justice, faith in the God of humanity and righteousness.

"Those were days in which faith was needed and we call them great days because great was the faith of the nation. Men realized that there was something more valuable than money, something better than life itself. By the hundred thousand men were willing to give up not only every dollar but life itself. Upon a hundred battlefields amid whistling bullets and shrieking shells men proved the sincerity of their patriotism. Mothers and sisters and wives at home grew sick at heart as they waited for news, fearing always the worst. For not only the men at the front fought the good fight and kept the faith of freedom and justice but those who were left behind did their part as nobly and heroically. Who shall say which was the harder and who were the braver? How many were laid away in unnamed graves, of whose fate the families never received tidings.

"Happy the nation that has such defenders, but happier the day in which the necessity of this particular type of devotion has gone. There have been serious controversies; we have had one war, the outcome of which was the opening of a new chapter in our history and especially our relations to the world, but we have faced no such crisis as tested the nation's patriotism and power from '61 to '65. The Spanish war was not critical in its nature. It is no discredit to the men who engaged in it to say so. They were as brave as their fathers a generaton before, but the nation was not in peril as when secession raised its hand with a dagger aimed at the nation's heart. That great crisis has not been repeated and we can hardly see how it can recur. The nation sits between th oceans, puissant serenely dominating the Western continent and one of the world's greatest powers. For this position and power we are indebted to the men who in the great struggle for the Union fought that the nation might not be broken into fragments but might continue one and indivisible, the home of freedom and the hope of humanity.

"The necessity of that kind of valor and patriotic devotion has passed away and we trust that it will never return. But the necessity for courage and a patriotic loyalty to the highest welfare of the nation will never pass away. Great evils are threatening us and dangers from the greed of the rich and from the ignorance and jealousy of the poor. The nation's wealth has greatly increased. An astonishing crop of millionaires has appeared; industrial battles are fought with the terrible price of wounded and dead. I will not enter into a discussion of these modern evils except to say that the crying weakness of the time is a disregard of law. It is the crime of the rich; it is the crime of the poor. When great combinations by a lawless use of power seek to control industries that they may tax the people what they please it is incumbent upon us to seek a remedy. When mobs takes possession of our cities, denying to others the right to work and inflicting the penalty of wounds and death it is time that something should be done. The present strike in Chicago is a notable example. Contrary to the practical wisdom which seeks to isolate any part or person diseased, some labor leaders have adopted the diabolical maxim that they will have their way if they have to bring all commerce to a standstill and make civilization a farce.

"I need not remind you that in their disregard of law, both rich and poor, the millionaire and the rioting strikers are doing their best to undermine the central foundation of civilization. So that the danger that faces us now is akin to that which in 1861 called you men from your homes and families to the toils and dangers of war. We have the right therefore to expect that you who in those days gave such example in patriotism shall lead us in repelling the assaults of all who would destroy allegiance or malice would destroy our freedom, and rob us of our safety.

"In the ordinary course of nature the time cannot be very far distant when the last Union army of the Republic shall become a memory with no living survivor to tell of its fame. There is an enemy which we must all meet; there is a battle which every one must fight. The last enemy is Death; shall the last battle be a victory? That faith which was the apostle's strength in life was also his courage in death. He had given himself to Jesus Christ. 'I know that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against the day.' That this may be the manner of your departure that you may be able to say: 'I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course; henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, is on our behalf an earnest and heartfelt prayer.'"

SUMMER FURNITURE.

Novel Combinations of Favorite Materials.

The increase in variety and styles of furniture especially adapted for use in summer homes is very noticeable this season, says the Brooklyn Eagle. All of the large shops are showing an elaborate assortment of such furniture in bamboo, wicker, rattan, willow and birch wood, and in addition to the standard articles of furniture there are many novelties.

The tea wagon is an improvement on the models seen heretofore, and will be found a useful addition to the household furnishings, especially when it is for the serving of tea on the lawn or porch. It is made of wicker, the predominating color being red, with an interweaving of green and tan. Outdoor chairs modeled after the pictures of English beach chairs, with tall covers, are to be seen in the same combination of colorings; these are useful for the lawn, as well as the piazza, and another article of piazza furniture is a small wicker bookcase. This is large enough to hold a convenient number of books, and yet so light as to be easily moved about.

The useful little accessory to the tea table called "Curate's Delight" is also shown. This is a three-tiered stand, the shelves graduating in size and designed to hold plates of cake, biscuit and the various edibles served with afternoon tea, and its usefulness is emphasized when it is constructed of wicker or some correspondingly lightweight material.

An entirely new style in summer furnishings to be seen this season is the bungalow furniture. This is constructed on plain rather severe lines, suggesting the mission furniture without being quite so straight and square. Two armchairs of this style have cane backs and seats and the wood of the framework is a dark brown, dull finished oak. The plainness of this design and the fact that although a novelty it is not so generally seen as the more showy red and green wicker furniture, will no doubt appeal to housekeepers of conservative tastes.

Shirtwaist boxes are articles of such practical value and there is so much demand for them that they may be had in many different varieties of style and at prices to suit pocketbooks of all sizes. In addition to those of ornamented wood, which are quite expensive, there are cheaper ones, covered with burlap, chintz or cretonne, and even those covered with wall paper, the most reasonable of all in price, are not only equally practical, but quite as artistic. A new shirtwaist box which has the additional attraction of novelty is from a fine quality of Japanese matting and framed in bamboo. Its distinguishing note is the front decoration, in the form of disks of oak, very thin and in forest green hue. There are four of these ornamental circles, and they give just the dash of color required by the neutral hued matting and bamboo.

"To the woods," is the command of the doctors to hosts of patients in need of rest and recuperation from the excitement and pressure of city life. The command is being obeyed by a small army of nature lovers, whose numbers are increasing yearly. In order that these visitors to the woods may be comfortable in their bungalows and cabins, special furniture is now produced for their use, and of the various types. Adirondack birch is easily the most appropriate and admired. Scores of articles are fashioned from this wood by the rustic hand from one of which is preserved as far as possible. A square jardiniere and a eostumer demonstrate the effectiveness of this style of furniture.

For those to whom the delights of a summer sojourn in the woods or even in the country is denied opportunities present themselves for outdoor life during summer days on the porches and lawns of the city house, and likewise exist on the the roofs. Furniture exactly suited to this use greets the visitors to the department and specialty shops these days, and side by side are chairs, settees, tables, etc., that in the city house might well be substituted in warm weather for upholstered and padded furniture, even though the latter wear linen slips bedecked with flowers and stripes.

A summer furniture hunt is a fascinating occupation just now and one that is profitable also.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS ARE MANY:

To Be.

To Be Well.

To Be Happy.

To Be Good Looking.

To Be a Wife and Mother.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, of Buffalo, N. Y., SPECIALIST IN WOMAN'S DISEASES.

Many of Them are Not in the Enjoyment of Their Rights!!

HOW SHALL THE LOST BE REGAINED?

"Come and Let Us Reason Together."

Most of the women who are deprived of any or all of the above-named rights are suffering unjustly and needlessly.

More than forty years ago DR. R. V. PIERCE learned this and made it the chief business of his life to find and restore to them their lost treasure—HEALTH. It had been frittered away by ignorance, prejudice and wrong treatment.

DOCTOR PIERCE FOUND IT BY DIGGING—first, for knowledge of the true cause of woman's suffering, then in MOTHER EARTH for the best remedy, for NATURE WAS LIBERAL in her provision of remedies for the healing of her children.

Since alcoholic stimulants and medicines made with alcohol have been found so injurious in female cases DR. PIERCE'S TISSUE-BUILDING AND FUNCTION-INVIGORATING METHOD OF TREATMENT, using only vegetable agents prepared without alcohol and so combined and adjusted as to secure the maximum of result from the minimum of medicines (thus avoiding disturbance of the stomach's functions), has been steadily increasing till the popularity of his "FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION" induced him to put it within the reach of the multitudes who were (and are) clamoring for it and now it is known all over the world as

DOCTOR PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION.

This is not and never was a "patent medicine" but is

A Real Prescription

written and used by

A Real Physician

in

A Real Practice.

It is not usual for physicians to give much publicity to their prescriptions and patients seldom know or care what they are taking so long as they are receiving benefit from the treatment.

One of the important ingredients in "FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION" is BLACK COHOSH ROOT (Cimicifuga), which has a most beneficial and lasting effect in cases of uterine congestion with dragging pain and tenderness. Combined scientifically and in proper proportions with other remedies its good effects are decidedly increased.

To refute the many false and malicious attacks, bogus formula and other untruthful statements published concerning Dr. Pierce's world-famed family medicines the Doctor has decided to publish all the ingredients entering into his "Favorite Prescription" for women. They are Lady's Slipper root, Black Cohosh root, Unicorn root, Blue Cohosh root, Golden Seal root.

Dr. Pierce's laboratory is thrown open to the public, under courteous guidance, every working day in the year, where visitors may see process of manufacture.

The best MEDICAL SPECIALIST ADVICE is offered to women who will write to DR. PIERCE, care of Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and state their trouble. All letters received under pledge of strictest confidence and answers sent in securely sealed envelopes.

CURES SNAKE BITES.

A recent and most curious discovery made in connection with the study of radium is its peculiar property of destroying the poisonous effect of the venom of serpents, says Harpers Weekly. This was ascertained in France by Professor C.Phisalix. He states that an exposure of from fifty to sixty hours to the rays of radium is sufficient to destroy the poisonous character of the poison of the viper, and the same is true of the poison of the cobra, which is interesting in view of the fact that the latter poison resists the action of heat much longer. These experiments led to others, where the radium emanation was employed instead of the direct action of the radium rays, and a glass tube was filled with a 1-per-cent solution of viper poison to about two-thirds its heights. The tube was then exhausted and filled with air containing radium emanation, after which it was alowed to remain for twenty-four hours, in the course of which time the liquid acquired an opalescent luster and a strange odor. When injected into a guinea-pig it had no toxic effect, and the only change noted was a loss of weight by the animal. By diluting the poison with distilled water and exposing as before, it was found that the toxicity disappeared in six hours, but when glycerine was used a much longer time was required. The opalescence manifested is caused by suspended particles, and the conclusion reached is that the radium emanation acts to decompose albumenoid poisons. Inasmuch as the emanation has no effect on the poisons of the lizard or the common toad it is believed that a new method has been found to study the constitution of poisons of serpents, which will enable the experimenter to discriminate between them.

SURVIVAL OF FITTER.

A fitter was squeezed into a boiler at the railroad station at Crewe, Eng., apparently increased in size while inside, for he could not get out. The engine was obviously not of the kind known as triple expansion, and a problem of the most serious order faced the other employes. At first it was proposed to get up steam and drive him through the safety valve in the ordinary way. His previous good character, however, and the possession of a large family secured him a reprieve. The boiler was taken to pieces, the incident ending, according to the London Globe, in the "survival of the fitter."

MATRIMONIAL CHANCES.

Philadelphia Bulletin: "At present your chance of marrying," said the statistician to the young girl, "is five in six. It would be easier, in fact, for you to marry than to remain single."

She looked pleased.

"Thank you," she said. "Do you speak with authority?"

"With the greatest authority," he answered, "for I have collected marriage statistics for seven years. My researches show that from 20 to 27 a girl of ordinary good looks can marry almost any one. Five bachelors out of six are ready to propose to her.

"The matrimonial chances of a maiden lady of 50 are only two in 10,000. Those of a maiden lady of 40 are two in 1,000. Those of a maiden lady of 30 are two in 100.

"Maiden ladies, up to the age of 60, incline to think that men desire to marry them. At 60, as a matter of fact, a maiden lady has no chance of marriage at all unless she is enormously rich—not one chance in a million, in a billion, in a trillion."

UNIQUE MONUMENT.

To perpetuate his memory in the minds and hearts of the people of the city which has been his home for half a century, George A. Grund of Kansas City, Kas., has given his entire fortune of more than $100,000 for the erection of a hotel, which is to be the property of the city, says the Detroit Tribune. The only conditions are that the hotel shall always bear his name, and that a life-size portrait of himself shall be placed in the foyer. Work will begin at once.

PRECOCIOUS HINDU.

Hindu children are remarkable for their precocity. Many of them are skillful workmen at an age when European children are learning the alphabet. A boy of 7 may be a skilled wood carver, while some of the hadnsomest rugs are woven by children not yet in their teens.

We Will Buy

A 50c Bottle of Liquozone and Give it to You to Try.

We want you to know about Liquozone, and the product itself can tell you more than we. So we ask you to let us buy you a bottle—a full-size bottle—to try. Let it prove that it does what medicine cannot do. See what a tonic it is. Learn that it does kill germs. Then you will use it always, as we do, and as millions of others do.

This offer itself should convince you that Liquozone does as we claim. We would certainly not buy a bottle and give it to you if there was any doubt of results. You want these results; you want to be well and to keep well. And you can't do that—nobody can—without Liquozone.

For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a Liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet is is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

JAPANESE FORCES

Their Immensity as First Realized By the Observer.

An Impressive Host as It Rolled Across the Shaho.

Headquarters of Gen. Kurok's Army near Tieling, March 25.—The first realization of the immensity of the Japanese forces was brought home to the observer when the two central armies rolled across the Shaho on the morning of March 8 in the wake of the retreating Russians. Hitherto during the battle parts of two or three brigades of infantry, with a few battalions of reserves, a dozen or more batteries, with pack trains and field hospitals were all that one person could see in the mountainous country of the great armies engaged. But when the whole array moved northward with its impediments following it was an impressive host. Looking from the heights where the Russian batteris had been, one could see many khaki colored processions for miles on either hand, emerging from the valleys and passes where the Japanese had been concentrating since October, streaming across the dry bed of the river, and the narrow channels of ice and winding away among the bare hills and sandy plains northward. It was a businesslike army swathed in dark blue and khaki with no spectacular show of gold braid, nor brass, and hardly a touch of color, except the scarlet blankets worn over the shoulders. Most of the ranks were boys yet, but they were toughened by a year of campaigning into hardy veterans. They plodded on silently, as usual, with no show of rejoicing over victory, without confusion nor excited officers. Japanese dominion over Manchuria was proceeding at the rate of two miles an hour. By the river banks were fields of kaoliang which had stood unharvested since fall between the lines of hostile cannon, and through these were swarming men, women and children reaping and stacking their crops. The Chinaman fritters away no time gaping at victorious armies when a few dollars are to be gathered.

For ten days from that morning the whole country within the area of the fighting was covered with a mist of fine dust stirred up by the fleet of more than a million men and animals. It never settled for a minute, it choked the throat and blinded the eyes, sifted under clothing, made food gritty and turned all water into mud. The flames from burning houses and stacks of grain showed through it in the nights like the moon through the fog. The sand storms which began on the second day of the pursuit and continued at intervals for a week came from the north directly into the faces of the Japanese and made the discomfort and hardship worse. There was great contrast between the country south of the Shaho and north of it. The villages toward Mukden were larger and more prosperous, with better buildings, and the picturesque temples and tombs surrounded by groves of dark green fire made a welcome panorama to the eyes of the men from beautiful Japan who had spent months among the dreary and monotonous hills. Chinese families gathered in front of their houses and greeted the Japanese with shouts. Doubtless they were equally ready to acclaim the Russians, and denounce the Japanese, when it was politic. Outside the larger towns Chinese officials wearing their robes of office and buttons on their caps with banners and soldiers in gaudy uniforms received the Japanese generals, and Gen. Kuroki and his staff rode into the village where his headquarters are now, through a double file of villagers kneeling on both sides of the road.

The beginning of the Russian retreat from the Shaho was orderly and they left a clean field. None of their portable effects worth taking had been abandoned, except hundreds of stacks of tin cases in the trenches and huts containing cartridges.

Toward evening of that day General Kuroki's troops overtook their rear guards eight or nine miles north of the Shaho and from that time the retreat became a scramble for safety. At the various supply stations huge piles of grain were fired and smouldered for days. The pursuit continued all through the night of the 8th and the right division of Kuroki's army came to the branch line of railroad running from Mukden to the mines at Fushun. On the morning of the 9th the sand storm began which threw both sides into confusion and made orderly retreat or pursuit on a large scale impossible. All the telegraph wires connecting the headquarters and the different divisions were blown down so that each contingent proceeded largely on its own responsibility. The left division crossed the Hunho under cover of the thick dust clouds without a battle. Apparently the Russian commander was afraid to risk a defense on such a day even in the elaborate works which should have made the Hunho the most formidable line of defense, perhaps because his own men were in a panic. Probably this was the decisive day of the battle, for the Japanese forces west of Mukden were being pressed hard and the brigade on the extreme left was almost wiped out. Had Bilderling repulsed Kuroki two or three days at the Hunho the Russian reserves might have been able to turn the tide at Mukden. Good generalship and good fortune made history otherwise. Kuropatkin had hurried his reserves from Mukden east to Fushun as the Japanese had planned that he should, and then hurried them back to Mukden, but only too late. The Japanese center army from Kuroki's left was pushing past Mukden to the north and Kuroki's left division was marching still further north protecting its right flank. Having lost the Hunho the Russian central army left Mukden to its fate and continued in its disorderly retreat to Tiehling. That all their dead were left where they fell showed what the retreat had become. On the morning of the 10th the left division again encountered the Russian rear guard in considerable force northeast of Mukden and as the Russians attempted to make a stand they were beaten in two engagements, and in the afternoon the division arrived at the town of Sau-a, a ten miles beyond Mukden on the main road from Mukden to Tiehling.

Until the 10th the army had been pushed forward day and night in the face of every difficulty to draw the attention of the Russians from Mukden, and the men were nearly exhausted by their forced march. The military roads from Fushun to Tiehling wound along the plains among sharp hills and the division followed this to get to the north of Mukden while General Linevitch took most of his men directly north through the mountains with the Japanese right army pursuing. Several times the Japanese had brushes with the rear guard but no important action until the 14th when they approached the range of high steep hills seven miles southeast of Tiehling which was strategically the strongest defense of the city. There was a broad level plain in front of the hills and no avenue of approach for an attacking force except to cross this plain under cover as could be found in the gullies and behind occasional ridges. Consequently it was decided to attempt the night attack with the bayonet once more, and thus the first line of trenches below the hills was gained. For the general advance on the morning of the 14th two battalions were assigned for a frontal attack, one for a division on the right and the largest force of eight, on the left.

A direct charge upon the trenches was impossible, because the slope before them was almost too steep to be scaled, even with no resistance. A lower hill to the west, and in front was vulnerable on its west flank, and after an artillery engagement the main body occupied this. Night stopped the fighting, and before morning the Russians had retired in haste, leaving 200 dead, while the Japaneses had 800 casualties. The last stand of the Russian before Tiehling was on a chain of hills 3,000 metres southeast of the city, equipped elaborately with a long chain of trenches and well constructed gun positions which they held, twenty-four guns. While the general of division was reconnoitering the positions on the afternoon of the 15th, another Japanese brigade from the south began to engage one of the Russian batteries. This partly exposed the Russian flank to the enemy, and thirty-six Japanese guns were concentrated in a bombardment of that position. Darkness again interrupted the work after an hour's bombardment, and again the Russians retreated, abandoning without serious resistance their most valuable depot between Mukden and Harbin, which was their strongest military position as well. Gen. Kuropatkin had been there in his special train until the afternoon of the 15th, it was said. When the first Japanese company entered the settlement, at 1 o'clock in the morning, they captured the stationmaster and two other officers, who had been left with orders to apply the torch at the last moment, but only a few buildings were burned, and there were valuable stores of munitions undamaged.

No more dramatic encounter occurred during this eventful week than the capture of the Fifth and Nineteenth regiments of Russian rifles by Kuroki's left division, on the morning of the 11th. In the panic which prevailed at Mukden then these two regiments left at 3 o'clock in the morning with no general commanding them, and a mixed crowd of soldiers from other organizations and camp followers attaching themselves to the retreat. When the two forces discovered one another they quickly formed into fighting line, and the Russians came on with the officers in front of the ranks to cut their way through. The contact was so sudden that there was no confusion at first, in which the Japanese general and his staff, with two foreign attaches, came under the fire of the Japanese rifles and guns. The fight was short and decisive. The Russians could not stand in the open fields under the shrapnel, and soon scattered like sheep, while many parties waved towels and handkerchiefs to surrender. The Japanese had only 200 casualties, while dead and wounded Russians were all over the field. During the rest of the day the Japanese were occupied hunting for Russians in all the surrounding country. They had broken up into small parties, were fleeing in every direction, some trying to get back to Mukden, others to find roads of escape northwards, and many hiding in the ravines and in Chinese houses. However brave they were in fighting when cornered some made spectacles of themselves hardly to be expected of men of a military race. Doubtless the men were unnerved by the strain of long fighting, but the Siberians captured earlier in the war bore themselves with the dignity of soldiers. Whether the European troops who have been sent to the East are the best quality of the Russian army there is no means of judging, but certainly they have not compared favorably in physique or fighting qualities with the Siberians, particularly the East Siberian sharpshooters. That is the opinion of the Japanese officers. The total of prisoners taken that day was nearly 4,000. They were a fierce and savage looking crowd, all wearing big black or white sheepskin hats, many in dirty fur coats, most of them heavily bearded, all unwashed for days. Among the officers were some old men, one of them a veteran of the Russo-Turkish war, with a white beard hanging to his waist, who gave his age as 72. The next morning they went down the road in a big cloud of dust, a long and picturesque procession of dejected looking Moujiks, with their officers riding in Chinese carts, and jeering Manchurians running along the floks, to join the army of Russians in Japan, which now numbers nearly 100,000.

ARKANSAS STUNNED

By the Rumors of Corruption In the Legislature.

Prosecuting Attorney Rhoton Startles State By Vigorous Inquiry.

Little Rock Ark., May 29.—Nearly half of the 135 members of the Thirty-fifth general assembly, which adjourned on May 4, after a session of 125 days, were in Little Rock last week, living at the expense of the county of Pulaski, in which this city is located.

They have been witnesses before the Pplaski county grand jury in the investigation begun by Prosecuting Attorney Lewis Rhoton of charges and rumors which were current in this city at the close of the session of the legislature that bribery had been resorted to in order to defeat certain bills.

One member, C. B. Andrews of Prescott, spent five days in the county jail here last week, having been arrested on a warrant issued by Mr. Rhoton charging him with accepting a bribe of $100 and then giving $50 of it to another member for his vote on the same bill. Mr. Andrews is editor of the local paper in his home town. He will be defended by former Congressman Thomas C. McRae, should he be indicted by the grand jury. At present he is out on $2,000 bond, awaiting the action of that august body.

Representative Chapline of Clarendon has been indicted on a charge of offering Representative Wilson $125 to vote for the Killough lever bill. Senator A. W. Rison of Perryville and Senator Gross of Cedarville is charged with perjury and soliciting a bribe, and Rison with offering a bribe. Other arrests will follow.

Not only have members of the legislature been called before the grand jury, but subpoenas were issued for persons of considerable prominence throughout the state, who are alleged to know something about the boodle that is alleged to have changed hands at the last session. The local police officials are also included.

It is said that two detectives from St. Louis, who assisted Prosecutor Joseph Folk in his investigation of the charges of boodling against members of the municipal assembly, have been in the city for four months gathering evidence which resulted in the wholesale subpeaning of witnesses. Their identity is not revealed.

The story is told that one of these detectives lay under a bed in a room in a local hotel for twelve hours waiting for a conference which, it had been learned, was to take place, and that he peeped out and saw a wad of money transferred from the hands of a lobbyist to those of a member of the legislature who was to distribute it among the "boys" for their votes against some measure.

The investigation started by Mr. Rhoton has stirred the state from its center to the very borders.

Andrews' arrest was made on an affidavit sworn to by Representative R. E. Simpson of Hempstead county, who is alleged to have sworn that Mr. Andrews gave him $50 to vote for the Killough bill to reorganize the St. Francis levee board and take it out of politics.

That measure was a direct blow at Governor Davis and caused the hardest fight of any measure before the legislature. It passed the senate, but could never be forced past the first reading in the house, as, though a majority favored it, the necessary two-thirds vote to suspend the rules could not be mustered.

It was for his support of this bill that Mr. Andrews is alleged to have received $100, half of which he is further alleged to have given to a fellow member. Mr. Andrews first opposed the bill, but when a second vote was taken a few days later to take it from the table he voted for the motion. In explanation of this he says that he simply voted to take the bill from the table that it might be before the house, as he was opposed to tabling bills.

The first subpoenas for witnesses were issued the night before the final adjournment of the legislature, and the announcement that Representative Andrews, Simpson and Wilson of Perry county and Senator Gross of Crawford county had been summoned to appear before the grand jury gave the state a shock.

Nothing more could be learned until Monday when the grand jury met and when the names of the witnesses were placed on the public record in the sheriff's office for the first time.

Felsenthal, Strong, Camden and El Dorado citizens were summoned in reference to the passage over the veto of the governor of the bill to divide Union county into two judicial districts. The bill was passed by the senate after a hard fight, and vetoed by the governor. There was no fight on the bill in the house. Then the bill was passed over the veto of the governor, there being but twenty votes against it out of a total of 125 cast.

The so-called pure food bill, which was killed by the senate by a big vote the day after a representative of an East St. Louis alum baking powder company left the city, after appearing before the senate committee, is also being investigated.

Lewis Rhoton, the prosecuting attorney who has gone into this investigation, says he will pursue it until the guilty are punished. He is already being called the Folk of Arkansas.

NEW PHASE

Of College Professionalism Has Been Introduced.

Yale and Harvard's new athletic agreement, which provides that professionals under certain conditions may take part in college sport, is likely to produce a great deal of discussion, says the Chicago Tribune. The rule, which originated with Harvard some months ago and now has been accepted by both universities, provides that an athlete who may have been paid for athletec service before the age of 19 may be eligible to competition in college provided two years have intervened between the time of his college performances and his professional deeds. Many persons have contended that in the praiseworthy effort to eliminate professionalism from college sport the universities have gone too far and have discriminated against a worthy young man who honestly sought a college education and while seeking it would like to pursue his athletic training also and win such glory as comes to a successful college athlete. These people maintain it is not to the discredit of a poor boy to use his athletic skill in making money any more than it is for him to employ his skill in making money in other ways, and that the line of distinction which the colleges should draw is against the earning of money through athletic work in college. In other words, a young man who may have been a professional baseball player should not be barred from entering college and playing on a college nine provided he got no remuneration whatever except glory for his college baseball work, and it was manifest that he was in college to get an education and not because he wanted to take part in college athletics. Others have contended that these arguments can be used to justify a needy student in using his athletic ability to earn money during vacations, a practice which Brown university attempted to establish, but which was dropped on account of general opposition from other colleges. At that time it was pointed out that if professionalism was to be permitted in any sense it would be almost impossible to draw the line so that it could be kept out of college athletics; that there could be no temporizing and the amateur lines must be drawn strictly or not at all. The object of the Harvard-Yale rule seems to be to dodge the rule which makes a young athlete "once a professional always a professional." It is something in line with the policy of the Amateur Athletic union, which has been known to reinstate a professional after a probationary period and after assurance that he intended to become a strict amateur.

DENIES THE REPORT.

Mme. Schumann-Heink Not to Be Married.

Chicago, May 29.—Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink denies absolutely the story that has been circulated that she was to marry her manager, William Rapp.

"It is not true," she said. "Mr. Rapp is my manager, whom I employ as every singer does, to look after business affairs, and he is my very good friend, but nothing more. His parents are old friends of mine. I cannot understand how this story came to be circulated. The first report I received of it was from New York. It is perfectly absurd.

"The papers have stated, too, that I have nine children—one saying I had eleven. If they keep on it will be fifteen, nineteen, twenty-three. I have my eight children and no more."

Mme. Schumann-Heink looked lovingly at the portraits on her desk of these splendid-looking boys and beautiful girls.

"I have always loved Chicago and Chicagoans, and I regret greatly that this has happened."

TERRIFIC RACE WITH DEATH.

"Death was fast approaching," writes Ralph F. Fernandez, of Tampa, Fla., describing his fearful race with death, "as a result of liver trouble and heart disease, which had robbed me of sleep and of all interest in life. I had tried many different doctors and several medicines, but got no benefit, until I began to use Electric Bitters. So wonderful was their effect, that in three days I felt like a new man, and today I am cured of all my troubles." Guaranteed at all druggists; price 50c.

FIRE AT CHISHOLM.

Mashik Lumber Company's Planing Mill Destroyed.

Chisholm, Minn., May 29.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the Mashik Lumber company mill at this place yesterday afternoon. More than 150,000 feet of lumber was also destroyed. The loss approximates $40,000. The loss is partly covered by insurance. The flames broke out in the planing mill at noon and the mill was soon a mass of flames. By the diligent efforts of the Chisholm fire brigade the sawmill and a considerable portion of the lumber was saved, as was the mill boarding houses.

Frank Wilton, a pipeman employed in the Munroe mine, lost the fourth finger of his left hand while working in the mine. He reached his hand to point a defect in the mechanism of the pump which was being operated and at that moment the finger was caught in the head work and torn off.

CHICAGO MAN TRIES TO KILL BENEFACTORS.

Chicago, May 29.—Armed with a revolver and a heavy cane, John Corning, a cripple, crept into the sleeping room of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Shirlander, who had taken care of him from babyhood, and tried to kill them. Corning fired a bullet straight at the bed where the man and woman lay asleep. The noise woke Shirlander, but before he could rise, Corning, throwing away his revolver, belabored his benefactor with the cane. Shirlander, who is a powerful man, finally succeeded in getting hold of his assailant and choked him into helplessness. As soon as he was released, Corning crept along the floor to the spot where he had thrown his revolver, and picking up the weapon shot himself through the head. He died while being taken to the hospital. Both Shirlander and his wife were severely cut about the face and head by the heavy cane. No reason for the attempted murder is given.

SAWMILL AT WASHBURN IS DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Washburn, Wis., May 29.—The large mill owned by Akeley & Sprague has been totally destroyed by fire, together with the machine and blacksmith shops and a large quantity of sawn timber. The loss is estimated at $115,000 of which $75,000 was on the mill shops and $40,000 on the lumber. There was an insurance of about $80,000 on the mill, while the lumber was fully covered by insurance. The principal part of the lumber belonged to the Edward Hines Lumber company of Chicago.

TRAIN ROBBER IS FOILED

Missoula, Mont., May 29.—A lone robber made a daring and almost successful attempt to hold up and rob the east bound North Coast Limited on the Northern Pacific Saturday night at Bearmouth, the little station which has been the scene of so many famous train robberies. That the bandit was not successful, and that he is now a prisoner in the county jail at Drummond is due to the quick wit and courage of Engineer Wilson and Express Messenger Laub.

The train reached Bearmouth at 11 o'clock Saturday night, and had just finished taking water, when the engineer and fireman heard a gruff voice ordering them to hold up their hands, the command being reinforced by a couple of ugly looking six shooters in the hands of a tall, broad shouldered fellow, whose face was partially concealed by a slouch hat, pulled down low on his forehead. The engine crew promptly obeyed the summons and were then ordered to descend and cut loose the express car. This was done, and the bandit ordered them to pull out, he remaining on the engine and keeping the engineer and fireman covered with his revolvers. When mile post 81, two miles east of Bearmouth, was reached the engine was halted and the robber marched the engineer to the express car, where he was ordered to summon the messenger to come out. The messenger, taken unawares, opened the door at the engineer's summons, and seeing that a holdup was in progress, quickly closed it and refused to allow the engineer or bandit to enter. The robber, however, had a plentiful supply of dynamite, and threatened that if the messenger did not leave the car he would blow it up with the messenger inside it. Under this duress, the messenger argeed to come forth, and after being relieved of his revolver, he was lined up with the engineer and fireman. The robber then attached a stick of dynamite to the safe in the car and blew off the door, badly shattering the side of the car. When the smoke of the explosion had cleared away, the engineer was ordered to enter the car ahead of the robber, and the messenger to follow. As the bandit found himself in the car he ordered Wilson to strike a match, that they might take a veiew of the damage done by the explosive. As the tiny flame flickered the bandit swept his eye through the wrecked car, and saw the wealth of the safe scattered about in great confusion. But Engineer Wilson saw something more. He saw that Messenger Laub, who was following the bandit, had picked up a heavy piece of timber from the wrecked car, and held it raised ready to deal the robber a death blow. Wilson quickly blew out the match and almost at the same moment the bludgeon descended upon the outlaws skull, knocking him unconscious. The messenger and enginemen quickly seized upon the prostrate robber, bound him with rope and running the car on to Drummond, turned him over to the county officials. He had not regained consciousness up to a late hour and it is feared that he will not recover.

The express car was not so badly wrecked that it could not go on with the train, and after the scattered contents of the safe had been gathered up and temporary repairs made, the engine was run back to the balance of the train, and the journey eastward was continued. There was much excitement and uneasiness among the passengers aboard the train, but none of them was molested in any way. The contents of the safe was not much injured, and none of the valuables was destroyed.

So far the lone robber has not been identified.

TRAINING METHODS

That Are Used By Vassar Girl Athlete.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 29.—The girl athletes of Vassar college have broken training and "fudge parties," which have been carefully eschewed by the amazons of the cinder path and baseball park for months past, are now in order to break the routine of training camps. Miss Catherine Sellers Barnes has been one of the most enthusiastic of the athletic class, of which she is president. At the Vassar games she broke the 100-yard record, covering the course in 10.31 seconds.

"How do I train? Why by following a careful schedule of out-of-door exercise." This is Miss Barnes' explanation of her supremacy in Vassar athletics.

"I get up early every morning and cover a good deal of country in a brisk walk. I never take a car when I can possibly help it and always walk the two miles into the city. The longer the tramp the better I like it. In the afternoon I spend an hour or two in the gymnasium. I go to dinner with a ravenous appetite. After dinner I spend the evening in study and recreation. Fudge parties and midnight spreads are not in my scheme of training. I go to bed early and get up with the sun."

This course of physical culture probably explains the brilliant color of the college girl's cheeks, the grace of her carriage and her robust health. She is one of the most perfectly formed girls that have ever attended Vassar. Miss Barnes is five feet four inches in height.

ECZEMA A FLESH FIRE

Those afflicted with Eczema know more than can be told of the suffering imposed by this "flesh fire." It usually begins with a slight redness of the skin, which gradually spreads, followed by blisters and pustules discharging a thin, sticky fluid that dries and scales off, leaving an inflamed surface, and at times the itching and burning are almost unbearable. While any part of the body is liable to be attacked, the hands, feet, back, arms, face and legs are the parts most often afflicted. The cause of Eczema is a too acid condition of the blood. The circulation becomes loaded with fiery, acid poisons that are forced through the glands and pores of the skin which set the flesh aflame. Since the cause of the disease is in the blood it is a waste of time to try to cure it with local applications; the cause must be removed before a cure can be effected. S. S. S. has no equal as a remedy for Eczema; it enters the blood and forces out the poison through the natural channels, and builds up the entire system. The skin becomes smooth and soft again, and the Eczema is cured. Cases that have persistently refused to be cured under the ordinary treatment yield to its purifying, cooling effect on the blood. Book on Skin Diseases and any advice wished, without charge.

Eczema made its appearance on my left limb the size of my thumb in 1893, and spread until it was large as my hand, burning, itching and paining me, and for which I could get no relief, until seeing the other cures advertised by you I wrote and secured the advise of your physicians, commenced S. S. S. and it cured me.

BULGE IN MAY

Duluth Shows Gain In That Option—Market Lower Otherwise.

Cash Demand Drops Off and Causes Break—Flax Dull.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 29.—The cash demand has dropped off and the market could not stand up with its support gone. The May option in Duluth, which is congested, advanced 3½c in the last hour and closed at the top point, but the July options in all markets declined. Snow's report covering about one half the winter wheat section put the condition 3 points lower than last month, but it had little effect. The same was true of the crop damage reports which were fairly numerous. Exporters sold three loads of Manitoba wheat to go abroad, but shippers could find no sale for wheat.

The Duluth July lost 1½c, Minneapolis 2¼c, Chicago 1¾c, New York 1½c, St. Louis 1½-⅝c and Kansas City 1c. The September option lost ⅞c in Duluth, 1¼c in Chicago, 1c in Minneapolis, ⅞c in New York, 1⅜-½c in St. Louis and 1-⅛c in Kansas City.

The world's shipments of wheat last week were 9,152,000 bus., against 11,656,000 bus. last week and 9,400,000 bus., last year. The amount on passage decreased 1,904,000 bus.

Primary receipts of wheat were 909,000 bus, last year holiday. Shipments 418,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 53,311 bus.

The visible supply of wheat last week decreased 1,368,000 bus, and is now 21,126,000 bus, against 21,575,000 bus last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ⅜d lower. In the Chicago market July corn closed ⅝@¾c higher. July oats closed a shade lower. Primary receipts of corn were 1,246,000 bus, last year holiday. Shipments 377,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 113,033 bus. The visible supply of corn last week decreased 89,000 bus, and is now 4,233,000 bus, against 3,740,000 bus last year. World's wheat shipments last week were 2,568,000 bus, against 3,448,000 bus last week and 2,481,000 bus. The amount on passage decreased 310,000 bus.

In the Duluth market trading in wheat was light. The first dealing in the new September option, that is with No. 2 northern as contract, took place, and the price ranged from 80c bid to sales at 81½c. The close was at 81c. The old September ranged from 85¼c down to 84⅝c, and closed at the latter price, a loss from Saturday of ⅞c. The July option opened ½c lower at $1.11 asked, fell to $1.10 at 10:12, rallied to $1.10¼ at 10:25, and then fell to $1.10 at 10:55. In the next hour it advanced to $1.10½, but again fell off and closed at $1.10, a loss of 1½c.

Flax was very dull. The May and July options closed ½c lower at $1.46½. September 1c higher at $1.30 and October 1c higher at $1.29.

Oats and rye were unchanged.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 northern, $1.15¼; on track, No. 1 northern, $1.15¼; No. 2 northern, $1.10¾. Durum, No. 1, 91c; No. 2, 90c; May, $1.15¼; July, $1.10; September, old, 84⅝c; new, 81c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Japanese Victory Has Weakening Effect on Wheat.

Chicago, May 29.—The Japanese naval victory in the Far East had a weakening effect on wheat here today, the general impression in the pit being that the decisive defeat for Russia would in all probability practically mark the end of the war. A sharp decline at Liverpool accentuated this feeling. In addition conditions in the United States were regarded as more favorable or the growing crop. Pit traders generally were sellers. July opened 1@1⅛c lower at 89½@⅝c to 89⅞c, and sold off to 85¾@⅞c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 121 cars against 344 cars last week and with a holiday a year ago.

Later the market became still weaker, there being quite general selling throughout the entire day. The fact that the board would be closed tomorrow had a depressing effect on prices. The lowest point of the day for July was reached at 85¼@⅜c. The market closed almost at the bottom, final quotations on July being off 1⅜c at 85⅜@½c.

An indication that the corn market had been largely oversold during the sensational slump last week was manifested in resiliency of prices today. With local receipts considerably less than generally expected, although over 1,100 cars, there was a lack of any great selling pressure. In consequence the tone of the market was quite firm. May opened ½c to 1¼c up at 50¾c to 51c, sold up to 51½c and then reacted to 50¾c. July opened a shade lower at 48⅝c and advanced to 48¾c. Out of the 1,100 cars received today, 586 were of contract grade.

Several influential commission houses were fairly active buyers of July. The market increased in strength and closed practically at the highest point. After touching 49¼c, July closed at an advance of 1⅛@⅝c at 49c. May closed at 51c, a net gain of 1½c.

Weakness of wheat had a depressing influence on oats. Trading was very quiet. July opened a shade to ⅛@¼c lower at 30¼c to 30⅜c, and sold at 30⅜@½c. Local receipts were 307 cars.

Provisions were easier as a result of a 5c to 10c decline in the price of live hogs. July pork was off 2½c at $12.40. Lard and ribs were also each off 2½c at $7.22½@7.25 and $7.17½@7.20 respectively.

Close: Wheat—May, 99c; June, 88c; July, 88¾@⅞c; September, 82c; December, 81½c. Corn—May, 51c; July, 49c; old, 49½c; September, 48¾c; December, 45¼c. Oats—May, 31¼@¼c; July, 30½c; September, 28⅝@¾c. Pork—May, $12.35; July, $12.40; September, $12.65. Lard—May, $7.15; July, $7.25; September, $7.42½; October, $7.42½. November, $7.15. Ribs—May, $7.10; July, $7.20@7.22½; September, $7.45@7.47½. Rye—May, 80c; July and September, 60c. Flax—Cash northwestern, $1.46; southwestern, $1.26; May, $1.30. Barley—Cash, 42@50c. Timothy—May, $2.85@ September, $3.10. Clover—May, $11.75@12.25. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1.00@1.07½; 2 red, $1.03@1.06; 2 hard, 96@99c; 3 hard, 95@97c; 1 northern, $1.09@1.10; 2 northern, $1.06@1.08; 3 northern, $1@1.06. Corn—No. 2, 50¼@51¼c; 3, 49¾@50¼c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Barring an occasional feeble show of strength, today's market was under pressure from liquidation. The weak cables and lower Northwest markets and a decided slackening up in cash demand more than offset the damage reports received, all of which fell flat, as did also Snow's report received, estimating a slightly lower average for the winter crop than a month ago. The market has had a pretty good upturn, occasioned first by the improved cash situation, with the trade subsequently carried away by the at times sensational crop damage reports. The short interest has been pretty well eliminated. Reports of damage through the Southwest, while possibly true in part, did not bring any amount of orders to back up the crop killers' reports. Market had reached a stage where it needed something stimulating all the time to keep up the high prices. The action today is a perfectly speculative setback. September, we think, is worth the money, and purchases made on setbacks, we believe, will be rewarded by reasonable profits.

Corn—Notwithstanding a lower wheat market and large receipts, corn at no time showed hesitation. Receipts for Wednesday are again large, being over 1,000 cars. While today's advance was not great, the market nevertheless held persistently strong. We still feel the cash demand must improve vastly to sustain higher prices in this market.

Oats—While trade in this market was on a limited scale, prices held very firm, and the decrease in the visible gave more courage to the bulls. At best it is a slow market, and we feel the futures should be sold on any moderate advance.

Edwards, Wood & Co.: Wheat—Early prices were weak and lower this morning and reflected the bearish sentiment which ruled throughout the session. While the statistical position as a whole remains bullish, the crop situation is rather bearish, and we believe it is sufficiently so as to outweigh bullish features of the market, and for the present we would favor the short side for fair returns, especially on an abrupt upturn.

Chicago Tribune: There has been the usual conflict of testimony from private observers of wheat crop conditions in various important sections of the winter wheat belt, particularly in the Southwest. The market has fluctuated up and down according as the senders of favorable or unfavorable reports were the more industrious. A week of unfavorable weather, too cool for normal growth, although the rains are likely to prove beneficial, contributed to a rich harvest of damage reclaims and in consequence the general trend of the values was upward. There were claims of general and serious deterioration and other claims quite as positive that the crop as a whole is doing well and that there is no serious damage except in scattered sections.

Chicago Record-Herald: If the weather continues backward fears of a late harvest will become an important influence in the early July trade. Stocks of old wheat, it is expected, will be whittled down to a finer point than a year ago by the first of July, and there may be anxious moments for the July shorts before it can be determined how much of a run of new wheat to market there will be that month.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Due to Russian Naval Defeat and Prospect of Peace.

The Closing Was Quite Strong at the Top Prices.

New York, May 29.—The buoyant London market caused a sympathetic opening response here and wide advances were shown throughout the list. The certificates for the Japanese 4½ per cent bonds opened at an advance of 4 points, the certificates for the 6 per cent second series rose 3 and the Japanese 6 per cent bonds rose ½. Sugar advanced 3½, Consolidated Gas 2½, Colorado Fuel 1⅞ and Northern Pacific 3. Union Pacific and Locomotive 1⅝, Copper and Canadian Pacific 1½ and many of the leading railroad stocks a point of more.

Opening prices were the best recorded during the first hour, the market immediately feeling the effect of profit-taking by the room traders. Reactions averaged ½ for the more active stocks and reached 1¾ in Sugar and the Japanese 4½ certificates. Trading was quiet on the decline.

Prices were supported and lifted somewhat above the opening level on light dealings. The advance in Union Pacific and Canadian Pacific ran to 2 points, Louisville & Nashville and Norfolk & Western 1¼ and St. Paul, Chesapeake & Ohio, Atlantic Coast Line, Illinois Central and Missouri Pacific 1. Luckawanna rose 9½. The local tractions turned strong after early weakness. Prices receded again at noon, United States Steel preferred losing its one point gain. There were active dealings in Japanese bonds. Railroad and miscellaneous bonds were dull and steady at noon.

Scarcely any of the representative stocks moved more than ⅛ either way between 12 and 1 o'clock.

Uncovered shorts bought the local tractions on the decision of the supreme court of the United States affirming the validity of the franchise tax law. Metropolitan Street Railway moved up 1 and Brooklyn Rapid Transit 2. Corn Products preferred also rose 2 points. Otherwise the market was frequently featureless and intensely dull.

Prices rose again late in the day. Union Pacific advanced to 91.22½ and St. Paul, Southern Pacific, Brooklyn Transit and some others got slightly higher than before. Northwestern rose 3⅜. The closing was quite strong at top prices.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Market is closing strong and in spots sharply higher. In the last half hour of business short covering became quite urgent with the market closing practically at the top. In best informed circles the impression seems to be that the Japanese victory is the beginning of the end of the war. The market response to our minds was quite feeble, the bulk of the strength coming from short covering. To this extent the action of the market was disappointing. Trade is extremely quiet and on bulges we feel would sell stocks.

Dick Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: After opening with irregularity and some strength market became dull and of the holiday character, but throughout its tone was strong and the tendency of prices upward. All day there was a noteworthy absence of stocks for sale and prices moved up easily. The market became strong in the last hour and the highest prices of the day were reached at the closing. The market closed strong with standard shares being the leaders.

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market at the opening was higher on the war news and London was a buyer. After the opening the market became very dull and transactions light. Commission houses did little and many traders were away at the close. The feeling is bullish and the indications are that we will have a higher market Wednesday.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 29.—There was great activity and excitement at the opening of the cotton market today, following a very bullish crop report by a New Orleans newspaper, a tremendous advance in the Liverpool market and reports of a Japanese victory in the Far Eastern sea fight, suggesting an early end to the war. First prices here were 10 to 15 points higher, followed by a further advance to 8.41 for July and 8.45 for October contracts, and a gain fro mthe close of Saturday of about 25 points. Trading was very active with both commission houses and professionals heavy buyers.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 10 points up; middling uplands, 8.70; do gulf, 8.95; sales 10,300 bales. Cotton futures closed quiet: May, 8.28; June, 8.18; July, 8.29; Aug., 8.27; Sept., 8.30; Oct., 8.28; Nov., 8.42; Dec., 8.48; Jan., 8.53; Feb., .57; March, 8.64.

TREASURY BALANCES

Washington, May 29.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $130,459,415; gold, $66,771,823; silver, $28,363,301.

THE BERLIN BOURSE.

Berlin, May 29.—Prices on the bourse today generally were somewhat higher, owing to London advices and hopes of peace in the Far East. Russians were 4-10 per cent lower.

Although the tone on the bourse was already affected favorably by peace hopes, following the lead of London and official news of the Associated Press from Tokio, of Togo's victory, caused a spontaneous though momentary suspension of trading. Then business became more active and prices generally were higher. Russian fours fell 4-10 of a point and then gained 1-10. Russian funds were held with extreme tenacity mostly by investors who are determined to hold them until they rise when the war is over. The Russian government bankers are also always watchful in order to prevent a tumble.

Race For Supremacy.

It is interesting to watch the race for supremacy among Minneapolis-St. Paul-Chicago trains. First place is securely held by the Pioneer Limited and the second place by the Fast Mail. Both trains are entirely owned by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway. There are three other fast trains via this line from the Twin Cities to Chicago every day, and there is no extra fare to ride on them. Address W. B. Dixon, northwestern passenger agent, St. Paul, for further particulars, lowest rates, etc.

FALCONRY IN VOGUE.

"Most people have fallen into the common error of thinking of falconry only in connection with musty old stories of gallant knights and gay ladies of years ago," said a sportsman recently in the New York Tribune. "Well, now, falconry isn't so dead as it might be. To be sure, we don't hear much of it over here in America, but it is regaining its old-time prestige in European countries. You would be surprised at the extent it is now being followed by the nobility of England.

"Until a short time ago goshawking was the nearest approach to the old-time sport, but now the real falcons are crowding out the goshawk.

"Never saw a hunt with falcons! Well, sir, you have missed half your life. You get out in the morning with a good live bird, a full-blooded falcon, and if you don't have all the sport you want for one day, then you are no sportsman. Easy, you say! Well, perhaps it is, but not until you have had years of experience at it. You have your hound start a big bird, say a pheasant, and in the excitement that follows try to urge your horse on with one hand, pull your bird's hoodstring with your teeth and driving hand, and toss your bird aloft. Oh, it looks easy, but try it, and if you don't go into a snarl then I lose my guess. And I want to say right here that a full-blooded falcon is a bad thing to fool with. They don't take to rough handling. They have bad tempers and get one thoroughly aroused and the bird is no good for hunting the rest of that day at least.

"I believe the time is coming when falconry will be a recognized sport in this country. Yes, I know it seems cruel, but is it any more cruel than any other form of hunting—is it, now?"

EXPENSIVE LIVING.

It costs money to live in South Africa. A woman resident in Johannesburg pays $50 a month for her cook and $35 a month to a Hindoo servant. In India she would have to pay only $5 a month for the Hindoo's services.

To lose is often merely not to find—as a business chance or bargain missed, and thus lost, through failure to read the ads.

HUNG UP HERE

Coal Rate Fight Is Growing Warmer Every Day.

The Gilchrist line steamers F. W. Gilchrist, Gilchrist, C. W. Watson, Uranus, Jupiter and Lake Shore are lying in this harbor waiting for orders. The local agents for this line of boats assert that this is not caused by the rate fight on between the Pittsburg Coal company and the other steamship lines.

Some coal orders have been placed at 30 cents, a decline of 5 cents a ton, but the steamship lines generally are refusing to take coal at that price and the fight has extended far enough to cause the competing lines to refuse to buy their coal from the Pittsburg people. It is believed in some circles that the Pittsburg people, who are of the steel trust, will prevent the opposing lines from getting ore to carry.

At any rate six Gilchrist steamers are hung up here although the local agents claim that orders are expected at any minute.

SPOILS OLD HAT JOKE.

Stuyvesant Fish Does Not Pay Wife's Bills.

New York, May 29.—Stuyvesant Fish, president of the Illinois Central railroad, appeared with his wife, leader of the "smart set," before Justice Delehanty Saturday to defend a suit brought by Adelbert Jaeckel, a furrier, for $1,600, the price of a Russian sable muff and tippet, which, it is alleged, Mrs. Fish ordered, but returned and declined to pay for. The defense was that the skins were not the ones selected by Mrs. Bish, but of inferior quality and dyed.

Mr. Fish was asked what his salary was as president of the Illinois Central. He declined to answer. The question was amended to read, "What is your annual income?"

"About $150,000."

"You are in the habit of paying the bills incured by your wife?"

"When she buys things for the house I pay the bills; otherwise she pays."

"Do you mean that you have never paid for any of your wife's clothing?"

"Never."

"But you allow her a certain income?"

"I do not; she has her own income from her investments. I sometimes supplement her income. I always give her presents on her birthday and at Christmas."

Mrs. Fish was called to the witness stand. She wore a blue-gray gown and a black hat, trimmed with roses.

"Are you the wife of the defendant?" was the first question.

"I think so," was the reply.

Mrs. Fish then said she had returned the furs because they were of poor quality.

The jury returned a verdict against Mr. Fish for the full amount.

RUSSIANS OVERWHELMIMGLY DEFEATED BY JAPANESE

vate message to the minister indicating that the result of the fight was favorable to the Japanese. Minister Takahira is expecting momentarily definite news of the battle.

NO ADVICES

Concerning Battle Have Been Received By Admiralty.

St. Petersburg, May 29, 7:52 p. m.—At 7 o'clock this evening, Admiral Wirenius, chief of the general staff of the navy, authorized a denial of the statements that the government had received official advices regarding the naval battle fought in the straits of Korea. The staff does not expect any news from Vladivostok until tomorrow. It is not true that the battleship Alexander III and four cruisers have reached Vladivostok, as reported here.

RUSSIANS STAGGERED.

"The Hour of Fate" Has Struck the Empire.

St. Petersburg, May 29, 1:35 p. m.—At the admiralty this morning absolutely nothing was known of the naval battle in the Far East, except the news contained in the dispatches of the Associated Press. The general impression produced by the cable messages undoubtedly was extremely gloomy. While Admiral Rojestvensky was expected to pay the price for reaching his haven at Vladivostok, the complete loss of two of his four best battleships, besides several other warships, with heavy damage to other ships with such havoc indicates, is admitted to spell disaster, unless the Japanese suffered correspondingly. For this reason news from Vladivostok, where the first communication with the Russian fleet will be established, is awaited with intense anxiety. The admiralty calculates that wireless communication with Vladivostok might be established as early as this afternoon or tonight, but as all dispatches must first go to the emperor, the news is not likely to reach the public until tomorrow. It is a matter of general comment that the most definite and most reliable information received up to the time the official announcement was sent out from Tokio came by way of Washington. Some of the foreign press dispatches were very confusing, but everything seemed to indicate that Togo delivered a series of desperate torpedo attacks during Saturday night with the support of his heavy ships. The reported sinking of so many ships, it is believed, might also be partially due to mines sown ahead of the advancing Russian columns. The belief is also strengthened that Rojestvensky was forced, in order to secure bombogatity in speed and fighting power, to divide his fleet, only a single division passing the Straits of Korea, the other going around Japan. The Straits of Korea division, however, evidently included the pick of the Russian fleet, the Borodino and Orel being two of the four best battleships. It is possible that Rojestvensky transferred his flag from the battleship Kniaz Souvaroff to the Borodino or Orel before the fight in order to prevent the concentration of the Japanese fire on his own ship. Capt. Sreberinnikoff of the Borodino and Capt. Ignatieff of the Orel are regarded as extremely capable officers.

"Owing to the decision of the newspapers of to suspend Monday publications only telegrams are being printed on fly sheets. The Novoe Vreyma alone comments editorially on the battle under the caption, "The Hour of Fate Has Struck." The paper says: "Russia has been reproached with putting too much trust in God, sending too many ikons to the war and not enough men. The result is now, in the language of the Americans, in the hands of 'The men behind the guns.' We Russians will be patient until the full results are known." Black pessimism reigns among the public.

There were many touching incidents in the corridors of the admiralty, which were filled this afternoon with the wives and families of officers and men on board the Russian ships, inquiring piteously for news of loved ones. They had already heard rumors that the fleet had practically been annihilated, and most of the women wept and some of them fainted when the admiralty announced it had no news.

GERMANS EXCITED.

Work Almost Suspended at Berlin Navy Department.

Berlin, May 29, 1:40 p. m.—Work was almost suspended in the navy department this morning, when twenty copies of the Tokio official bulletin of the Associated Press were distributed there. The officers and bureau chiefs left their desks to talk over the news with one another. Few generalizations were made except that part of the Russian fleet engaged in the straits of Korea seemingly got away and possibly will reach Vladivostok. All the Russian fleet, it is claimed here, was not engaged in Korean waters. The fleet, is is understood, at the navy department, had divided, a portion sailing eastward of Japan.

Definite Japanese statements are accepted here as being generally accurate. Therefore, it is assumed in professional quarters that the Japanese inflicted greater damage than they themselves sustained.

THE RUSSIAN SHIPS

Said to Have Been Lost In Battle.

The following is a description of the Russian ships said to have been sunk or captured by the Japs:

The Borodino was a first-class battleship, completed in 1904, of 13,516 tons displacement and 16,000 horse power, giving her a speed of about eighteen knots. She had an armored belt of from 4 to 9 inches of Krupp steel and from 6 to 10 inches of armor over her gun positions and bulkheads. Her armament consisted of four 12-inch guns, twelve 6-inch guns and over forty smaller rapid-fire guns. Her crew numbered 740 officers and men.

The Alexander III was a sister ship of the Borodino and was also completed in 1904.

The Admiral Nakimoff was an armored cruiser of 8,524 tons displacement and 9,000 indicated horse power, giving her a speed of sixteen knots. She had eight inches of compound armor over her gun positions, carried eight 8-inch guns, ten 6-inch guns and about twenty smaller rapid fire guns. She had a complement of about 567 officers and men.

The Dmitri Donskoi was an armored cruiser of 6,200 tons, sheathed, of 7,000 indicated horse power and having a speed of about sixteen knots. She had an armored belt 6-inches thick and had ten inches of armor over her bulkheads and heavy gun positions. Her armament consisted of six 6-inch guns, ten 4.7-inch guns and sixteen quick firing guns. Her crew numbered 510 officers and men.

The Vladimir Monomach was a sheathed cruiser of 5,593 tons and 7,000 indicated horsepower. She was completed in 1895, had a belt of compound armor 6 to 10 inches thick, a protected deck of 2 inches of steel and carried 5 8-inch guns, 12 6-inch guns and 18 quick-firing guns. Her crew numbered 550 officers and men.

The Admiral Ousnakoff, a coast defense iron clad, was of 4,648 tons displacement and 5,000 indicated horse power. She was completed in 1895, had an armored belt 10 inches thick, a protected deck of 3 inches of steel and from 7 to 8 inches of armor over her heavy gun positions. Her armament consisted of 4 9-inch guns, 4 6-inch guns and 6 1.8-inch guns, in addition to a number of smaller rapid-fire guns. Her speed was estimated at 16 knots and she carried 318 officers and men.

The Svietlana was a protected cruiser of 3,862 tons displacement, had 3,823 indicated horse-power, was completed in 1897, and had a speed of about 20 knots. She had a 2-inch protected deck of steel and four inches of armor over her gun positions. Her armament consisted of six 5.9-inch (Canet) guns and ten 1.8-inch guns. She had a complement of 360 officers and men.

The cruiser Jemtchug was of 3,106 tons displacement and 17,000 indicated horse-power, giving her a speed of about 23 knots. She was completed in 1903, had a protected deck of two inches of steel and carried six 4.8-inch guns, six 1.8-inch guns and two 1.4-inch guns. Her crew numbered 340 officers and men.

The repair ship Kamtchatka was a most important unit of Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet. She is understood to have been fitted up with every scientific appliance available for the repair of warships and was described as being a "floating workshop." She was launched at the new admiralty yards, St. Petersburg, Nov. 1, 1902. She was of 7,200 tons displacement and was capable of carrying 3,500 tons of coal and mounted six small quick-firing guns. She had transport accommodations for thirty-two officers and 1,000 men.

The Irtessim was probably an auxillary cruiser, but her name is not given in any of the naval lists available.

The battleship Orel is a sister ship of the Borodino and carried the same complement of officers and men.

The battleship Nicolai I is of 9,672 tons displacement and 8,000 indicated horse power, giving her a speed of about fourteen knots. She is sheathed and although completed as far back as 1892 was thoroughly overhauled in 1900. She has a compound armor belt six to eight inches thick, has a steel protected deck 2½ inches thick and has six to ten inches of armor (compound) over her gun positions. Her armament consists of two 12-inch guns, four 9-inch guns, eight 6-inch guns and twelve quick firing guns in addition to a number of small rapid fire guns. Her complement is 604 officers and men.

GREATEST IN CENTURY

Say Critics on the Battle In Korean Straits.

Berlin, May 29.—Naval critics in the evening papers accept without reserve the Associated Press dispatches from Tokio and build on them the view that the war has entered upon the last phase in which the Japanese command of the sea will continue threatening until the end. The battle of Saturday is called the greatest fleet action for a hundred years or since Trafalgar, and it is classed here as being immensely greater than the Adriatic sea fight in 1866 or the naval battle of Santiago of 1898. While the details are too few to enable the whole picture to be reconstructed, enough is evident for the expert commentators to think it indicates a decisive defeat of the Russians and the probability of the final destruction or surrender of the fugitive remnants of Rojestvensky's fleet.

FORMATION OF THE FLEET.

Washington, May 29.—The belated dispatch has been received by the navy department, dated May 27, showing the formation of the Russian fleet just before the battle:

"The Russian fleet was sighted at 6 o'clock a. m., between Goto island and Quelpart island, Korea, in double column, Jemtchug leading the way. Borodino, Orel, Kniaz Suvaroff, Alexander III, Isslabia, Sissoi Veliky, Navarin, Nicholai I, starboard; Admiral Nakhimoff, Admiral Oushakoff, Admiral Seniavine, General Admiral Apraxine and other cruisers, port."

NO TRACE OF THE MISSING FISHERMAN.

Sydney, N. S. W., May 29.—The French cruiser Troude, which has arrived here, reports that after cruising about the Grand Banks for a week, in search of the missing French fishing vessel Cousins Rennis, she could find no trace of her. The cruiser's officers have decided that she had either struck an iceberg or collided with some other vessel and went down with all hands.

TO DISCONTINUE NEGOTIATIONS

Christiania, May 29.—In the storthing today President Berner announced that as soon as the Norwegian members of the council of state returned from Stockholm, the government would communicate to the storthing a statement of the occurrences at Stockholm Saturday. The return is expected Tuesday. M. Berner proposed to discontinue all negotiations to which the storthing unanimously agreed.

King Oscar at Saturday's sitting of the council of state declined to sign the measure treating for a separate consular system for Norway. The ministers at once tendered their resignations but the king refused to accept them.

Escanaba Officers Believe That Dead Baby Was Murdered.

Escanaba—The remains of a babe found in a box in the northeast corner of the Lakeview cemetery at Escanaba last week are believed to show that the little one was made away with. The remains were those of a two-weeks-old child, and had been exposed for some days. The coroner discovered that a long ribbon of white silk was imbedded in the neck of the infant, apparently showing that it had been strangled to death. The officers are investigating the case, but have little or nothing to work on.

Sault Ste. Marie—City Treasurer Deadman of the Soo received a bunch of letters this week, marked "uncalled for." The number of returned communications was about 700, all containing notices of personal tax assessed. The number sent out was 2,400. "These people lived here during the time the digging of the canal was in progress," said Mr. Deadman. "They moved away after work at that point was discontinued, leaving the city before the bills were in our possession. The amounts assessed against the individuals are not heavy."

Ford River—Fire which started from a spark blown from the Ford River Lumber company's mill in the dump yard of the mill at Ford River, for a time threatened to develop into a serious blaze and caused the mill to be shut down for three hours. A considerable blaze had developed in a large pile of the mill refuse in the yard before it was discovered, and fanned by a strong wind from the southeast for a time it defied all efforts of the mill employes to stop its progress. The fire fighting apparatus of the mill was taken out immediately after the fire was discovered and in addition a bucket brigade was forced to fight against the progress of the swiftly spreading flames. The fire started shortly after 11 o'clock and was not extinguished until nearly 2:30. Had the wind been blowing directly from the east the flames would have been carried into the village and considerable loss would have resulted.

Manistique—How Judson B. Clark, who represents the grand duchy of Schoolcraft in the lower house, ever manages to spread himself out over his district is a mystery. It is a third larger than the states of Rhode Island and Delaware combined, and only 900 square miles smaller than the state of Connecticut. The Schoolcraft district comprises Alger, Luce, Schoolcraft and Mackinac counties, and with 4,925 square miles is the largest representative district in the state. Three great lakes, Superior, Michigan and Huron, wash the shores of Clerk's district. From Michigan or Huron to Superior is more than fifty miles, while from the extreme corner of Alger county to the corner of Mackinac is over 150 as the crow would fly.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

RUSSIAN FLAGSHIP SUNK, ROJESTVENSKY SAID TO HAVE BEEN CAPTURED LATER BY THE JAPS

A STATUE TO GEN. SLOCUM UNVEILED BY THE PRESIDENT

New York, May 30.—President Roosevelt was the principal figure in New York's Memorial day celebration and the feature events of the day took place in the Borough of Brooklyn. There the chief executive made the principal address at the unveiling of a statute of Gen. Slocum, reviewed a parade of veterans and attended a reception at the naval branch of the Young Men's Christian association. His special train reached Jersey City from Washington at 7:03 a. m. and was met by a delegation from the Brooklyn organizations, whose guest the president was to be. These delegations were headed by Former Mayor Schieren of Brooklyn and President Gunnison of the Brooklyn Union League club, and was accompanied by a heavy police guard, which escorted the party from the depot to a ferryboat which was to take them over the river. The boat was gaily decorated in honor of the occasion and it was given many a shrill salute during the short trip between the shores. On the Brooklyn side the escort was reinforced by Squadron C of the New York state National Guard and the president was taken to the Union League club, where he had an early breakfast, after which an informal reception was held.

GRAVES DECORATED.

Unions and Confederates Both Honored at Boston.

Boston, May 30.—The graves of soldiers of the Civil and Spanish wars, buried in New England, were decorated today. The resting places of not a few Confederate soldiers were among those honored. The pleasant weather resulted in a general visit to cemeteries, while special union services in honor of the dead soldiers were held in many churches.

The holiday also marked a notable turning of outdoor life. In this city a feature was a parade of workhorses, for which preparations had been made for many months. Special union services in honor of the dead soldiers were held in many churches.

STRIKERS QUIET

Both Sides Claim to Be Satisfied With the Situation.

Holiday Causes a Lull In All Features of Trouble.

Chicago, May 30.—The teamsters' strike is suffering from ennui. It has reached a stage where both sides have declared themselves satisfied with the situation and outside of the court developments excitement awaits either a renewal of settlement schemes or a further spread in unheralded directions. All phases and features of the strike experienced a lull today owing to it being a legal holiday. Most of the places of business affected by the strike were closed and the teaming interests in the main did not attempt any deliveries. The strikers likewise prepared for a day of inaction.

A crowd of more than 800 persons, armed with clubs and other weapons, surrounded three wagons owned by a lumber company, last night. The non-union drivers and special policemen who were guarding them were attacked. Nine men were arrested charged with assault and disorderly conduct. While the wagons were passing along North Halsted street, a number of persons ran into the street and seized the bridles of the horses. Attempts were made to pull the drivers from the wagons. Then policemen with drawn clubs fought and clubbed the rioters.

Many strike sympathizers were cut and bruised by stones intended for the police and non-union drivers.

Thirty-five sash, door and blind manufacturers, affiliated with the Planing Mill Men's union in the combination of wood industries, have decided to lock out drivers. A vote has been taken that the members force deliveries where there are orders, whether the orders came from strike-affected houses or not. A lockout will affect 200 teamsters.

RETIRING AMBASSADOR LEAVES LONDON FOR HOME

London, May 30.—Mr. Choate, the retiring American ambassador and Mrs. Choate, left Euston station at noon today on their way to Liverpool, where they will embark on the steamer Caronia for New York. A large gathering of English friends and a few Americans bid them farewell. Owing to the fact that a cabinet meeting was taking place at the same hour, no cabinet ministers were present. Among those at the station were Colonel Douglas Dawson, master of ceremonies, representing King Edward and Lord Wemyss and Sir Bernard Eric Burrington, representing the foreign office. The Americans who bid Mr. and Mrs. Choate farewell, included the entire staff of the embassy.

THE RUSSIANS RECEIVE THEIR FIRST DIRECT NEWS FROM SEA DISASTER

The Cruiser Almaz Reaches Vladivostok and Long Cipher Message Is Sent to the Czar.

Tokio, May 30, 3 p. m.—It is reported that Admiral Rojestvensky who fled on a torpedo boat destroyer has been captured.

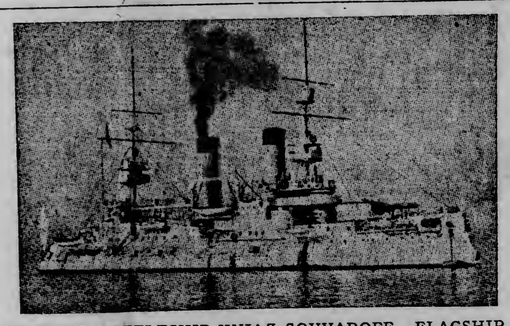
St. Petersburg, May 30.—The report that the Kniaz Souvaroff, flagship of the Russian fleet which was defeated by the Japanese in the straits of Korea, was sunk and that Admiral Rojestvensky was wounded and placed on board a torpedo boat destroyer, is confirmed. The whereabouts of the destroyer is not known.

The Kniaz Souvaroff was a first-class battleship and was completed last year. She was built at St. Petersburg, was of 13,516 tons displacement, and had a speed of 18 knots. Her armament consisted of four 12-inch guns, twelve 6-inch guns, twenty 3-inch guns and twenty 3-pounders, in addition to six smaller rapid-fire guns. She had six torpedo tubes and had a crew numbering 740 officers and men.

St. Petersburg, May 30, 3 p. m.—The first definite news from Russian sources of the naval battle fought in the straits of Korea came from Captain Chagin of the cruiser Almaz, who has arrived at Vladivostok. He telegraphed to the emperor that he had witnessed the sinking of the battleship Kniaz Souvaroff and reported that Admiral Rojestvensky was wounded. Captain Chagin saw Rojestvensky lowered on board the torpedo boat destroyer Buiny, and said the admiral presumably was saved. The Buiny, however, had not reached Vladivostok when Captain Chagin sent his telegram and her whereabouts was not known.

The cruiser Almaz is the only ship of the Russian fleet absolutely known to have arrived at Vladivostok, although according to unofficial reports, several others escaped.

MAP SHOWING LOCATION OF GREAT NAVAL BATTLE.



POWERFUL BATTLESHIP KNIAZ SOUVAROFF, FLAGSHIP OF ADMIRAL ROJESTVENSKY, WHICH WAS SUNK BY THE JAPS.

Washington, May 30.—The Japanese legation has received the following cablegram from Tokio:

The four Russian vessels captured by us were safely brought to our naval port at Sasebo on May 30. They are Orel, Nicholai I., Apraxine, Seniavin and Maisuru.

St. Petersburg, May 30, 4:50 p. m.—The admiralty officially admits the sinking of the battleships Kniaz Souvaroff, Borodino, Oslabia and Orel and the repair ship Kamtschatka. The loss of these vessels was definitely established by Captain Chagin of the cruiser Almaz. No statement regarding the ships captured was made.

Tokio, May 30.—Admiral Togo continues his great sweep to the northward in pursuit of the remnant of the Russian fleet. Complete reports will possibly increase the extent of the Russian disaster.

London, May 30.—A special dispatch from Kobe, Japan, says that hundreds of Russians, many of them badly wounded, are coming ashore at Yamaguchi, on the coast of Japan opposite the straits of Korea, in boats or clinging to wreckage.

St. Petersburg, May 30.—Noon.—A long cipher dispatch reached Emperor Nicholas during the night, but its contents have not yet been made public. It is unofficially stated that several of the fast Russian ships succeeded in shaking off their pursuers and

THE GERMAN YACHT IS SECOND IN RACE

The Hamburg Passes Scilly Island a Day Behind Atlantic.

London, May 30.—The German yacht Hamburg, second contestant in the Kaiser cup race to cross the Atlantic from Sandy Hook, was off the Scilly Islands station at 8:20 o'clock this morning. There is a light southerly breeze.

The Hamburg passed four miles south of Bishop lighthouse at 9 o'clock. She was almost becalmed.

The Lizard, May 30.—The American yacht Atlantic finished at 9:18 p. m. winning the German emperor's cup for the great ocean race.

The Atlantic passed Wolfe rock with every stitch of sail set. Her spinnaker was rigged to starboard and the American ensign was at her peak. Shortly afterward the wind dropped and the spinnaker was taken in. Capt. Barr was hailed by the correspondent's boats. He said the Atlantic had made an average speed of 16½ knots since leaving Sandy Hook.

Capt. Barr and Wilson Marshall, the owner of the Atlantic, agreed that they had made a splendid passage, without a single mishap, only experiencing one strong gale, through which the boat rode admirably.

The record sail for one day was 341 knots, which Mr. Marshall believes beats anything hiterto achieved. This was made May 24. On May 25 the yacht made 282 knots, on May 26, 179 knots, on May 27, 143 knots, and on May 28, 213 knots.

The Atlantic reached Bishop rock lighthouse, southwest of the main group of the Scilly Isles, May 29, having accomplished the passage to that point in 11 days, 16 hours and 22 minutes, with an average of ten and a half knots per hour.

Berlin, May 30.—The victory of the American yacht Atlantic in the race for the emperor's cup is a bitter disappointment to German yachtsmen who from all of the latest steamer reports had expected the success of the German yacht Hamburg.

The news of the Atlantic's finish reached Berlin too late for much comment in the moring papers, but the Tageblatt calls the time record phenomenal.

THE THIRTY-NINTH ANNUAL REGATTA ON HARLEM RIVER

New York, May 30.—The thirty-ninth annual regatta of the Harlem Regatta association was held today on the Harlem river. The racing began at 9:30 a. m. and there were eighteen events, including the following:

Junior single, intermediate single, association single, senior single, junior doubles, intermediate doubles, senior doubles, senior veteran single, senior single centipede four, intermediate four gig, senior four-oar shell, junior eight-oar shell, intermediate eight-oar shell and naval reserves cutter race. They will end at 6 p. m. and there will be an intermission for luncheon. The eight-oar races will be rowed in the afternoon.

There were sixty-two entries, most of them from New York city clubs, but including a Philadelphia crew, O'Connell and Buckey of Portand, Me., who twice won the double scull national championships, and Mulcahy and Monohan of Albany, formerly national champions. In the senior single race all the local cracks were expected to be in line, including Titus, the former champion. The only opponents of Mulcahy and Carley the champions in senior doubles were a junior crew from the Atlantas club.

Columbia had several entries in the four and eights. The New York division of the naval reserve had four crews entered fo rthe cutter race.

The junior single sculls were won by Durando Miller, New York. Time, 8 minutes, 10 seconds.

A LOVING CUP TO BE SENT TO TOGO

New York, May 30.—A gift, probably in the form of a silver and gold loving cup, will be sent to Admiral Togo within a few days by the Japanese residents of this city. This has been decided on at a meeting of the admiral's countrymen, held in connection with the proposed plan for a big celebration of the sea victory, to take place some night this week. Carnegie hall probably will be chosen for the meeting.

A minor celebration will be held Thursday evening at the Japanese club house in Eighty-fifth street, when a reception will be tendered to Barons Kaneko and Takahissa. The latter, who floated the recent government loan, will leave soon for Japan.

Business among the Japanese commercial houses is almost suspended while the victory of Togo is celebrated.

"If peace is declared," said Mr. Takahissa, "it is likely another loan will be floated to take up the present loans at a cheaper rate of interest. The first loans were made on a six per cent basis, the second loan at 4½ per cent, and I believe a cheaper rate of interest can be had.

ENGINEER IS KILLED ON IRON RANGE ROAD

Fred Coryell Run Over By a Switch Engine at Murray.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred Coryell, an old employe and switch engineer on the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, was killed at Murray last evening by being run over. He was taking a switch engine from Ely to Tower junction for the night's work, and a hot box on the pony truck of the engine caused him to stop at Murray to cool it with water. While doing so he crawled partly under the engine, and while the fireman was carrying the water to him the engine started to move, and before he could escape was run over and killed almost instantly. The remains were brought to his home here today. Deceased was about 40 years of age and leaves a wife and one child. Relatives reside at Osceola, Wis.

Too Much of Scrapper.

A commotion was caused in front of the First National bank building this morning when the bull-terrier owned by the engineer of that institution pounced on a small passing dog and seized it by the ear, hanging with a tenacity so great as to require the efforts of several persons, including a policeman to get the animals apart. The small dog had its ear badly torn in the fracas. Many complaints have been made to the police by dog owners about the "mixing-in" qualities of the bull-terrier and the owner was warned this morning that unless he immediately muzzled his dog trouble might ensue.

FAREWELL DINNER

By Frick at Pittsburg Will Be Elaborate.

New York, May 30.—Henry Clay Frick, the Pittsburg millionaire, will give one of the most fashionable dinners ever given in this country next Friday, when he bids adieu to the smoky city as his home. He has leased George W. Vanderbilt's residence at Fifth avenue and Fifty-first street for a term of ten years and will make his home here.

Four hundred invitations have been sent out for the farewell dinner in Pittsburg. All the viands will be shipped from New York by private car. Walter N. Bussell, caterer for the Newport Casino, has been engaged to prepare the feast for 400 prsons, and his instructions are to spare no expense.

Already the caterer has stripped his furnishings from the walls of the Newport Casino grill rooms and shipped them by fast freight to Pittsburg. He will send a corps of skilled decorators to that city and go himself to superintend things.

SUICIDE AT HALSTAD.

Jeweler Shoots Himself Through the Head.

Crookston, Minn., May 30.—The dead body of K. K. Kraghtad, a jeweler at Halstad, was found a half-mile from that place Sunday evening, a bullet hole through the brain and a 22-caliber pistol grasped in one hand, telling the tale.

He was seen at 7 o'clock by several and appeared moody, and wanted to avoid meeting anyone. His body was found by a young couple out walking. He leaves a wife and one son, 9 years old. A note was found in his pocket saying, "Goodby, Odin." Odin being his son. His affairs were in good shape. He was 45 and highly respected, and his suicide has caused a great sensation. He had been in poor health for some time.

UNDERSTOOD THAT.

A diminutive Italian was being sworn in for his first citizenship papers by United States Commissioner Shields, says the New York Sun. The applicant was unable to speak English, and an interpreter stood by his side trying to make him understand the nature of the proceeding.

The Italian got along fairly well until he was asked if he wanted to become a citizen of the United States. The commissioner and the interpreter both did their best to make him understand, but to no avail. The Italian only shook his head. At last, disgusted, the commissioner said:

"Well, ask him if he swears that he wants to keep the streets clean!"

The question was interpreted to him and he nodded an emphatic "yes."

SIGN OF BUSINESS.

"See that line of cabs?" asked a New Yorker walking along Wall street about 5 o'clock with an out-of-town friend.

The stranger observed the long line of hansoms, coupes and coaches drawn up to the curb while their energetic drivers beckoned every passerby.

"That's an infallible indicator of the day on the Exchange. When the market has been active and the brokers have made money, there is not a cab in sight; they all blow some of their earnings. When the market has been dull, as it has today, the cabbies are all out on the curb hustling for fares. It's one of the signs of the times, that line of cabbies."

A FEW PALINDROMES.

Philadelphia Bulletin: "It is a fascinating occupation," said a philogist, "to search the language for palindromes. A Palindrome is a word that reads the same backward as forward. Rotator, for instane, is a palindrome. Several hundred of these strange words are tabulated, and new ones are continually turning up in the English tongue. If you can find one send it to the Palindrome Society of New York.

"I can rattle off extempore a dozen or two palindromes. Thus:

"Bab, refer, bib, Anna, tot, bob, peep, civic, toot, dad, madam, deed, pup, deified, sees, dewed, tat, did, shahs, eve, reviver, ewe, rotator, gog, pop, gig, gug, redder, level, noon, Otto, sexes."

FERD. T. HOPKINS, Prop'r, 37 Great Jones St., N. Y.

Innumerable small picnics and informal outings have been planned for today in spite of the resentment felt by many of the people who remember the time of the country's strife, in thus spending the day that is officially set aside in memory of the men who died in defense of their country. To the younger generation the day brings little if any real feeling and it is considered eminently the proper thing to arrange for as much joyousness as possible. Many attended the different exercises planned for the dead soldiers and the promise of a delightful sunshiny day added to the general hopefulness of a well-spent holiday. Among the most delightful of the social affairs was the annual outing of the Lambda Sigma Nu fraternity. The members and their guests drove in brakes to Fond du Lac and spent the day there.

PLEASING RECITAL.

Pupils of Ernest Lachmund and George Tyler.

An interesting recital was given last evening at the Lyceum by the pupils of Ernest Lachmund and Mr. and Mrs. George Tyler. The audience gathered to hear the pupils in their annual recital completely filled the theater, and many stood during the entire program. The opening group of numbers was presented by little tots who were almost forced into an act of climbing to reach the piano stool. They were Blanche Rittel, Georgiana Fifer, Dorothy Thwing and Katherine Thwing. The younger pupils of both teachers appeared for the most part on the program, and each one acquited himself with credit. The other piano solos were given by Marion Brown, Grace Woolway, Gladys Porter, Gladys Tyler, Marie Agatin, Albert Porter, Jessie Gibson, Roy Bowen and Marguerite Mitchell.

An especially attractive number was a 'cello solo "Andante Con Variazone," by Henning and played by Master Victor Levin. In the vocal numbers special interest was felt in the appearance of Miss Millie Baker, who sang "The Last Farewell," by Harris, and was warmly welcomed back by her Duluth friends. Although the program stated that no encores would be given, the audience insisted upon hearing again little Miss Hazel Harris, who sang in sweet bird-like tones, "The Robin" by Neidlinger. "Addio a Napoli" by Cottrau, and sung by Miss Josephine Bardessono was a pleasing number and "The Inflammatus," from "Stabat Mater," by Rossini was splendidly sung by Mrs. James McAuliffe and chorus.

Other vocal numbers were given by Ruth Donly, John Koneczny, Mathilda Berkson, Nellie Fisher, Katherine Bruder, Ansle Smith, George E. Suffel, Emily Clausen, Charles Dorrence, Blanche Fleming, Herman Oestrich, Marie Clark, Elizabeth McGraw, Mrs. C. B. Gilbert and Roy Pritz.

Owing to illness H. W. Lanners and Miss Grace St. Clair were unable to sing and Mary Williams, Grace Jones and Eleanor Pineo were unable to give their piano numbers.

INVALID COACHES.

Elaborate Ambulances Invented By a Woman.

Few people know that the most elaborate ambulances in this country were invented by a New York woman, and were built to her order. Invalid coaches is their proper name, and they are attached to no hospital, but are let to such customers as may need them, says an exchange.

About four years ago the practicability of luxurious conveyances for the wealthy sick suggested itself to the inventor. Talking it over with the leading physicians of New York, she found that the idea was instantly approved.

"All the doctors had had the same experience of the great prejudice of people against being conveyed to and from hospitals in the ordinary ambulances," said the inventor, in speaking of her coaches. Such objections are most natural. At the same time an attempt to move an invalid in a private carriage may be accompanied by very grave results," says an exchange.

It took her an entire year to think out all the little points connected with her coaches, in the comfort and completeness of which no item seems to have been overlooked. There are electric fans to keep the atmosphere cool and fresh when the coach is traveling over dusty country roads and the windows cannot be raised; light and dark shades at every window to soften the glare of the day, and electric lights for night use.

There is a cylinder of oxygen and a chest of medicines for use in emergencies, and even a chest for ice in which to carry milk and other nourishment during long journeys.

In order to attract as little attention as possible the exterior of the invalid coach has been designed to resemble an opera bus, with highly polished woodwork, plate glass windows along the upper part of the sides, and windows in the doors also. The driver is in livery, and the two trained attendants who accompany the coach wear no uniforms, in order to give the appearance of a private equipage.

When it is traveling along the road at night, the curtains drawn, and illumined by the electric lights, the interior of the coach resembles a little sickroom beautifully appointed. The walls are of buff cloth, the ceiling of silk of the same color, chosen because of its cheering effect.

For short trips the upholstery is covered with white slips, which are changed after each call, in order to assure perfect sanitation.

On one side of the compartment is the patient's couch, with an air mattress and pillow, which aid the rubber tires in making any motion of the carriage imperceptible to the invalid. The couch is six feet long and is adjustable like a Morris chair, so that the patient may lie flat, recline or sit straight up, as desired.

Along the opposite side of the couch is an upholstered seat for the attendants and friends of the invalid. Under this are the ice chest, stretcher, carrying chair, and even an invalid table on which luncheon may be served.

Often these coaches are engaged by the aged or by chronic invalids, who feel themselves unable to travel in trains to convey them to their country homes. In this way they make trips even so far as Newport.

If the invalid is to make a trip so long that only part of the distance can be covered by the coach, the couch, which has been fashioned so that it can readily be converted into a litter, is removed at the railroad station and placed upon the train without the patient being disturbed. The attendants from the coach accompany the patient to the end of the journey.

"We have found that horses are the only things which it is absolutely safe to rely upon in a work like ours," the inventor said. "Roosevelt hospital, after spending $5,000 for a motor ambulance last year, has been obliged to return to the use of horses, they had so much trouble with it.

"Then, for most of our work, fast traveling is not desired. The coach is so easy running that the journey is not a strain upon the patient and most of them ask us to drive very slowly."

REFUSES TO DOWN.

Colored Handkerchief Persists In Remaining.

Hail to the colored handkerchief, most persistent of ecentric accessories! It refuses to be downed! After several summers of alternate appearance and disappearance, it bobs up this year in radiant, irresistible guise. One reason for its enormous popularity this season is the vogue for white linen gowns, with lapels, collars, and cuffs of a vivid or pastel tint such as lavended, turquoise blue, old rose, pink or green.

The tailored or semi-tailored suit almost demands the little colored handkerchief to match the cuffs and to peep from the mere slit which serves as a pocket. When the girl adds to this spats of the same shade, she is truly smart. Men and women alike have both stopped to admire this dauntless little article, and then to lay in a goodly supply to match their gay-hued neck scarfs or daintily colored linen frocks. This does not mean, however, that the pure white kerchief will be entirely neglected, merely that it must look to its laurels and keep pace with a most persistent and fascinating rival.

The softest of linen colors are silhouetted against white backgrounds in peal designs or fantastic nouveau art figures. Or on a colored ground are silhouetted white effects. White handkerchiefs have borders of geometrical patterns, discs or Grecian designs, but the pastel pinks and blues and tans bring out these old patterns in new beauty.

Lavender handkerchiefs show tiny baskets of flowers in white, or, vice versa, white kerchiefs show lavender garlands and bouquets. These are often outlined by a single white thread. One very unusual design shows a lavender basket filled with small flowers in each corner, while scattered inside the border are tiny butterflies in palest orange. On other kerchiefs violets or star flowers, in pink or lavender or blue, form the colored border and have their petals buttonholed in silk of the same color.

A Hill Side Grave

A Story For Decoration Day.

By Mrs. Gen. George E. Pickett

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"I am happy to tell you, madam," said Dr. Grattan, "that in three days we will remove the bandages from your husband's eyes and he will see."

"Thank you," stammered Loraine Marr, as the good doctor, paused expectantly, and, with a look of disappointment, dropped her little cold hand. "I hope you will not think that I am not glad nor that I am not grateful for your skill and care, doctor," she faltered, "but I—I—"

"Humph! I don't think anything. By the holy fleece, but you are all a puzzle—all!" he said as he went away.

Ten years ago she had come to her beautiful home. The fragrance of the roses that decked the room then seemed to linger in the air around her.

"My queen of roses," Williston Marr had said, "my rose of the universe, there is none other so beautiful."

How glad of her beauty she had been for his sake. Trivial as it had always seemed, it was glorified to her because he loved it. Three years later blindness gloomed over him. There came a day when he took her into his arms and gazed long into her face.

"I see a shimmer of gold hair, eyes like the deep arch of heaven, lilies and roses that will bloom and winter for other eyes to look upon, lips that are like the red carnation while it yet folds its happy secret in the crimson glory of its glowing heart. As I look the shadows deepen. Tomorrow perhaps even that faint radiance may be gone. Do not think my heart will cease to be glad in the lovelliness that my eyes can never more behold."

Two years of darkness for him and of watching for her and then there came a time when she went down almost to the gates of death. When she came back to life she laughed at the care with which they had taken all the mirrors from the room.

"It was only for his sake that I loved my beauty. He cannot know, so it does not matter. When life has such love what can it lack?"

"My light has come back," he said. "I can see you just as I saw you before the night fell, all rose and gold and snow."

Was she not the same? She was so to his heart and what mattered it else? Not that he would love her less. He had loved her for the soul that was in her, and his love would never fail, but he would pity her, too—he who had always been so proud of her.

"In three days," he said, "they tell me I shall see you."

Ah, well! They should be to him three such days that the light of them should gild all the coming years for him. Now, the last of the three was gone.

All the world was an iron wall closing in upon her. She went into the lighted street and walked with the human tide that surged onward, yet so far from it that she neither saw nor heard it. She seemed to have spent aeons of time traveling infinite distances when she was conscious of a brilliant flash enveloping her, a resistless force bearing down upon her, a cry from many voices that filled the world with thunder—a crash—darkness.

She opened her eyes and looked at a woman who sat beside the cot on which she lay.

"How long have I been here?"

"Only a little while," said the woman in a gentle voice, as one might talk to an over-curious child. Then she went out and a young face took her place at the bedside. Loraine leaned forward as the door closed and again asked with eager insistence:

"How long have I been here?"

"Seven months," answered the girl impulsively, taken by surprise at the impetuous manner.

For seven months she had been dead to the world. How far had it gone on without her? So far that it had no more any place for her?

Williston Marr came back to the light of day, but the sunshine of his heart had gone out. When the bugle call to war rang through the land he was the first to respond, moved less by patriotism than by restless loneliness. Many a man with all earth's joys to live for went down in the fires of battle but he, with no hope but to find the shortest path out of life, came through without a wound.

The old home held too sad associations for him to return to it, and after the war was over he wandered through many countries, but never could he lose the voice that called to him out of the past.

He returned to his native country, and one one 30th of May stopped at a hillside station where his train would wait for a freight wreck just ahead to be cleared away. The early May morning was just rising above the Eastern hills when Williston Marr left the train to rest himself by a walk along the hillside. Near the station was a railway lunch room, and he went in and ordered a cup of coffee and a sandwich after the fashion of the experienced traveler. He had a fancy that his breakfast was not very good, but he paid so little attention to it that he was not quite sure. After he had finished he put some money into the waiter's hand and went out without waiting for change. He felt that he must be off and away through the soft May morning over the hill. He stopped for a moment on the platform and looked upward and onward. On the Eastern plateau stood a large building white against the dusky shadows of the peaks.

"What is that building?" he asked one of the trainmen.

"It's one of them sanitar'ums that rich guys puts up to make the Lord fergit how they made their money. Lots o' folks come here to git rid o' consumption an' things like that."

"It's because of the sanitarium that the village is here?"

"No; the village was here in war times. The's a graveyard over yonder where some o' the soldiers is buried. Maybe you'd like to walk over there and see the graves. Folks most always does when they have to stop here. It's so kind o' cheerin'."

Williston entered the enclosure. Halfway down the center he came to a stone with a name that awakened a sudden interest in his mind. He stopped and read the inscription carefully: "Williston Marr, Killed at Gettysburg, July 3, 1863." That was all. No date of birth nor place name to mark his history in any way. The sad-faced man looked down at the stone with a peculiar interest. To be sure, no man had a copyright on his name just because he had been born to a part of it and received the rest from his sponsors in baptism.

Then he fell to wondering who he had been, and if someone who had loved him watched beside his grave and brought flowers to lay on it on Decoration day. There was a white rose blooming beside it. Did some one who had been dearer than life to the dead soldier keep it blooming by her tender care?

He stood by the simple headstone thinking tenderly of the love that was faithful through the years. The children came and put their roses on the grave of Williston Marr, not speaking but pausing a moment, as if sending a voiceless message to the sleeper under the ground.

"To whom are you giving your pretty flowers?" he asked coming gently forward.

They drew back shyly, and held each others hands as if for protection.

"We don't know," said the taller one. "But he was a soldier and papa says we must give him half our flowers always."

Then they scampered away down the walk.

Williston was conscious of keen disappointment. The dead soldier who bore his name had no one to care for him in his individual self. He supposed that the white rose was only an impersonal offering, too, because he had been a soldier, not because he had been loved. A deep sense of loneliness swept over him for the desolation of the unknown soldier.

He walked among the graves till the villagers had all gone away. As he started to follow them he saw a black-robed figure coming down the walk toward "his grave." He watched the woman trailing her sombre draperies along the award till the grave was reached. She knelt for a moment as if in prayer and then put the flowers she had brought on the grassy mound. Then she arose and put back her veil and looked at the white rosebush, touching one of the blossoms with a tender hand. Then she turned her veil falling away from her pale, uplifted face.

"Lorraine!"

She looked at him with startled, wondering gaze.

"Have you—come back—from the dead?"

"I think so," he said. "I have been dead to all joy since I lost you."

He stood motionless, marveling over the still joy that possessed him in silence. He had dreamed of seeing her and of the wild rapture that had shaken his soul in the meeting. Now he was still as the windless day that smiled over him. She, too, spoke no word as they clasped hands beside the grave. Then he said:

"How did you come, my Loraine—why do I meet you here?"

"I am a nurse in the sanitarium over there. But you—?"

She looked down at the grave as if half expecting to see that it had opened.

"Did you think I was lying there? Poor fellow, I half envied him a moment ago. Now I would not change places with him in the bliss of Paradise. Tell me of him and why he is here."

"When I first came here I found this grave. I asked an old man who had lived here during the war whose it was and he said that some soldiers brought a dead comrade from the field of Gettysburg and buried him here. I knew that you were in the Army of the Potomac because a wounded soldier in the hospital told me of you."

"And you have cared for him all these years for love of me?"

She looked at him with the old light in her eyes.

"For love of you."

IMMENSE HOLDINGS

St. Paul, May 30.—The official list of stockholders of the Northern Securities company, filed at Trenton, N. J., and signed by James J. Hill shows that St. Paul holdings in the company when it was dissolved were worth at least $65,000,000.

These figures are based on the number of shares owned, as shown by the official list, and the value of each share, $163, at which price the last sale was made. Following is the St. Paul list:

HILL FAMILY HOLDINGS.

James J. Hill	$53,260,810
James N. Hill	1,105,279
Samuel Hill	1,347,445
Louis W. Hill	1,020,380

Grand total for St. Paul, $65,198,338.

There are undoubtedly many small St. Paul holders not shown in the list from which the figures given above were taken, as it was a list showing only the larger stockholders.

The Hill family holdings alone were only a little short of $60,000,000 in value and three other St. Paul men held stock worth, at $163 per share, a little more than $6,000,000.

The rise from the low point at which Northern Securities sold, approximately $85 a share, to $163 per share, netted St. Paul holders about $30,000,000.

A WOMAN'S BACK.

The Aches and Pains Will Disappear If the Advice of This Duluth Citizen is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains.

Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault.

Backache is really kidney ache;

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Many Duluth women know this.

Read what one has to say about it:

Mrs. M. McGillivray of 1228 Superior street west, Duluth, Minn., says: "I just as heartily endorse Doan's Kidney Pills today as I did over six years ago when I found relief from dull pains through the loins and other symptoms of kidney trouble. My back would give out if I exerted myself in doing even the most trivial household work. I had persistent headaches and my rest did not benefit me at night. The kidney secretions were likewise irregular. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me from the start, banished the backaches, headaches and pains, and imparted strength to the different organs, and helped me in every way. I have had no occasion to use any kidney medicine since that time."

ATTACK ON CAPITAL

War to Rage About Washington In Middle of June.

Attack By the Navy and Defense By the Army.

Washington, May 30.—An attack on Washington by the navy and the city's defence by the army will determine, during the combined maneuvers planned for June 11-17, what practical lessons the American service has earned in the use of mines from the war in the Far East. Mines are the new thing. They have never before been utilized to such an extent in both attack and defense as by Japanese and Russians off Port Arthur.

The new submarine boats, built for both branches of the service, will also have a thorough trial, but submarine boats are not altogether a new thing, although they are still in the experimental stage. The telautograph, which transmits written orders in fac-simile by modified telegraphic apparatus, is a recent invention the utility of which will undoubtedly be demonstrated.

Altogether it will be an interesting military experiment, the effort by the navy to reach Baltimore and Washington, and that of Gen. Wade to theoretically sink the attacking ships in waters made memorable by the battle of the Monitor and Merrimac. The refusal of congress to appropriate more money for maneuvers compelled the scaling down of the original plan, to the exclusion of landing parties by the navy, participation of National Guard organizations and all regular troops but the coast defense artillerymen absolutely required to man the defenses. Even here the amount available is so small that but one shift can be had at the guns. Night attacks will mean sleepy artillerymen, and sulky ones. Strategy favors both society and the tourist this time.

The first combined maneuvers, held in the vicinity of Bar Harbor, Me., gave the seaside season a brilliant event. But Bar Harbor was out of reach for the average spectator. At Manassas last summer, on the other hand, Gen. Corbin's effort to mobolize the Four Hundred was but partially successful, while railroad excursions brought the multitude to the field. But the crowd at Manassas, when it arrived, found that thousand league boots were necessary for seeing anything.

Off the Maine coast society found itself handicapped as far as a view of operations was concerned. Its part of the maneuvers was consequently restricted to serving the sham fighters tea on shore between times. But the social leaders and the mob alike can not only be accommodated in the neighborhood of Fort Monroe, but also have the unusual spectacle of bombardments spread out within easy visual range of any one who cares to buy a camp chair and climb a hill. The show will be easily worth the price of an excursion ticket, and gold-laced receptions, dances and afternoon teas will be sufficiently numerous and easy of access to justify the trip for those who travel in private cars.

While the forces engaged will be relatively small on both sides, powder will not be spared. Big guns will make Fourth of July during the daylight hours and furnish flaming pyrotechnics by night. The skeletonizing of the forces will require much technical figuring by umpires before decision can be rendered as to results.

At Manassas it was fairly easy for the average spectator to judge the fighting. The game was as interesting to the sidelines as football, and people all over the country turned rooters for the Blues or Browns. To the spectator who wants to know the good points of the play in the Chesapeake, the maneuvers will be much like a cricket game played before a baseball audience. A gulide will be required to explain the technique.

While the navy has not yet decided what ships will be detailed to the attack on Washington, and the final manetuver plans will not be completed for some time, it is certain that no very imposing array of ships will take actual part.

It is at present tentatively agreed that the coast defense squadron shall be the attacking force. This means, as that squadron is at present organized, the second-class battleship Texas, the monitors Arkansas, Nevada and Florida, and a flotilla of torpedo and submarine boats. Rear Admiral Sands is now in command of this squadron. If it becomes the sole attacking force, it will undoubtedly be strengthened for the purposes of the problem by imaginary reinforcements, on paper. It is such imaginary strength, thrown now on one side and then on the other in these war games, that confuses the civilian.

The coast defence squadron in itself, as at present composed, would have no business attacking such elaborate defences as those which guard the approaches to Washington. The British navy is now selling ships for junk that are not much older than the Texas. The monitor fleet is partly the product of the history made off Fortress Monroe by Ericsson's original cheese box on a raft, partly the product of the now exploded American congressional theory of a coast defence ship.

The United States has at last relearned what was trite in the time of Nelson and Trafalgar, that the only coast defence to be depended on is an aggressive fleet that can meet the enemy and destroy him far from the coast he threatens. And, quite aside from this, experience with the monitors during the Spanish war proved them to be more of a nuisance than a source of strength to any fleet in open waters, and also that their build made them such a bobbing cork in even a light roll as to make guesswork of their gunnery.

The lack of available money will prevent carrying out one of the most interesting features possible to such a problem as this attack on Washington, the landing of forces under cover of the fleet batteries for a land assault on the defending works. That is the inevitable climax of all naval attacks on shore defences. Such movements really have no other purpose.

Modern civilization will not permit the casual bombardment of cities. One has only to look at Havana, spread invitingly open along the sea wall to any ocean shot, then to recall that not a shot was fired into the city by the American ships blockading it in 1898, to have that fact emphasized. The shells that knocked holes in the Opera house at San Juan, Porto Rico, and killed people in the market place, when the fleet threatened that port, were aimed at the Morro and San Christobal. Dewey, after destroying the Spanish fleet in Manila bay, had to lie fretting in the roadside until transports could be hurried from the United States with troops to fasten down the prize he had torn from its Spanish base.

There is a theory of modern warfare that unprotected cities may some day be compelled to buy immunity from a threatening fleet with a stiff indemnity. American cities need no longer worry about that, however. Even one or two guns mounted where a shot from them might chance to sink the most powerful opposing battleship would be an urgent argument against a fleet commander bothering about this indemnity business while his enemy still had a fleet in being. And when the other fleet is destroyed the war ends, and not one city, but the nation, pays the indemnity.

The sole rational purpose of an attack on the Chesapeake defences of the capital city would be to reduce those batteries for the safety of a landing force. An attempt of warships to reach Washington without troops ashore to co-operate could be harassed, delayed, and perhaps defeated, by a few energetic men with row boats to sow the Potomac with mines.

Since no landing parties will be attempted in these exercises, technical interest will center on the mining operations. Mines have been used for defense since the civil war. Countermining by the attacking fleet dates from the sinking of Makaroff's flagship by Togo's torpedoes. Countermining has two purposes, preventing the coming out from the assailed harbor of a defending fleet and the destruction of the defensive mine fields. Both were features of the Port Arthur operations.

The defending fleet in the lower Chesapeake will be the army's submarine boat flotilla. This will be the first occasion of the army's navy meeting that of the rival branch of the service. For when the army went into the submarine boat business it was compelled to turn sailor. It will be a great score for the landsmen if the new flotilla can beat the navy in its own element.

When it comes to mines, that has always been the army's business, until Togo showed the way to more extended use of these devices. It will be the navy's handicap here, and success to its officers would mean a great gloat over the army. The mines will, of course, be very harmless dummies. It will be for umpires kept familiar with every move on either side to determine whether a naval officer has carried his ship into a mine field in being, where she would be instantly destroyed on contact with one of the floating things, or by the pressure of an electric button on shore.

When it comes to submarine boats, victory is awarded their attempt on a ship if they reach a certain proximity either without being detected or before the threatened ship can bring enough guns to bear to theoretically sink them. There will be some nervous officers, afloat and ashore, until this first problem of the manoeuvres is ended. It will be a black mark against the record of some veteran ship captain if a young cub of a lieutenant can sneak a submarine alongside

BLAZE ON THE HEIGHTS

Home of Thomas Perry Is Destroyed By Fire.

Fire, caused by the explosion of a kerosene lamp, resulted in the destruction of the home of Thomas Perry, at 116 Palmetto street, Duluth Heights, last night, about 11:15 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry and their children had retired for the night, when they were awakened by the explosion of the lamp which had been left burning in the kitchen. They were forced to flee from the house in their night clothing.

The alarm was turned in and the chemical engine from headquarters was sent to the scene. Meanwhile a bucket brigade was formed, but it was seen that the saving of the Perry home was impossible, so they turned their attention to keeping the fire from spreading to adjoining dwellings.

Some of the furniture and belongings were saved, but the house is a complete loss.

TALKS HIMSELF OUT OF LICENSE

Council Finally Turns Down Joe Sheehy's Application.

Lincoln Park Dancing Pavilion Is Also Refused Permit.

The council last evening:
Turned down application of Joseph Sheehy for employment license.
Refused application for license to operate dance hall in Lincoln park.
Received communication from building inspector regarding fireproof walls in theaters.

After having browbeaten the council into giving him a license for several years in succession, when the police department had repeatedly urged that his application be refused, Joseph Sheehy, the employment agent, was turned down hard last night, as the result of his own indiscreet talk, when he had victory once more within his reach.

The police and license committee reported favorably on Sheehy's application, but Alderman Moore moved that the report be tabled until certain legal difficulties now existing between Sheehy and the legal department, be settled. The motion was lost, on the vote of 12 to 2, and the aldermen were evidently disposed to grant him a license for another year, when he asked to have the floor.

In a vague and blundering way he accused Assistant City Attorney McKeon of perjury in connection with the appeal of his case to the supreme court, and said that he was going to lay the matter before the grand jury. Sheehy was convicted of being drunk and disorderly before Judge Windom and sentenced to sixty days in jail. He put up bonds pending an appeal, but when the six months' time limit had expired Mr. McKeon went before the supreme court and asked to have the appeal rejected on the ground that he had received no notice. His application was upheld by the supreme court judges, and Sheehy had to return to jail. He claims that this statement of Mr. McKeon's was false and that the assistant city attorney "perjured himself."

After returning to jail Sheehy was released under a writ of habeas corpus, but when the case was tried before Judge Dibell, the assistant city attorney was again upheld, and Sheehy returned to jail again, until he had time to serve notice of appeal from Judge Dibell's decision, under which appeal he is now at liberty.

As soon as he had completed his statement Alderman Moore was on his feet.

"I would not oppose the application for this license," he said, "if this man would get down to business, attend to his business and conduct himself with proper respect toward the city officials. A man who does not show any more respect for the city officers than he has, can't be expected to treat the men with whom he deals in a decent manner. It is entirely discretionary with us whether we grant him a license or not, and I am opposed to knuckling down to him again and giving him just what he wants in the craven manner that this council has been accustomed to do."

Alderman McEwen stated that he had investigated the matter and found that Sheehy conducted his business in as good a manner as the majority of the agents, and that the only thing he had against him was his personal conduct.

"As far as I am concerned personally," said Bert Fesler, the city attorney, who had meanwhile been holding the assistant city attorney in his seat, "I have never had a word with Sheehy. I am thoroughly acquainted, however, with all Mr. McKeon has done in this case and I heartily approve of every act he has done. Mr. Sheehy's remarks are entirely uncalled for. If he would confine his attention to his business and not attack people who are trying to do their duty, he would not make the enemies that he does. I don't want to interfere in any way in this matter, but I do resent the words he has just said."

"This flow of billingsgate has been directed at everyone from the mayor to the lowest city officials," said Alderman Wilson. "He has turned his attentions to the aldermen, the chief of police, the mayor, the judge, and now he has attacked the city's legal department. It is time that this council took some stand in the matter and made it clear that such a man cannot be allowed to go about maligning and libeling any person he chooses to select."

The assistant city attorney finally succeeded in getting the floor.

"First of all, I want to say that I regret that I have to reply to a thing like that," said Mr. McKeon pointing his finger at Sheehy. "I am not a perjurer. I don't have to be. I can make an honest living.

"Now I will just give the council the facts in the case and everything I say can be corroborated by the court records, or by Mr. McMahon, who was Sheehy's attorney and threw up the case in disgust."

Mr. McKeon then stated the facts as they are given above.

The question was finally called, and all of the aldermen but Alderman Chesney, voted against the granting of the license.

The application for a license to run a dancing pavilion in Lincoln park, made by W. J. Chestock, was turned down without any discussion. The matter had been thoroughly threshed out last Monday night, and the aldermen did not go into the case again. The vote was unanimous.

Frank C. Lillis was granted a permit to operate a theater at 17 and 19 Second avenue west. The police and license committee reported favorably on it, stating that all connections with the saloon had been closed up.

Alderman Wilson then added an amendment that the license should be provisional on the condition that no liquor should be sold in the theater, and that it should be revoked at any time if such was found to be the case.

Alderman Wilson then voted against his own amended motion together with Aldermen Moore and McEwen. He explained that he was opposed to the theater being granted a license at all, but that he introduced the amendment as being the best that he thought would be agreed to. The amendment carried.

Building Inspector Kielley called attention to the fact that the wall between the stage and the auditorium in the new Bijou theater building being constructed on East Superior street, will be of lath and plaster and other combustible material. He stated that under the present building laws no objection could be made to this, but urged that in the revision of the ordinance some clause be included compelling theaters to build fireproof walls between the stage and the auditorium.

The communication was referred to the committee.

Led by Alderman Harker, the council firmly resisted the temptation held out by Chief Black in the shape of an invitation to attend the annual inspection of the fire department on Thursday, and heroically resolved to sacrifice pleasure to business and attend the opening ball game between the Duluth and Winnipeg teams. Honor, duty and the safety of the state demanded that the aldermen turn out to the game in a body and see smoothly, and even the allurements held out by Chief Black were not sufficient to tempt them from the path of duty.

The chief will be requested to postpone the inspection until some other day when there is less important business on hand than the opening of a baseball season.

On the recommendation of the committee on bridges the council ordered the construction of a steel bridge across the Jenswold street subway, the work to be paid for from the permanent improvement fund.

The order is in accordance with the contract with the Northern Pacific railway, made at the time the subway was constructed.

Mayor Cullum called attention to the rapid depletion of certain funds, and urged that the greatest caution be used in future expenditures, as the city was threatened with financial embarrassment if such a scale of expenditure was maintained.

CODE PLACED BEFORE LIFE

Doctor Must Not Warn Employer of Patient's Illness.

London, May 30.—Is a doctor justified in violating the code of medical ethics in order to avert a possible disaster that may cause a great loss of human life?

That in a nutshell is the question which a perplexed member of the medical profession has submitted to the British Medical Journal for solution and has been answered in effect by the high authority that his first duty is to stick to the code, let the consequences be what they may. As the case on which the moral conundrum is based is a remarkable one, and the etiquette of the profession is about the same on both sides of the Atlantic, it is a matter that will possess some interest for American readers.

It appears that a certain doctor who is engaged by a railway provident society, managed by the men and not by the company, was consulted by a signal man who was found to be suffering from heart disease, that might cause him to drop dead at any moment, or without warning, render him incapable of attending to the work on the performance of which depended the safety of thousands of passengers.

On this account the doctor urged him to seek some other employment where his liability to sudden death or collapse would not endanger other lives. The man refused. Other jobs were not easily found, especially by a man suffering from heart disease. Self-preservation was the first law of nature. Therefore he would stick to his job, and the traveling public who used that particular section of the line over which he stood guard would have to take their chances. By such reasoning he found it easy to justify his decision.

But the medical man was haunted by the knowledge that his patient's condition might lead to an appalling disaster, in which scores of lives might be lost and hundreds be maimed and injured. All possibility of such a terrible catastrophe would be averted if he should inform the railway company of the signal man's physical condition. That would lead to his prompt removal from the signal box. He might be given another job, or he might be sacked. But if the doctor should inform the company of the facts that had come to his knowledge in his professional capacity would he not be guilty of a breach of the obligations imposed upon him as a physician? In this dilemma he asked the British Medical Journal to decide for him.

"Our correspondent," says the editor, "has done his duty by pointing out to the patient his unfitness for work, but he would be violating the rule of professional secrecy if he communicated to the company the facts which have become known to him in his professional capacity."

This amounts to saying that considerations of medical etiquette are of more importance than the security of railway passengers. With this opinion the public hardly will agree. The rule that doctors should not disclose what their patients tell them is doubtless an excellent one in the vast majority of cases. But this seems to be a case in which incalculably greater harm may arise from sticking to the rule than by making an exception to it. It would be interesting to obtain the opinions of American physicians on the subject.

EXAMINE GRADUATES.

Opportunity Given to Secure Certificates.

The first of a series of examinations to be given under the direction of the state high school board, was given at the Central high school yesterday, where twelve seniors, and three teachers of rural schools entered for teachers' certificates. The examination is conducted by L. A. Sulcov.

The examinations will be continued throughout the week. They were secured largely through the efforts of Principal C. A. Smith, of the Central High school and are a great convenience to the graduates who expect to teach. Certificates will be issued to the successful applicants by S. W. RAILROAD NEWS

Meeting of Traveling Passenger Agents Will Be Big Success.

More Plans For Western Passenger Association Convention.

W. S. Chadwick is still receiving replies to the fifty-two invitations he sent out to traveling passenger agents to attend the meeting in Duluth on Monday, June 12. All of those invited have not yet been heard from, but the big majority have already signified it as being their intention to be on hand to take part in the pleasures of the day. All who have been heard from appear to be enthusiastic over the idea.

The detailed program for the entertainment of the members of the Western Passenger association, which will hold a convention in Duluth July 10, 11 and 12, has not yet been arranged, but the usual boulevard drives, lake excursions and launch rides about the bay will be features. It is expected that George H. MacRae of the Omaha will be in the city within the next few days to make further arrangements for the convention, and when he comes, he will, in company with the local committee, visit the Commercial club and confer with the officials of that organization in regrad to the assistance the club may render during convention week.

This will be the first time the association has met in Duluth, and local railroad men are anxious that everything possible be done for the entertainment of the guests while they are here, so that when they leave they will have only a good impression of the city. This convention is in no way connected with the meeting of the traveling passenger agents to be held next month. The latter is merely an informal friendly gathering, of a purely social nature, while at the former probably quite a lot of business will be transacted, although there will be numerous social features.

Railroad Notes.

It has been officially announced that Harry M. Adams will succeed John C. Eden at Seattle as assistant traffic manager for the Great Northern road. The appointment will become effective Thursday. For some time past Mr. Adams has been in the employ of the Oregon Railway & Navigation company.

W. A. Ross, formerly city passenger agent for the Great Northern at St. Louis and recently in the advertising department of the same road in St. Paul, has been appointed traveling passenger agent of the Great Northern Steamship company. His headquarters will be in Chicago. The position is one which has been recently created. The successor of Mr. Ross has not yet been chosen.

The Duluth & Northeastern Railway company has filed with the secretary of state an amendment to its articles of incorporation, raising its capital stock from $50,000 to $500,000.

Large Gifts to Charity.

Donations and bequests for last year total nearly a half billion of dollars, as compared with about $123,000,000 in 1901, which was then the record-breaking year. The record-breaking medicine for the year 1904 was Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, it having been the means of restoring more sickly people to robust health than any other. It is really a wonderful medicine for those whose stomach has become weak, whose liver is inactive or whose kidneys are unable to perform their proper functions. Thousands of such sufferers use it exclusively. It positively restores the stomach to its normal condition and thus cures indigestion, dyspepsia, nausea, costiveness, bloating, heartburn, sleeplessness, female disorders, cramps or malaria, fever and ague. Try it today. Our Private Stamp is over the neck of the bottle.

FIRE IN BOSTON.

Boston, May 30.—A fire started in the Beacon Garage, an extensive establishment operated by A. R. Bangs, today, and quickly spread to James Hewitt's carriage manufactory and to a three-story lodging house. The loss is estimated at between $150,000 and $200,000.

DIFFICULT TASK DONE.

Loop On New York Subway Is Completed.

New York, May 30.—What was regarded as one of the most difficult tasks in the digging of the subway has been completed by the finishing of the loop at the Battery. With the work of excavation over and the walls built, there remains only the laying of the tracks, when the Interborough company will be able to run its trains to the southern end of the line on Manhattan island. Most of the trains now stop on Fulton street, where they are switched back to the north tracks.

Construction of the loop, from which an extension of the system will pass under the river to Brooklyn, was frequently interrupted since it began in 1903 because of the flow of sea water into the excavations. Five pumps with a capacity of 3,000 gallons of water a minute were going night and day. The work, however, went on steadily. Many interesting relics were unearthed by workmen. Cannon balls, coins, bones and implements of colonial days were found in profusion.

VERY HAZARDOUS

Was Rojestvensky's Attempt to Run Through Straits.

New York, May 30.—Rear Admiral C. H. Davis of the United States navy was in this city today to meet his wife and daughter, who arrived on the Zeland. Speaking of the Russian naval defeat, the admiral said:

"If the cables are true that there has been no relative Japanese loss in the battle in the Korean straits, Russia will be in a position where she must make peace. I consider Admiral Rojestvensky's action a very daring and hazardous undertaking to force the Korean straits, for it placed him in Togo's hands. My opinion was, and this opinion was shared by other naval officers, including Capt. Mahan, that there would be no engagement, and that the Russians would be allowed to get to Vladivostok. I did not think the Japanese would attempt an engagement on which depended their all."

RUSSIAN FLAGSHIP SUNK, ROJESTVENSKY CAPTURED.

have reached Vladivostok and that the government is now in possession of its own cersion of the disaster in the Straits of Korea. Nevertheless, it appears to be in a quandary as to how to break the news to the country. A war council was held at Tsarskoe Selo last night at which the emperor was urged to issue an imperial manifesto, but nothing has yet been decided.

So far as the newspapers are concerned, the public might believe Vice Admiral Rojestvensky had achieved a victory. The censor passed all the vague rumors favorable to the Russians, but blue pencilled everything indicating a Russian disaster. While the disastrous news was spread like wild fire by word of mouth over the capital and was quickly telegraphed privately to the big centers by the anti-government leaders, the country can be said to be still in a state of ignorance as to what happened. The editors of the liberal papers here being conversant with the contents of the Tokio dispatches warn their readers in a round-about fashion against harboring false hopes based upon dispatches which appear in their news columns. The Bourse Gazette quite openly declares it would be a sin to conceal the fact that all hope of Russia obtaining the mastery of the sea has vanished, adding: "The significance of the collapse of this hope is self evident."

The Novoe Vremya and the Russ, while admitting that the fate of the Far East has been determined, declines to accept the Japanese reports. Their editorials, however, breathe a tone of unutterable sadness.

SOME TIME

Must Elapse Before Russia Can Conclude Peace.

Paris, May 30.—The view that prevails in official quarters here is that some time must elapse before Russia reaches a final determination as to her future course, but it is anticipated that she is likely to canvass the situation among the friendly nations with the purpose of ascertaining the best possible base for the conclusion of the war. However, the French officials do not expect such processes to advance rapidly owing to the leisurely methods of Russian diplomacy and the conflicting internal elements. It is certain that if Foreign Minister Delcasse's advice is solicited it will be exerted in behalf of the re-establishment of peace, but there is no indication that France will take the initiative until requested to do so.

Conversing recently with a diplomat, relative to the possibilities of peace, M. Delcasse said it was easy to give advice, but difficult to have it accepted. Nevertheless his influence had been constantly exerted toward a pacific solution.

Premier Rouvier shares the same sentiments on the subject as M. Delcasse and powerful financial interests are in favor of peace.

For the moment, however, the officials here are absorbed in the visit of King Alfonso, which affects the most vital feature of French foreign policy, and therefore it is of more immediate concern to France than Russia's dilemma. A cabinet council was held at noon and the ministers were occupied chiefly with the final arrangements for the king's visit.

GENERAL SKIRMISHING

Has Been Continuous With the Land Forces.

Gunshu Pass, May 27, (Saturday).—The rains which began three days ago have ceased.

General skirmishing has been continuous for the past fortnight. Arriving troops on leaving trains find themselves in a sea of mud. The country in the immediate rear of the Russian army wears the same aspect as did the rear of the old positions which the Russians occupied in the south, being denuded of forage. Many of the Chinese fled from their houses and wherever the troops camped these houses were torn down for firewood.

Interest in the attitude of the Mongols continues. It is asserted that a state of rebellion exists against the local prince ruling the eastern tribes.

A few native traders with goods are arriving at the interior cities from Sinmintin, but the only remaining trade route for Northern Manchuria since the loss of Sinmintin to the Russians is by way of Kiachta, over which traders are already active. The defense of the railroad is so complete that it practically amounts to a block-house system.

The foreign naval attaches have been excluded from Vladivostok by order of the government.

MEAGER DETAILS

Of the Great Fight In Straits of Korea.

Tokio, May 30.—Beyond the results, little is known here of Admiral Togo's stunning victory over Admiral Rojestvensky. Rojestvensky reached Quelpart island, Korea, early Saturday, and headed for the Tsu islands. The exact number of vessels in his fleet is not clear, but he had his main fighting vessels with a number of light cruisers and transports. The disposition of the Japanese appears to have been an ideal one.

Admiral Togo had waited for weeks in the vicinity of the Tsu islands, refusing to be lured away and to forfeit his advantage. The inner line was held by Admiral Togo, with the battleships, and Vice Admiral Kamimura, with the cruisers. Rear Admiral Kataoka, with the light squadron, first attacked Rojestvensky. The order and circumstance of the attack are not clear. According to one report Kamimura went outside the straits and foiled Rojestvensky, preventing his retreat. When Rojestvensky encountered Admiral Togo there appears to have been a running fight to the northeastward Saturday afternoon. There was a series of desperate and successful torpedo attacks Saturday night, and a resumption of the battle on Sunday, Togo pressing the Russian fleet toward the southeastern coast of Korea. The fate of Admiral Rojestvensky is doubtful. It is thought that probably he escaped to Vladivostok.

Pending the conclusion of the Japanese pursuit and the identification of the three vessels which Russian prisoners report were sunk, and the determination of the condition of the damaged ships which escaped to the northward, it is impossible to tell the remaining strength of the Russians, but the most liberal allowance leaves the Japanese overwhelmingly masters of the sea. Only fragmentary tidings of the victory have been in circulation in Tokio since Saturday night.

The people were confident, but official confirmation of their belief and hope thrilled the people as nothing has since the hostilities began. The long voyage of Admiral Rojestvensky, the equality on paper of the strength of the fleets, the irritation caused by reported violations of neutrality, the apparent certainty that a formidable section of the Russian fleet would reach Vladivostok, the vital bearing of the contest on the war, and possibly the future of the empire, created an intense strain, which Admiral Togo's victory ends instantly.

NO CRUISER AT WOOSUNG.

Shanghai, May 30.—The report that a Russian cruiser has arrived at Woosung is incorrect. The Russian transport Korea arrived there this morning, apparently from the Straits of Korea with a big shot hole in her side and her boats shot away. The Russian sea tug boat Swer has already arrived at Woosung from Jibutil, French Somaliland.

THE SMOLENSK AT WOOSUNG.

Washington, May 30.—The American consul general at Shanghai has reported to the state department that the converted cruiser Smolensk is at Woosung.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

House of the Justice at Kenton Blown Up By Dynamite.

Bessemer—A justice of the peace at Kenton, a small town in Ontonagon county, had his residence demolished by a charge of dynamite. The deed was done after midnight, and though the family was sleep upstairs, all escaped any serious injury. Persons recently fined by the justice for illegal hunting of deer are suspected of the crime.

George Rupp, Gogebic county surveyor, has been appointed general superintendent for the Ashland Iron & Steel company over its timber and land operations in Wisconsin and Michigan, with headquarters at Bessemer.

The Chicago & Northwestern is relaying its track from this range to Ashland with heavier steel rails, made necessary by the increasing ore traffic and larger engines and ore cars.

Channing—Warelin, the 5-year-old son of S. B. Burton of Channing, had a foot crushed to a pulp in the yard at that place the other day. The little fellow was endeavoring to climb on a moving train when he slipped and fell, a wheel passing over the foot. The doctors summoned decided that it was necessary to amputate the foot.

Escanaba—Miss Julia Rocheford, principal of the Escanaba high school, has resigned her position to accept a post as instructor in mathematics in the Louisiana state normal school at Natchitoche. Miss Rocheford has been a member of the faculty of the Escanaba high school for the past five years, and is reported to have made an enviable record. Her state normal salary will be $1,200.

Ironwood—Mrs. J. Hendrickson, a Swedish woman, living on Mansfield street, at Ironwood, was struck by a Chicago & Northwestern switch engine on the Lake street crossing last week. The woman was driving her cow home from pasture when the cow crossed ahead of the engine. Mrs. Hendrickson tried to do the same, but was struck by the engine and thrown a distance of thirty feet. Her leg was broken.

Sault Ste. Marie—While bringing home a bottle of carbolic acid, William Rutherford, a 9-year-old Soo boy, met with a mishap that resulted in serious burns. The boy had been sent to a drug store for the acid. One of his playmates met him as he was returning home, and in a childish way ran after him. Young Rutherford tripped and fell, the bottle of acid slid from his hand and broke, and the child's face went into the debris, cutting his forehead and burning his whole face very badly.

The average precipitation during the month is 4.39 inches and the average number of days on which .01 inches or more fell are fourteen. The average number of clear days is 8, partly cloudy 13, and cloudy 9. The prevailing winds are northeast and the average hourly velocity is eight miles an hour.

WEST END.

WILL FIGHT CITY

W. J. Chestock to Begin Proceedings Over Lincoln Park.

Permit to Run Dancing Pavilion Is Turned Down.

The city council last night turned down W. J. Chestock's application for a permit to run a dancing pavilion on property next to Lincoln Park. In so doing, which seems to meet with popular approval in the West End, the city has probably got itself into another legal tangle.

Mr. Chestock says he will immediately take legal steps toward forcing the council to either grant that permit or close up some other places in town where similar permits have been issued. Mr. Chestock professed yesterday that he believed the council would grant him the permit, but possibly the presence of a large delegation of business men and clergyment from the West end precluded a weakening on the part of the aldermen. President Haven's influence was certainly felt to a large extent, for quite a number of the aldermen expressed themselves as indifferent in the matter, but said that they must "stand by Haven."

It is understood that Chestock has already retained counsel and will within a short time start a fight in court. He said: "I would be a fool to lie down at this stage of the game."

DANGEROUS FIRE

Threatens Business Part of West End.

On Sunday night a fire which resulted in but little damage, but which at first looked like a small sized disaster started in the flat occupied by J. Lawrence in the Smith block, 2016-18-20 West Superior street, but after a somewhat hard fight was extinguished with but little damage by the fire department. The origin of the fire is not known, but it was a lively blaze for a time and the destruction of the block and adjoining property was feared.

Some small damage was done to the stock of M. A. Fedje, who runs a clothing store beneath, but fortunately the blaze was checked in time or a goodly part of the business portion of the West end would likely have been wiped out.

JOYOUS REUNION.

Old Residents of West End Have Dance.

The old-time residents of the West end held a party in Sloan hall Friday evening and had an enjoyable reunion and a remarkably good time. About forty couples were present and they passed the evening in the amusements that made life worth living when the West end was young.

There were other amusements too, some of them more up-to-date, but none more enjoyable for the old ones brought back the "rare old, fair old golden days" and made each feel twenty years younger.

More Boys Than Girls.

The sons still keep in the majority in the birth records of the West end as witness those recently reported to the health board. There are only three to report today, but in this case the boys have the best of it by two to one. Sons were born unto Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lawrence of 2528 West Second street and to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sorenson of 2835 West First street. A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Bert T. Pease of 2329 West Superior street.

West End Shortrails.

The funeral of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. James Polsky of 732 Twenty-fourth avenue west will take place this morning from the Polish Catholic church and interment will be made in the Catholic cemetery. The child died yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gust Desjardins left today for Cleveland, where they will visit for a few weeks.

Beta council, Modern Samaritans, gave a card party for members only at Columbia hall last evening. There was quite a large attendance. An informal program was given which was much enjoyed. Refreshments were served.

Dr. O. S. Osterberg left yesterday for Cokato, Minn., to visit his parents.

B. A. Martin of R. R. Forward & Co. has returned from a business trip to Grand Marais and other points on the north shore.

J. R. Ryan of 4214 West Third street has returned from Indianapolis, where he attended the second biennial convention of the Switchmen's Union of North America. Mr. Ryan was delegate from Zenith lodge, No. 28, of which he is treasurer.

IS IT ANY WONDER

That Malta-Vita Melts In Your Mouth and Satisfies as No Other Food Can?

Do you know why Malta-Vita is so delicious, so crisp, so sweet? Do you know why it is the most satisfying and healthful food in the world?

Because—

Malta-Vita is made from the best white wheat.

Before the process of manufacture begins, the wheat is cleaned and scoured and the dust and refuse are drawn out of the big factory by suction, leaving it as fresh and pure as your own kitchen.

The grain is thoroughly cooked in water and steam and matured in fresh, pure air. By this time the starch in the wheat has been gelanthinized, or, in other words, has lost all its indigestible characteristics.

Now the wheat is mixed with the highest quality of malt extract, and this malt extract, a most active digestive agent, converts the gelatinized starch into malt sugar.

You understand, of course, that malt sugar, (maltose) in which Malta-Vita is always so rich, is of wonderful food value, very strengthening and easily digested. It makes the digestion of the crisp flaked wheat an easy task, too, even for the weakest stomach.

Malta-Vita is baked under such intense heat that when it comes out of the ovens, its crisp brown flakes delicious beyond description, it contains only a little more than one per cent of moisture.

Do you wonder now why it melts in your mouth?

And here is another thought.

Throughout the entire process of manufacture Malta-Vita is practically untouched by human hands. Machinery—clean, shining machinery—conveys it through all the changes, even to the filling and sealing of the air-tight, moisture-proof packages.

Malta-Vita is the perfect food for old and young, weak and strong. For the run-down or overworked digestive organs it is a God-send. It makes red blood, refreshes the brain and the nerves, builds up bone and muscle. It is so satisfying and healthful that no home should be without it.

Malta-Vita is 10 cents at all grocers—same high quality, same big package as when it sold for 15c.

"A child's error is labor's profit, And faith will prove it."

BERRYVILLE, VA., MARCH 13, 1862.

What we are here for.

There can be no greater mistake made than the one we find so prevalent in the secession districts that the Union troops have invaded the south for the purpose of interfering with the peculiar institutions thereof, or that their object is to desolate the land or oppress the inhabitants. We came on no such errands. The people of the south have been our friends,—our brothers. Our fathers fought side by side to achieve our independence and afterwards to maintain our national honor and integrity. Together North and South have grown up and become a mighty nation. All sections have in times past professed their attachment to our beloved country, and have offered their rich sacrifices upon its altar. Well now, our country is as dear to us as ever it was. That old flag is held just as sacred as ever by those who bear it now in Virginia. We have come South to uphold that flag and to protect our threatened country. Our country called upon us, and we obeyed that call, even as Green and Marion, as Stark and Lee obeyed the old call of '76. The liberty and the government our fathers established we have come to perpetuate. We ask no other. We have not come to meddle in the domestic affairs of other communities. We ask no questions as to slavery or emancipation, it is none of our business. We do not wish to interfere with the private rights of the people. We come not to destroy, but to protect. But we strike for the Union the Constitution and the old flag. If traitors and rebels are hurt, it can't be helped—push on the column."

"We're Took."

Mr. Lumley, "our artist on the spot," of the New York Illustrated, is in town. He called at our sanctum Tuesday evening and "took" the concern, press, bank, devil, editor and all. If he gets up a good picture (and we know he can), we will break over our established rule and exchange with the New York Illustrated, and say nothing about the publication of our prospectus. Of course, a "first rate notice" will accompany the engraving.

Foreign News.

We have very meagre accounts of the doings in the old Union. It is reported that the Yankee General Curtis has totally routed the combined forces of Gens. Van Dorn, Price, McCulloch and McIntosh. It is doubtless a lie started to awaken some enthusiasm among the despondent minions of the Northern Army. We shall probably receive the correct report from Richmond before going to press.

The main body of the Army of the Potomac, under Gen. McClellan, still hold possession of Washington and vicinity.

We have a vague rumor that the gallant forces of the Confederate States, have fallen back from Manassas. If so, it will be found to be a bait—let the Yankees move on.

Trade in the North remains uninterrupted, notwithstanding the proclamations of our Generals. They are a strange set.

Captured.

Lieut. Howe, of Gen. Hedgwick's staff, yesterday learning that Col. Smith, a resident of this place, had been in the habit of displaying a rag, about two feet by four in size, of beautifully blended colors (blue, red and white), when the rebel cavalry entered the village—procured a guard from the Provost Marshal and paid the Col. a friendly visit and requested him, in a friendly manner to deliver it up. He complied willingly with the Lieutenant's request, and our editorial eyes were gladdened with a sight of the only rebel flag that has thus far been "captured" in the town of Berryville. Lieutenant, you did well—try again.

Served Him Right.

We learn that a man wearing the uniform of the American army, so far forgot himself as to grossly insult the wife of one of the citizens of this place. The husband of the lady immediately shot him, and served him right. We do not come upon the soil of Virginia as ruffians and robbers, but as men, fighting in the sacred cause of the Union and the Constitution, and to restore our unhappy country to peace and prosperity. We come bearing the old flag, and offering its protection to the downtrodden and mistaken inhabitants of the same State that produced our Washington and Jefferson—we come holding in one hand the sword of justice and truth and in the other the olive branch of peace—we come with arms in our hands, not to bully and insult women and children, but to crush out, with God's help, this most unrighteous rebellion. Our army has been grossly slandered by those bearing arms and driving pens in the cause of the rebellion, and now in the name of humanity let us prove that it was slander, and not disgrace the cause we represent, the friends we left behind and the uniform we wear, by insulting and abusing defenceless females and peaceable, unarmed citizens.

Ye Ex-Editor.

This individual is terribly excited about something. Yesterday morning he was at the Provost Marshal's and represented that we were rather misrepresented—that we were injuring his material, etc., etc. He evidently got his comfort as he went to the headquarters of one of the Generals here, and made known his business. When he got through with his harangue, the General turned upon him and addressed him somewhat in this wise: "Mr. Editor, you can thank your lucky stars that you are not in jail; we are here after such men as you. While we are here the boys can get out a better paper than you do. You can leave, sir." He left.

We have a story to tell about this ex-editor. When our forces took possession of Berryville, the men of Company B. of the First Minnesota, were stationed at the entrance of private houses as guards, in order that no depredations might occur—a wise precaution, as we have a few in the Northern army given to Floydism. One guard was stationed at Mr. Gregg's house, and towards night, as the provision train had not arrived, Corporal Van Vorhes requested Mr. Gregg to give the guard some supper—the man being tired and hungry after a day's duty—but he refused, and the guard was taken off. What think you? Isn't he a very small specimen of a man, who would not give a supper, "or even a cold bite," to a man who was guarding his property? He is worse than miserly—Webster furnishes no fit epithet to apply to him, unless it is "slubberdegullion," and that is as long as the man.

A secesh lady here says, "If Mr. Gregg says—as he did say—that he was forced into the advocacy of secession, betells a falsehood. She is sorry to learn that he denies his real sentiments, and says that he "came very near being robbed," but for Unionism, but for a scandalous article written in abuse of a young lady, for which her brother threatened to cowhide him.

Since our coming, Mr. Gregg has called in frequently; he did not yesterday however. How is it—do your long legs give out after traveling for a day back and forth by our office? What did you see?

Thanks.

We are under obligations to Mr. Gregg for a large amount of blank printing paper.—Also, for a lot of writing paper—some good and some bad; the paper manufactured in North Carolina is a poor affair.

Just So.

One of the female secesh berobbouts tells the story that a secesh flag was carried through the streets of Berryville upon our arrival.—Certainly, madam; it floated to the breeze on the flag-staff before we got here.

Secret.

A Union lady of Winchester describes this town as "a hot-bed of secession—worse than Alexandria ever was—a God-forsaken hole." We guess she is about right. "Whom the gods destroy they first deprive of reason."

Major Mix.

The last thing heard from this excellent officer he was close upon the heels of the rebel rear guard, and it was believed that no commander in the Rebel Army (unless perhaps Floyd) could save the baggage trains from capture. If any officer holding a commission in the Union army can show the paternity of this trick, the Major is that individual.

Manassas, impregnable though it is, is no more. Stale, but a few "don't see it."

Coercion.

In another column will be found the advertisement of Mr. Oscar King, who has a good variety of such articles as are usually kept in a butler's store. Mr. King is a "brick"—well baked as that—in his treatment of the Typographical Fraternity; and "shelled out" enough "rhino" to get a splendid supper at the devil and all hands. Give him a call and he'll use you right if you so treat him—if not, buy other men."

Short Comcit.

The hand press upon which we print this paper, is totally inadequate to supply the demand. We keep it going night and day, but cannot get the paper off fast enough. If Mr. Gregg had any of the genuine sim of the Pokooke he would have had a Power Press for us. But we presume our press was sufficient for the publication of the Conservator, which he did not buy it for our use.

Contrabands Not!

Secesh troops don't steal, oh no! of course not.

But night before last four hundred secesh cavalry camped on the farm of a Mr. Woods—we believe that is the name—living on the green here and Winchester, and on the following morning his chickens were gone.—They don't steal, they appropriate; that's all.

Paper.

We understand that the boys of the New York 34th are about commencing the publication of a paper in the office of the Clark Journal. Success to you, boys, and confidently think we can raise "right smart" of breeze, maybap assist Virginia back once more with the protecting coat shirts of good old Uncle Sam.

PAPER PUBLISHED BY FIRST MINNESOTA REGIMENT DURING SHORT STAY AT BERRYVILLE, VA., IN MARCH, 1862.

The soldiers of the Civil war believed in the cause they were fighting for. Some have claimed that a great many of them were induced to enlist out of a spirit of adventure and, of course, in some instances doubtless this is true, but the army in the main were fighting for a cause, and in that cause they had the sublimest faith. A newspaper of which the accompanying is a facsimile, published one day at Berryville, Va., by the printers in the First Minnesota, that famous First of undying fame, shows the spirit that made the soldiers undergo the hardships that pressed upon them and even when played out and worked to the point of exhaustion, get up and make a fight that amazed the enemy and the world at large. There are in Duluth several members of the old First Minnesota and one of them tells the story of the printing of this newspaper, which was published in a printing office seized at Berryville.

Gen. Banks, in March, 1862, crossed the Potomac at Harper's Ferry, Va., for the purpose of investing and if possible, capturing Winchester, and thus secure a position from which he could control the Shenandoah valley. As a part of the movement he sent Gen. Gorman's brigade in, which was the First Minnesota, from Charleston to Berryville, a small village located on the turnpike road running from Winchester to Leesburg, for the purpose of intercepting a possible retreat of the Confederates from Winchester to Snickers Gap, in the Blue Ridge mountains.

The brigade reached Berryville in the early evening of March 11, quickly dispersed a small body of cavalry and took position to resist any force of the enemy which might come that way from Winchester. On passing along the main street of the village, one of the members of the First Minnesota, who happened to be a printer, and who, by the way is now a resident of Duluth, came upon a printing office, and after making a tour of inspection of the concern concluded that it might serve as a little diversion from army life to take possession by permission from Gen. Gorman, and publish a paper which would give to the apparently deluded citizens of that region, the Northern and true version of the situation. Acting on the impulse he sought out a number of the other printers of the regiment who took kindly to the idea, and, after obtaining permission from the general, they took possession of the establishment and finding that one side of that week's issue of the parent paper—the Berryville Conservator—had already been printed, the boys proceeded to print the first edition of their paper—the First Minnesota—on the reverse side. This was followed on the two succeeding days by other numbers, all of which are filled with interesting reading matter.

To show that the soldiers who fought in the Civil war were not actuated by a spirit of enmity or revenge, but that on the contrary, their motives were of the highest order of patriotism, the following articles copied from one of these papers is reproduced and follows:

"WHAT ARE WE HERE FOR."

"There can be no greater mistake made than the one we find so prevalent in the secession districts that the Union troops have invaded the South for the purpose of interfering with the peculiar institutions thereof, or that their object is to desolate the land or oppress the inhabitants. We came on no such errands. The people of the South have been our friends—our brothers. Our fathers fought side by side to achieve our independence, and afterwards to maintain our national honor and integrity. Together North and South have grown up and become a mighty nation. All sections have in times past professed their attachment to our beloved country, and have offered their rich sacrifice upon its altar. Well, now, our country is as dear to us as ever it was. That old flag is held just as sacred as ever by those who bear it now in Virginia. We have come South to uphold that flag and to protect our threatened country. Our country called upon us, and we obeyed that call, even as Green and Marion, as Stark and Lee obeyed the old call of '76. The liberty and the government our fathers established we have come to perpetuate. We ask no other. We have not come to meddle in the domestic affairs of other communities. We ask no questions as to slavery or emancipation, it is none of our business. We do not wish to interfere with the private rights of the people. We came not to destroy but to protect. But we strike for the Union, the constitution and the old flag. If traitors and rebels are hurt, it can't be helped—push on the column."

"SERVED HIM RIGHT."

"We learn that a man wearing the uniform of the American army so far forgot himself as to grossly insult the wife of one of the citizens of this place. The husband of the lady immediately shot him, and served him right. We do not come upon the soil of Virginia as ruffians and robbers, but as men, fighting in the sacred cause of the Union and the constitution, and to restore our unhappy country to peace and prosperity. We came bearing the old flag, and offering its protection to the downtrodden and mistaken inhabitants of the same state that produced our Washington and Jefferson—we come holding in one hand the sword of justice and truth, and in the other the olive branch of peace—we come with arms in our hands, not to bully and insult women and children, but to crush out, with God's help, this most unrighteous rebellion. Our army has been grossly slandered by those bearing arms and driving pens in the cause of the rebellion, and now in the name of humanity let us prove that it was slander, and not disgrace the cause we represent, the friends we left behind, and the uniform we wear, by insulting and abusing edefenceless females and peaceable, unarmed citizens."

BUSINESS QUIET

Lumber Carriers Have Few Cargoes to Be Moved.

Practically All of Dry Lumber Has Gone Forward.

The dry lumber for early shipment, on the local docks, is now practically all moved, and the lumber shipping trade is very quiet. Plenty of boats could be had if the trade demanded it, but as there is much lumber yet too green to move, and other stock is not to be moved until later, the shipping conditions are not the most encouraging to the vessel owners, and some are said to be putting their boats into another line of carrying business until the lumber shipping business picks up.

The lumber market reports show that there is still a good demand for Northern white pine, and that the demand for the better grades has acted as a sort of a lever to raise the prices of the common grades.

At Cloquet the manufacturers are holding their No. 4 boards at $14.50 per thousand, while the buyers claim that the prices are from $13.75 to $14. It is claimed, however, that the manufacturers are very apt to get their own price for any of this stock they may have for disposal. In the local lumber market No. 5 boards are said to be selling for $10 per thousand, while there has been no change in prices on No. 3 boards.

In this territory the boxmakers are said to be the chief buyers at present.

The losses sustained during the past few weeks in the Northern pine district through sawmill fires and forest fires is a subject of comment among the lumbermen. Within a few days the Red Cliff Lumber company's sawmill at Red Cliff, Wis., burned, entailing a loss of about $40,000. The South Shore Lumber company's mill at Washburn, with 6,000,000 feet of lumber, was burned Saturday night, and the planing mill plant of the Miksak Lumber company at Chisholm, with a quantity of lumber, burned Sunday last. The loss on the Washburn fire was $8,000 and at Chisholm the damage amounted to about $15,000.

Joseph Miksak of Chicago is in the city to confer with D. C. Thompson, also of the Miksak Lumber company, relative to the plans for the reconstruction of the Chisholm plant. The company had numerous orders to fill and the fire will seriously cripple the output.

The tendency of Northern Minnesota capital, represented by timber land men and lumbermen, to invest in Southern pine lands is still apparent. At the present time there is said to be negotiating in this city a deal whereby a Minnesota syndicate of lumber and timber dealers may get control of about 160,000 acres of pine timber land in North Carolina. In this syndicate are mentioned Frank Helmick of Duluth, William O'Brien of St. Paul and Lammers Bros. of Stillwater. These men are said to have spent about $4,000 prospecting the timber after securing an option last fall. The timber is held at about $400,000, and the syndicate of Minnesota men, if they purchase, will probably put up mills to manufacture lumber.

MEMORIAL DAY.

The day we set apart to honor the memory of the soldier dead is becoming dearer and tenderer and more full of pathos every year, as the ranks of the living grow thinner and the ranks of silent graves grow thicker. Each year does it become impressed more deeply on the mind of the new generation that the generation of the Civil war is passing rapidly away, for the empty places in the files of veterans that gather each Memorial day to pay tribute to their dead comrades are eloquent.

When you recall the pathetic figures that marched proudly in the Memorial day processions today, look upon this picture, from the recollections of a spectator of that noble pageant of May 23 and 24, 1865, when the armies of the Potomac, of Tennessee and of Georgia marched down Pennsylvania avenue from the Capitol to the White House, passing there before the president: "What impressed him was the youthfulness of the entire mass of soldiery. Grant himself was but 43. Many general officers were under 30. Comparatively few of the men in the ranks were out of their twenties. They were more like college students than the sort of figures one has in mind when one speaks of veterans. It was the youth of the Republican who had saved it."

But that was forty years ago. Those who were in their twenties then are in their sixties now. That young commanding general of 43 is long dead. Most of those youthful generals in their thirties have marched on into their forties, their fifties, their sixties, and so to their graves. The average age of the pensioners of the Civil war is something like 66. That is not an age at which decrepitude is inevitable, by any means. But these veterans, in addition to the ordinary burdens of life, bear upon their shoulders the weight of four years of warfare, burdens of hardship, of danger, of deprivation and the weakening influences of all combined. The hardships, wounds and ills they did not feel as they marched, a conquering band, up Pennsylvania avenue forty years ago, because they were young, they are feeling now in double measure, because they are old. Necessarily, they are physically weaker than men of their age who did not go to war.

Therefore their steps today were feebler than they were last year, though they walked not a whit less proudly. Marched with them, too, closer to each brave shoulder, the grinning face of the great conqueror, Death. The touch of pathos that attends Memorial day grows deeper on each succeeding occasion, as it becomes more and more evident that these thinning ranks of veterans are marching as bravely and as surely into the jaws of death as any Six Hundred ever rode at Balaklava, or as any First Minnesota ever charged at Gettysburg.

"From out our crowded calendar;
One day we pluck to give;
Is is the day the Dying pause
To honor those who live."

Thus speaks a minor poet in a recent magazine. While not ceasing to honor the dead soldiers, let us not forget the living.

They will not be with us long in body; let them remain with us long in sacred memory, and may the long-gone youth they offered up on the altar of their country continue as an everlasting example to the youth of this and coming generations.

REAL COMPETITION.

The announcement of the Illinois Central railroad that it will make a reduction of passenger fares amounting to nearly 50 per cent for a distance of 100 miles out of Chicago shows several things. For one thing, it shows that when the railroad men tell legislative bodies that their passenger rates are as low as they can make them and keep their heads above water, and that a further reduction means ruin, they are telling things that should be taken with a grain of salt.

It shows also the effect of real competition, for the reduction is forced by the competition of electric trolley lines. This is the first move made in the West to meet the competition of the electric lines, but it will not be the last, by any means. The long distance trolley ride, with its fast travel and cheap fares, has been gradually cutting into the suburban business of the railroads, the suburban business has been reaching out into the country, and now there are trolley lines that are important factors in the passenger traffic between cities.

In the East there are many such lines, and they are gradually working westward. It is only a question of time before the railroads of this section will be confronted by the competition of trolley lines, and when that day comes the people will reap the benefit in quicker service and lower passenger rates. Legislative agitation for lower passenger rates is singularly futile alongside the effect of such real competition as that afforded by the trolley lines.

The trolley business has grown until it forms a formidable enemy of high railroad passenger rates and the disregard of public convenience manifested by many railroads. The trolley car can travel faster, make more and quicker stops, and be of more real service to short distance travelers than the railroad. The adoption of trolley sleeping cars, too, has shown that even for reasonably long distances, the steam conveyances are not the only resource by any means.

PHILADELPHIA LESSONS.

Recent incidents in the city of Philadelphia, in which one franchise, one corrupt city council which is part of a corrupt Republican ring, and one Philadelphia public are leading ingredients, have been watched with interest all over the country, and they teach several things.

First and most pleasing of all, they show that there is a limit to what the people will stand, and when that limit is reached there is not a corrupt political ring strong enough to stand the inevitable eruption that follows. The steal was so brazen, so undeniable, that the public rose in a mass, and led by all of the newspapers, demanded their rights. They got them, or are in a fair way to get them.

Hardly second in importance is the fact that if the people of Philadelphia had started in years ago to attend to their own business, instead of complacently and drowsily letting a ring of rascals do it for them, there would have been no need of getting excited now. Even in Philadelphia the people still hold the reins of government if they want to use them. It is plain, ordinary negligence if they fail to do so, and people so recreant to the first principles of free government deserve all they get if they turn affairs over to a ring that robs them.

Mayor Weaver, for standing out against the iniquitous exactions of a gang of thieves, and in standing up for the rights of the people, is coming in for loads of praise, and his brow is being decked with laurels too many to carry. That is all very pleasant and affecting, and it is doubtless highly gratifying to Mayor Weaver. But things have come to a pretty pass if a man is to be singled out for the most lavish and fulsome praise simply because he did his duty, and performed the service for which he was presumably elected—to work for the people rather than for a ring of thieves.

Philadelphia conditions, where there was a city council so brazen and so thick-skinned as to persist in pursuing a corrupt course against the outcries of the people and in the face of undeniable charges of fraud, are difficult to understand in cities where—so far as anybody knows—such things have never occurred. But given the same conditions, the same events are likely to take place in any city. Duluth has been remarkably free from such things, but if its people should rest supinely during a period of years under the corrupt rule of a knavish ring, inevitably the same events would produce themselves, for they are the logical crops from such a soil.

Slavery to such government is as despicable and shameful as any other kind, and it is as true in municipal government as in national that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

THE JAP WINS.

Once more the Jap fighting man appears to have proven himself the superior of the Russian, this time on the sea. Details are yet comparatively meager, but enough is known to make sure that Admiral Togo has administered a crushing defeat to Admiral Rojestvensky, in spite of the fact that the latter appears to have had a slight advantage in fighting strength.

The full details of the battle will probably not be known for several days, as the crippled remnants of the Russian fleet appear to be fleeing for the friendly shelter of Vladivostok, while the Japanese fleet is steaming in pursuit. Apparently the matter of sending in reports is of minor importance alongside of the more pressing duties that are ahead of each side: the Russ to get away and the Jap to catch the rest of the enemy's fleet and have it out.

The reports so far have concerned themselves mostly with the losses of the Russians, and the Japanese loss has not yet been reported, except through straggling rumors, such as one from Shanghai that the Japs lost seven vessels. The Japanese probably used torpedo boats extensively, and it may be that some of these have been lost. On the whole, there appears to be little doubt that compared with the losses suffered by the Russians, the Japanese loss is insignificant.

The Japanese soldier having shown his mettle in the land fights, the Japanese sailor has now shown his, and the verdict can hardly be otherwise than that the Japanese fighting man is the equal of any in the world. No doubt when the full reports come in it will be found that the secret of the brown man's success lies in superior gunnery, as well as in superior generalship and in a higher degree of fighting spirit.

The general opinion in diplomatic circles appears to be that this victory in what will probably prove to be the greatest naval battle in a century means an early end of the war. Beaten on land and sea, there appears to be little left for the Russians to do but to seek, through the friendly medium of other nations, as honorable a peace as may be. A peace made under such circumstances can hardly mean anything else than a reduction in the scale of world powers for Russia, and a corresponding gain for Japan.

New York, May 22.—The stock of the Get-Rich-Quick company is going up rapidly.

New York, May 26.—The Get-Rich-Quick company has gone up.

Hotel Gossip.

"The bucket shops of New York city are threatened with annihilation by the combined forces of the law and the governing boards of the legitimate stock exchanges," said M. O. Blewitt of New York at the St. Louis. "The bucket shop men are fighting for their lives. Never in the history of the business have they been so hard pressed, but they will die hard, and the fight will be one to the finish.

"Into the coffers of the proprietors of these bucket shops an immense amount of money is being poured each year. The center of this great gambling combination is in New York city, but its influence is felt in all parts of the United States. But New York is becoming an uncomfortable spot just now for members of the business. A law which will go into effect on June 1, and which will compel the payment of a stock transfer tax amounting to $2 on every 10 shares transferred, is one cause of this discomfort, and already the bucket shop men are looking about for a means to escape.

"In order to hold their customers, and to escape exposure at one and the same time, the bucket shop men of the city have determined upon the simplest way out of the difficulty, which is to move their offices to other states. Of course they do not want to go any farther away from Wall street than is absolutely necessary. The most convenient place is Jersey City, and most of them will probably go there.

"But there is still another peril threatening these men in New York. This danger lies in the decision recently handed down by the supreme court of the United States, under which the various stock exchanges may withhold their quotations from any outside body or individual at will. In other words, the supreme court has decided that exchanges own their own quotations, and can do with them what they choose, so long as they do not violate the law.

"In view of this decision, there is said to be in contemplation a concerted move against the bucket shops by the governing boards of the various New York exchanges. So great is the volume of business done by the bucket shops in New York that their suppression would probably result in practically doubling the business of the New York stock exchange."

"Cass Lake and all the other small towns up the line will become the opening of the bass season tomorrow," said Walter Dumas of Cass Lake at the St. Louis. "While bass fishing may not be very good in the immediate vicinity of the towns, good sport with this gamy species may be found within a few miles of most of the villages along the Fosston branch of the Great Northern, and this fact means an increase in the hotel and other business with the opening of the fishing season.

"There is more fascination about angling for bass than there is about any other fishing, unless it be trout, and according to my notion bass offer better sport any day. There is not so much work about going after them, and when you get one on your hook he is lively enough to suit anyone.

"There are so many places through the northern part of the state where a man may go out and enjoy a few days' royal sport with bass and other kinds of fish that it is no easy matter to decide upon which is the best place. Every enthusiast you meet almost has a different place to tell you about, and each thinks his lake is better than any other. It is hard to convince him that he may be mistaken.

"The very best fishing is to be had in the lakes which are located farthest from the ordinary lines of travel, and which are hard to get at, as is no more than natural, for they are not frequented by the city angler to any considerable extent. There are some of these lakes where a person can land a half a boat load of fish in two or three hours time if he happens to strike the right time. Bass have an exasperating habit of not always biting when you expect them to. I have gone 12 or 15 miles to a lake where I knew the fish abounded, with the expectation of landing a fine string, and then have met with disappointment. I would probably be able to see them lying about on the bottom of the lake, too lazy to bite, but that did me little good. A fellow is tempted to dynamite under such conditions."

The Backyard Farmer.

And now the backyard farmer
Rises early every morn
To plan the bubous radish,
And the lettuce and the corn,
He is most enthusiastic,
And he's up at half-past five.
To hoe, and weed, and water,
And see how the onions thrive.

He is dreaming of the summer,
When the green peas will be ripe,
And he can have fresh salads
With his roast beef and his tripe
He is thinking of the autumn,
And the big potato crop.
And he hoes, and weeds, and waters,
Till he really hates to stop.

He hoes, and weeds, and waters,
And the perspiration flows
Like a river from his forehead.
And it drips down off his nose.
Happy, happy backyard farmer,
With his plantlets and his seeds,
Though his crop this year, as always
Will be principally weeds!

His Cogitation.

Tom Watson's Magazine: "Well, then, amongst others, there's the man who habitually talks to himself," ruminatingly said the Pruntytown Philosopher the other evening. "If he does it in order to listen to himself, he is a fool; if he does it to avoid listening to his friends, he is a sage; and if he does it to save his friends from listening to him, he is a philanthropist."

Comrades in Action.

St. Louis Republic: Independent distillers say that every increase of 4 cents in the price of corn will raise the price of whisky 1 cent. With beer it is different. A rise in the price and a jump in malt or hops has no effect on the schooner.

The Weather.

Memorial day dawned "brite and fair," as Plupy Shute would put it, and "brite and fair" it continued to be, as bright as the glowing future looks to the boy of Plupy's age, and as fair as those days of pure delight when Plupy and his comrades sought the restful fishing pool where the trout were hungrily awaiting them.

The wind was in the east, to be sure, but it was not the harsh east wind that sometimes comes. It was cool, but the sun was warm, and between them they produced an effect that was altogether alluring and divine. Out at the cemeteries, where the soldier dead are lying, the east wind softly soothed their sleep, while the sun beamed gently down upon that glorious rsurrection of tree, flower and grass, that tells of a resurrection in which the honored dead shall be honored again. Down at the lake shore, where flowers were strewn in honor of the sailors who died for their country, the breezes gently wafted the flowers away, as if it would start them on their journey to the bourne where those sailors long ago sailed.

The local forecast station received no reports this morning, owing to failure at headquarters in the wire service, and no local forecast was issued, as there was nothing on which to base it.

The Associated Press report from Chicago, however, stated that the probabilities for Minnesota were for fair weather tonight and Wednesday with variable winds.

Chicago, May 30.—Forecast for twenty-four hours ending at 7 o'clock tomorrow night: Upper Michigan—Fair tonight and Wednesday; variable winds.

Wisconsin—Fair tonight and Wednesday; probably light frost in the cranberry marshes tonight; fresh northerly winds, becoming variable.

Minnesota—Fair tonight and Wednesday; variable winds.

Who Lost the Dollar?

St. Loius Globe-Democrat: "I've got in mind an incident that illustrates how smooth a man may be when he's got to," said the Roving Philosopher.

"Casey—he was a comedian in a show I was once with—worked the gag.

"Casey was in Omaha, possessed of an overpowering desire to journey to Lincoln, and with only $2 in his pocket; the fare was $3. It looked like a sure case of being up against it for true and no mistake. The little Irishman didn't have a friend in the town. His face was untrustworthy, and he was the sort of chap who would not beg. He walked around the streets trying to think of some means for accomplishing his ends. He passed up the bars, though his tongue was becoming as thick as a tomcat's tail at the sight of a pet pug dog, and kept his fingers on that $2 bill, lovingly and tenderly caressing it. Yet he made his $2 grow to $2 within an hour, and in the early evening rode out of Omaha on a Lincoln-bound train, sitting on cushioned seats at that, and with a full-paid ticket in his pocket."

"How did he accomplish it?

"The brilliant idea occurred to Casey while he was in the act of walking into a saloon and breaking that little bill up into slippery change.

"Walking down the street until he came to a pawnshop he went in and pledged the $2 for a loan of $1.50. It looked like a fool move for Casey, and the pawnbroker was a little uneasy about transacting business like that, but eloquence won. True, he had $2 cash when he went in, and only $1.50 in good United States coin when he again emerged on the street, but he had a pawn ticket for $2 besides.

"A couple of doors from the loan agency was a saloon, and into this Casey walked with a proposition for the bartender. 'I've got a pawn ticket for $2 cash,' said he to the dispenser of liquid joy, 'and I need some money. I'll sell you that ticket for a dollar and a half.' It seemed too good to the barkeep to be true, but he handed over $1.50 and Casey walked out of the saloon with $3 jingling in his jeans. A few minutes afterward the bartender went to the pawnshop, paid the broker $1.50 and 10 cents interest in addition, and in return for his $1.60 received the $2.

"Casey made $3 grow out of $2 in a jiffy by just using his wits a little, the pawnbroker got his money back and the bartender paid Casey only $1.50 for his ticket for $2. The extra $1 Casey obtained he must have gotten from some one—but the question is, from whom? Who was it that lost on that little deal in finance?"

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Generally a woman will mind a man if she thinks he doesn't mean it.

A man gets so much older than his wife as they go on that it seems almost like a crime for her to be married to him.

There is something mighty deceptive about the way a girl lets you think you are interesting because her mother told her to.

About the only consolation in being old is that you realize you know less than you thought you did when you were young and had more fun.

The Armour Fruit Cars.

New York Evening Post: For unabashed and unblushing admission of the enjoyment of monopoly privileges in transportation, we do not remember anything quite parallel to the testimony given yesterday before the senate committee on interstate commerce by Mr. Robbins, president of the Armour car line company. The cheerful avowal that on such roads as the Pere Marquette, over which the Armours have exclusive contract rights for fruit shipments, the carrier cannot accept products named in the contract unless he ship them in the Armour private fruit cars, is as astounding as it is intolerable. What technical warrant there may be for Mr. Robbins' contention that the Armour private car company is not subject to the interstate commerce law, we do not know. Senator Elkins' remark that the Armour company had all the advantages and none of the responsibilities of common carriers covered the case exactly. A monopoly so odious should feel at once the strong restraining hand of the law, even if, as Mr. Robbins asserts, 80 per cent of the shippers are satisfied with existing rates on fruit shipments.

The Execrable Billboard.

Kansas City Star: It ought to be quite clear by this time that the city must either enforce the removal of billboards or regulate their construction so as to make them safe. Within a few weeks a number of serious accidents have resulted from these abtrusive, cumbersome, ugly and dangerous structures. The high winds common to this city make it especially hazardous to permit the erection of signs and advertising boards of any kind except when they are securely attached to buildings. The independent billboard, even when placed on deeply-set posts and strongly braced, is not safe.

The city would be entirely justified in prohibiting billboards altogether on sentimental grounds alone. They disfigure the city. They are often covered with pictures that are offensive to good taste. They obstruct the view. They are a pernicious evidence of obtrusive commercialism. But even if they are permitted in spite of these considerations they should be either removed or made safe because of their present menace to life and limb Kansas City has not had a severe storm this spring. Yet a number of accidents have resulted from falling billboards. There has been criminal carelessness on the part of billboard owners, or the inspectors, or both.

Jerome's Leather Medal.

District Attorney Jerome of New York received his first medal for service in his department. It is made of leather. It arrived in his morning's mail, and now hangs conspicuously in his private office. The disc is about three inches in diameter, is made of the best quality of cowhide and is attached to a three-inch strip of vari-colored material taken from an old suspender. The clasp consists of a large and strong safety pin, and the whole is tied with a bow of blue baby ribbon. On the medal is the following engraved inscription:

"Presented to William Travers Jerome by the Benevolent Order of Race Track Gamblers for his zealous persecution of common criminals and his heroic efforts to punish all who would interfere without orders in the pursuit of pelf pleasure."

Twenty Years Ago.

Bill Nye, who lectured here in March, writes as follows to the New York Mercury: "I have just returned from a brief visit to Duluth. After strolling along the bay of Naples and watching old Vesuvius vomit red hot mud, vapor and other campaign documents, Duluth is quite a change. The ice in the bay at Duluth was thirty-eight inches in depth when I left there the last week in March, and we rode across it with the utmost impunity. Lake Superior is one of the largest aggregations of fresh wetness in the world, if not the largest. When I stop to think that some day all this cold water will have to be absorbed by mankind, it gives me a cramp in the geographical center. The streams that run into Lake Superior are alive with trout, and next summer I propose to go up there and fish until I have so thoroughly saturated my system with trout that the trout bones will stick out through my clothes in every direction and people will regard me as a beautiful toothpick holder."

The "repairs" on the dwellings of M. J. Forbes and W. C. Eyster are well under way. The original house of Mr. Forbes was worth about $14,000 and the repairs will cost about $8,500. It will be one of the finest and most conspicuous residences in the city.

Mrs. L. Mendenhall has returned from the East.

Mrs. B. J. Sawyer has returned from a visit in Lake City, her father's home.

Willard E. Gray, formerly of Duluth but more recently located at Eagle river, has established an office at Lake Linden, Mich., for the practice of law.

G. A. Johnson & Co., will open a tea store in this city next week. G. A. Johnson is a brother of the county treasurer and has been a well-known clerk for Freimuth & Co., for several years, and is very much liked by those who have had dealings with him. The company is a young man named Purdy, a stranger in the city.

JUST FOR FUN.

Chicago Tribune: Living Skeleton—What's the cause of all that racket back there?

Circassian Beauty—They're trying to put a hoopskirt on the fat woman.

Washington Star: "I suppose you had a blowout when you went to town," said the sleepy young man.

"Not any more," answered Farmer Corntossel. "I've got so I know how to handle them gas burners as well as anybody."

Yonkers Statesman: Barbara Frietchie was on her way to her attic window to display the union colors.

"Oh, my," she said, as she hesitated, "I wonder if my hat's on straight?"

Rushing from in front of the mirror she started to the window to dazzle the eyes of Stonewall Jackson.

Atlanta Constitution: "That last book of Jones' don't seem to have anything in it."

"Oh, I don't know—there are 613 pages five illustrations and a bookmark.

Chicago Tribune: "Doctor, what is the amount of my bill?"

"My dear sir, you are only convalescent. I'll tell you when you are entirely well."

New York Mail: Clara—I'm surprised to see you in so decollete a gown.

Maud—Well, papa said I was wearing altogether too many clothes.

Philadelphia Press: "Yes," said the clerk, "if it wasn't for several severe attacks of dyspepsia I'd have a good paying job by now."

"I didn't know you suffered from dyspepsia."

"Oh, my, yes. My boss has had an attack of it every time I applied for a raise."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Grand Rapids Independent: There is considerable of a stir already lest the Republican state central committee apportion the representation in the next Republican state convention on the vote cast for Dunn at the last election. The which would be a neat little bit of poetic justice too, for all of the counties where Dunn was knifed would suffer accordingly, and the coming home to roost of that particular political chicken would be a sight for gods and men.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Just why this great government of our gets so busy with the unknown get-rich-quick fellows and allows the Rockefellers, Schwabs, Rogerses and that ilk to continue to plunder the unsophisticated natives is one of those things that belongs strictly to the higher branches of study.

Mankato Free Press: Hon. Samuel Lord of Kasson gives it out that he intends to resign as state senator, but when questioned as to his intentions toward the governorship, he is as coy as a maiden who has just been the main question put to her by her fond lover.

Anoka Herald: To a person unfamiliar with mining terms, the statement in the Eveleth Star to the effect that work is being pushed in one of the mines in the iron range "with one shovel," sounds rather odd.

Hutchinson Leader: An applicant writing to Governor Johnson says: "For God's sake don't forget that I am a candidate for a place on the board of grain appeals. I need the money." If frankness is a recommendation the man should get the place. Others who go to great pains to show their special qualifications for the job they want might with more truth sum it all up in this: "I need the money."

Northern Record: Because the Minnesota state press refuses to give the state fair free advertising, that institution is getting the best free advertising it ever received. The boys all have to say something.

Hinckley Enterprise: The Duluth Herald tells of seeing straw hats, Thursday, and then in another column predicts a frost. Perhaps this is only a coincident.

Walker Pilot: Cass county has a few tax paying grumblers and just now when the assessors are about, you hear them cussing the county, the commissioners and their own hard luck, more vociferously than ever. When you hear a farmer of this county kicking about his taxes, just offer to buy his farm property at the assessed valuation and see how he draws in his horns. Some men are natural kickers.

Park Rapids Clipper: It would require 80,000 years to earn the present fortune of Mr. Rockefeller if we were paid at the rate of $2 per day.

Motley Mercury: There promises to be just as many Republicans ready to be contrary at the next election as there were last year.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: It was only a few weeks ago that certain papers were asserting that John A. Johnson was a good fellow, that the real governor was a Dick O'Connor, and later they concluded that Frank A. Day was the real thing. Now having discovered that Johnson is governor, these same papers are denouncing him as "the Czar of Minnesota." Some people are so constituted that they will even grumble when the sun is shining, a gentle breeze blowing from the south, and the bass are biting with the enthusiasm of a Democrat seeking office.

Sauk Center Herald: A citizen of Sauk Center lost a dog last week. Of course he advertised it in The Herald. The next morning the dog returned with a copy of the paper in his mouth. If anyone doubts this statement we can show the chair where the man sat when he told us. We rather guess this will hold the Le Seuer liar for a while.

Albert Lea Standard: President Roosevelt has decided to pay his fare and accept no more free passes or other favors from the railroads, an example that ought to be a significant reminder to all office holders both in state and nation.

Too Large for a Corner.

New York Tribune: With a coming wheat crop of 29,723,000 acres, or 2,858,000 more acres than were sown last year, and condition reported at 92.5 on May 1, the prospect for a wheat corner is not alluring, especially to those who tried that operation recently.

The Chief Offender.

Washington Post: If there is to be a law against carrying explosives, the trusts would doubtless like to have it contain a provision directed specifically at the president.

Remember the Mothers.

York, Neb., Teller: One thing we do not like in Roosevelt. He is always palavering about the men who have a dozen children. We do not kick about that, but do insist that he speak kindly about the mothers of those children. He says nothing about them, and we write this to let him know that the mothers are just as important as are the men. If you see him, tell it to him to his face, as he may not notice this item in the Teller. We could enlarge on this topic, but you follow the subject out wherever your mind may wander. Teddy acts like the fathers were the whole cheese.

Does Your Shoe Man

Take back your old shoes and "make-you-a-liberal-allowance" for them on a new pair? CERTAINLY NOT—and certainly no dealer in stoves is going to sell you a stove or steel range at an honest low profit and also give you "a-liberal-allowance" for an old stove that he would have to sell for scrap iron—besides being put to the expense of handling the old stove, which is NOT SMALL. We want you to bear in mind that this is the ONLY STORE in this city that marks their stoves at the lowest price possible—that is—measured by actual dollars and cents—and yet give you the advantage of liberal credit. MRS. FISKE IS ANGRY

Barred From Salt Lake, She Roasts the Theatrical Trust.

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 30.—Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske, who was barred from a professional appearance in Salt Lake City through her inability to secure any of the local theaters, hired a public hall and last night delivered an address on what she termed the theatrical trust and its effect on Salt Lake City. Mrs. Fiske and her company of players arrived here yesterday. In opening her address to the large audience, Mrs. Fiske said:

"I am happy to say that the theatrical trust, which excludes my company from your playhouse, is not sufficiently powerful to prevent us from stopping in your city on our way to the Pacific. Nor can it rob me of this privilege of addressing you."

The trust, she said, made it impossible for an independent actor to play in Kansas City, Omaha, Denver or Salt Lake. St. Paul and Montreal were also denominated as "trust ridden."

In conclusion, the speaker declared the right to demand that their theaters shall be open to every worthy actor, whose performances they may desire to see. The patrons of the theaters had it in their power, she said, to liberate their theaters from an unfair and unjust domination.

MAYOR IS IN CONTROL

"Organization" Withdraws Its Opposition to Philadelphia's Executive.

Philadelphia, May 30.—State Insurance Commissioner Israel W. Durham, leader of the Republican organization in Philadelphia for the last ten years, and whose influence reached far into the interior of Pennsylvania, late yesterday afternoon conditionally surrendered to Mayor Weaver, who opened the war on the organization last Tuesday. The action of Leader Durham was a great surprise to the people of the city, as all his lieutenants and the rank and file of the organization had been given to understand that the issue began by Mayor Weaver over the gas lease would be fought to a finish. It had been announced that the fight the organization was making in the courts against the mayor's new directors taking office would be carried into select council when the mayor should ask for the confirmation.

The mayor and his friends promptly took up the gage of battle and started to wage a bitter war on the councilmen, who intended to vote against the confirmation of the new officials. In the forenoon yesterday Leader Durham sent for the war leaders, nearly all of whom responded and pledged their fealty to the organization, and it looked as though the fight would be a long one. Shortly after this meeting, however, William S. Vare, recorder of deeds, a close political friend of Durham, called upon the mayor and assured him that he and his brother, State Senator George A. Vare, would stand by him. The Vare brothers hold large city contracts, among them being the street cleaning for this year. This movement caused a sensation in political circles, and rumors became current that the organization was beaten.

Mr. Durham sent for some of the ward leaders, and after a conference, he released them from the pledge to stand by him and made the following announcement:

"I have advised my friends not to oppose the confirmation of Lincoln-Acker as director of public works, and Col. Sheldon Potter, as director of public safety, if their names are sent to select council by the mayor."

The mayor is now practically in control of municipal affairs. What the organization will do has not been definitely determined. Reform organizations of the city have already announced that they will follow up the advantage already gained and attempt to defeat Parry Cransley, president of select council, who is the Republican organization candidate for sheriff at the November election.

WOMAN SLAYER IN TROUSERS

Rejected Sweetheart Tells How She Slew Man and Wife.

Baltimore, Md., May 30.—Harvey McGill, a Baltimore county farmer, saw what he supposed to be a man lying unconscious on a dump just outside the city. In giving assistance the farmer discovered that the sick person in corduroy trousers and rough coat and shirt was a woman.

Upon recovering from the fainting spell in which the farmer found her, the woman who is about 35 years old, begged him not to reveal her sex. Then she told him that she was a native of Mexico. Her mother was a Mexican, her father American. They lived at Cautrevas.

When a young woman she fell in love with an American. He promised to marry her, the day was set, but he disappeared. She determined to find him, and after a long search, located him in another town. He was married. Infuriated by her discovery she killed him and his wife. Since then she had been a fugitive and had traveled through the Southern states.

McGill tried to detain the woman, but she hurried away after telling her story. He informed the police, who are hunting for the woman.

CRUISER PERISHES.

James Nellen Burned to Death Near Goodland.

Floodwood, Minn., May 30.—James Nellen, a timber cruiser 65 years of age and unmarried, was burned to death in a shanty near Goodland, 25 miles from Floodwood, last Saturday night. He left Floodwood Friday for Goodland, and the ashes of the burned shanty and the remains of the cruiser were found Sunday.

The shanty was unoccupied and Nellen had gone there for temporary shelter for one night. There was a lamp in the building and it is supposed that during the night it was upset, or exploded and the fire was thus communicated to the structure.

Crookston at Grand Forks (two games).
Winnipeg at Brainerd (morning).
Winnipeg at St. Cloud (afternoon).

Fargo, N. D., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jarvie's error in center gave Duluth the game yesterday afternoon. There was nothing doing during the game except in the third inning, when McAleese drove a hard single to center and Jarvie didn't wear any nets between his feet. The ball rolled on toward the fence, and when Jarvie finally retrieved the sphere the big Duluth catcher was across the home plate with the only score of the game.

The contest was an interesting exhibition and enjoyed by a good crowd for blue Monday. It was the first appearance of the Zenith City bunch here, and the fans wanted to see what the league leaders looked like. Manager Artie O'Dea got a lot of joshing, but seemed to mind it just about as much as in the many years before when the Fargo fans exercised their lungs at his expense.

The contest resolved itself early in the game to a battle between the pitchers. Potts of the visitors had slightly the best of the deal, with one hit less and five more strike-outs. Each man allowed a pass.

Donovan's fast work in the fifth when he beat down what appeared to be a sure hit by McAleese and threw the catcher out at first was a feature.

The work of both teams was gingery and the game was short and spirited. The work of Umpire Long did not meet with favor from the fans. His decisions on balls and strikes were fierce in several instances. He allowed Weiler to walk in the fourth when nine-tenths of the fans were certain the batsman had been struck out. On Menelce, the next man up, he called a third strike on what the fans were equally positive was a ball high and wide.

The Duluth team made a favorable impression. Their reputation as sluggers was not sustained because of the excellent pitching of Smith, but it seems to be a well-balanced aggregation with good team work.

CROOKSTON WINS.

Tigers Are Defeated In a Ragged Contest.

Grand Forks, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a game full of errors on the part of the Tigers, Crookston walked off with the first of the series. The visitors pounded Saunders unmercifullly, and sent no less than eight hit into the woods. Crookston changed pitchers in the third substituting Dorn for Mullen, which no doubt saved the game, or at least made it more sure. In the first inning Crookston took a hit, a fielder's choice, a base on balls and a two-bagger, which netted them four runs.

The Tigers scored in the third and fifth. In the third Smith, the first man led off with a hit, and Saunders struck out. Varco drew a pass and Chandler drove a two-bagger to the woods, scoring Smith and Varco.

The fifth inning was the last earnest effort by the locals to turn defeat to victory and Varco and Chandler scored on a hit by Chandler. The other innings were shut-outs clear through. A detailed score and summary are as follows:

ON THE TURF.

Winners of Monday's Races on Various Tracks.

New York, May 30.—Fred Cook's George C. Bennett, played down from 11 to 5 to 9 to 5 yesterday and won the Manhanset stakes at Gravesend and Nicol, his rider, scored his first victory. Voorhees, the favorite, made the pace to the stretch when Nicol sent George C. Bennett, who had been running in second position, to the front and won easily by one length from Voorhees. Water Bock, an added starter, was third. It is believed that the Westerners won a big sum on the victory of Cook's colt.

Majoram, in the first race, backed from 12 to 1, to 6 to 1, defeated the favorite, Hamburg Bell, by a head. St. Valentine was the only winning favorite.

Kansas City, May 30.—After an exciting finish Ed Ball won the fourth race, the feature event at Elm Ridge yesterday, from Ascot Bell, the favorite. True Wing was third.

The fifth race, at one and one-sixteenth miles, resulted in a close finish between Rossmond and Berry Hughes, the former winning because of Morrison's clever riding. Foxhall, Dungannon and Della were the winning favorites.

Louisville, May 30.—James V. and Buttinsky ran a dead heat in the feature event, a six furlongs race at the Churchill downs yesterday. Ebony and Hyperion II. were the winning favorites.

St. Louis, May 30.—The favorites fared badly at the American Jockey club yesterday, only two running to form, Buck Wing, at 2 to 1, winner of the third event, was well played.

High Chancellor, lightly played at 10 to 1, won the feature race at the fair grounds, defeating Taby, Tosa, which ran second, and Montwex, and the 8 to 5 favorite, which finished second.

A TRIPLE SUICIDE.

New York, May 30.—What the police suspect was a triple suicide, was discovered in Williamsburg, Broklyn, today, when the lifeless bodies of John Barkle, a carpenter, his wife, Amelia, and Frederick Frederick, were found lying in the kitchen of the Barkle home. Two gas jets were open and the three persons had died of asphyxiation. While no reason for suicide is known, the police suspect the three died by mutual agreement.

PAYING PROPOSITION.

Kansas Has Value Received, If Refinery Fails.

Topeka, Kan., May 30.—'No matter what becomes of the state oil refinery proposition Kansas has already cleared five times the amount it appropriated for the refinery in advertising, and up to date hasn't spent a penny," said Representative W. Y. Morgan of Reno county.

"When the $400,000 appropriation for a refinery was made many people, including many members of the legislature, thought it was like throwing that amount of money away.

"Up to date the state has not yet drawn a cent of the appropriation and this is what has happened:

"The reduction in the price of refined oil is clearing the oil consumers of the state about $400,000 a year.

"The state of Kansas has received advertising in Eastern newspapers and magaines which would be dirt cheap at $400,000.

"The luxury of having twisted the tail of the Standard Oil and having heard the octopus is worth $400,000 to any healthy, well-constructed people like these who live in Kansas.

"The fun of having started a wolf hunt after the wolf and getting everybody from the president to the preachers into the chase is worth $400,000 from an amusement standpoint.

"The satisfaction of having shown the world that Kansas has money to throw at the birds and has the nerve to throw it if necessary is worth at least $400,000, which we haven't spent."

CAUSED BY JOKE

School Election Ballot Will Have at Least Six Names.

The joking remark of a member of the board of education, made at the meeting held a year ago, is responsible for the candidacy of George L. Hargreaves for a position on the board. At that time Mr. Hargreaves was not a candidate, but one of his friends cast a vote for him either as a joke or as a complimentary ballot.

Mr. Hargreaves was out of the city at the time of the election, but when the canvass of the ballots was made at the board meeting, and Mr. Hargreaves' name was read out as having received one vote, one of the members jokingly made the remark that he had voted for himself.

One of Mr. Hargreaves' friends happened to be at the meeting, and he resented the remark, vowing to himself that the board would find that the candidacy of his friend was not to be take as a joke.

Accordingly, this spring, he went to work on a petition and the name of Mr. Hargreaves will be on the ballot at the coming school election.

The names of Frank Smith and J. J. LeTourneau will also be on the ballot. Neither of these gentlemen are making any canvass for re-election, but they state that they are willing to serve for another term if they receive a majority of the votes cast.

"I have been on the board for six years now," said Mr. Smith today, "and am ready and more than willing to drop out. If it were not for some of the members of the present board who want me to run again, I would drop out as Mr. Phelps has done."

Petitions have also been circulated asking that the names of George J. Mallory and E. R. Cobb be placed on the ticket. Mr. Cobb was formerly a member of the board and was later employed as superintendent of construction. Mr. Mallory is the candidate of the West Duluth Commercial club.

The name of R. J. MacLeod has also been mentioned in connection with the office, and a petition is being circulated asking that his name be placed on the ballot.

The petitions will be presented at the meeting of the board held next Friday evening, and those which appear to have a sufficient number of endorsers will be placed on the ballot for the coming election.

GIRL AGED FIVE

Losses Her Life Trying to Save Brother.

London, May 30.—From Hertfordshire and Staffordshire come two stories of sisterly love and sacrifice that would move hearts of stone.

A little girl of 5 and her 3-year-old brother lie dead together in the village of Boxmoor. Both were drowned in the canal while their parents thought they were at play in the warm sunshine.

As night began to fall, and still the children did not return, a search was made for them, when, to the unutterable grief of their father and mother, the little ones were found drowned in the Grand Junction canal.

The whole village mourned. No one witnessed the sad occurrence, and it could only be surmised that the boy must have tripped into the water, and been followed by his guardian sister, who lost her life in a brave attempt to rescue him.

The little girl's devotion to her younger brother was always remarked among the neighbors. Possibly for an instant she had let go the little fellow's hand.

In the Staffordshire case the little heroine was a good many years older, and happily she succeeded in saving her brother's life, as by a miracle.

She herself, however, now lies unconscious, suffering from concussion of the brain. It was a street accident at Stoke-on-Trent.

The girl's little brother freed himself from her hand and ran in front of a horse and cart, attracted by a toy lying in the road.

It seemed certain he would be run over, but with prompt presence of mind his sister sprang in front of the horse and pushed the boy out of the way of the wheel.

She had taken no thought of herself, and the cart wheel knocked her down and passed over her.

NOTICE IS GIVEN

Public Sales Only of State Absolute Property After July 1.

State Auditor Says Unredeemed Property Must Be Advertised.

S. G. Iverson, state auditor of Minnesota, is sending out to the various county auditors special notice of the two methods that the state now has for disposing of "absolute property," or property that the state has acquired by reason of unpaid taxes and unredeemed titles. One of these methods, under the new law, is found in chapter 2, general laws of 1902 and the other is found under the old law, sections 1,616 and 1,617, general statutes of 1894. The provisions of both laws prevail as to those tracts bid in for the state during the time when they are or were in operation.

Special attention is called by the state auditor to the fact that tracts acquired under the 1902 law can ony be sold at public sale; that after July 1, 1905, tracts acquired under the old law can only be sold at public sales; that the personal notice of expiration of redemption must be given on all absolute sales; that all absolute property sales are subject to redemption, and taxes paid on all such forfeited property may be paid, until the termination of the period of time (sixty days) after proof of service of notice of expiration has been filed with the county auditor.

Attention is also called to the note that the tax deeds under the 1902 law will all be executed by the governor, those under the old law by the county auditor. The county auditor and county treasurer are required to attend all public sales and a special distribution of the proceeds of these sales should be made and a special report of all the moneys received therefrom be transmitted to the state auditor, who will then draw upon the county treasurer for the amount due the state.

It is assumed that the county auditors will be requested to conduct the most of the public sales.

Heretofore, when the time for redemption has expired, any person could make application for any of the property described as unredeemed, with the county auditor. The county auditor forwarded this application to the state auditor, who, if he approved of it, ordered the deed made out to the applicant. This method practically constituted a private sale.

Under the directions given for a public sale, by the state auditor, practically the only change in the method will be the advertising of the unredeemed pieces of property in the state, the applications to be made through the county auditor as before.

The directions given out by the state auditor are as follows: Acquired under the new law—Real property bid in for the state at the regular annual tax sales, and remaining unassigned and unredeemed for three years from the date of sale, must be disposed of at public sale only as provided in title 5, chapter 2, general laws of 1902. In the month of July of 1905, and each succeeding year a duplicate list of such "absolute property as the state" shall be prepared by the county auditor and the other to be filed with the county auditor for the use and examination of the public. Public sales will be held once a year in each county, the date to be fixed by the state auditor who will prepare the notice of sale to be published in the proper official newspaper of the county. The sale must be conducted by the state auditor, or if he directs, by his deputy or the county auditors. The notice of expiration must be given in each case. Owners or interested parties may redeem at any time until the full period of redemption expires, which is sixty days after proof of service of the notice of expiration has been filed with the county auditor. The full period of redemption having expired the absolute title certificate should be presented to the county auditor who will endorse thereon his certicate to that effect. The certificate sale will then go to the governor who will execute a tax deed to the owner thereof.

Acquired under the old law—Real property bid in for the state at the regular annual tax sales held in May, 1901, and in years prior or at any forfeited sale held in 1901 or prior years, remaining unsold, unassigned and unredeemed must be disposed of according to the laws in force at the time of the sale, which are found in sections 1616 and 1617, general statutes of 1894. That law provided that such "absolute property of the state" should be disposed of by the county auditor at puolic or private sale as the auditor may direct.

County auditors are, therefore, directed to dispose of all such absolute property at public sale only in the month of July, 1905, and each succeeding year, duplicate lists to be prepared by the auditor, one copy to be sent the state auditor and the other to be filed with the county auditor for the use of the public.

Such sales of the absolute property of the state shall be conducted by the county auditor immediately following the close of the public sales provided by the new law, and to be held in each county once a year. A nuotice of this sale will be included in the notice of sale under the 1902 law to be prepared by the state auditor.

The directions given by State Auditor Iverson covering tracts which became absolute property of the state under the old law, shall take effect July 1, 1905. Up to that time applications for the purchase of such property may continue to be presented to the county auditor and may be transmitted to the state auditor for approval. The purchasers at such sales should receive a receipt or certificate of purchase. The notice of expiration should then be given by the purchaser in regular form.

After the full period of redemption has passed (three years') the county auditor may issue the tax deed provided for in the general laws of 1894.

Coffee Hurt You?

No need to get mad now, tear up the paper, or shout "nonsense, good coffee never hurt anyone."

You know better than that, for you can point out all around you folks who are the worse for coffee's slugging. Think over a few coffee-drinking friends and casually enquire if they are entirely and perfectly well and just how coffee treats them.

If it hurts others, isn't it just possible?

Catch the drift, don't you?

In fact, after you have studied the matter a bit, it will come plain that, if you are a coffee drinker, the chances are you already have some form of incipient, or perhaps, fixed organic disease due entirely to the coffee--constipation, rheumatism, eye trouble, nervous headaches, nervous prostration or others of the well proven coffee ails. You can decline to look the thing squarely in the face and peg along with the coffee.

Some day Nature will haul you up SHORT!

IT'S A POOR BARGAIN

To swap health and a clear, business-like head, for a few cups of coffee each day.

Every coffee toper tries to wiggle round and charge his aches and ails to weather, overwork, too much or too little food, this, that or the other thing, so it isn't his Master, coffee.

A Sure Personal Test

Will locate the exact cause of your steady destruction of health, if that cause be coffee. It's worth knowing the plain, sober fact before fixed organic, heart or other disease sets in, which, perhaps, cannot be cured.

The test is pleasant, accurate and satisfying.

Quit coffee absolutely for 10 days and in its place use Postum.

BE SURE the Postum is properly boiled as per directions on pkg., (and that's easy) then you have the famous Food Coffee, with the deep seal brown which turns to rich golden brown when rich cream is added and the flavor is crisp, snappy and soft, like the high grades of Old Gov't Java.

If, in two or three days, you begin to sleep soundly at night, digest your food better, stomach and bowels show signs of recovery, or the old feeling of weakness at the heart leaves, or eyes get stronger and head works clearer, (the ails of coffee drugging are multitudinous) the facts will be before you and

Have the Home Beer Pure

Whatever you drink outside, let your home beer be Schlitz. That is pure beer. No bacilli in it --- nothing to make you bilious.

Beer is a saccharine product, and germs multiply rapidly in it. The slightest taint of impurity quickly ruins its healthfulness.

We go to the utmost extremes to prevent that. Cleanliness is a science where Schlitz beer is brewed.

We even cool the beer in plate glass rooms, in nothing but filtered air.

Then we filter the beer. Then we sterilize every bottle.

And Schlitz beer is aged. The beer that makes you bilious is green beer.

When you order beer for your home, get the healthfulness without the harm. Get a pure beer - get an old beer - get Schlitz.

THE BEER THAT MADE MILWAUKEE FAMOUS

SPEAKER CANNON

Makes an Innocent Suggestion About Extra Session.

Deep Laid Scheme For Benefit of the Railroads.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—As pretty a game of politics as has been played in years is now in progress with the administration on one side and the older politicians of the house and senate on the other. Led by Speaker Cannon, the opponents of an extra session of congress in October are hammering away on the proposition that to call congress together before the November elections would absolutely fail of the purpose desired. Speaker Cannon is emphatic in the assertion that Republicans of Ohio and Massachusetts in congress are against an October session, and "Uncle Joe" suggests that if the president is determined to call congress together before the time fixed by the constitution, Nov. 13, would be an ideal date. The "stand-patters" realizing that the coming session of congress gives large promise of being the most important session in many years, by reason of the vital questions that will be presented, with one voice join in Speaker Cannon's suggestion for the later date.

Back of this innocent suggestion, however, is thought to be a deep laid scheme to put off as long as possible the serious consideration of railway rates. Should the president yield to the importunings of some of the leaders and postpone the convening of congress until November a tremendous advantage would be given, it is believed, to those friendly to the railroads. It is intimated that little of serious moment would be taken up until after the Christmas holidays. That Speaker Cannon would not announce his committees until just before the adjournment of congress for the holiday season, and the new year would be well under way before the committee seriously began the consideration of bills affecting railroad rates, the Panama canal, to say nothing of legislation looking to safe-guarding of the treasury and providing a remedy to cure the growing deficit.

It is asserted with much positiveness that among the very first things the new congress will take up will be the question of how best to change the treasury deficit into a surplus. It is argued that the country is more deeply interested in putting a stop to the increasing deficit in the treasury than it is in railroad rates, which cannot possibly have any bearing on treasury receipts. If this be the correct view of the situation it is plain to be seen how easy it will be for the speaker to so guide the house in the consideration of the public business that it will be late in the spring of 1906 before the railroad question is reached in anything like a tangible form.

Why this "backing and filling?" It is as plain as the nose on your face. Next year the Sixtieth congress is to be elected, and the "old-timers" realize how important it is to them to do only those things that are absolutely essential, and then get away for the campaign. By the time May comes around it is anticipated many of those who are loudest in the demand for railroad legislation will have seen a "new light,' and they will be less keen in their desires for a law giving some commission, not necessarily the interstate commerce commission, the power to reduce a rate and put it into effect with appeal to some court having the right to review.

If necessary the leaders in congress, and they are all protectionists of the most radical kind of type, will put the tariff question ahead of the railroad question, and will try to "shunt off" action by arousing a protective sentiment in the country that will engulf the railroad question completely.

But there is a man in the White House who has some very decided opinions on these several questions and he must not be overlooked in the equation. Theodore Roosevelt is determined that there shall be railroad legislation during the coming session. His speech at Denver and its reiteration at Chicago shows that he is ready for the battle, if there must be a battle. His pronouncements, clear cut as a canoe, show that there is no weakening on his part, and if congress wants a fight with the executive branch of the government, it will not be he who will run away. The president's prime minister, Secretary Taft, is also pledged to a railroad rate law, his speech in Ohio thsi week voicing the sense of the dminstration that the people want some comprehensive rate bill that will be fair to the railroads and fair to the people.

This is the situation. Aready overzealous servants of the railroads are saying hard things about the president, which to a man of his temperament, is not conducive of extreme felicity and as pretty a fight as has been seen in years in the halls of congress seems inevitable.

"Before the summer is fully under way in Washington those who are acquainted with Senator Charles Dick of Ohio may expect to see him blossom forth wearing one of the finest "Panama" hats, with possibly few exceptions, ever brought to the United States," said Consul General Dietrich of Guayaquil, Ecuador, who is in the national capital upon leave.

"Erly in the year," continued Mr. Dietrich. "I received a letter from Senator Dick requesting me to order for him the very finest "Panama" straw hat that could be made. However, the senator was not explicit in his request, failing to give the size and I did not care to proceed for that reason as well as because I feared he was not aware what such a hat would cost. Therefore, I wrote him stating that such a hat would cost at least $150 and would require several months to construct it. Senator Dick replied to not worry about the cost and gave the dimensions for the desired headgear. I at once placed the order and when I left Guayaquil the weaving of the hat was well under way and will probably be completed in season to adorn the jove-like head of the junior senator from Ohio about the time the hottest weather is upon us. My estimate of the cost of this hat was about right and an additonal duty of 35 per cent to get it into the United States will make it one of the most expensive hats of this brand ever imported."

An exceedingly valuable contribution to our knowledge of the great plains is contained in a report on the geology and underground water resources of this region just issued by the geological survey and known as Professional Paper No. 22.

The are described comprises the greater parts of Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota, Estern Colorado, Eastern Wyoming and the southeast corner of Montana. It is a volume of 433 pages, with numerous colored maps and half tone views and two handsome color-photograph productions of the Devils Tower and the Garden of the Gods. After a description of the geology and mineral resources of the region, the question of underground water supply is taken up and treated, both in its general bearings and in its local distribution. For the greater part of the area the underground water resouces are described by individual counties, so that the report is a guide to the prospects in nearly all portions of the region so far a sthere is information available. An account is also given of the vrious mineral resources, including coal, petroleum, salt, gypsum, metals and other products. The climate is also briefly treated. This volume will be forwarded without cost to all persons who will apply to the director, United States geological survey, Washington, D. C.

One rather startling fact is shown and that is that the females are greatly in the majornty, outnumbering the males by nearly 16,000.

The greatest increase has been among the white population, a fact very gratifying. The returns show that there are now in the District of Columbia 227,812 whites and 95,534 negroes.

The increase in eight years among the whites has been 38,355 or more than 20 per cent. The increase among the negro population has been 7,209, or only about 8 per cent. In both races the females outnumber the males. Among the whites there are 110,669 maces and 117,148 females. Of negroes there are 43,858 males and 52,276 females.

TO CARRY FLAGS

In Procession to New State Capitol on June 14.

Flag Day to Be Made Event of Great Importance.

St. Paul, May 30.—The committee selected at the last department encampment, G. A. R., to arrange for the removal from the old to the new state capitol of the battle flags carried by the Minnesota troops during the Civil war announces that this notable event will occur on June 14, Flag day, the exercises to commence at the old capitol at 2 o'clock p. m., when the flags will be delivered to color guards previously selected by the respective organizations that they may be transferred to the new building with appropriate ceremonies.

At the recently adjourned legislative session an adequate sum of money was appropriated to defray ordinary expenses of the occasion, and Governor Johnson has issued his proclamation in which he calls special attention to this great patriotic event and celebration of Flag day, and, in furtherance of the work of the committee, he designated the eight members already selected as an executive board to take charge and fittingly arrange all of the details of the removal.

The complete program cannot now be announced, but there will be an imposing parade in which will appear the artillery, cavalry and infantry now stationed at Fort Snelling, the governor and his staff, the state militia, the state officers, Minnesota soldiers, Civil, Spanish and Philippine wars, members of the Grand Army of the Republic, of the societies of the Army of the Philippines, of the United Spanish War Veterans and of the Sons of Veterans. A large number of school children will also participate, presenting the living, marching, American flag.

The feature of the parade will be the survivors of the Minnesota troops and what is left of the flags they marched and fought under, the men to be arranged in regular organization as in the old days and the flags to be borne by the color guards at the heads of the respective organizations to the new capitol, there to be deposited in four beautiful steel cases prepared by the capitol commission for their immediate reception and future preservation. Eloquent speakers who served as Minnesota soldiers will make addresses on the removal and delivery of the flags, and the governor of the state will receive the same and appropriately respond to these speakers.

Several bands of music have been engaged. Rates upon the railroads will be one fare for the round trip plus 50 cents. Survivors of all Minnesota organizations are especialy urged to be present that they may march once more under their old colors and it is also urged that regimental associations be called to meet as early as 10 a. m., June 14, to select color-bearers.

It seems almost unnecessary to suggest that the old color guards, if living and present, should have the honor of bearing the flags for the last time they will appear in a parade. Of these flags, forty-six in number, there are five formerly carried by the First regiment, Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, six by the Second, two by the Third, two by the Fourth, six by the Fifth, two by the Sixth, three by the Seventh, two by the Eighth, four by the Ninth, two by the Tenth, two by the Eleventh, one by the First battery of artillery, and one by the Second cavalry in the Civil war; two by the Twelfth, two by the Fourteenth, two by the Fifteenth in the Spanish-American war, and two by the Thirteenth in the war in the Philippine Islands. There are also five drums to be removed with the flags.

Gen. L. F. Hubbard has been selected as chief marshal and will designate his own assistants. It is expected that a campfire will be arranged for, to be held on the evening of the 14th at the new Armory building in St. Paul.

AMERICAN WOMEN

Are the Best, Says an Australian Traveler.

New York, May 30.—Helen Jerome, special corespondent of the Age, Melbourne, one of the largest dailies of Australia, accompanied by her 3-year-old daughter, Cameron, is in New York on a mission that will take her practically around the world before it is completed. Her itinerary includes a visit to the interior of Russia to learn the true conditions among the czar's subjects. She also plans a personal interview with the pope.

"The people of Australia, and especially the women, who now enjoy equal suffrage with the men, are greatly interested in the Amerincan women," she says. "Many conflicting stories are written about the American women—some of them are grotesque caricatures—and so my paper sent me here to study them and tell of their life and advancement, political and otherwise.

"I have written back that the American women are intellectually and physically the finest women of the world, and slightly in advance of their sisters in Australia, who are easily in advance of the women of the remaining nations of the world."

PEOPLE OF INDIA

Think Government Should Be Truly Anglo-Indian.

London, May 30.—S. Smith, M. P., the only British member who attended the Indian nation congress in Bombay last December, believes very serious problems confront Great Britain in the government of that country.

In the course of an interview Mr. Smith said:

"The mass of our people know almost nothing about the internal state of India. Very few members of parliament visit the country and study earnestly the condition of the people. Most of our party leaders on both sides are colossally ignorant of India. The secretary for India is usually one who has never seen the country he administers, and his advisers are retired officials who reflect British views, not those of the Indians. The result is that great mistakes have been made and will be made in the future that might be prevented by full parliamentary discussion.

"It is now almost impossible to obtain this, as party interests and party intrigues monopolize the time of the house of commons, and India does not lend itself to such treatment.

"While in India ast December I was much impressed by the growing discontent of the Indian people at the neglect of their affairs by parliament. They have what they believe to be serious grievances; they are ruled entirey by a foreign bureaucracy, and they feel that they are entitled to lay their complaints before parliament, in whose justice they still believe were it but possible to put their case before it.

"Higher education has made wonderful progress in India. Many Indians who are to be met in the fields of learning, commerce or politics, can fully hold their own with us. Their attainments are on a level with those of the average M. P.'s. They naturally ask that they should have a fair share in the government of their country. We pay over £10,000,000 annually to British administrators in salaries and pensions, and some £2,500,000 to a far greater number of Indians, nearly all in the lower grades of the service, and I feel that the time has come when a larger use must be made of Indian agency in the higher service of their country.

"There is no desire to get rid of the British government. All educated Indians know well that their country can not stand alone in the world. They know that the strong arm of Great Britain secures them from foreign aggression, and anarchy at home, but they all hold that the time is coming when India should get a place in some degree corresponding to the colonies—that is, that it shoud have a voice in its government, its colonial policy, and its domestic legislation; that the time has arrived when we should take the ablest of its sons into partnership with ourselves, and construct a government not wholly British, but truly Anglo-Indian."

UNIQUE ATTEMPT

To Collect Bill Results in a Damage Suit.

Manchester, N. H., May 30.—Two young women, Delia Bourassa and Marie Louise Holue, charge Frank E. Ducios, a photographer, with having imprisoned them because they would not pay for certain pictures, and brought suit against him for damages.

The plaintiffs state that they sat for photographs at Duclos' studio and being dissatisfied with all but two of the photographs refused to settle for the others.

The photographer of the studio, they allege, asked them to step into a back room and there locked them in, informing them that unless they settled for all the photographs they would be held until the arrival of the police.

The two women emphatically refused to settle and were kept locked in the room, they claim, for three hours, being released when an officer, who had been called by the proprietor, informed Mr. Duclos that he could not hold them.

They paid for the two phographs that met their fancy and were given their liberty.

IN POLICE COURT

Grave Oversight on the Part of the Officers.

Judge Cutting Makes Note of Their Neglected Duty.

There was a sensation in the municipal court this morning. Judge Cutting had just finished calling off a list of "drunks" who were handed suspended sentences, and found that every prisoner in the room had been accounted for.

"Where is he?" asked the court.

"Where is who?" responded the police captain.

"Why, isn't that May 30?"

"Yes."

"I am not mistaken then in thinking it is Memorial day?"

"No."

"Well, where is he then?"

"Who?"

"Why, the old soldier, who fought for his country and who on account of reduced circumstances had to steal a loaf of bread to keep his family from starving. I thought you always had one of them in on Memorial day so the newspaper men could get a story to help out on the holiday when all the offices are closed and news is scarce."

The captain was abashed. Here was a clear case of neglected duty.

"Well, your honor, that was a grave oversight. But, you see, all the old soldiers in Duluth happen to have enough brains to make a living, even if they are disabled, and we might have had a hard time to prove the case."

"Well, I suppose it can't be helped this time, but by the Fourth of July you may be able to find one of the men who signed the Declaration of Independence. If you do, bring him in, and that will square things. I guess the best we can do today is three plain drunks. That's enough to take the heart out of any newspaper reporter."

But his honor overlooked a vagrant, who was brought in later. The police said the man was apparently about as busy as the official chronicler of Russian victories, and that during his spare time he hung about saloons looking for woodsmen with hard-earned dollars.

He was given twenty-four hours to leave the town, with the alternative of spending thirty days in jail if he remained.

MEMORIAL DAY

Morning Dawns Bright and Clear For the Holiday.

Memorial day dawned bright and clear this morning, much to the delight of those who look upon it as the occasion for paying tribute to the memory of the dead heroes of the Civil war, and also to those who see in it merely a holiday, and an opportunity to enjoy a brief respite from the cares of business.

More than the ordinary number of people visited the different cemeteries this morning to decorate the graves of the veterans, the surviving members of the two grand army posts being out in force.

The local corps of the W. R. C. sent ninety-five wreaths of flowers to decorate the graves of veterans in Forest Hill cemetery. One wreath, a magnificent collection of roses was sent to do honor to the unknown dead. The local W. R. C. also sent a large number of flowers to Two Harbors to the post there and furnished a wreath for the unknown dead to be put in the cemetery at that place.

Dinner was served at noon to the members of the Gorman post in Kalamazoo hall, by the women of Garfield circle. The members of Culver post were served in the Temple hall by the women of the Relief Corps.

This afternoon the veterans assembled in front of the federal building at 2 o'clock, and formed in procession.

The parade was headed by the mounted police, followed by the other members of the force, the West end drum corps, the marshal of the day, S. W. Clark, and his aides, Brig. Gen. M. M. Gasser and Maj. F. H. Bidwell, the two companies of militia, the naval reserves, the Sons of Veterans and the Old Soldiers' Drum corps. Then came the members of the Gorman and Culver posts, with the members of the fire department and Mayor Cullum and Judge Page Morris bringing up the rear.

The procession proceeded to the Armory, where exercises were held.

At 4:30 p. m. the most elaborate ceremonies of the day were to take place. These will consist of strewing flowers on the water in the canal, by the women of the relief corps. The women will be escorted from the Armory to the Sixth avenue viaduct by the naval reserves, the G. A. R. and the Sons of Veterans and a drum corps. At the viaduct the reserves will divide, part of them taking the women to the boats awaiting them at the boat house, and the remainder accompanying the G. A. R. and the Sons of Veterans to the piers, where they will witness the ceremonies performed by the women in the launches and assist in the final salute.

The procession of launches will be headed by Lieut. Com. Guy Eaton, accompanied by the band, staff officers and an armed escort of eighteen sailors, in the flag ship.

Following this will come the First division cutter with a crew of thirteen men under Lieut. Scully, the Second division cutter with thirteen men under Ensign Melby, a crew of nine men under Ensign Paul Clark in the United States lifeboat, the women of the W. R. C., the G. A. R. and the Sons of Veterans.

Much interest is felt in the concert which will be presented at the Lyceum tomorrow evening for the benefit of the Episcopal Mission at Lakeside. He is said to be especially happy in his interpretation of Scotch songs and his voice is one of power and beauty.

Piano numbers will be given by Grace Senior Brearley, who needs no introduction to Duluth audiences and who is sure to give an artistic and musicianly interpretation of her numbers.

Hon. W. I. Nolan, an entertainer of Minneapolis, who is said to be exceedingly fine, will also give several selections. A large number of tickets have been sold and a number of theater parties have been arranged for the entertainment.

AT DOUBLE PAR.

Report That Calumet & Pittsburg Will Issue Stock.

The Bisbee, Ariz., correspondence of the Boston Transcript says:

"There is talk of the issuance of some of the treasury stock of the Calumet & Pittsburg company to provide funds for continuing development and to pay the debt that has accumulated. This stock will be issued at double par, or $20 a share, and probably at least $300,000 will be called. The company has 50,000 shares in its treasury. The Pittsburg has a debt of about $175,000, for money loaned it by the Calumet & Arizona and the Pittsburg & Duluth, for sinking and pumping water. The sinking of its Briggs shaft has been resumed. It is thought by the management here that the water has been so far conquered and that sinking can be steady from now on. It is 150 feet from the bottom of the shaft to the 1,100-foot level, where drifting will be undertaken."

BRITT WILL FIGHT WINNER.

San Francisco, May 30.—Jim Britt has signed with the Hayes Valley club to fight the winner of the Hanlon-Corbett battle. The match is to come off in July. The details of the match have not yet been arranged.

UGLY, BUT GAME

Big Trout With Bad Tempers In the Canadian Brooks.

One Big Trout Caught With a Sewing Machine Needle.

Lachine, Que., May 30.—The streams in the woods are lower than usual. Wide-awake trout fishermen are taking advantage of the fact.

Before the warm weather fills the air with insect life, and while the streams are cold enough to keep the bait fish in the shallow pools, is the time to go after the mysterious big speckled fellows, which year after year scarcely ever stir from their chosen holes.

Generally, the water is so turbulent and muddy, and so charged with melted snow at this season that it is not possible to set a bait before the fish. Just now the conditions are very favorable and experienced fishermen are rejoicing in the prospect of securing the best catches of the year.

There is probably not a stream known to anglers which has not some hole, perhaps an overhanging rock, beside a sunken log, or between some weed fringed stones, wherein some finny monster, far too wary to be caught at ordinary times, is not suspected of lying.

For instance, on the Little Porcupine in the Laurentides there is an old beaver dam which at one time was strengthened by props set at an angle against and below the shelving timbers. The water is black, fairly deep and still, just the place for an old trout to spend its declining years in ease and prosperity.

When the evening sun sent its slanting rays into the snug retreat, the big chap could be seen, always motionless, save for its restless jaws, and always calm, regardless of all lures suggested to its consideration by artful fishermen.

The trout was of such unusual size that it caused a busy professional man to leave important duties and to make an expedition to the old dam a few days ago. He circumvented the wary old fish by a device learned from poachers in the mother country.

He fastened a strong fine wire to a coarse sewing machine needle, which had its eye near the middle, and upon this needle he threaded a pair of dainty, well scoured worms. Carefully passing the tip of the rod to which this bait was attached into the hiding place, he held firmly to his running tackle, and when, as he expected, the trout bolted the needle, drew it as quickly as possible from between the uprights of the dam into the pool, where it might be fought more commodiously.

The fight itself was a curious one, for instead of running, the enraged old trout came to the surface and there thrashed around and around in a circle, with a prodigious amount of splashing until its strength was exhausted, and it was brought in, with the needle crosswise in its gullet.

It weighed six and one-half pounds and was of the most beautiful appearance. Its reticulated back, almost black, almost jet black, shaded to a most intense vermilion underneath, the spots on its sides being mostly violet.

Of course, fly fishing is not seasonable yet for the brook trout, but the man who dislikes bottom baiting may enjoy a good deal of sport without having recourse to still fishing. If the holes are large enough, a small metal spinner may be fastened in front of the worm baited hook, and drawn through the water, as far down as practicable.

If this is persisted in for some time, the wasteful trout will become enraged enough to make a dart for it, though he does not like the fare offered, and when one fish has been taken in this way, even though no other is suspected of inhabiting the same hole, the water should be allowed a few minutes' rest, and then further trials should be patiently made. Well concealed under or beside a stone, a companion trout will probably lie hidden, and it is very likely to be susceptible to the same influences which captured its mate.

Last year a big fellow caught in this way was doing a good deal of splashing in its flurry, when a guide cautiously inserted the net under it as he thought, and landed its companion who had not been hooked at all, but was merely keeping close to the other in token of its sympathy.

These were exactly two and three-quarter pounds each in weight, but while one was red bellied and stout, the other was silvery and slender. Which goes to show that the theory that difference in the habitat has everything to do with the changes in the complexion of these handsome fish is not capable of absolute proof.

One good fisherman, whose cunning is proverbial, got a well deserved surprise while trying for the early trout. He had long suspected that a large fish lurked under an old moss-worn bridge, across a little stream, and cautiously let down his spinner with a bait attached, between two of the logs.

Sinking this to the bottom, he was rather listlessly jerking it to the surface, and then sinking it again, when he had a heavy strike, and chancing to slip in his excitement, his hand was instantly drawn into the crevice, where it stuck. Every motion of his knees brought the old logs together and crushed his fingers, around which his stout hand line was twisted.

A friend came to his assistance, and enabled him to regain his feet and to withdraw his damaged hand. The trout kept up its strain still, and as it was impossible to land it through the crack in the bridge the men finally dragged its head out of the water, and by cautiously reaching around and under, managed to secure a five and one-half pound red trout.

It is often a cause of surprise to catch large fish in unsuspected places in tiny brooklets. There is a ditch, not a foot wide in some places, running alongside the old Massawippi River railway near the Maine-Canadian boundary line, where the writer once took seven trout which weighed together nine pounds, early in May. The bait was of tinfoil and a piece of ham for the first one, a ventral fin from the fish for the others.

The lads who commonly fished the ditch for minnows, were simply amazed as they witnessed this trouting, and inquiry showed that the oldest inhabitant had never heard of such fish being found in it. The moral of which is, that at this season of the year, if the water is suitable, it is wise to try a likely bait in every promising hole, no matter what even tradition has to say.

Some observers declare that when an old trout has taken possession of a favorable hole, it seldom if ever leaves it, and after a time becomes practically stationary in one position, subsisting upon such provender as is carried down by the stream and swept literally into its mouth.

One of the Mattawa guides has a human skull in his little house, which he found in a trout stream. He had let down a line in the early spring time to an old fish, which his sharp eyes had discovered to be lying in a deep hole beside a waterfall, and upon getting a bite, hauled up what he imagined must be a sucker from its quiet demeanor.

He was inclined to cut his line and run off, when he found he was drawing the skull to the surface, but persevered until he landed it, and found a trout had entered the brain cavity through a gash at the back, leaving its tail outside, and had remained there living upon such food as the water washed into the front of what had been the face.

It had grown into a misshapen monstrosity in the course of time, quite incapable of leaving its uncanny resting place, though probably well able to back away from it at first. The skull itself was probably that of some Indian who had been tomahawked many years before and then thrown into the icy waters of the mountain stream.

Often the largest trout are found wedged into crevices in the piers of bridges, or between rocks under banks, from whence it requires much effort to drag them, and from which the fish could certainly never have extricated themselves. Sometimes these are distorted in shape and are anything but beautiful when caught.

For instance, a nine-pound trout, caught with a worm, which was washed right into its mouth, would not leave home when hooked. Happily, before its jaws were torn asunder the youngster who owned the angling outfit jumped in, swam to the hole, and rolled away a big stone, whereupon he lifted up his prize in the tamest possible manner. All its lateral fins as well as its tail were rubbed down to elementary stubs by friction against the sides of its resting spot, and there was a deep dent in the back where its natural growth had been arrested by an overhanging rock.

It is these indolent old fellows which fishermen expect to take at season's like this one, when the water is clear enough to permit of the use of bait and the fish are hungrily awaiting the advent of summer's living things upon which they generally exist.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Nelson Will Be Tried Second Time For Selling Beer.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—Hans Nelson, who was arrested on a charge of selling beer illegally at Northwood and acquitted, will be tried at the June term of this district court, the supreme court having reversed the decision of Judge Fisk and held that the facts show that there was an unlawful sale of the beer. Nelson contended that he and several companions chipped in, bought two kegs of beer and drank it, and denied that he sold the beverage for profit. Several other similar cases in this county have been held back awaiting the decision from the higher court.

The supreme court has reversed Judge Palda in two cases from Bottineau county. George L. Vergo and Momberg & Bowers were convicted on a charge of illegally selling intoxicants, and were sentenced to serve a term in jail or to pay a fine. This was two years ago, and an appeal was taken to the higher court.

Starkweather—The Northern Investment company, with headquarters at Rock Lake, on the Farmers' road, has been organized with a capital of $50,000. The incorporators are Rasmus Sorrenson of Webster, S. D.; P. Kelley of Rock Lake and Henry Hale of Devils Lake.

The Citizens' bank of Wales has been organized with a capital of $10,000. W. J. Mooney, C. E. Johnson, John Sheehan, J. B. Mooney and E. R. Johnson of Langdon are incorporators.

Sam McMaun and Jack Sidmore were arrested and taken from McHenry county to Rolla, the former charged with receiving and disposing of stolen horses, and the latter as being an accessory, who is willing to turn state's evidence. McMaun's bonds were placed at $7,000, which he has been unable to furnish, and is now in jail awaiting the June term of court.

Devils Lake—Ramsey county teachers' institute will be held at Devils Lake June 29-31. Prof. Wicks of Valley City and Miss Alice M. Fisher of Park City, Utah, will assist in the work.

Park River—F. H. Wellcome of Minneapolis and Arnold Bros. of Park River will establish a state bank at Sarles, a new town on the Soo.

Cando—A farmers' telephone company has been organized with an office in Cando, and rights of way are being secured throughout the country.

Dunseith—Joseph Schimetz's store was broken into and clothing and provisions stolen. Horse thieves have also been operating.

Granville—Granville will celebrate the Fourth and citizens have raised $800.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Belle Fourche—The magnitude of what is known as the Belle Fourche project is becoming more apparent every day as the camps of the graders are being established along the line of the big ditch. Carloads of cement and other material required in the dam are coming in, and immense steam shovels are being taken out to the location. Belle Fourche, as a result of this activity, together with the natural advantage in a business way, is experiencing a boom such as this part of the country has never known before.

Raymond E. Walter, the engineer in charge, has been on the ground for some time, and says that he expects 500 men and several hundred teams will be employed before the summer closes. By a year hence he expects to have fully 1,000 miles of canals for the ditches and dams in connection with this project.

Aberdeen—Persons residing on the Cheyenne River agency who have visited Aberdeen, dispute the statements that great loss has occurred among livestock on the reservation because of the range fences, and that the number of cattle on the ranges owned by the Indians has decreased since the fences were built. The contrary is true. Instead of the number of cattle having decreased, it is stated that the Indians now own many more cattle than they ever did before, the more thrifty having recently bought seventy head to add to his herd. While there was some loss among reservation cattle, in most instances the loss occurred because the stock drifted before the storms into gulleys and draws and perished there. In some instances the fences caused the trouble, but these were few.

It is charged that the men who formerly enjoyed the privilege of free range on the reservation are behind the present agitation and are doing all in their power to arouse dissatisfaction among the Indians over the fence and lease system, hoping to bring about the abolishment of the system and a return to the old free range at the expiration of the present leases, two and four years hence.

Watertown—The last day of the first annual jubilee of the South Dakota Traveling Men's association closed by a grand ball in Goss Opera house. Although this dance was not a feature of the program, the boys arranged the affair Saturday afternoon and it proved very enjoyable, about two hundred traveling men attending.

CARRIES A BIG CARGO

E. H. Gary Is Loaded With 13,443 Net Tons of Ore.

Chicago, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The claims of lake shipbuilders that the modern lake vessel compares favorably with the ships of the world in carrying capacity were borne out today when the new ship E. H. Gary, loaded 12,068 gross or 13,443 net tons of iron ore at Escanaba. It is said there is not a score of ships in the world which can carry a greater dead weight than that which the Gary is now bringing to South Chicago.

The Gary was launched several weeks ago by the Chicago Shipbuilding company and her advent in the lake carrying trade has been watched with great interest among marine men, who were curious to see what a ship of her size could do. Reports indicate that she was handled without the slightest difficulty in reaching the docks at Escanaba, and it is believed she will be operated with equal facility hereafter. The Gary is the first of four sister ships ordered by the United States Steel corparation last fall and exceeded all other boats on the lakes in size and carrying capacity.

GRAFT

Is a Thing Entirely Unknown In Japan.

Chicago, May 30.—"Graft is the thing entirely unknown in Japan," said David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford university, last night, addressing one of the meetings preliminary to the regular sessions of the congress of religion.

"I venture to say," continued Dr. Jordan, "that in the present war not $100 of Japanese war funds has been stolen. On the other hand, I presume that not one dollar in twenty, if one in a hundred, on the side of the Russians ever reached its proper destination. I heard of only one dishonest Japanese while in the country, and he was one whose morals had been contaminated abroad."

Dr. Jordan's lecture was largely upon Shintoism, the chief religion in Japan, which he said, was not ancestor worship, but the spirit of living as that ancestors would not be ashamed of their descendants.

Actress Loses Her Beautiful Home to Creditors.

New York, May 30.—The financial troubles of Mrs. James Brown Potter, the actress, have culminated in bailiffs taking possession of her beautiful country home at Maidenhead, cables the London correspondent of the American.

The announcement of her latest misfortune followed close on the confession of Albert Fossdick, the solicitor, who said that the $52,000 trust fund he is accused of having stolen, was lent to Mrs. Potter for her theatrical ventures, which failed. Mrs. Potter denies that Fossdick made her any unsecured loans, but on the contrary it is claimed he demanded and received ample security and that he charged a heavy rate of interest.

LANDS

Duluth and Superior consume $7,000,000 worth of farm produce annually. All of it is shipped in from a distance.

If the Southern Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa farmer can sell us his produce so as to allow the commission man at the other end a profit, the railroad that hauls the goods a profit, the commission man at this end a profit, the refrigerator car trust a profit, the man who delivers the goods a profit—AND STILL MAKE MONEY—how much money can you make raising a better class of produce and more of them to the acre, at the door of the consumer, when you can deliver the goods yourself?

But, in order to make eight times as much profit you need the best land—it is the cheapest. If you don't think we have it look the other fellow over and then come and see us.

No stone, sand, etc. $6.00 per acre up—$1.00 per acre down, balance to suit. You should buy your land before everybody finds out that the best land near Superior and Duluth is worth 800 per cent more than we are asking for it. 75,000 acres.

DREADFUL DEATH

Six-Year-Old Child Dies as Result of Accident.

Burned While Playing—William Laplanta's Attempted Rescue.

Six-year-old Agnes Blatte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Blatte, of Main street and Central avenue, West Duluth, died about 1 o'clock this morning in the greatest agony after suffering for about seven hours from terrible burns about the face and body, received about 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon. At t he home of Carlo Jeanette, on Fifty-sixth avenue west, Agnes, with several other children about her own age, played with a lighted candle, and during some of their antics, the little one's dress took fire and she rushed, screaming, into the street.

Immediately everybody present seemed to lose presence of mind, save one, a fruit vendor, named William Laplanta, who lives at 1012 West Second street. He happened to be disposing of his wares about a block and a half away at the time, and saw the little one with clothes aflame ruhing madly about the street, and nobody seeming to help her. Laplanta ran as hard as he could to her assistance, and on reaching her tore her clothing off as rapidly as he could.

During the operation he was much burned about the hands. He was too far away when he first saw the child's condition to be able to assist her soon enough to save her life, for the little girl breathed her last at the Jeanette home early this morning.

The funeral will be held from St. James Catholic church, Thursday morning, at 9 o'clock, and interment will be in Calvary cemetery.

CITY IMPROVEMENTS

Ordered By Council at West Duluth.

The city council last night ordered the board of public works to advertise for bids for a substantial steel bridge across the Jenswold street subway, the bridge to cost in the neighborhood of $6,000. This is in keeping with the agreement of the city with the Northern Pacific Railway company when the subway was put through. The city, in return for permission granted by the company to dig a subway, promised to put over it for the use of the company a steel bridge. This should have been done a long time ago, but action has been delayed because of lack of funds.

The ordering of laying of gas mains in West Duluth by the water department was approved and the mains will be laid as follows: In alley between Central and Fifty-sixth avenue west, from Gosnold to Ramsey streets; in Gosnold street from Fifty-seventh avenue west to alley between Fifty-fourth and Central avenues; in alley between Fifty-fourth and Central avenues, from Gosnold street to Northern Pacific right-of-way; in alley between Central and Fifty-sixth avenues from Grand avenue to Elinor street; in alley between Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth avenues west from Grand avenue to Elinor street; in alley between Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh avenues west from Grand avenue to Elinor street, and in Fifty-seventh avenue from Grand to Highland avenues.

YOUNG WOMEN TOO

Will Have Athletic Organization With N. S. C.

A preliminary organization meeting of young women of the Westminster Presbyterian church was held last evening at the N. S. C. club rooms. It is proposed to form a young women's athletic club in connection with the N. S. C., which is the young men's club. Another meeting will be held Monday night at which officers will be elected.

The N. S. C. is having its "hare and hound" chase this morning. The start was made at 9:30 from the club rooms on Sixty-fourth avenue west, and will be finished by noon, or shortly after. This afternoon a basket ball game between picked teams of the club will be held at the gymnasium.

Moving the Machinery.

The machinery which has occupied the old car works is practically all out now, two carloads being shipped yesterday to the F. E. Satterlee company of Minneapolis. The building is being painted and repaired and will soon be in shape for the Keyser Box factory, which will take possession shortly.

All Stores Closed.

All the stores in West Duluth are closed up today in observance of Memorial day and everybody and his brother has gone fishing. Among those who have gone are E. J. Zauft and family to Rocky Run; Roger Weaver and party to Fond du Lac, and Oscar Moe and a large party to Cloquet river.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The W. C. T. U. will soon give an entertainment for the purpose of raising enough money to complete the Y. M. C. A. building site fund which they have started.

Prescriptions at cost at Spencer's drug store, postoffice corner.

Mrs. A. Lofgren, who has been visiting here, returned to her home in Ada, Minn., yesterday.

George Peterson of West Duluth will soon leave for his homestead near Ray, N. D., and will bring back with him a string of horses.

Reduced prices on drugs and sundries until June 1st—Olander's.

The West Duluth Tennis club will elect officers at L. A. Barnes' office Friday evening. The matter of grounds will be settled on at the same time.

DISMISSED THE JURY.

Federal Court Learns of Attempted Bribery.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 30.—One of the most dramatic incidents in the history of criminal proceedings in Northern Iowa occurred in the federal court here yesterday, when Judge Reed dismissed the jury because of attempted bribery, fined one juror and directed that an information be filed charging a prominent banker and politician with contempt of court.

The trial of W. E. Brown, cashier of the wrecked Storm Lake National bank, for the alleged misappropriation of $100,000, was interrupted and a juror, James Carter of Sioux Rapids and Banker Fred Watkins of Hawarden, brother-in-law of Brown, were sharply questioned relative to alleged jury tampering.

They told conflicting stories, and in the end Carter admitted that Watkins had approached him in a saloon and volunteered to "loan" him $2,300. The trial would have gone to the jury last night. A new trial is rendered necessary by the dismissal of the jury. Watkins is one of the best known politicians in the Eleventh district.

WILL UNITE IN REPORT.

Senators Clapp and Dolliver on Rate Question.

Washington, May 30.—Before leaving for St. Paul, Senator Moses E. Clapp admitted that Senator Dolliver and himself had agreed to unite on a report on railroad rate legislation.

He said that there was a division of opinion among the Republican members of the committee and that he could not support some of the views advocated by the Eastern and some of the Western senators.

"Senator Dolliver and myself will work together on a report," said Senator Clapp. "We will have to go over all of the hearings which took place during the session of congress last winter, and those which have recently adjourned and then report. I do not expect that there will be an extra session in October. If any is called, I think it will be in November."

JAPS LOST ONLY THREE TORPEDO BOATS IN SEA FIGHT; ROJESTVENSKY IN HOSPITAL WITH SKULL FRACTURED

THREE SECTION MEN TERRIBLY MANGLED BY TRAIN AT WEST DULUTH

Struck By Missabe Engine While Watching Ore Train Climb Hill.

One Has Both Legs Cut Off, Another One, and Third Badly Hurt.

While watching an ore train that was puffing up the steep hill, back of West Duluth, three section men failed to notice a Duluth, Missabe & Northern engine and caboose that were dropping rapidly and silently down the steep grade. All three men were struck and thrown from the track by the engine.

The engine and caboose were stopped and run back to the scene of the accident as rapidly as possible. All three men were lying beside the track unconscious. One man, named Peter Lund, had both legs severed from his body, just above the knees.

John Olson, another of the men, had one leg cut off, while the third man, Olaf Larson, was badly injured internally.

The three bodies were picked up and placed in the caboose by the train crew.

One man was then sent to turn in a telephone call for Stewart's and the city ambulance, while the engine carried the injured men into the Union depot, where the ambulances were awaiting them when they arrived. They were immediately taken to St. Mary's hospital, where doctors were waiting to dress their wounds.

Peter Lund, with both legs hanging to his body by only thin segments of flesh, is in a terribly mangled condition, and when taken into the hospital bore more the appearance of a dead man than a live one.

John Olson, with one of his legs almost severed from the body, is also very badly injured. He is terribly weakened by the loss of blood on the trip down from the scene of the accident, and grave fears are entertained for him.

The extent of Olaf Larson's injuries is unknown. As far as can be seen he has nothing but a few bruises, but he was unconscious, and is believed to be very badly injured internally. His condition, it is feared, is equally as critical as that of Peter Lund who had both legs severed from his body.

Members of the train crew said they did not know just how the accident occurred. The engine was backing down the hill, pulling the caboose behind it. Just as it reached the incline road running to Bay View Heights, it met an ore train coming up the hill. The section men evidently did not hear the engine, on account of the noise made by the ore train puffing up the steep grade, and before they could move it was on them.

The accident happened at about 10:30 o'clock this morning.

The roadmaster at Proctor was reached over the telephone this morning and questioned concerning the men injured. He stated that he had received nothing but a telegraphic report of the accident from the engineer, giving the names of the men and the extent of their injuries. He could not state definitely whether or not the men were married, but said he thought they were all single men. They had been employed on a section crew repairing the readbed and tracks.

Later—Peter Lund, the man who had both legs severed, died at the hospital shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon. The other two men are reported to be in better condition, and they may both recover.

MRS. ROGERS WILL GET ANOTHER REPRIEVE.

Montpelier, Vt., May 31.—Chief Justice Rowell of the state supreme court today refused to grant a writ of error in the case of Mrs. Mary M. Rogers, condemned to death for the murder of her husband. Governor Bell, however, announced that he would grant the woman another reprieve for a short time in order that her attorney's might have an opportunity to bring the matter before one of the justices of the supreme court. Justice Rowell declared that no federal question was involved.

MORTON TO MANAGE N. Y. SUBWAY SYSTEM

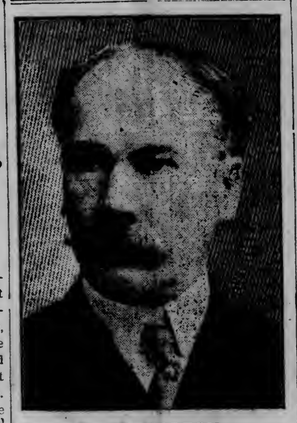
Secretary Will Leave the Cabinet the First of July.

Intimates Successor Is Selected But Refuses to Name Him.

Washington, May 31.—After a conference with the president, lasting about an hour today, Secretary Morton announced, on leaving the White House, that he expected to retire from the cabinet on July 1. He has determined his future plans, but at the moment he did not care to say what they were. He added, however, that later in the day, probably, he would make a formal announcement of his intentions.

Secretary Morton declined to say whether his successor had been determined on or not, but intimated that he had been selected.

It is learned authoritatively that Secretary Morton will assume the general management of the New York subway system.



PAUL MORTON.

BUSINESS PORTION OF WARROAD BURNED

Bad Fire In Northern Minnesota Town Does $200,000 Damage.

St. Paul, May 31.—A special to the Dispatch from Warroad, Minn., says: The business portion of Warroad was practically destroyed by fire today. Loss $200,000.

MORE COAL DRIVERS GO OUT ON STRIKE

Refuse to Deliver Coal to Express Companies and Are Fired.

Chicago, May 31.—Three more coal yards were affected by a spread of the strike to the Henry E. Weaver Coal company today. The men refused to deliver fuel to the American Express company and were discharged. Their places were filled by men from the Employers' Teaming company. This is the first strike of coal teamsters in three weeks.

Fear of incendiarism has caused the police to reinforce the guard at the lumber yards of the Hines company and other large concerns. Particular care is being taken of the South end of the yards, where the trouble is expected. Even a river patrol has been organized and the surveillance is being maintained night and day.

Chicago, May 31.—After twenty-four hours' truce, occasioned by the general closing down of business for the Decoration day holiday, employers and teamsters resumed the strike struggle today with the situation as it was Monday, and little prospect for any immediate change.

The Employers' Teaming company eclipsed its previous records today, sending out between 2,500 and 2,600 teamsters. Every driver that could be spared was sent to the lumber district, in order to facilitate deliveries by the lumber concerns involved in the strike, and additional police protection was asked.

A further spread of the strike among lumber firms was looked for today. Firms connected with the Millmen's association, employing 125 drivers, are pledged to make deliveries to strike-bound houses, and it was expected that several of these concerns would be affected today.

Slugging of strike-breakers continues. James Spencer of Kansas City, who had been employed as a driver for a department store, was reported to the police today as having been attacked by three men and left unconscious on the prairie. According to Spencer the men forced him to get on a Wentworth avenue street car. Spencer protested, and called to the street car conductor for assistance. The conductor, however, refused to aid. At the end of the car line the trio took Spencer from the car and beat him into insensibility. Several hours afterward he was found by a pedestrian, who brought Spencer to a hospital.

Court proceedings and legal steps in connection with the strike were resumed today. In the federal court sixty men were cited by Judge Kohlsaat to appear and answer charges of violation of injunctions. In the contempt cases, heard last week, in which Bernard Mulligan and John H. Donahue were sentenced to terms of imprisonment, Attorney Geeting completed habeas corpus papers, and prepared exhaustive argument of the question of constitutional rights. Demands by Attorneys Losky and Mayer, each for contempt orders for the other, were scheduled to come up before Judge Kohlsaat. Others of the interests involved in the strike, including strikeleaders and members of the employers' executive committee, were before the grand jury.

WILL GIVE $1,900 A DAY

For Teamsters' Benefit Instead of Sympathetic Strike.

New York, May 31.—Positive announcement has been made that there will be no sympathetic strike in New York to help the Chicago teamsters. Instead of quitting their jobs, the New York union drivers, who number 38,000, will be assessed 5 cents, or $1,900 a day. Previously the sum of $1,000 a day had been given to the strikers, but the local union decided to raise the assessment and continue it as long as the strike lasted. Conferences have been held for several days, in which the question of a sympathetic strike has been discussed, and finally it was decided to give the fund instead.

"We made up our minds," said International Organizer Moynihan, "that a sympathetic strike would be no good, but that we could aid the Chicago strikers more effectively by providing them with financial assistance, which we could not give if the men in New York struck."

AMERICANS STILL LEADING.

London, May 31.—In the third round of the ladies' golf championship contest at Cromer today, Miss Mary Adams of Boston beat Miss E. A. Chase by 4 up and 2 to play; Mrs. W. H. Martin (American) beat Mrs. Harland by 5 up and 4 to play, and Miss Pearson beat Miss Ethel Burnett (American) by 6 up and 5 to play.

Former Commander of Russian Fleet Is a Prisoner of Japanese at Sasebo.

Washington, May 31.—The state department has received the following cablegram from Tokio, dated today:

"Rojestvensky's skull fractured, requiring operation; serious but not dangerous. Total Japanese losses three torpedo boats sunk, three officers killed, about 200 men killed and disabled."

The following cablegram has been received at the state department from Minister Griscom, dated Tokio, today, 12:30 p. m.:

Washington, May 31.—The Japanese legation today received the following report from Tokio:

"It is officially announced that in the last naval battle the damages sustained by our fleet were very slight. None of our battleships, cruisers, destroyers and other ships was lost, except three torpedo boats.

"Under imperial command, Admiral Togo was authorized to permit Nebogatoff to submit to the czar the reports on the last battle, and a list of Russian killed, wounded and prisoners. The admiral was also authorized to release, on parole, the surrendered officers of the Nicholai I, Orel, Apraxine and Senyavin.

"Rojestvensky was taken to Sasebo naval hospital. No other admiral was captured from the Biedovy, the last report in this respect being due to clerical errors."

Commander Iaam Talleshita, naval attache of Japan to the United States, was at the White House early today and communicated the above information to the president.

GROMOBOI IS SAFE.

Report of Her Sinking Is Pronounced Incorrect.

St. Petersburg, May 31, 1:50 p. m.—The admiralty denies the report telegraphed to the London Daily Express, that the cruiser Gromoboi of the Vladivostok fleet had been sunk with nearly 800 men on board. A message was received from Capt. Broussikoff, her commander, last night which it was believed was sent by wireless telegraphy to Vladivostok. Vice Admiral Skrydloff, who was reported to be on board the Gromoboi, is in St. Petersburg. The Gromoboi sailed out of Vladivostok Saturday as soon as Admiral Rojestvensky was reported to have arrived in the Straits of Korea, but admiralty declines to say whether the Gromoboi was engaged.

The admiralty had no further news to communicate this morning. A report of the battle, however, has been received from the captain of the Russian transport Korea, now at Woosung, and it is also understood that the emperor has received a comunication from Japan, possibly from Rear Admiral Nebogatoff or Admiral Rojestvensky.

BUT ONE SHIP

Reaches Vladivostok, According to Meyer's Dispatch.

Washington, May 31.—The following dispatch has been received at the state department from Ambassador Meyer at St. Petersburg:

"Russian ship Almaz the only Russian ship arrived. Captain reports he saw the Souvaroff sink. Rojestvensky wounded. Safely lowered aboard torpedo boat Buiny. Not yet heard from."

THIRTY-SIX VESSELS

In Russian Fleet on Entering the Straits.

Tokio, May 31.—A warrant officer of the repair ship Kamtchatka, who landed at Moji, says:

"Our fleet entered the straits of Korea numbering thirty-six vessels. The Kamtchtka received several shots and was partly disabled. Finally a shot struck a vital part and sixty men entered boats. When they were clear a great explosion occurred and the ship sank. The captain and seven officers were killed during the battle. Two officers were wounded and two jumped overboard. Three other officers were drowned.

"We could see our battleships to the northward enveloped by the Japanese. Seemingly they were badly damaged."

TOGO TO YAMAMOTO.

Minister of the Navy's Reply to Togo.

Tokio, May 31.—Admiral Togo had wired Admiral Yamamoto, minister of the navy as follows:

"The main force of the Russian second and third fleets is nearly annihilated. Please feel assured of it."

Admiral Yamamoto, minister of the navy, today sent the following telegram to Admiral Togo:

"The enemy's second and third squadrons successfully overcoming the difficulties attending their voyage eastward showed themselves no mean power but your squadron intercepting them in advance of their destination put them to confusion, and destroyed and captured nearly all their units.

"Your victory does not end here. You captured the enemy's commander-in-chief. It is most gratifying for our national cause that you achieved such a victory.

"We send sincere congratulations and take occasion to praise the virtue of the emperor, to thank you and those under you for the onerous service extending over many months and to express sympathy for the killed and wounded."

RUSSIAN CAPTAIN'S STORY.

Commander Who Reached Vladivostok Tells of Battle.

Vladivostok, May 31.—The Russian protected cruiser Almaz and the torpedo boat Grozy have arrived here. Officers of the Almaz and the Gronzy say that both fleets had already terrible losses when the Almaz and Gronzy broke through the hostile line.

Of the Japanese two battleships had gone down before their eyes and two cruisers, their sterns high out of the water seemed ready to plunge head foremost to the bottom of the sea.

The Russian fleet, they say, was even in a sadder plight.

Rojestvensky's flagship, the Kueoz Souvaroff and her sister ship, the Bododino and the cruisers Osliabia and Orel were utterly destroyed, and when the fog closed down and hid the scene of battle from sight northward of the speeding ships, a third great Russian battleship, the Alexander III, seemed in sore distress, but limping northward, putting up a valiant fight against throngs of torpedo boats, and still continuing her attacks on the cruisers of the island empire.

Torpedo boats were also clinging

DRUNK WITH WAR—WILL HE EVER REFORM?

RUSSIAN MINISTERS IN FAVOR OF PEACE

Extraordinary Council Is Held at Tsarskoe Selo Palace.

St. Petersburg, May 31, 5:35 p. m.—The seriousness of the situation created by the complete destruction of the Russian fleet seems to be fully realized at Tsarskoe Selo, where the emperor has assembled practically all the members of the imperial family to decide on the course to pursue. A series of conferences are proceeding which will determine not only the question of peace, but whether it is advisable to yield to the popular demand for the immediate convocation of a national assemby. Some of the members of the imperial family are understood to be urging the emperor to retrieve the situation by making common cause with the people against the bureaucracy. The emperor has decided to send his brother, Grand Duke Michael, to attend the marriage of Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany, instead of his uncle, Grand Duke Vladimir, whose more mature judgment and advice the emperor regards as very important in the present crisis.

Prince Ouktomsky in the Rasviet this afternoon declares for peace in a half-distracted editorial in which he takes the whole world to task for shutting its eyes to the yellow peril.

"All the nations, blind to the future," said the prince, "are fawning upon victorious Japan. Great Britain, rejoicing in Russia's fall, utters her sarcastic condolences, and America sends Secretary Taft and a party of eccentric American ladies to visit the land of the mikado. France, in fear for Indo-China, allows Japan to boss her about, while the crowned Hohenzollern, who a few years ago sounded a solemn warning to the Aryan race, rushed to the station at Berlin to greet the little yellow prince Arisugawa and showers him with attentions."

This afternoon the emperor summoned Admiral Alexieff and all the ministers to an extraordinary council. This was Foreign Minister Lamsdorff's regular day for receiving the foreign representatives and when he got the imperial command he hastily sent the representatives a notice that he could not receive them.

The Associated Press was informed that all ministers with the exception of the ministers of war and marine unanimously favor the conclusion of peace.

No trouble is anticipated in meeting the payment of an indemnity, as financiers who were not willing to lend money for a continuation of the war, are ready to accommodate Russia if money is needed to conclude peace.

COLORED INK

SINGERS COME

Norwegian Students Receive Royal Welcome From Duluthians.

Reception at Spalding—Splendid Concert at the Lyceum.

To the Norwegians of Duluth the visit of the Norwegian Students' Choral union from the university of Christiania, Norway, was an occasion which will live long in their memory. They were received with a lavish hospitality, as is characteristic of the sturdy Norseman, and the purpose of their visit, that of giving a concert of Norwegian songs in chorus, seemed to be not the only one.

The singers arrived on the Omaha train in the afternoon. Previous to that time about 200 people, comprising members of the Normanna and Svea singing societies and Norwegian and Swedish residents of the city, assembled at the Masonic Temple building, and, headed by the Third Regiment band, proceeded to the depot to welcome the guests.

Upon their arrival they were escorted to the Spalding, which was their headquarters during their stay, and an informal reception was held. The lobby was jammed with people. Over the great fireplace was a banner bearing the word "Velkommen," and everywhere welcome and joyousness over the visit of the men from the fatherland were in evidence.

H. B. Knudsen was chairman of the committee on arrangements, and he introduced Rev. H. K. Madsen, pastor of the First Norwegian Methodist church, who delivered an address of welcome. He expressed the great pleasure which the visit of the singers brought to the people of their nationality in Duluth. The ties that binds to the fatherland those who have left it is still strong, and their leaving was not because they did not love it, but because America opened to them greater opportunities. This visit, he said, kindles the affection for the old home with new warmth.

"When you sing we shall see the old homes, the green fields, the distant snow-capped mountains glittering in the sunlight, the creeks and rivers through the shadows of memory," said he. "And in our imagination we shall hear the murmur of the waterfalls and sounds that were familiar to the ears of our childhood.

"You have been honored in this country, and you have other honors before you. In honoring you we are ourselves honored, as in the country of Ibsen, Bjorson, Nansen, Grieg, Bull and many others.

"The sons of Norway have prospered in the New World. They are found in many of the high walks of life. Some have been or are senators, congressmen, governors, professors of colleges or universities and teachers. Others are successful in business and the many professions.

"When you go out to the Dakotas and see a fine farm with a white house and a red barn, the chances are that a Norwegian lives there. You may carry home that old Mother Norway need not be ashamed of the sons she has sent to the New World across the Atlantic.

"We bid you welcome to Duluth, the finest city in the world. It is fifty miles long, two miles wide and half a mile high. It has the finest water in the world. Its citizens are among the most hospitable and enterprising in this or any other country. If you but understand even in part the pleasure that we feel in your visit we shall be glad."

On behalf of the Swedish residents of the city, Rev. Lewis Rietz delivered an address of welcome.

M. Puntervold of the students delivered a feeling response and several songs were sung, closing with the Norwegian national hymn "Ja va elsker Dettre" by the visitors and "America" by the Normanna and Svea choruses.

In the evening the concert at the Lyceum was attended by a crowd that taxed the capacity of the house to its utmost. The chorus is a finely rehearsed, well drilled and well balanced one, with good blending of voices, clear enunciation and tonal quality. The director, O. A. Grondahl, is a man of wide experience and thorough musicianship, being also a composer of several works that have won favor in Europe and America. He is void of all mannerism and outward eccentricity and shows ease and deliberation in his work.

The concert opened with the singing of "Norge, Norge," ("Norway, Norway"), by Selmer, a patriotic and grand number, which enthused the Norwegian spirit. After the rendition of this number the director was presented with an armful of American beauty roses. This was followed by "Solvirkning" ("The Effect of the Sun"), by H. Kjerulf, a number in contrast to the first, being more dainty. "Skjectevise" a facetious ditty by P. Heise, caught the house by storm and had to be repeated. A number, "Ung Magnus," depicting the blinding of young King Magnus, words by Bjornson, and music by Grondahl, the director, with bass solo by Berg Hansen, a young man with much promise, did not bring out all there could have been done with it. Mr. Hansen has a rich, smooth and even voice, but is inclined to be "throaty" in the upper register, his intonation is good, but there seems to be a lack of pathos in the rendition of this number. The same might be said of the chorus also. It is a grand work from a composer's standpoint and much more could be made out of it than was last night. "Boudefaerden i Hardanger" ("Bridal party on the Hardanger Fjord"), by Kjerulf, showed fine shading and beautiful tone color.

After this number H. B. Knudsen presented the students with a wreath of roses, in the center of which was set a picture of the Normanna Mandskar of Duluth, which was accepted with applause by the students and the rendition of "The Singers' Greeting" by Grieg. A song "Spring," by Sig. Tie, was another beautiful number, which was followed by two humorous numbers by Bellman, "Joachim in Babylon," and "At the Breakfast of Ulla Windblad," each arranged by Reissiger.

Reissiger's "Olaf Trygvason" has been heard on several occasions here, but received an interpretation last night that made it interesting to those who would want to draw comparisons. Mr. Grondahl is an authority on Norwegian chorus singing, and his tempi and diction in this number were different in some respects to those used as a rule. It might be said here that the students excel more in the dainty numbers, where fine tone quality and legato singing count for much. "Olaf Trygvasson" is an heroic number, that needs much abandon and a free spirit.

"Das Atlantische Meer" (The Atlantic Ocean"), a German drinking song by Zoellner, was sung in German, and received a good rendition, but was not appreciated to the degree that some of the others were, because the audience failed to understand the text.

A serenade "Afteroster" (Voices of the Evening"), by Oscar Borg, with bass solo by Mr. Hansen, was a beautiful number in every way.

A humorous lullaby, a folksong, "Brumbrask'oen i Bumba," by Valders, arranged by Grieg, was sung by Messrs. Hammer and Hansen and chorus and brought forth applause that would not cease until the numoer was repeated.

Ralf Hammer is the tenor soloist with the chorus and he sang Grieg's "Den store hvide Flok" ("The Great White Host"), a sacred number, and Haarklou's "Varde" ("The Beacon"), with chorus obligato. He has a pleasing voice of good, clear quality and some power, but did not seem at his best last evening. Haarklou's "The Beacon" was the gem of the evening and was a fitting ending to a most enjoyable program of chorus singing. After this, the last number on the program, the audience remained in their seats and demanded an encore—the students responding with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," and later while the audience was standing, with the national anthem of Norway.

After the concert there was a smoker in the sun parlor of the Spalding, during which there were speeches and merry-making and songs by the students and the Normanna Mandskor of Duluth.

This forenoon the visitors were taken over the boulevard for a drive and this afternoon they left for a boat ride around the harbor and Superior, where they sing this evening.

SCORE OF WORKMEN BURIED BY CAVE-IN.

Montrose, Col., May 31.—A cave-in occurred yesterday in the Gunnison tunnel, one of the large irrigation projects of the United States government, entombing a number of workmen variously estimated at from twenty to twenty-five. It is not likely that any of the men are dead unless they were caught and crushed to death by the falling earth, for the air pump pipes running into the tunnel have been working almost without interruption since the accident happened at 10 in the morning. By order of Resident Manager Connell all work on the tunnel has been suspended and the entire force of men and machinery have been brought to the scene of the cave-in to rescue the men. No headway can be made in the tunnel for the reason that new breaks in the roof of the tunnel occur as fast as the debris is removed. A shaft is being sunk directly over the spot where the men are buried and machinery is in place to remove the dirt and rock as fast as it can be dug or blown out. The shaft must penetrate sixty-five feet before the tunnel can be reached and it is not thought that the distance can be covered short of tomorrow noon. The cave-in occurred beneath the bed of Cesar creek and was primarily due to the softened earth caused by seepage from the creek.

SCHOONER CARRIES A DANGEROUS CARGO.

New York, May 31.—When the four-masted schooner Goodwin Bark, sailed for San Juan, Porto Rico, yesterday, she was an immense floating bombshell. Her cargo described by old riven men as the most dangerous that ever left New York in a sailing vessel, consisted of gasoline and naphtha, the former in 50 drums containing fifty gallons each, and the latter in 100 cases. In the hold with a large quantity of gun powder was packed away five tons of dynamite. The captain ordered that any member of the crew found smoking should be thrown overboard.

What Will County Board Do About New Courthouse?

Commissioners to Hold June Meeting on Wednesday Next.

The regular June meeting of the board of county commissioners will be held one week from today. Already there is considerable inquiry made by citizens as to when the board will meet and what it is likely to do about the new courthouse matter.

The date of the meeting is the only certain thing about it, some of those who have been watching the proceedings of the commissioners claim, and the fact that the members of the board themselves are not inclined to predict what action will be taken has given the impression that each one is waiting until the meeting day to "size up the situation" before expressing any opinion as to what is likely to be done.

Some have gained the idea that the commissioners have not determined on a site for the new courthouse. This is a mistaken notion, for the action taken by the board at the last meeting, held during the early part of the month, fixes the site to be condemned as the half block on the upper side of Second street between Second and Third avenues West and running back to Second alley.

By this, it is explained by one of the commissioners, the board's action is not irrevocable, for the commissioners can at the next meeting, or any succeeding meeting, reconsider the resolution on a site and select another, before the condemnation proceedings are instituted.

The general sentiment is, however, that the commissioners will be inclined to let that matter rest, in view of the fact that the majority of taxpayers who have thus far expressed themselves seem to be pretty well satisfied with the location.

The thing which the people and some of the commissioners are just now speculating about is the disposition that will be made of the resolution that will have to be adopted by the board, notifying the district court judges that the county has need of a courthouse and setting the amount that may be spent for it, before a commission can be appointed to erect the building.

The resolution is still in a condition that might be stated as "on ice," not having recovered from the chill it received when Commissioner Patterson introduced it at the last meeting and not a voice came out in support. The resolution is still on the clerk's spindle and will be available whenever the board gets ready to notify the judges.

In spite of the fact that an attempt was made to patch up the courthouse commission matter among the Duluth legislators by changing the original bill so that the balance of power will still rest with the county board after the commission is appointed, the county commissioners are resentful because the courthouse commission bill was ever pased at all and they show a disposition not to hurry matters in the way of making it possible for the court to appoint the special commission. The law says the county board can pass its resolution whenever it gets ready to do so and the matter can be postponed indefinitely from month to month if the commissioners so wish.

There has been some talk by a few that the county board might in some way around the law so that the commissioners could go ahead and build the courthouse without the special commission to superintendent it. Not much stock is taken, however, in that sort of talk. Even if it were possible that some way could be found to evade the letter of the law, none of the county commissioners is going to take any chances of doing something that might result in a declaration of illegality by the court.

As time progresses there seems to be a growing sentiment on the part of members of the board that they do not particularly long for the appointment on the special commission and some taxpayers have facetiously remarked that the board will not pass the resolution because each county commissioner is afraid he will be one of the five members named.

ENJOYED DAY

Thousands Throng City Parks and Places of Amusement.

Fine Weather Brings Out Many Boats and Launches.

The fine weather of yesterday resulted in the visit of hundreds of Duluthians to the cemeteries to honor the dead, during the morning, and of thousands of people to the parks and other popular places of recreation and amusement in the afternoon and evening.

The Lester Park car line was taxed to its utmost to handle the crowds during the afternoon and evening, though the street railway company, beginning at noon and continuing until late last night, gave a 10-minute service. Chester park, Lincoln park in the West end and even Fairmont park at West Duluth were very popular with the crowds from those respective portions of the city during the morning and evening.

On Park Point the crowds in the afternoon and evening were record-breakers. Oatka beach was thronged last evening, the dance being attended by about 500 persons.

The pleasure to be derived from rides on the bay and lake proved a strong attraction for a great many people yesterday afternoon, at which period the bay was dotted with sail boats, launches and rowboats. Many of the boats ran out through the canal into the lake. Only one accident through boating was reported yesterday, and that was not serious. Early last evening Harry Nelson of this city capsized in his canoe at the edge of deep water off Oatka beach. He was able to wade in shore, with the canoe full of water, and the only unpleasant consequence was the notoriety which the accident gave him, the accident seeming to be a novel thing for the crowd along the bay shore.

A large number of people patronized the steamboat lines to Fond du Lac and to Two Harbors, both in the morning and in the afternoon.

Several of the local automobile enthusiasts took advantage of the holiday and pleasant weather to take their families for a long spin out into the country, where dinners were spread at convenient spots and the return trip made during ho afternoon.

A SERIES OF MARRIAGES

Matrimonial Chain Extending Unbroken Over Just 170 Years.

Frankfort, Germany, May 31.—A friend and former fellow student who is now minister of the Lutheran church, in B, a small town in the Duchy of Hesse-Darmstadt, drew my attention to a series of marriages—a "matrimonial chain," as he called it—that extends unbroken over a span of just 170 years.

He gave me permission to copy this chain from the church records. Here it is:

October 18, 1735—Johannes Heide, farmer and blacksmith, aged 23 years, was married to Josephine Mussig, aged 19.

Josephine, who had borne her husband four sons and three daughters, died 1775, and on Jan. 12, 1776, Johannes—"much to the chagrin of his children," writes the person—married again, this time to Marie Stubel, aged 25.

Their married bliss lasted but two years, for on September 23, 1778, Johannes Heide departed this life.

On March 17, 1779, the young widow threw off her weeds and married Carl Ehlers, a printer, and they both remained together, "tolerably happy," seventeen years, when Maria went to the unknown hereafter.

Single bliss was not the thing for Carl Ehlers, for we see his name again in the records January 23, 1799: "Married to Julie Hoch." The dominie was evidently no friend of Julie, for he writes:

"So she caught a man at last, the red-headed hussy; if he but knew that she cares but for his acres; poor Carl!"

And later, under date of March 27, 1799, he writes:

"So the red Vixen has run away from Carl; I must go and congratulate him."

And again in November of the same year:

"So she did get the coveted acres; oh, for her false swearing! But Carl says no price is too high for pay for getting rid of her."

On June 14, 1801, we see Carl Ehlers again, among the newly wedded—as her death is not recorded he must have been divorced from Julie—this time to Ruth Stark, aged 35, and a year later the birth of a son, Carl Hermann Ehlers, is recorded. The parson writes:

On November 30, 1824, Carl Ehlers departed this life, and on October 26, 1826, Ruth Ehlers, now 60 years of age, married Stephen Liebert, 30 years her junior, because the farm requirers a young master.

On August 13, 1841, Ruth followed her dear first, and on November 24, 1842, Stephen weds Marie Schulte, aged 21. In 1866 they celebrated their silver wedding, but one month later, December 24, 1867, he "lay him down and died."

On June 29, 1869, Marie Liebert weds Conrad Schmelz, who was of her age, and strange enough with him, too, she could celebrate her silver wedding and, strangerstill, exactly one month after, July 29, 1894, she died.

Conrad Schmelz, now 75 years old, once more steps before the altar and marries Luise Heide, 26 year of age.

On August 30, 1896, Conrad closes his eyes, and January 17, 1899, his widow is married to the Rev. Dr. Johannes Hide, the minister to whom I am indebted for this strange record.

JAY BEATS OLDFIELD.

Chicago, May 31.—Webb Jay of the Chicago Automobile club carried off the honors in the final day's racing of the automobile meet at Harlem yesterday. In a ten-mile heat, breaking drive with Barney Oldfield, Jay won the $1,000 cash prize in the fast time of 9:49 2-5. In addition to this the Chicago man defeated Louis Chevrolett, the Frenchman in a five-mile special race for a purse of $500. Jay's time in this event was 4:58.

PATHETIC DRAMA

In Real Life Has Just Been Played In Italy.

Count Macola Breaks Down Under Seven Years' Persecution.

Rome, May 30.—What is probably though not certainly, its last act, has just been played in a pathetic drama in real life. It has been a parliamentary drama, the chief players, with two exceptions, having been members of the Italian chamber of deputies, while the chamber itself has been the theater in which most of the action has passed.

The beginning goes back seven years, when the Italian chamber of deputies was enlivened by the wit and fighting qualities of two bitter antagonists, Felice Cavallotti, the Radical leader, and Count Ferruccio Macola, the Conservative deputy. Cavallotti, besides being one of the most striking figures in parliament, was an eloquent writer, a dramatist, and a duelist. Not hampered and impulsive, he was the idol of the Italian Radicals.

His rival, Count Ferruccio Macola, was the antithesis of Cavallotti in nearly every respect, except that of being a fighter, violent and dogged. For many months the men had opposed each other in bitter debate, and their adherents dreaded the day when they should come to an open rupture. The day came in the early part of March, 1898. The matter about which Macola and Cavallotti quarreled was technical, but heated language was used. The friends of both, however, did all in their power to smooth the affair over, and it was generally believed that they had been successful, when all Rome was startled by hearing that there was to be a duel between the two deputies.

The combat was precipitated by Cavallotti, who, although he was then 56 years old, overfat and extremely short-sighted, was determined to fight. He already had fought thirty-five duels, and regarded himself as invincible.

"I must have my thirty-sixth battle," he is reported to have said. "I don't want the fellow's life, but I'm determined to let out some of that thick blood of his."

Count Macola, on the other hand, had no wish to meet his rival, although he had no special reason to fear the issue, for he was not only Cavallotti's equal as a swordsman, but had the advantage of him in years, being only 37. Macola also had many successful duels to his credit. He did all he could to avoid the encounter, but it was forced upon him.

The scene of the duel was a villa far outside the Maggiore gate of Rome, belonging to Countess Cellere. She had been a great beauty and friend of all the latter day great men of Italy. Her friendship with Cavallotti was said to have been more than platonic. The countess watched the combat from a window.

At about 11 o'clock in the morning the combatants arrived. Macola was steady and cool. Cavalotti was burning to show himself still the invincible swordsman. In the third assault Macola, on guard, was furiously attacked by the radical leader, who, aiming for his opponent's breast, was absolutely spitted on the conservative's sword, which entered Cavallotti's mouth, although Macola had not moved his weapon.

Cavalotti tottered and fell. The seconds and doctors were aroused from their trance by screams and the cry of "assassin!" from the countess, who, deserting her window, had gone to the scene and was sitting on the ground with Cavalotti's head in her lap.

"You have killed him," she cried, turning menacingly upon Macola. " curse you and all your blood!"

Cavalotti looked once into the eyes of the grief stricken countess, half smiled, and died.

Countess Cellere was like a woman distraught. She rose and seized Cavalotti's sword and would have flung herself on his opponent.

What the authorities thought of Macola's responsibility for his rival's death is shown by the fact that the proceedings against him were purely formal and that he was not even obliged to resign his seat in the chamber. But for the count what was to be a life-long tragedy had begun. He brooded over the catastrophe, and he never was allowed to forget it. The members of the extreme left, the dead man's parliamentary friends determined to revenge him by incessanting persecution of his involuntary slayer.

That persecution has been carried on with a relentlessness almost unbelievable. Cavallotti's friends absolutely refused to allow Macola to speak in the house, but vilified, attacked, and boycotted him at every turn, often showing a heartless ingenuity in the torture they inflicted. If the count rose to speak his opening sentences would be drowned by cries of "Cavallotti, who murdered Cavalotti?" and hisses, whistles, insults, and threats of physical violence would follow until the unfortunate deputy sat down in despair.

This unequal contest has lasted for nearly seven years, which for Macola have been years of weariness, illness, and discouragement—with occasional flashes of his old brilliancy and wit, love of controversy, and joy in public life.

What the public believes to be the last scene in the tragedy was enacted the other day. For many months Count Macola had not attended parliament. But he fancied he might be allowed to speak.

As he rose, notes in hand, to begin his address a hush of expectation fell on the house. Then, without a word, the entire extreme left rose and left the hall. Macola turned pale, but, glancing at his notes, began his speech. Suddenly, however, he stopped, hesitated, consulted his notes and then went on. Again he stopped, looked about him in a dazed manner, said a few words, trembling violently. It was futile, however, and after saying in a smothered voice, "I cannot; I feel ill!" Macola almost sank to the floor.

Next day Deputy Macola resigned his seat. The resignation was not accepted, which is the one blue spot in a sky almost universally gray.

The nature of Macola's affliction is known. He is suffering from a disease of the nerves which affects the whole body and renders the right arm almost absolutely useless. The doctors fear his hand will have to be amputated. His opponents, however, are merciless still. They say: "It is just! With that hand he murdered Cavallotti. The Countess Cellere's curse is having its effect!"

THE LABORER'S PROBLEM.

View of Resident of a Country Town.

To The Editor of The Herald:

For the past dozen of years I have been trying to find out how the average laboring man managed to live and raise a family. The Fergus Falls Journal man says if he was only earning $40 a month he would still continue to live. That is quite true. We know that many people live in Fergus Falls and do not earn a dollar a month. So we don't have to take any stock in what we hear from that quarter. It is not a question of existing but of decent living and bringing up a family, properly fed and housed and clothed. I am satisfied that the average laboring man can not support his family on less than $75 a month at the present cost of provisions, clothing and rent. A laboring man in the country towns does not earn $300 a year because he cannot find work to do in the country towns during winter and is not fully employed from the 1st of May till the 1st of December.

The unmarried man has the best of it in a high tariff country. The man with five of a family has to pay a great deal more revenue to the trusts and corporations than the man who has only himself to support and if we do not raise families who is going to consume our products or what is going to produce the products of the country in the future? The whole trouble seems to be the high cost of living caused by the great leakage between the producer and the consumers. It seems to me that this matter should be fully discussed to better advantage rather than trying to find out how much money a man could save from a small salary, at the cost of half starving himself and family.

We are told that 5,000,000 people engaged in manufacturing industries of various kinds produce commodities worth about nine billions and a half for their employers and receive in wages about two and a half billions. This gives $500 for each worker, but he has to pay $1,900 for the goods if he wants to buy them back from his employers.

Under such conditions no man with a family can save money on $50 a month and live as he should do.

The masses might be content with a half of a loaf, but they have a right to kick when they only get a little better than a quarter loaf, while the other fellow gets a whole one.

JAMES WILSON,
Park Rapids, Minn., May 29.

If a merchant fails to make it worth your while to read his advertisement he wastes his space. Space costs money; and very little of it is wasted. Therefore—it is usually "worth your while" to read any store-advertisement.

"Toasted Breath of the Wheatfields"

HAS BEEN SAID OF THE DELICIOUS, CRISP FLAVOR OF

Grape=Nuts

THOSE WHO TRY THE FOOD FAITHFULLY FOR 10 DAYS LEARN THREE THINGS WORTH MORE THAN A GOLD MINE TO ANYONE WHO VALUES HEALTH AT ITS WORTH.

First, that a few ounces of perfectly digested food yields more nourishment and strength than many pounds of any kind of food undigested.

Second, that it is in Grape-Nuts alone, that the starchy part of the grain (that part which is known to supply energy) is naturally predigested in the process of manufacture. Government tests of all the principal foods show no food known has as much as one-half the solubility (the digestive test) in cold water as Grape-Nuts and most of the foods range down from one-fourth to very low relative percentages.

Third, that nervous systems, exhausted by the high strain of present day requirements, can be and are rebuilt quickly when fed on Grape-Nuts, because Nature's Phosphate of Potash and Albumen are presented in the food and from these two things and water, the life forces make up the soft gray matter with which to refill the depleted nerve centers throughout the body and brain. A distinct feeling of buoyancy and mental strength follows a "Grape-Nuts diet."

See suggestions in little brochure in pkg. The way back to health by Grape-Nuts is pleasant and most profitable.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Alleged Embezzler Franklin Brought Back From Idaho.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Mitchell—J. R. Franklin, formerly the representative of the Singer Sewing Machine company for this section of the state, was bound over to the November term of circuit court on the charge of embezzlement. Franklin left about two months ago, but through a detective agency was located at Grangeville, Idaho, to which place his wife followed him about a month ago. He made collections of about $8,000 from persons who had bought machines on the installment plan and made small payments to the company, so that his methods were not discovered until after he had taken flight.

Vermillion—One of the big debates promised for next year will be between the state universities of Iowa and South Dakota. Iowa has submitted a compact for the approval of South Dakota and this will no doubt be accepted by the debating board of control, with possibly a slight change in one of the articles.

Crops in Clay county are doing very nicely. Small grain is a good stand and early planted corn is looking fine. Truck patches are doing nicely and gardeners will make money. Fruit trees are loaded as heavily as they could be.

Egan—Memorial services were held in the opera house under the auspices of the C. C. Washburn post and Relief Corps, and were largely attended. Rev. Charles McLaird, pastor of the Baptist church, preached the sermon, and was assisted by Rev. W. E. Minty of the Methodist church.

Aberdeen—Rev. J. Y. Montague, who for three years has been pastor of the Baptist church, has resigned, and is considering the offer of a pastorate at Hiawatha, Kan., with the chair of Biblical instruction in the Hiawatha Baptist academy.

In the absence from the city of the family of John Tompkins, a Milwaukee conductor, the house was entered and robbed of clothing, a watch and other articles.

E. J. Haasze, a former sheriff of Brown county, who has been agent for the J. I. Case company in Aberdeen for years, left this week for North Yakima, Wash., where he will reside.

Yankton—Jerry Carlton of Sioux Falls, United States deputy marshal, arrested A. J. Sharp in Yankton today and charged him with the crime of passing counterfeit money. Spurious half dollars were found on Sharp, and several business men who had been victimized appeared in court to testify against him. He waived the preliminary hearing and was remanded to custody.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Mayville—The residence of President Carhart of the normal caught fire, but the blaze was quickly put out and little damage was done. The fire started in an upstairs bedroom from an electric light which was in contact with a piece of furniture.

Starkweather—Bruce Rodeheaver and James McDonald, who were arrested here last winter, charged with wheat stealing, pleaded guilty in district court at Cando and were sentenced to state's prison for one and one half years.

Fargo—An even dozen indictments were found against Frank Nurenberger, an old soldier of Ward county. Charges of land frauds caused his arrest some weeks ago. It is asserted that he induced old veterans from Ohio to come to North Dakota, file on claims and live there the difference between their term of service and five years, after which they proved up, deeded the land to him for $200 and expenses.

Several weeks ago the inspectors caused the arrest of Postmaster Johnson of Drayton on the charge that he was paying Eastern bills with stamps to inflate the business of his office and secure increased salary. His case was investigated and the grand jury declined to return indictments. He was removed from his position after his arrest.

A minstrel performance by the Fargo Light infantry was given a big reception last night. The organization consists of youngsters of 10 to 12 years and the performance was for the purpose of raising funds for uniforms.

A wagon loaded with sand ran over Samuel Levine, a Russian babe, and death will result.

Fargoans generally assisted in the proper observance of Memorial day. Business was suspended in all public offices all day and in the stores in the afternoon. The graves of the dead were decorated.

"SPIT BALL" ATTACKED.

Health Officer Proposes to Prohibit Its Use.

New York, May 31.—Dr. Norman C. H. Herold, president of the Newark board of health, decided the use of the "spit ball" by pitchers of the Newark team of the Eastern league club and those of visiting teams, is a violation of the health code, which prohibits spitting in public places. Dr. Herold says he will bring the matter to the attention of the board at its meeting tomorrow night and will recommend that an effort be made to restrain base ball twirlers from resorting to that particular aid in delivery.

A CREEPING DEATH.

Blood poison creeps up towards the heart, causing death. J. E. Steeves, Belle Plaine, Minn., writes that a friend dreadfully injured his hand, which swelled up like blood poisoning. Bucklen's Arnica Salve drew out the poison, healed the wound, and saved his life. Best in the world for burns and sores. 25c at all druggists.

BOAT IS A WINNER

Richard Schell's New Motor Boat Wins at Minnetonka.

Brown Mallough, Well Known Grocer, Dead —Other News.

Richard Schell is in the Twin Cities, having gone down there to witness a motor boat race in which his new boat, Bisbee, took part and won.

The Bisbee beat all other competitors in the race in Lake Minnetonka, which is full of fast motor craft, and came in first by a safe margin. The course was fifteen miles and the Bisbee covered the distance in 58 minutes and 10 seconds.

Mr. Schell will return tomorrow and will have his boat here within a few days.

GROCER DIES.

Brown Mallough Expires of Heart Trouble.

Brown Mallough, the well-known grocer of Central avenue, crossed over the great divide last night, succumbing to heart trouble of long standing and which has kept him in an unconscious condition for the past two weeks. His son, William Mallough and a daughter, Miss May Mallough, who is a teacher in the Fairmount school, were present when the end came. The son, William, has been his father's partner in business for a number of years. Another daughter, Miss Lillian Mallough, is studying music in Munich, Germany. A widow also survives Mr. Mallough.

Mr. Mallough is a native of Ontario. He moved to West Superior fourteen years ago and was in the grocery business there for about six years, at which time he moved to West Duluth and has been in business here ever since. Mr. Mallough was well thought of and was known as a man of kind heart and good business talents.

FISHED WITH KNEES.

Jack Schuler Lands Big Pike In Novel Way.

Jack Schuler went up the St. Louis river fishing yesterday as did many another West Duluthian, but Mr. Schuler performed an exciting feat before a large number of spectators who are eagerly telling one another of it today. A large pike struck Mr. Schuler's hook and after something of a fight, was landed. Just as the fish was brought ashore, however, the line broke and the fish flopped back into the water.

Mr. Shuler dropped his pole and jumped onto the fish with all fours, grappling it in the water with his hands and knees. The fish knew no new wrestling tricks and with the death-grip that Schuler had, the denizen of the deep could not get away and was safely landed at only the cost of the ducking that Mr. Schuler got while in operation.

The pike was what a small boy would call a whopper. It measured twenty-seven and a half inches and weighs over eight pounds.

The river was filled with fishermen yesterday and some good catches of pike are reported.

DESERTS FAMILY.

Tailor Leaves Wife and Six Children.

A week ago last Sunday John Hart, a tailor of West Duluth left home, saying he was going fishing. That is the last seen of him. It is not believed that any accident has befallen him but it is thought he has deliberately left his family, who are now left in destitute circumstances.

Mr. Hart and her six children, the youngest of whom is about four weeks old, have nothing but public charity on which to exist. They are living at 603 Sixtieth avenue West and have had to apply to the poor board for help. It is a case deserving attention from the charitably inclined.

Public Service Corporations Fail to Face Serious Problem.

Milwaukee Engineer Discusses Question of Maintenance.

"The question of depreciation in the plants of gas and water companies and other great public service corporations, is going to be a stupendous problem in the near future, and in fact is at the present time," said R. B. Brown, the chief engineer of the Milwaukee Gas company, who was in the city yesterday with a party of Miwaukee city officials.

"The Milwaukee company makes no charges for depreciation of its plant, and does the same as you say is done in Duluth, allowing the maintenance charges to take care of the depreciation. We make most extensive repairs to our system every year, taking special care that where breaks occur new pipe shall be put in. The claim is that our system is thus constantly kept up, and that no depreciation charges are necessary.

"This being the case, gas can be sold at a very low figure in large cities, as the cost of manufacture is but a very small part of your total cost, amounting to less than one third. The rest is made up of distribution and interest charges. These are constantly decreased as your city grows and you get more consumers.

"But the question is whether or not the maintenance charges do take care of the depreciation, and it is going to be a grave problem. The big companies in all the large cities are simply drifting along and not meeting this problem. They are constantly increasing the size of their underground plants with miles and miles of new pipe, and trusting to the maintenance charges to take care of the depreciation. If they will, it is all right, but if they don't there will be trouble some day. It is one of the most important problems that confronts all the great public service corporations in the country today.

"The ordinary man thinks that there is a great profit in the gas business. This is partly the case, but most of the large companies in the country have a large amount of watered stock on which they must pay dividends, and while most of them are paying these dividends, few of them are laying up any great surplus, and in some cases the surplus is being decreased. This makes the depreciation problem a still more important one.

"We furnish gas in Milwaukee for from 90 cents down to 65 cents, but I believe it is a better quality of gas than you get here.

"We have just put in an addition to our plant costing $85,000, for the purpose of manufacturing the tar used in this tar macadam pavement, so you can see what faith we must have in its popularity."

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Norway Girl Is Burned So Badly She Cannot Live.

Norway—Emma Emer, aged 18, was burned so seriously that she cannot live. She lifted a lid off the stove, and, her apron catching fire, ran out of doors. All her clothes were burned off. She is a daughter of A. Emer, a business man.

Marquette—Including the Moses Coit Tyler collection of over 4,000 volumes, the library of the Northern normal school now contains 12,000 books. Commencement this year will take place the week of June 21.

Munishing—Some excitement has been caused by reports of the discovery of iron ore on the homestead of John Larson, two miles south of Carlshend. The find was made several weeks ago, but the news has been suppressed.

Grand Marais—Next to the manufacture of lumber, commercial fishing is the most important industry of Grand Marais, and just now the season is fairly at its height. Excellent catches of trout and whitefish are the rule.

Gladstone—Forest fires along the Soo line east of Gladstone did considerable damage, the loss running well into the thousands. At and near Delta Siding, seven loaded cars were destroyed, as well as a big pile of cedar, owned by Schoolcraft county men.

Felch—The taxpayers of Felch township, Dickinson county, will hold another election today for the purpose of again voting on the question of bonding the school district in the sum of $5,000 for the erection of two school buildings. It seems that the people were unable to agree relative to the site for the proposed central school, and it is now proposed to erect two buildings. The bonds will be five in number, and run until 1910.

POLITICIANS ARE KICKING

Over the Appointments to the Grain Appeals Boards.

St. Paul, May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Dispatch (Rep.) says: "There is trouble ahead for Governor Johnson, as a result of his reorganization of the state grain boards of appeals. Minneapolis and Duluth are sending up vigorous complaints which promise to become state wide. Minneapolis and Duluth, the grain and milling centers of the state, especially the former city, claim representation of their cities on the boards is absolutely necessary. They declare the new arrangement to be without precedent.

"Again looking at the personnel of the boards from a political and racial standpoint, the Ninth district, one of the banner Republican sections of the state, was given half of the places; the Sixth, the only Democratic district in the state, being ignored. As to nationality two are Swedish, one is a Norwegian and the other three are Irish. All this designation would seem silly, but to the politicians the whole thing savors of a blunder. They declare that the board in its present status may be the one thing to give the present executive a black eye if he should try to mak the race again. The reorganization of the boards, which has occupied the attention of Governor Johnson ever since he took up the reins of office, was glibly discussed by the politicians around the capitol today. Several of the elect from Minneapolis called, it is understood, to voice their disapproval, but the governor was not in.

"The strongest complaint of all come from Minneapolis, where Matt Walsh was heavily boomed for a place on the board. He believed that he had the place secured and now his friends are threatening vengeance."

SAY GOOD-BYE TO JUDGE

Juvenile Cases Will Hereafter Be Tried in District Court.

In view of the fact that today is the last day on which juvenile court cases will be tried before Judge Windom, the boys now on parole from the court and Humane Officer Withrow this afternoon, presented him with a handsome seal ring, suitably engraved.

In future all juvenile court cases will be tried before one of the district court judges instead of before the municipal court judge and the justices of the peace.

This is in accordance with an act passed at the last session of the legislature, which provides that the senior judge of the district court bench shall be the juvenile judge.

Today is also report day for the boys on parole, and they assembled in the municipal court this afternoon to report for the last time to the municipal judge. They presented the ring purchased by them and Mr. Withrow to Judge Windom, and the latter made a short speech to them, wishing them good luck under the new regime, and expressing the hope that they would all make men of themselves.

Sees Bright Outlook.

John R. Mitchell of Winona, president of the Duluth Savings bank is in the city. Mr. Mitchell is very optimistic over business conditions and thinks that affairs in the financial world which have been somewhat disturbed for some time by the Equitable fight and other unpleasant matters are settling themselves and that business activity will undoubtedly follow. He is also believes that the success of the Japanese in the war will be aid to the growth of American commerce in the Pacific and of great value to this nation.

INSPECT PAVING

Milwaukee Officials Come to See Tar Macadam Streets.

Express Themselves as Pleased With Appearance of Pavement.

With a view to inspecting the tar macadam pavements that have been laid in Duluth by P. McDonnell, the local contractor, the members of the board of public works, the city engineer and the city attorney of Milwaukee were in Duluth yesterday, accompanied by the city engineer and one of the aldermen from Racine, who were up for the same purpose.

The Milwaukee party consisted of Charles J. Poetsch, city engineer; Carl Runge, city attorney; Thomas E. Hoyer, Stanley Czerwinski and V. J. Schoenicker, members of the board of public works. The Racine men were P. H. Connelley, city engineer, and C. E. Evans, chairman of the council committee on streets.

R. B. Brown and G. F. Gregg, the chief and assistant engineer of the Milwaukee Gas company, were also in the party. The company has just completed an $85,000 plant which will manufacture the tar for the pavement, and it will supply much of the tar used in any pavements that may be laid in Milwaukee. It also furnished the tar for the East Superior street work.

The members of the party arrived at 10 o'clock and left at 4 p. m. for St. Paul, after being driven about the streets of the city by Mr. McDonnell and thoroughly inspecting the work on East Superior street and First avenue west.

They were also interested in the sandstone pavements on Michigan street and some of the avenues.

The members of the party expressed themselves as being very favorably impressed by the tar macadam pavement, and will doubtless recommend it when they make their report to the Milwaukee council. Several large contracts are now pending in the Wisconsin metropolis, and tar macadam is one of the pavements considered. It is still an experiment in Milwaukee, and the city officials wished to gain the result of Duluth's experiments.

"You have some nice streets here," said Mr. Poetsch, the city engineer, "but you ought to have the finest streets in the world with that pile of rock there. I wish we had a few hundred thousand tons of it down in Milwaukee. It should make the best kind of pavements when properly used, and as Duluth grows it should become one of the best paved cities in this country, or in the world."

"This looks like a lively little city," said Mr. Schoenicker, the secretary of the board. "It certainly impresses a stranger as being the beginning of a great commercial center."

FOR YOU.

Here are some facts for dyspeptics.

Are you one?

Probably; because most people are, though they ignore it.

First, please bear in mind that Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, is more than ailment.

It is a disease.

It is a disease, with ramifications into the uttermost, innermost part, of your body.

It does not always begin in your stomach.

No, indeed. It may begin in your mouth.

Your saliva may be of the wrong chemical formula to begin the work of digestion, and so the whole process may go wrong from the very beginning.

Or, everything may be all right, but your liver.

Or, maybe it seems to be in your heart.

Or, you may have a deep-chested lung cough.

Ten times out of eleven, those symptoms point to the plain, everyday common or garden variety of indigestion.

This may seem hard to believe, but if so, it is only because for many years, even after the discovery of the circulation of the blood by Harvey, doctors remained in the densest ignorance concerning the workings of the processes of digestion.

So, of course, of IN-digestion, they knew less.

And of a cuer today, they have no knowledeg at all—any of the 140,000 that are "practicing" in the United States.

Except—about 40,000, who use and recommend Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Here we have a medicine which attacks the trouble with all of the most modern engines of medical warfare, which are indeed needed to conquer such a malignant, pestiferous, all-pervading disease.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets drive INdigestion OUT.

They contain ingredients which act curatively, not merely upon the stomach, but upon every vessel, organ or gland, throughout the entire body, which is in any way concerned in the great and important work of digesting your food.

In this way, they throughly purge your entire system of any possible disease-taint, and thereby restore you to a condition of perfect and natural health.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are unique in the entire history of medicine.

They are a specific remedy for just one disease and this disease they positively and never-failingly cure.

Try them.

LITTLE BUSINESS TALKS.

"Do as the Romans do"—but do it better than the Romans do it! Your competitors advertise—do as they do; but do it better, and do more of it.

Take away from this city the homes in which this newspaper is read and there would remain a curious fragment and ruin of a city—with a population poorer per capita than that of any community in the world.

"No victories are accamplished without enthusiasm;" but you can't be enthusiastic in a straight-jacket. Give your advertising "elbow room," or you can't put much enthusiasm into it.

Publicity must first build that bigger store for you—must make the architect and the artisan possible. Every day's adequate advertising brings the new building, and the new store nearer; every day's inadequate advertising postpones them.

INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE

W. J. Stevenson Collides With Telephone Pole on London Road.

While trying to avoid some horses that were being speeded along London road, W. J. Stevenson, the attorney, ran his automobile into a telegraph pole at Fifty-seventh avenue east, about 9 o'clock last evening and sustained rather serious injuries.

Mr. Stevenson was accompanied by his wife and child. They had been uptown and were returning to their home in Lakeside. Two carriages were approaching rapidly and in attempting to avoid them, Mr. Stevenson swerved to the side of the road.

The occupants of the auto were all thrown out, Mr. Stevenson's head striking the post. Mrs. Stevenson clung to her child, which was uninjured, although the mother bruised one of her knees severely.

Mr. Stevenson was unconscious for ten minutes after the accident occurred. One of the carriages stopped and assisted him to his home, where Dr. Webster attended his injuries. He is conscious today, and it is not expected that any serious results will follow. For a time it was feared that the skull was fractured, but this is not the case.

The machine was badly demolished by the collision.

EIGHT-HOUR LAW

Will Be Enforced at Canal on June First.

Washington, May 31.—In view of the announced decision of the isthmian canal commission to enforce the eight-hour law on the canal work after June 1, Secretary Taft yesterday stated the grounds upon which Attorney General Moody had reached his decision on that important matter. It was to the effect that as the work of canal construction, regardless of place, was being done by government labor, the eight-hour law must apply. However, it was held that this ruling did not apply to the Panama railroad, for although the stock of that concern is government owned, it is really a private corporation and pays its own employes. Furthermore the attorney general holds that the eight-hour law applies only to the laborers and mechanics and does not affect the clerical force of the commission. It is said that the contract providing for the employment of coolie labor was held up pending this decision, and will not be signed until Engineer Wallace has succeeded in reaching some agreement with the employers of the coolies or to adjust the scale of labor prices to the eight-hour decision. It is stated that the operation of this law will largely increase the expenses of canal building, and Secretary Taft has called upon Engineer Wallace for a close estimate of the additional expense for the information of congress.

NO EXTRA SESSION

Of Congress Is View of Senator Clapp.

St. Paul, May 31.—Senator Moses E. Clapp, who returned yesterday from Washington, where he attended the meetings of the committee on interstate commerce on the railroad rate question, predicts that there will be no extra session of congress. He says that it is possible that President Roosevelt will call congress together two or three weeks before the time of convening so that it may organize and get ready for work Dec. 1.

Senator Clapp says that the present deficit of approximately $50,000,000 in the national treasury is not causing any alarm at Washington. He believes that the entire Panama canal project should be taken out of the hands of the present commission and entrusted to the president through the war department.

IN THEIR HONOR

Memorial Day Sacredly Observed In Memory of Heroes.

Judge Morris Makes Remarkable Speech at Armory.

Judge Page Morris of the federal court, and former congressman from this district, made the most remarkable Memorial day speech yesterday that probably has ever been delivered in Minnesota. For eloquence it surpasses anything that Judge Morris has yet given, and for warmth it was unequalled. It so happens that during the Civil war, Judge Morris was a boy in the Confederate capital, Richmond, Va., and well remembers the stirring times and the surrender of Richmond. While Judge Morris' mature judgment has dictated to him approval of the Northern issue of the war, his boyish sympathies were surely with his native state, and his speech of yesterday seemed like another hand extended across the bloody chasm which the martyred McKinley bridged.

This speech was made at the Armory in the afternoon, after the street parade. The parade assembled at Fifth avenue west and First street, and as it swept into Superior street, at Fifth avenue west, was viewed by a large crowd gathered along the curb and at the windows. First came a platoon of police, under command of Capt. Resche, looking better than they have ever looked on parade before. Following them, S. W. Clark, marshal of the day, and Gen. M. M. Gasser, on horseback. They were followed by a fife and drum corps, and then came Maj. H. V. Eva on horseback, in command of the Duluth battalion of the National Guard, the two companies being in command of Captains Richard Little and K. A. Franklin. Then came the naval reserves, in command of Lieut. Guy A. Eaton.

The companies of the National Guard and the naval reserves put up a smart appearance and were admired by all admirers, but walked no more proudly erect, nor got the "hay-foot, straw-foot," step more lively or with better time than did the veterans of the '60s, keeping time to their fife and drum corps, which played the favorite tunes of the Civil war time. The men who fought for the blue paced along again like youths. Following them came the carriages, in which were Judges Morris, the orator of the day, and Mayor Cullum. A detachment of firemen, in new uniforms and white gloves, brought up the rear.

At the Armory, which was very well filled, Capt. John R. Randall had charge of the proceedings. Rev. Jeremiah Kinball, chaplain, gave the invocation, and Mrs. James McAuliffe sang "Sleep, Soldier, Sleep;" Miss Eva Sawyer recited "The Blue and the Gray," and William S. McCormick read Lincoln's Gettysburg speech and also a tribute paid the martyred president by Gen. Benjamin Butler. Judge Page Morris was then introduced and wes received with cheers. Said he:

"Gentlemen of the Grand Army of the Republic, Soldiers of the Civil War: I address myself to you, not because I do not have the highest respect and admiration for these younger men who enlisted in the recent Spanish war, but because, as I understand it, this is as yet peculiarly your day. I am glad to be here, I esteem it a great honor to have been invited to address you, and a great privilege to participate with you in these exercises.

"I look upon this day not as a holiday, but as a holy day, and I consider that it should be kept as such. This is a day of blessed memories. I do not wonder that though the snows of age are falling upon some of you, and the wounds and infirmities caused by that struggle are racking and crippling your physical constitutions, you should wish to meet together and revive those memories.

"There are incidents and scenes which have come into our lives in the infinite forms of human experience, which, because of the pleasure, or pain, the joy or sorrow, they have given us, because of the peculiar circumstances and conditions by which we were surrounded.

"The second of April fell this year on Sunday. I made no particular note of it. I spent the day about as usual, at church and quietly at home. The next morning when I came to my office and was about to commence the usual routine the clerk of the court came in. You all know him, a member of that old regiment that was at First Bull Run, and, if it must be confessed, ran with the others, that immortalized itself on the heights of Gettysburg by a valor that has made its name a heritage of pride and glory to every Minnesotan, and that stood by, as the curtain fell on the last scene of the great drama at Appomattox. Said he to me:

"'Did you think about what day yesterday was, and what was happening on that day forty years ago?'

"Those words seemed, as it were, to touch the electrical wires of my brain, and instantaneously, running back over that long period of forty years, awoke the sleeping memories. Again I was a little bare-foot Confererate boy going to Sunday school and then to church on that other beautiful second of April Sunday morning in the beleagued city of Richmond. Again the birds were singing in the trees, and the peace of the Sabbath rested over all, for the sounds of the great battle that had been raging all that morning and the day before had not reached our ears. Again I saw the sexton walk down the aisle of the church and hand to the president of the Southern Confederacy, our president, as we regarded him then the message which announced the doom leave the church, followed shortly him leave the church, followed shortly by others high in his councils, in response to similar messages.

"Again I heard the minister dismiss the congregation, and saw the people pass to their homes, gathering in groups as they walked along and talking in whispers like those who go about the house of the dead. Again I saw the couriers and officers riding from place to place, making preparations, and carrying directions for the impending evacuation. Again I saw the night fall in gloom upon the day that had begun so radiantly, I heard the sobs of women as they bade farewell to loved ones, and listened in the darkness to the measured tread of the sad, but still undaunted, soldiers leaving the city which they had defended so long.

"Again I felt a silence as of those who scarcely dare to berathe settle upon the sorrowful and terror stricken ones who had been left behind. Again as morning came again I heard the tramp of other soldiers, and saw the marching columns and the glittering arms and uniforms of the boys in blue.

"And still again, I saw that the unfamiliar flag, the broad stripes and bright stars of Old Glory, reflecting the light in the morning sunbeams as it floated in triumph from the flagstaff of the captured capitol. And with all these came a thousand other sights and sounds of those eventful days.

"Now, my friends, if all these things could come to me, who had no actual part in the affairs of those stirring times, what memories must crowd upon you as you take part in these exercises and again march elbow to elbow with your old comrades under that flag for which you fought! What memories must these martial sights and sounds awake! I have no doubt that your minds, too, go back, as it were on the wings of lightning, and recall again in all their freshness the scenes of '61 to '65. The call of your country summoning you to the supreme test of the citizen's devotion; the enlishment; the departure from the old home, marching through the streets of the city, or village, with banners flying and drums beating; the last farewell to loved and loving ones; the brave words, the sad tears, the aching hearts."

Judge Morris said that the war, of which the G. A. R. men were the survivors, was the most remarkable in history as regards the character and motives of the men who faced each other in conflict. Neither religion, conquest of people, race hatred, nor any of the ordinary causes of war had anything to do with it. Nor had the matter of slavery or freedom of the negroes all to do with it. The question of state rights was the real basis of the war. Judge Morris said yesterday that he believed that had it been the question of slavery alone, President Lincoln, if not driven by the extremists of each side, could have settled that question without bloodshed, but the question of state rights would have to be fought out at some time or other. It had been growing from the time the republic was formed, and would not down.

The judge thanked God that the feeling of bitterness between the North and South is practically over, and that the veterans of both sides of the war are fraternizing, as they should. As an instance of this, he mentioned that within two or three years in Duluth, the G. A. R. men followed to its last resting place all that was mortal of an old Confederate, and gave all the honors to be given to a soldier of their own ranks. In closing, the judge said:

"Ours is not a mission of destruction. We bear no hatred to any other nation. We fear no other people. It is for us rather here to dedicate ourselves to the services of our own nation, and through it to the elevation of mankind. It is for us here to highly resolve, to register an oath, not to destroy others, but to protect, preserve and defend our own—that no unhallowed hand shall be laid upon it, whether of enemies without coming with hostile arms or of enemies within, stealthily undermining our liberties, disregarding our laws, and driving our people to desperation by harsh and unjust exactions; that the fair fabric erected by the men of '61, and handed on to us, shall by us be handed on to coming generations, unbroken and untarnished.

"Soldiers of the great war, we hail you today as the souvenirs of that country, we greet you today with gratitude unspeakable, and here in your presence, and with the spirits of the mighty dead around us, we register that solmen oath."

The ceremony of scattering flowers on the water in honor of the dead sailors of the Civil war took place at 4:30 yesterday afternoon, and was one of the most impressive events of the day. The naval reserves took part in this, part of them under Lieut. Commander Eaton going to the pier and part of them to the boat house, where they manned the launches. After the fleet of boats with the officers of the W. R. C. and the reserves had passed into the canal, the choir of St. Paul's church sang, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," which was followed by the ritual for the affair by the officers of the W. R. C. After the corps officers had cast the first flowers on the water, Miss McMullen recited, "Float Calmly Over Them, O Flowers." Two children, Louise Williamson and Eunice Whipple, then tossed flowers on the water, followed by the reciting of part of the ritual, after which W. G. TenBrook dropped a handsome wreath of evergreens on the waves, saying:

"Comrades, in the name of countless thousands of the land and sea, who have shared your dangers and endured your sacrifices, this wreath is cast upon the water which roll above you."

The Sons of Veterans then deposited flowers on the water, reciting the ritual at the time, and the ceremony closed with a tossing of cars, a salute and the singing of "America."

The plans for the summer season of the physical department of the Young Women's Christian association have been definitely decided upon. It was at first hoped that a tennis club and several rowing crews might be organized, but the rowing has been given up for this year, and the members of the association who desire physical culture during the summer will devote their time to tennis. Miss Roberts, physical director of the association, has arranged for the Y. W. C. A. clubs to play on the Endion courts, at Tenth avenue east. The Y. W. C. A. members who belong to the tennis club will have the use of the courts from 7 to 10 o'clock each morning during July and August. A large number of them have already given in their names, and it is thought that the summer term, which will be held this year for the first time, will be very popular.

Don't Slouch.

Don't slouch along as if you were on your uppers, advises an exchange. If you do your uppers will get onto you. Then you'll have to walk out, sure. Show by your carriage that you are worth considering. If you haven't a carriage take a cab. An automobile isn't half bad, and some very sprightly people make a show of themselves in street cars. You may do the same, but step lively, please. Don't slouch.

Never allow your physical standard to drop. If you do somebody will pick it up and all the detectives in town won't be able to find it. Keep up your vinegar. Walk as if you were going to do something or somebody in this world. Walk so that even a New Yorker will notice your superiority. He'll probably try to get it away from you, but walk fast and you may escape.

Don't shuffle along like the failures we see sitting around on the benches in parks or lolling along the sidewalks with their hands in their pockets or somebody else's. Walk like the failures we see down in Wall street riding around in their carriages.

Don't give people the impression that you are discouraged. Hustle right along to the next bunch. Maybe somebody there will let you have the dollar you need. The man who thoroughly believe in himself walks with his head up, his chin in, his shoulders back, his chest out and his board bill paid. And he gets there with both feet, unless he has only one leg.

Stand erect. Be a man. Maybe you are a woman, but be a man anyhow. Don't slouch. You cannot aspire to accomplish great and noble deeds if you assume the gait of a tramp. That gait is rusty on its hinges and won't work. You were created to walk upright, whether you are a trust magnate or just the ordinary kind that the law can reach. Put character, energy, strength and rustle into your walk and after a while you won't have to walk. You can ride.

TONY'S DREAM

By Hubert Knowlton.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

How it came to pass that Old Tony occupied Number 3781 was a conundrum to the neighborhood. Number 3781 was a rather pretentious three-story house, of the old-fashioned style of architecture and construction, whose owner had religiously refused to reconstruct or remodel or repair it into the semblance of a modern edifice. No newfangled notions for him, and no new conveniences, no new plumbing and no new notions. And being a hard-headed old Pennsylvania Dutchman, he took it that his word was law and so let his block of houses go into decay and disrepute rather than spend a few hundred dollars to put them into the market.

So the great building, full of houses, was vacant year after year—and so, truth be told, Tony found a shelter. He was more caretaker than tenant, and he occupied but a small portion of the big house. His simple needs required but a bed, a stove and a chair—together with things to eat and wear. But he was a home-loving man, was Tony, and without a place of refuge all his own at night he would have died in this great new world with its promised streets of gold and fabulous swages.

So he made shoes by day and lived in the great barn-like building by night year after year, lonesome and alone.

It was funny, indeed, that the baby should have been left on his doorstep. But it was, and the homesick heart of the lonely Dutch bachelor went out to the little waif when first he saw it in the neat basket, swaddled in the plain, warm clothes. He took it in and sent for the wife of Hermann, the baker at the corner. There was a council of war, which was closed by Tony's announcement that he would keep the little wayfarer which Providence had thrown in his way. So a widow of mature years was secured and Tony paid the bills from his slender earnings. And the little one grew to be a girl of marvelous beauty, and Tony bowed down and worshiped her. She was different from any other person the simple German ever had seen. There was a delicacy and flavor about her strangely in contrast to her surroundings. He felt this inborn superiority of the mysterious waif most keenly, and as the years sped a great fear took possession of his simple, honest soul. With the unerring instinct which belongs to simple natures, it came to him that if this were true—if Sophie belonged indeed to a different caste, she ultimately would find her own, even as water finds its level. As the years passed this fear grew into a terror little short of mania. The girl was the only thing Tony had ever loved since he left his mother's side, a mere boy, to go out and battle with the world. She came into his lonely life as a ray of sunshine to a gloomy cell, and as the years went by she wound the tendrils of affection about his heart as the ivy climbs about the oak, and so year by year his love for the girl grew even as his great fear grew. He saw as clearly as he saw the blue sky that he must one day lose her, and that made her the more dear to him. All he asked was to sit and look at her, to hear her talk or sing. To woo an expression of delight from her was ecstacy, and no labor or sacrifice was too great to purchase it.

His great love clarified his rather slow brain and he figured out ways to make more money and still more, that she could have more advantages and more pleasure. From a common shoemaker he became the master of a shop. He invented a machine to do a part of the work better and faster than any other machine, and out of this invention grew a great factory in which he had a substantial interest, and all his gain and all his earnings he poured out unstintingly—nay, eagerly, upon Sophie. The finest clothes, the best schools, the softest luxuries were hers—and all the world of travel and pleasure was open to her. For himself, his pipe and his common work-a-day clothes and his frugal fare were sufficient.

He was passionately fond of music, and her sweet voice was his greatest joy—and she delighted to sing to so appreciative a listener. It was sad indeed that this very gift of music, this very sweet voice which gave him so much joy should have proven the means of their separation. It is the old story. Somebody heard her sing and somebody told somebody else, and somebody else passed it along until it reached the ears of a great impresario, and he sought and found her and heard her sing. Then came an offer for her to sing in opera; wild delight on her part, desperate despair on the part of Tony. The months which followed were like a fairyland to Sophie and like an inferno to Tony. She leaped instantly into fame and filled the house for an entire season. Night after night Tony sat among the audience, delighting in every note she sang and proud of every wave of applause, but yet dumb with fear and apprehension and despair.

At last the blow fell, hard and decisive. The Man came. He was a gentleman from the great mysterious world of the boulevards and the clubs, a favored son of fortune. He saw the beautiful singer, he sought her, he asked her hand. She, too, felt the divine arrow and accepted him.

Tony was nearly felled by the blow he had been expecting all along. Sophie clung on his neck and said she never would leave him and never would marry if he felt that way about it. Then his great self-sacrificing love arose again and swept away his grief for the moment, and he laughed at both their fears—yes, laughed over his laden heart.

"But you will always live with us, dear," she said softly. "That is understood. I told Arthur and it is all settled."

"What," exclaimed Tony, "give up my comfortable old corner and my pipe and my old ways to go and learn the ways of a great house? No, no, my Sophie, I am too selfish for that."

Tony disappeared for some weeks directly after this, and it has since appeared, devoted much time and displayed no small skill in ascertaining accurately the character, reputation, habits and antecedents of the man to whom he was to lose his Sophie. The investigation evidently proved satisfactory, for the wedding came off in due season.

When it was over Tony went through the old house and tore down all the hangings and fixtures, ripped up all the carpets and piled up in the backyard all the furniture he had bought to make the place habitable for Sophie. Over this great pile he poured kerosene and made of it a funeral pyre to his affection. He went back to the little room in which he had lived before Sophie came and took up the thread of his old lonesome life.

NEBRASKA UNIVERSITY

To Teach Women the Art of Economy.

Lincoln, Neb., May 31.—Young women students at the university of Nebraska will be instructed in the art of properly spending money. The idea is borrowed in part from Ames, Ia., where Professor Georgia Witter has started new courses in the domestic science department. Representatives from the university here have visited Ames, and say that it will cost $30,000 to establish the desired department.

There is some puzzling as to why so large an amount is required. There have been hints that possibly Miss Bouton, who is in charge of that department here, proposes to expend it for a miniature department store, with experimental courses in shopping, but she disdains a reply to that suggestion.

Miss Witter has been doing some missionary work along this line. She says that it is of more importance to a young woman to know the chemistry of food and its value to the human body than to be able to name the bones of that body.

She insists that the girls have no time at present to learn at home the things about housekeeping and marketing that their mothers can teach them, owing to the demands upon their leisure of society and the schoolroom. In college it is practically impossible to do so unless they are taught in the classroom.

If the present plans are followed, something new in the educational line may be looked for. Not only is it proposed to be able to equip a woman to know without bitter experience what kind of meat she is getting, of what value it is as food, and what is a proper price to pay; but she will be taught to distinguish between cotton and wool fabrics, between all wool and shoddy. She will be taught something about articles of wear, about articles of adornment, about articles of food—in short, the aim will be to equip her with a general idea of values such as is so assessed by those who make a business of buying for large establishments. This knowledge will be imparted in demonstrations and by means of lectures.

OLD-TIME LOVERS WED.

Children of Pioneers United After Many Years.

Topeka, Kans., May 31.—A genuine flesh and blood romance has come to light in the marriage of August Grotewahl of Topeka and Mrs. Louise Brandt of Elkhorn, Mo. Both are 55 years old.

When Missouri was still a rough, frontier country, the parents of the two emigrated to its lands. They settled side by side between the little towns which are now known as Elkhorn and Wright City.

Mr. Grotewahl and Mrs. Brandt grew up together and before either had reached the twenty-first year, had plighted themselves to each other in marriage. But a lover's quarrel caused them to separate and Mr. Grotewahl to leave.

He came to Kansas and learned the blacksmithing trade. After a few years he was married and has lived in Topeka ever since, up to two years ago. He conducted a blacksmith and repair shop between Tenth and Eleventh streets and then later between Ninth and Tenth streets, during much of that time.

Mrs. Brandt married a man by the name of C. G. Brandt at Wright City, who was wealthy and owned many acres of land and stock. She is still living there.

About five years ago Mrs. Grotewahl died and about a year later Mr. Brandt died. A year ago both learned of the conditions and a correspondence of sympathy followed which lighted again the old flame of love. Not long ago they became betrothed for the second time and the other day they were married at Wright City, Mo.

VALUABLE LOT

Of Stamps That Were Collected By Earl of Crawford.

New Yorkers Get Glimpse of His Famous Collection.

New York, May 31.—The earl of Crawford's famous collection of postage stamps valued at more than $500,000, was on exhibition at the Collector's club for several hours at a reception that was being held in his honor two weeks ago.

Upon first learning of the earl's coming to this country with his yacht Valhalla, to take part in the ocean race, the Collector's club appointed a reception committee to entertain him. When this committee made known its plans to entertain him, he offered to bring over his collection.

Lord Crawford, who is vice-president of the London Philatelic society, has been all his life an ardent stamp collector. He is known as a specialist, and one of his specialties is the gathering of everything pertaining to United States stamps, of which he is said to have the most complete collection in the world.

The collection was contained in four large heavily bound chests. The stamps were arranged in forty volumes. Gathered at the club rooms were many of the prominent philatelists of this city and many from out of town.

The first volume contained postmaster provisional stamps; these being arranged with the utmost care and completeness. When possible the page commenced with the original sketch of the stamp, proofs of part of the design; completed design; trial colors; accepted colors; stamp in unused condition; in shades; used detached, and then on the original envelope. Then came the Albany stamp in fancy and proof colors, and finally in the original, all together easily worth $2,000. This was followed by a magnificent copy of the entire Annapolis envelope, worth $3,000. Then a ten-cent black Baltimore stamp, with Postmaster Buchanan's signature, the premier American stamp, worth $4,500. With this of the same issue, were both the five-cent and ten-cent Baltimore on original envelope.

There were all the Saint Louis bear stamps, five, ten and twenty cents, each worth from $200 to $3,000; the square New Haven stamp, bearing the signature of E. H. Mitchell, valued at $3,500, and then the Brattleboro postmaster, worth $650. Of the New York five-cent stamps there were at least fifty, under each of which were the different signatures, ranging in value rom $10 to $100 according to rarity. Among the carrier stamps, Baltimore was represented with reconstructed sheets. Of Charleston Honours, several pages were taken up. Among the rarest of these was a sheet of Grieg's carrier stamps.

The second volume showed the different designs that were made before the one finally adopted for the first issue of United States, the postmaster stamps first mentioned not having been issued by the government. Half of this book was taken up with designs, essays and proofs considered, rejected and accepted. When it became necessary to provide copies of the 1847 issue for the Centennial exhibition a new die was made by the bureau of engraving and printing. An accepted proof from this die of the five-cent issue with the signature of the department official, was turned over to the Continental Bank Note company as a guide, and even this ultimately has found its way to the earl's collection. Not only is this signed specimen in the book, but there are also other specimens of the five and ten-cent reprints in various shades.

All the type varieties of 1851-56 are shown, with all the designs and proofs which invariably precede the final production of a stamp. There were also several specimens of the shifted die. The book contains two fine copies of the one cent stamp of August 1851, of which there are two varieties, each worth $500. Of especial interest was the grilled issue, with embossing on the back. This was made because there were so many instances of the cancellations being washed from used stamps. This was rendered impossible by means of the embossing, which on the back retained an impression of the cancellation. The original designs filed with the application for the patent for grilling stamps are also shown. There are only two original of these. There were sheets of paper showing the grill covering the entire sheet and the grills in blocks without printing but gummed. One half sheet showed the whole surface of the paper pinpricked all over—another attempt to provide a stamp from which the cancellation could not be erased. Stamps showing these various papers with points up and down were displayed in profusion. The earl is the only one who possesses such copies, as far as known.

The famous 1869 issue were represented with a completeness that astonished the collectors. There were varieties of this year that our experts saw for the first time. The known issues of the year range in value up to $600, the latter sum being paid for the ones with the inverted centers, or flags. Of these, there were quite a number. This is one of the features of the collection, for the earl will buy in blocks and sheets if obtainable, though the stamp is of the most expensive variety.

Of the Confederate provisional stamps there was a larger number. The collection embraced every rarity of these issues of little Southern towns. Included in this series were the issues of Aberdeen, Miss.; Atlanta and Columbus, Ga.; Greenville and Bridgeville, Ala.; Beaumont, Tex.; and Danville and Emory, Va., each one of which is valued at from $200 to $2,000.

One other specialty of the earl is the gathering of all the varieties of the Sidney view stamps. These number more than 200, every one of which is represented in the collection, both canceled and uncanceled. This series alone is valued at over $10,000.

The collection also includes a host of all the well-known rarities of the stamp world, and, of course, is especially rich in English issues. The earl is the owner of a pair of the famous Mauritius stamps. These are in denominations of one and two-penny, and are worth $7,500.

THE ALIEN ACT

Of Canada Against Railroad Officials Give General Application.

Premier Laurier Making Hard Fight For Autonomy Bill.

Ottawa, Ont., May 31.—Following Judge Winchester's report to the Canadian government finding a number of American officials on the Pere Marquette railway liable to deportation under the alien act, applications are expected to be made for similar action on other railways in Canada on which the leading officials are Americans.

The decision may have been in strict accordance with the letter of the law, and therefore unavoidable, but it is none the less unpopular in the place chiefly concerned, St. Thomas, Ont. Representatives of local interests there seem to be practically unanimous that the company and its American officials should receive fair treatment.

The Grand Trunk railway some time ago committed precisely the same offense against the laws of the United States that the Pere Marquette company has been found guilty of in regard to the Canadian law. In making some changes and extensions at Portland, Me., the Grand Trunk found it necessary to send some of its Canadian heads of departments and other employes over to Maine to take charge of the work.

They were familiar with the requirements and methods of the management, and in order to carry out the plans of the company successfully their presence on the spot was indispensable. Proceedings were set on foot to put the alien law of the United States in motion against the Canadian employes referred to, but without result.

Those who are most interested and who are best acquainted with the Pere Marquette case hold that the Canadian authorities should take the Maine incident for a precedent and not allow the matter to go any further, the Americans being simply transfers of the same class as the Grand Trunk railroad men sent to Maine.

Laurier's government is strong enough to be able to take the reasonable and right course in this or any question, regardless of what a few sorehead labor men may do or threaten. Public opinion at St. Thomas and along the frontier, where Americans and Canadians freely mix, and intermarry, and grow up together, will be much disappointed if the minister of justice does not pigeonhole Judge Winchester's report, with the understanding that no action can be decided on until the matter has been fully considered, and that it will be suffered to continue indefinitely in that condition.

Laurier will have Hyman back in parliament as the re-elected member from London on his admission to the cabinet with the portfolio of minister of public works, if government influence can do it. All the resources at the command of the administration that can be brought to bear in such a struggle will be freely used.

The election of a Sonservative candidate and failure to return Mr. Hyman as member of parliament for London on the thirteenth of June would be accepted throughout Canada as a defeat of the government autonomy policy. Such a direful disaster must be prevented at all costs.

The opposition leaders profess to be sanguine he can and will be properly defeated.

Sir Elzear Taschereau, chief justice of the supreme court and deputy governor general, has had sufficient experience of the latter office to satisfy him for the rest of his life.

In the meantime the papers all over the country had taken up the dispute, and a great deal of fun was extracted from the incident. Sir Elzear is a most dignified personage and an exceptionally able man, and the notoriety he so unexpectedly achieved in connection with the throne and the chair became so distasteful to him he eventually decided to have nothing more to do with the office of deputy governor general, and so notified Earl Grey and the government.

MAYOR ON THE RACK.

Dubuque, Iowa, May 31.—Charging that he has used his official position to further the interests of the Palmer-Berg Printing company, of which he is a member, C. H. Berg, mayor of Dubuque, will be summoned to appear before the district court and defend himself in an action for his removal from office. The man who is after Berg's scalp is Alderman Joseph Needham of the second ward, who has openly charged that Berg is a "grafter," and will appear against him in the district court.

Mayor Berg is worth about $100,000, and it is said that he has made most of his money during his occupancy of the mayor's chair. It is said that Alderman Needham will show that he has received money from divekeepers and that no record is on the books of the city treasurer. Needham also charges that Berg has been throwing business to the Palmer-Berg Printing company, and that each month the city allows this firm a large sum for supplying the city.

Dr. P. H. Harmann, who was convicted of adultery Saturday, will appeal to the district court. He charges that a former county attorney endeavored to get money from his father on condition that the case be dropped, and says he will be able to show up the illegal practices of a score of local attorneys.

Seattle, Wash., May 31.—When Vice President Fairbanks and party, in a special car on the Great Northern, arrived in this city hundreds of people assembled at the depot to welcome him. He was conducted to the Rainier club, where he made a short address to an audience of about 2,000 people, afterwards holding an informal public reception.

A FREAK SCHEME.

Criticisms of the public school system have often been made on the ground that it eliminates the cultivation of individuality, and seeks to mold every youth to the same form, regardless of his capabilities or deficiencies.

This has led to a plan for the establishment of a boys' school in Brooklyn designed especially for the development of individuality, in which there shall be no rules of conduct. The plan has found many champions, and the specious arguments that have been made for it seem to have caught a remarkably large number of people who ought to know better.

This plan appears to be just as wrong as the thing of which its friends complain. If it is wrong to attempt to make all children fill the same mold, and to turn out from an educational factory a set of minds uniform in training and knowledge, it is just as wrong to attempt to bring boys up in anarchy, and to let them mold themselves. Anybody who tries it must have never been a boy, or else it was so long ago he has forgotten what it is like. The elimination of discipline from school life is a dangerous experiment, and it is to be hoped that it will not be generally tried.

It is no doubt true that it is not the proper thing to try to adjust all children to the same routine. The ideal school of the future will probably be one where every child is made a special study, and where his work and studies will be adapted to his peculiar bent. But that is nothing like running a school without rules of conduct. The Brooklyn plan is absurd.

The permanency of the republic is based upon the capacity of the people to govern themselves. If they are not brought up to conform to established rule, and to regulate their conduct by the well-defined needs of society, what becomes of this capacity? The Brooklyn plan is not only absurd, but it is dangerous.

Here is the other side of it, from a talk made by Postmaster General Cortelyou at a little school in Pennsylvania recently:

"If my boy should leave school with his head full of history and grammar and the classics and modern languages, and all the other studies of the curriculum, and yet should not have it in his heart to yield a willing obedience to law—the law of the school, the law of the community in which he lives, the law of the state and of the nation—I should feel that his time had been thrown away. We need in all our schools insistence upon obedience to proper authority, for these boys of today are the citizens of tomorrow, and everywhere throughout the length and breadth of the land we must have more prompt and willing obedience to law."

USING COCAINE.

The Minnesota legislature took an important step last winter when it passed a law governing the sale of cocaine, surrounding that traffic with regulations calculated to restrict its uses to those for which it was designed and to keep it away from those who use it to wreck their mental and physical beings.

Duluth druggists say that they have never made a practice of selling cocaine except upon prescription, and that this is the habit of the better class of druggists all over the country. While this is unquestionably true, there are black sheep in every flock, and the law was necessary because there are druggists that will sell the stuff to anybody that asks for it. The cocaine habit is one of the deadliest of the beastly vices to which man addicts himself. The tobacco habit, the liquor habit, even the opium habit, are all mild compared with its baneful effects.

Its use is a curse more utterly degrading than any other habit, and surer to hang upon its victims the fetters of slavery the most potent and despicable. As a rule, cocaine-using is the last step in the degradation of the slave to drugs, and it comes when other means of travel to the realm of lotus dreams have failed to do their work. Slaves to its use will commit any crime to get the stuff, and when under its influence are vicious and brutal criminals.

The Minnesota law, which went into effect May 1, prohibits the sale of cocaine except upon the prescription of physician or druggist, requires that the prescription shall include the name and address of the patient, and prohibits the re-filling of a prescription or the delivery of a copy of it to the patient by the druggist. The penalty for giving or selling cocaine improperly is $50 to $100 fine or thirty to ninety days' imprisonment, and in the case of a druggist or his assistant, or a physician or dentist, loss of license to practice is involved. The same punishment is provided for prescribing cocaine for a "fiend."

A HORRIBLE EXAMPLE.

There is nothing like a horrible example to warn people of the bad effects of evil habits. The theorist may talk to his heart's content, and writers may publish warning after warning, but it is not until a concrete example is placed before the people that they begin to appreciate the value of the warnings.

For instance, coffee and tobacco, while literature is not by any means empty of praise for them, are known to be enemies of human health, and there have been many instances where life has plainly been shortened by their use. A startling example of this is reported by the Baltimore Sun, in telling of the death in that city of John M. Melbourne. He died last week at the age of 93, and there can be no doubt that his early demise was due to his excessive use of coffee and tobacco. Doctors will tell you, too, of the evil effects of hot bread upon the stomach, and Mr. Melbourne's example is of value here, too, because he had eaten hot bread for breakfast every morning for eighty years. This vicious practice surely shortened his life, as the doctors said it would.

The Sun says: "He chewed tobacco almost incessantly, using almost a plug a day, and that of goodly proportions; he was inordinately fond of coffee, and liked it best good and strong, after the French fashion. Every day he took three cups." This shocking record should go into the list of horrible examples, by all means. The Sun reporter, bent upon laying the fullest enormity of this man's recklessness before the public, figured out that if Mr. Melbourne had started to chew tobacco as late in life as 20, he must have consumed 26,280 plugs. During the same time he must have used 68,840 cups of coffee, or about 17,000 quarts. To show that nothing else could have produced this melancholy result, the report states that Mr. Melbourne was temperate in all other things, and was strictly religious.

All users of tobacco and coffee should take heed of this startling instance.

THE LAW'S OBSCURITY.

Once there was a bad old king, long, long ago, who ruled in Rome or some other ancient country, who wrote out all his laws, hung them so high nobody could see them, and then punished everybody who violated them. We shudder when we think of such unreasoning cruelty, yet we cannot take exception to it, because the maxim that "ignorance of the law excuses no one" still prevails, and many of our laws are hung higher than those of this bad old king, figuratively speaking.

Does the average citizen know any more about what the law is than did the subjects of this king? When it comes to that, does anybody know much more about it? Do even the courts, with their 5 to 4 decisions? Every other year the legislature of every state gets together and makes a lot of new laws. They are printed in a book, of course, but only a very small proportion of the public ever sees this book, and of those who do see it a still smaller proportion read it and know what is in it. Yet we punish violations of these laws just as did that bad old king of antiquity.

The lawyer is supposed to know what the law is, and the courts are supposed to know more about it than he does, but the man that goes to law and sits pondering upon its mysteries while his case is dragging its way through the courts cannot help but be bewildered when he tries to figure out from either of them what the law is. It would seem as though a man who used common sense, and did what that told him to do, would always be safe from the clutches of the law, but somehow it does not always work that way.

In fact there is too much law, too much ponderous palavering over precedents, and too little common sense, which is otherwise known as justice.

SOME RESULTS.

The detailed reports of the first annual conference of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, held at Washington last week, are at hand, and they show that the meeting was a success. Its principal results seem to have been the collection of expert opinion as to things necessary for the cure and prevention of the disease, and the advancement of the fight against consumption to the stage of national organization. The association will continue to hold annual meetings, and to work actively between meetings.

A study of the reports shows that among other conclusions, the following seem to have been pretty generally agreed upon:

Popular interest in the fight is awakening to an encouraging degree, and the subject is being considered intelligently.

As to sources of contagion, while there appears to be some danger from diseased cattle, the principal menace is the human victim of the disease.

It is necessary to guard against the spread of the disease through the sputum of patients, and by increasing the resistence of the people through improvements in their social and sanitary environments.

The laws now on the statute books should be more rigidly enforced, particularly local ordinances against spitting in public places, which are empty forms in many places.

While New York appears to be the only place where there is legal authority for restraining patients and isolating them to a certain degree, it is essential that such authority should be given in every state.

There should be better sanitary regulations everywhere, especially in street and railway cars.

As to cure, fresh air, sunlight, rest and an abundance of nourishing food are the prime essentials, climate being secondary.

None of these facts are particularly new, but all of them are highly important, and they cannot be spread too widely or insisted upon too strongly.

Hotel Gossip.

"I would advise anyone who contemplates paying a visit to the Lewis and Clark exposition at Portland to plan on going early in June or late in September," said S. R. Wentworth of Portland, Oregon, formerly a resident of Duluth, at the McKay. "This is advisable because of the fact that during the middle of the summer the atmosphere along the Pacific coast, particularly in and about Portland, is so heavily charged with the smoke of forest fires that one can see only a comparatively short distance, and so has no opportunity to enjoy the most beautiful of the many scenic effects.

"On a clear day a person can get wonderful views from the city park and other elevated positions about the city. A remarkable panorama is spread out before him. At his feet lies the pretty city and winding river, and in the distance he can see the snow-capped mountain peaks. The best part of the western trip is the scenery, and so I advise taking it when the scenery may be enjoyed to the best advantage. For several weeks last year we were unable to see across the valley. While the visitor is in the West he should not miss the trip up the Columbia river to the Dalles, a spot which for beauty is seldom equalled.

"The Portland fair is not very large, and does not pretend to be, but it is worth visiting, nevertheless. The St. Louis exposition was altogether too big. A person got tired out before he had seen half of it. The buildings were strung all over a vast area of ground and were widely separated. In Portland they are as close together as circumstances will permit, and it does not take you a week to walk from one end of the grounds to the other. All the buildings were erected with an eye to the artistic, and the general effect is a pretty one. The structures are fine ones, and the exhibits are all interesting. A unique feature is the forestry building. It is built entirely of logs, the smallest of which measures at least four feet in diameter.

"An unusual, almost unheard of thing about the exposition is that it will be entirely complete on the opening day. Everything will be in readiness when the gates are formally opened, and persons visiting the grounds tomorrow will see just as much as if he had waited two months longer.

"Portland itself is a new city with a population of 130,000, where four years ago the total population was 90,000. The city is still growing at a rapid rate. It is often spoken of as being more quiet than Seattle, but this impression is hardly a correct one. Where Seattle has only two or three leading business streets, Portland has six or seven, and all of them present an appearance about as active as does any single one of Seattle's. Give Seattle as many principal thoroughfares and it would appear the quieter of the two cities. As a place of residence Portland is far ahead of Seattle. Once live there and you will never want to reside anywhere else."

"The growth of International Falls in the past is as nothing compared to what it will be in the future," said Hartley McGuire, a Minneapolis lumberman who has just returned from the border city, at the St. Louis. "Extensive developments of an industrial character may be expected there within the next few years, and there is no doubt that the town will develop into an important city.

"There is now nothing left to add to the advantages of International Falls as a place for investing capital but a railroad from the south, and from present indications such a railroad will not be very long in coming. Much speculation is indulged in relative to the two lines which are building northward, the Minnesota & International and the Duluth, Virginia and Rainy Lake, as to which will first reach the town.

"The freight and passenger traffic on the Rainy river boats is quite extensive. Several modern steamboats ply up and down the stream, and as the country settles up their patronage steadily increases. All that northern country is developing as fast as could be expected, and each year sees a large number of newcomers. The natural advantages of the region are such that everyone who goes there appears well satisfied."

"It is noteworthy that Frederick Palmer, the veteran war correspondent of Collier's Weekly, takes a different view from that commonly held of the ability displayed by the Japanese in the operation of railroads," said G. D. Perkins of Chicago at the Spalding. "He says that if the Japanese were no better at soldiering than they are at railroading, they would never have taken Southern Manchuria, and that honors for the Russians are easy on this score.

"He notes that, although the Japanese have had the railroad from Dalny to Lio Yang in their possesion six months, they are running three trains each way daily, while the Russians are running twelve from St. Petersburg. He speaks rather contemptuously of the Japanese toy cars with their narrow gauge. But the very rapidity with which the Japanese changed the captured lines to their gauge, three feet six inches, was in itself something of an achievement in railroading. Mr. Palmer fails to remark upon this, however. Possibly his immediate memories of a night in an uncomfortable little Japenese car, while he was returning to the front, biased his opinions somewhat."

Not Broken, But—

New York Times: A well-known physician of Brooklyn tells an amusing incident that happened at his summer home in New Hampshire when his daughter, who is now a leading society belle, was a very small girl. Her grandmother asked her to bring an egg from the hennery. After several minutes the little girl returned with her apron full of eggs. While yet a distance away the grandmother asked, "Well, did you break any eggs on the way?"

"No, grandma," was the prompt reply; "but the shells came off a few."

The Weather.

There was a touch of soft warmth in the air this morning, before the wind freshened and turned toward the northward, that was exquisitely balmy and delightful. There was but little breeze, and that from the southwest for a time, while there was a soft, dreamy, summery haze over the sky, with feathery clouds that showed a tendency to pile up and threaten showers which did not come. A little later the wind shifted to the north, and the clouds began to scatter, only to return later with their harmless threats. It was just warm enough for comfort, but not so warm as to force the pedestrian to the shady side of the street unless his way led there.

The weather man let the hint of rain get into his local forecast this morning, and said that there might possibly be showers during tomorrow. Tonight is due to be fair, and tomorrow it will be partly cloudy, with fresh southerly winds that will bring warmth perhaps a little deeper than today's.

This morning there was cool weather in the Rockies and elsewhere it was "just medium" or else there was a tendency to decided warmth. The Ohio Valley, the South Atlantic states and the Eastern Gulf states got rain yesterday. The barometer is low off the South Atlantic states, Arizona and the Far Northwest, in the lake country it was partly cloudy, and the winds were variable.

A Good Paper.

Hancock, Mich., Journal: A newspaper is like a man—because generally it reflects some man—and it as a man should be judged on the whole. No man lives a perfect life; no editor prints a perfect paper. If an editor is honest he is bound to offend some one every day of his life. If he doesn't offend some one the editor is namby-pamby and flabby. The same is true of the average man. A newspaper is bound to make mistakes; in getting news it must necessarily take hearsay. But if in the long run and in the main, week after week and year after year, a paper stands for decency, for honest thinking and clean living, if it speaks fair for those who are trying to do good and condemns sneaks and cheats, that is a good paper.

Henry James' Visit.

He wrapped each flower in
The meshes of his style,
With long and complicated rant
He pummeled each unlucky plant
A while.

Beside a flowing stream
He, meditating, sat
And analyzed that river's past
Until the river stood aghast
Thereat.

And when toward Britain's isle
At last he turned his head,
Dried up was every stream he saw
And every flower, crushed with awe,
Was dead.

Government Regulation.

Wall Street Journal: What government supervision and regulation amounts to is simply the establishing of certain rules of the game and appointing certain umpires in order that competition may be a well-regulated, fair and reasonable contest. Government regulation, therefore, is not monopoly or socialism, and it is not an interference with fair competition. It is the friend of competition. It stands between competition and monopoly, on the one hand, and competition and socialism on the other. The government as umpire in the game of business would see to it that the game is carried on under rules that would debar foul blows and underhand methods and give everybody an equal opportunity under the law.

The Panama Purchases.

The Commoner: Secretary Taft's free trade order places the grand old party of plunder by protection in a very embarrassing situation. It recalls the novel written by Mark Twain. The reader was carried along with a plot that became more and more intricate, until it seemed that the hero of the tale would meet death whichever of the two courses confronting him he adopted. Just as the reader's interest was at its height, he turned a page and read Mark's abrupt conclusion of the story in this way: "The reader will not see this story continued in our next or in any other publication. The fact is, the author has got the hero into such a mighty bad fix that he here and now washes his hands of the entire affair."

The Railroad Defense.

Kansas City Times: The chief defense of the railroads, and of the trusts, which are interested in the matter of rate legislation, is that the present powers of the Interstate Commerce commission are sufficient or insufficient, the fact remains that the Interstate Commerce commission has been unable to restrain the railroads from making unjust rates. In only a very small percentage of suits brought have convictions been possible. The commission declares that the rulings against it have nearly all been based on its lack of authority. The country wants the railways and the big shippers controlled. It wants a square deal all around. Existing laws have been insufficient, even when a determined effort has been made to enforce them, and the people want new laws. And they are going to have them.

The Son Was Frank, Anyway.

Thomas W. Lawson said the other day of a stock manipulator whose methods he purposed to expose.

"He is like the Paint Rock farmer, and I shall be like the farmer's son. Only I shall act deliberately, whereas the son was only blundering.

"This lad, in the wheat season, drove up to the miller's and submitted a handful of wheat.

"The miller studied the wheat attentively, and then said to the boy:

"'How much has your father got of this?'

"'He ain't got no more like it,' the boy answered. 'He's been all mornin' pickin' that out.'"

Twenty Years Ago.

Taken From the Columns of Duluth Papers of This Date 1885.

James Seville will begin work next week on a dwelling house on First street, east of Chester creek.

United States Marshal Brackett has taken charge of Bob McKay, accused of selling liquor to Vermilion Lake Indians.

Reuben Toby and wife of Pittsford, N. Y., uncle and aunt of O. H. Simonds, are in the city on a visit.

It is stated that the Superior Inter-Ocean has been bought by C. C. Knappen, in the interest of Thomas Bardon, owner of the Superior Times.

George Spencer & Co. this week bought the lot on the corner of Superior street and Third avenue west, opposite the board of trade, of A. J. Miller & Co. for $11,000, or $220 a front foot. They will commence work very soon on a magnificent four-story stone building, which will be fitted up for a bank and offices. The location is about the best in the city for an office building, and the price paid, $220 a foot, shows that the purchasers have full faith in the future of Duluth.

Iver Wisted has recently built a brick addition to his carpenter shop, in which he has placed all the tools necessary for turning out all sorts of turned, carved and fancy woodwork in both pine and hard woods.

It is stated on good authority that over 500 dwelling houses have been built this season, or are now building, in Duluth. One lumber manufacturing firm alone has furnished material for 285 houses since the beginning of the year.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

St. Cloud Times: Chicago will have to learn how to run its delivery wagons before it can hope successfully to run its street cars.

Long Prairie Argus: After reading a few of the serial editorials of Frank Eddy in the Sauk Centre Herald one is almost inclined to the suspicion that he don't like the civil service law.

Bimidji Pioneer: Governor LaFollette has "flayed" the lobby. His burning words fairly blistered the skin and it was a castigation richly deserved. But the legislative lobby will endure many such beatings before it relaxes its grip upon the people; it is the strongest force in political, industrial and commercial life today and even such a virile blow as Governor LaFollette's is like a man blowing his breath in the teeth of the wind.

St. Hilaire Spectator: Now that there is not much doing in politics the state papers are agitating good roads. May it lead to good results—and good roads.

Milaca Times: There seems to be a whole lot of people who believe in the power of the country press when it is confined to free complimentary notices.

Milaca Times: Why people will rush off to the wilds of Canada, five or six hundred miles from anywhere, to buy lands when better land at the same figure can be bought within 75 miles of the great commercial centers of Minnesota is one of the problems that serve only to illustrate the old saying that "distance lends enchantment to the view."

Warren Register: Some of the papers that claim to desire harmony next year in the Republican ranks in Minnesota are going after it in a very peculiar manner. Instead of using the soft word that appeases and turns away wrath, they are assailing their last year's enemies with bludgeons. Of course, they receive a few short-arm jolts in return.

International Falls Press: The state dairy and food commission has discovered that the whiskey used at Hibbing and other range towns has the best of so-called "forty-rod" class by half. An employee of the commission avers that the average man cannot take a good drink of the whiskey and travel farther than twenty rods, and suggests that the name should be changed to "twenty rod" whiskey.

SMILING REMARKS.

Philadelphia Ledger: "I see that a prominent statician says that considerably more than one-half of the world's population is feminine."

"I don't believe it. If that were so, how would we account for the fact that one-half the world doesn't know how the other half lives?"

Judge—The Dentist—I'll have to charge you $2.50 for pulling that tooth.

The Patient—Oi thought yez charged 50 cents.

The Dentist—Yes, but you yelled so loud you scared four other patients out of the place.

New York Sun: Peter the Hermit had just started the Crusaders.

"Yes," he bonsted, "I was the first to get up the alluring tramp-through-the mountains summer vacation scheme."

Patting himself on the back, he watched them trek forth.

Detroit Free Press: Rabid Scientist—Do you mean to tell me that you don't believe one iota of my theory of evolution?

Dub-at-Science—Oh, no, not exactly; what I mean to say is that after hearing your talk I've decided that Darwin is way off. The link isn't missing at all.

Cleveland Leader: Poeticus—Let me sing the songs of a nation and I care not who makes the laws.

Criticus—Aw, chop it! If you sing any songs there'll be some new laws made mighty soon!

Washington Star: "Rafferty," said Mr. Dolan, "do yez t'ink the labor question will liver be settled?"

"Not with me," was the answer. "If I only had to work wan hour a day I'd be tempted to sthrike fur fewer minutes an' more pay."

Yonkers Statesman: Yeast—What's that doctor of yours, a homeopath?

Crimsonbeak—No.

"An allopath?"

"No."

"What is he then?"

"He's a hydropath."

"What's that?"

"He believes in putting a fellow on the water wagon."

A Modest Competency.

A modest competency—that was all he craved at twenty-four;
When he had gained it he would cease to fret or fight for any more.
Three thousand yearly—that assured without a lapse for all his days,
And he would bid his cares farewell to loiter in earth's pleasant ways.

At thirty-five he struggled still, and still his goal was far ahead;
With fifteen thousand yearly he would gladly quit the game, he said.
He had no selfish wish to pile up heaps of wealth he'd never need.
A modest competency—that was all he cared to have, indeed.

When he was forty-eight he wished to leave the frenzied crowd and rest;
With fifty thousand yearly he would banish longings from his breast.
A modest competency—that was still the distant prize he sought;
With fifty thousand yearly he would deem his lot a happy lot.

At sixty-five he struggled on and bruised and battered other men;
A hundred thousand yearly would have filled him with contentment then.
"With such a modest income fixed for all the days beyond," said he,
"I'd seek the quiet, peaceful ways nor care who cursed or envied me."

At eighty, toothless, wrinkled, grim, he struggled in the market place;
His hands, somehow, had turned to claws, which he would lace and interlace.
"With but a million yearly I," he said, "would quite the hateful strife.
A modest competency—that I have been seeking all my life."

Backbone.

Philadelphia Telegraph: We are just now having daily some new manifestation of backbone. It is the bone down the middle of the back. It is commonly called the spine, but in scientific terminology it comes up beautifully as the vertebral column. Backbone is a great thing, whether you are running a sawmill or a city. Physically one cannot stand up without it. Morally it is just so much pulp. When the average man, though he himself has it not, gets a sight at the real thing in backbone, it uplifts him. It makes him feel like going right ahead and getting some of it too. He learns that if he is to be known for firmness, for stability of purpose, for decision of character, for resolution, and for moral principle, he has got to have it, and not hide it under a bushel, but let the people see it. Backbone is a prize possession. Therefore, these new manifestations of it make one feel like throwing up his hat and shouting "Hurrah!"

Frank Eddy Is Busy.

Sauk Center Herald: The Herald did a rushing business last week. The editor took in an ad for sewing machine needles, got a three-line paid local, made two speeches and collected a spaniel pup on subscription. Times may be hard in the country, but we haven't noticed it.

Thanks, But It's Independent.

Albert Lea Standard: The Duluth Evening Herald is now the leading Democratic paper of the state and none is better, in truth, not only in politics but in metropolitan character and general excellence it surpasses all its Republican rivals in the Northwest.

Counted Out.

An English paper tells a story of life in Whitechapel. A man met a friend outside a public house. "These men in here," he exclaimed, furiously, pointing behind him, "have gone and insulted me. Now, just watch me go in and kick them all into the street, one after another. You can count 'em off as they come through the door." The friend stood and watched. Presently a human form whizzed by him. "One!" he called. "Stop counting," said the other; "it's me!"

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: It is a good deal cheaper to pay alimony than to run two households.

A girl dances till her wedding day and pays the piper the rest of her life.

A boy thinks he has a lot of troubles in school till he comes out and gets married.

A man can nearly always make his wife believe he was working at the office late if he brings hea home a bunch of flowers.

A Case Worth While.

Washington Post: It would be a case worth while if LaFollette's Wisconsin railway bill could be tested in Judge Quarles' court.

In Stricken Chicago.

Newark News: The order of march was as follows:

Mayor Dunne on horseback.
Platoon of mounted police.
Co. I, First Infantry, Illinois National Guard, with bayonets fixed.
High School Cadets.
Storage van containing iron safe and Covered with Pinkertons.
Battery B, Tenth Light Artillery, U. S. A., with Gatling guns.
Police reserves on foot.

It was neither a street parade nor a military funeral.

Ah, no, gentle reader.

It was only the Dry Goods Department Store delivering a yard of silk braid to Mrs. P. G. Englewood.

Monstrous Public Scandal.

Wall Street Journal: President Stickney of the Chicago, Great Western railroad, is entirely right in calling attention to the evil of free passes on railroads, and to the need of a strict enforcement of the law prohibiting them. Especially should this law be observed by the officials of the government which made it. Most monstrous is the practice of those legislators who accept free passes from the railroad at the same time that they charge up mileage against the state treasury.

His Lovely Errand.

Lippincott's: He was a cherubic youth of 4, with a beautiful, blue-eyed countenance and an angelic smile. He sat on the fence, swinging his heels and humming a kindergarten song.

"Oh, you darling!" cried an impulsive young woman, pouncing upon him and giving him a hug. "Has your mother any more like you? Have you any little brothers?"

"Yep," replied the angelic boy, "got three, me and Jack and Billy and Frank."

"Which one do you like best?"

"Jack, I guess," replied the youngster, after a moment of deep thought. 'Yop, I like Jack best."

"And why," asked the young woman, "do you like Jack best?"

"'Cause he did such a lovely errand for me once."

"What was that lovely errand?"

"He bit Billy on the leg," replied the sweetly serious cherub.

"Why," pursued the young woman, "didn't you do the biting?"

"'Cause I hate the taste of Billy's legs," was the calm reply.

COMING HOME

Elaborate Ceremonies In Connection With Opening Ball Game.

The Drawing For the Baseball Auto Has Been Postponed.

Far in the lead of the other teams in the Northern league race, the White Sox will come home tomorrow for the opening game of the league series on the home grounds.

The team has been playing magnificent ball on the present trip, meeting and defeating all the teams except Grand Forks, with pleasing regularity. The Duluth players have taken four games from the Twins, three out of four from Winnipeg, two out of three from Crookston, and three straights from Fargo. Grand Forks is the only team that has not yet been met, and this probably accounts for them being able to hold down second place and boast of a percentage of over .600.

Winnipeg will be the opposing team here tomorrow, and the Maroons promise to be one of Duluth's main rivals for the league pennant. The team has been strengthened by a new catcher and a new outfielder since the last games were played, and the Canucks should give the home players a run for the money in the series which will commence tomorrow and last until Sunday.

All games will be called at 4 o'clock this year, in place of 3:30. This will give the fans a better opportunity to get away, and will enable them to get back up town by 6 o'clock or very shortly afterwards.

Tomorrow's celebration will commence with a parade starting from the city hall. It will be headed by the mayor and the members of the city council in carriages, followed by the players of both teams in tally-hos. The Third Regiment band will also be in the procession, and the baseball auto, which has been purchased.

At the grounds the ceremonies will consist of a short speech by President Kent and the hoisting of the pennant won last year. This will be followed by an address by Mayor Cullum, who will then pitch the first ball over the plate.

The drawing for the auto will not take place tomorrow, owing to the fact that not enough tickets have yet been sold to pay for the cost of the machine. The management is anxious to dispose of a few more of the gasteboards, before making the drawing and the winner will not be known for a week or two yet.

THIRTY TO ONE SHOT WON RACE

Buttling Surprises the Field In the Parkway Handicap.

New York, May 31.—Before a crowd of 30,000 persons, J. L. McGinnis' Buttling, a 30 to 1 shot, captured the Parkway handicap, one mile and a sixteenth at Gravesend yesterday. Dolly Spanker, the favorite, was second and Major Daingerfield third. Buttling went to the front at the lifting of the barrier and opened up a gap of two lengths, which he increased to five lengths at the finish, winning very easily. Dolly Spanker was four lengths in front of Major Daingerfield. The stewards, after carefully considering all the evidence, suspended Jockey Hildebrand for the remainder of the meeting for incompetency and referred his case to the Jockey club. On May 26 Hildebraad, who had the mount of Duenna, is alleged to have put up a very bad ride in allowing Last Cherry, who was backed from 6 to 1 to 9 to 5, to win by a head from Duenna. A prominent Western horseman and bookmaker is reported to have won a large sum of money on Last Cherry.

Louisville, Ky., May 31.—Rams Horn, which was looked upon as a horse of the highest class by virtue of his early performances this season at Southern tracks and a strong second choice for the Kentucky derby in which he finished second, went down to defeat at Churchill Downs yesterday afternoon. Coupled with Phil Finch and carrying the public money at 2 to 5 in the free handicap, the best Rams Horn could do was to finish third to Major T. J. Carson. The winner was quoted at 12 to 1 and finished in a gallop ahead of Thespian. Weather showery. Track fast.

St. Louis, May 31.—The Decoration day handicap and a steeple chase divided honors at the American Jockey club yesterday. Buck O'Dowd, at 11 to 5, won the latter, after two horses had fallen and Jockey Ford was slightly injured. Little Giant, 3 to 1, won the handicap. Jake Sanders at 9 to 5, won the memorial stakes, a sprint of five and a half furlongs, with $1,500 added, the feature of an attractive holiday card at the fair grounds.

Kansas City, May 31.—Floral King won the Decoration day handicap at a mile and a sixteenth at Elmridge yesterday after a sharp drive from Glassful. The race was one of the prettiest of the meeting and when the stretch was reached a blanket would have covered the bunch and even at the finish the last horse was not three lengths behind the winner.

THE BOARDS OF GRAIN APPEALS

Named By Governor—All Are From Country Districts.

St. Paul, May 31.—Governor Johnson has brought to a close the contest for places on the state board of grain appeals. The lucky ones are:

A. F. Evenson, Democrat, St. Peter; Theodore Thorson, Republican, Glenwood; W. F. Kelso, Democrat, Hallock; J. F. Cargar, Democrat, Fergus Falls; T. B. McManus, Democrat, Crookston; S. B. Thorson, Republican, Winthrop.

From the moment Governor Johnson was elected, the contest for places on the board was the warmest of anything in the gift of the executive. In all there were seventy-six applicants.

It will be seen that none of the large cities is represented in the list and Governor Johnson explains the omission by saying that the centers of population have already been cared for.

All of the men named are large grain dealers and farmers. Before being appointed they had to show to the satisfaction of the governor that they could judge grain.

The selection of A. F. Evenson of St. Peter is a reappointment. All the others are new. Each job pays $2,200 a year. The six members will be divided into two boards with headquarters at Duluth and Minneapolis.

The action of Governor Johnson in refusing to appoint any one from Duluth or Minneapolis caused considerable surprise in St. Paul. As the board sits in Duluth and in Minneapolis, it was generally considered that whatever arangements the governor would make these two cities would be represented.

The following statement explaining the action of the governor was made public today at his office:

"No resident of the three large cities was appointed on the board for two reasons: First, because the large cities have been well taken care of in the matter of appointments, and the country was entitled to recognition. Second, it is thought that the board as constituted by the new appointments will give the best possible results. There was great rivalry among applicants from the large cities and, as is well known, there has been more or less friction between the Duluth and the Minneapolis members. It was thought that the best way to solve the problem was to appoint new members from the country."

When asked about the matter, Governor Johnson said in addition:

"I made the apointments with the view of securing the best possible service for the people of the state, and I trust that this expectation will be realized."

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The annual Irvington-Milburn 25-mile road race, commonly known as the cycling derby of America, which was run Tuesday over the famous course between the above named towns, was won by Wm. Hofsess of Roselle, N. J., in 1 hour, 12 minutes and 3-5 second. He had a handicap of 5½ minutes.

Major John M. Carson, the well known newspaper correspondent, has accepted the position of chief of the bureau of manufactures of the department of commerce and labor tendered him by the president some days ago.

NO DEMAND ON FRANCE.

Paris, May 31.—The foreign office absolutely denies the rumor cabled from Paris and circulated in the United States that Dr. Motono, the Japanese minister on behalf of his government has demanded from France through Foreign Minister Delcasse, the sum of $100,000,000 as damages for French breaches of neutrality in connection with the voyage of Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet.

GAMES TODAY.

Duluth at Fargo.
Crookston at Grand Forks.
Winnipeg at St. Cloud.

Fargo, N. D., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Duluth made Fargo look like deuce spots yesterday afternoon and took both games before a large holiday crowd. The fans were tired out from four hours' rubbering for the Fargo scores that never came with sufficient frequency, and left the park in a discouraged mood.

Both teams hit well in the first game, though Duluth had the best of it, not only in the number but in the extra bases. Stupid base running by Fargo lost whatever show the team had to win.

"Lefty" Hanson was up for Fargo, but in the sixth he was retired in favor of Berrigan. After his terrible slaughter against Grand Forks it was expected Hanson would show some ginger and hump himself a little, but he seemed unable to do so, and Duluth batsmen got to him hard. Traeger, Rose and Alberts showed poor form on the paths There were a few bright spots, including fast fielding by Hanson in the first and Berrigan in the sixth in nailing men at the home plate and Fitzgerald's catch in the third. Duluth played a fast fielding game without any spectacular work.

In the second contest Duluth opened up like one of Togo's batteries on the Russians and the hits were long and frequent, seventeen safe ones with a total of twenty-three being registered. The fielding of the visitors was very much bad, an octet of infractions of perfect fielding being registered against the bunch, with Shortstop Weiler and Manager O'Dea being the chief offenders. They hit the ball so often and hard that their misplays had no effect on the score. The feature of the game was Bennett's stick work, with McShane a close second.

Both scored in the first. In the second Duluth failed to register and Fargo got three in a peculiar manner.

Traeger was an easy out from short to first. Fitzgerald hit and reached second on Weller's failure to handle the throw of O'Dea on Jarvie's grounder, and both were safe. Alberts fanned, and Pitcher Pete Hanson marched to the bat. He landed on one of Erickson's fast ones for a single to left that got away from Bennett, and Donovan reached home. McShane failed to hold the return to catch Fitzgerald, and the ball went through the fence. McShane did some lively hurdling, but when he retrieved the ball all three men were safe at home. Duluth got busy with the stick in the fourth and forged ahead and had it easy. A collision in the second injured Alberts and Fitzgerald, circling the bases on the game, O. Hanson taking his place. The latter made a sensational catch in the fourth. The scores:

WINNIPEG WINS.

Takes Two Games From St. Cloud-Brainerd.

St. Cloud, May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—In one of the snappiest ball games ever seen on the local diamond, the St. Cloud-Brainerd team went down to defeat before Winnipeg yesterday afternoon by a score of 7 to 4. The contest went a full eleven innings and the quality of ball put up by both aggregations was such as to make the blood of the most slugigsh fan tingle with delight.

A home run by Tripp, the Canuck first baseman, in the eleventh inning with two men on bases broke the tie of 4 to 4 that occurred in the ninth inning. Nearly a thousand people saw the contest.

The run getting was inaugurated by the "foreigners" in the initial inning, when Howells secured a base on balls, was advanced by Piper's sacrifice, and scored on Johnson's two bagger. A two base hit by Piper and a long single by Tucker in the third permitted the Maroons to duplicate their work of the first inning and the score then stood 2 to 0. This ended the run-getting of the Maroons until the ninth, when on a combination of errors by the Twins and a long single by Green they were able to add two more scores.

St. Cloud-Brainerd scored twice in the fourth and twice in the ninth, the latter two runs contributing to the tie. These scores were made with two men out in the last half of the ninth. Fandom went wild and Ripley whose long single brought in the tieing scores was given an ovation. After that there was nothing doing until Tripp's home run in the eleventh brought in three scores and ended the aspirations of the home team.

Brainerd, May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Winnipeg took the morning game played here yesterday by the score of 13 to 8.

Kelley was knocked out of the box by the Maroons in the third inning and was replaced by Crossley, who was hammered as freely as his predecessor.

The Twins also succeeded in putting Whitman to the bad in the sixth, and he was replaced by Maloney.

Only eight innings were played in order that the two teams might catch the train for St. Cloud, where the afternoon game was played. The Score:

David Hood Gets Contract For Superior Union Depot.

Total Cost of the New Building Will Be About $40,000.

The contract for building the new union depot at Superior has been awarded to David Hood of Duluth. It is understood that the contract price is $40,000. The new structure will be located near the site of the one that was burned, near Broadway, about three blocks west of Tower avenue. Work on the building will be started within the next week or two.

The building will be two sories in height and will measure 200 feet in length. There will be no train shed, but the roof will overhang the tracks at the side of the depot. Stone and brick will be used in the construction, and the floors will be of tile. The entire building will be modern in all respects. It will be electric lighted and heated by means of a hot water plant. It will not be so expensive as was hoped for by the business interests of Superior, but will, it is said, be quite a handsome structure. David Hood was the builder of the Omaha depot in this city and also of the South Shore depots at Marquette and Houghton, Mich.

There has been considerable delay in the letting of the contract owing to the fact that the interested roads have met with difficulty in deciding upon a site. The Great Northern favored a site on the bay front, but the South Shore strongly objected to this. W. F. Fitch, president of the road, wanted the new site to be near the old, and it appears that he finally won out in the controversy. President Fitch, who has been in Duluth and Superior for several days past in conection with the depot matter, left last night for Marquette. Yesterday he had an informal talk with members of the depot committee, the Commercial club and the common council of Superior, explaining the union station plans.

It is understood that the Lake Superior & Southeastern railroad, which is being extended toward Duluth and Superior, will not use the Superior union depot, as has been rumored, but will have its own terminal property. The depots, both passenger and freight, it is said, will be located between Ogden and Hammond avenues.

Railroad Land Company.

The Great Western Land company has opened offices on Fifth avenue west. Martin Adson, C. J. Norquist, E. A. Lindgren, A. J. Perrin and John Erichson are named as incorporators. All are connected with the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic road in Duluth and Superior. Martin Adson, general agent in Duluth for the South Shore, is named as president of the new company.

Ten New Towns.

It is announced that the Great Northern will locate five new towns on the York branch in North Dakota and five on the Towner extension. The York extension runs forty-two miles northwest. Two of the five towns have been platted, and lots in them will be offered for sale June 7. They will be called McCumber and Thorne. Two of the towns on the other extension will be offered for sale June 8.

Attention, Knights of Pythias.

Reminder of Fishing Contest.

"Having read in last Saturday's Herald a history of Stannard rock lighthouse, out in Lake Superior," said Deputy Clerk of Court Alexander Hamilton, this morning, "I was reminded of an occasion in 1870 or 1871, when I visited the rock with a large fishing party, when nothing but a beacon light was displayed there. In the party were thirty or forty men from Houghton and Marquette, and the occasion was one in which there was a fishing contest on between the two places for a big supper. The Houghton contingent, of which I was a member, won the contest. The total catch off Stannard Rock that time amounted to 2,800 pounds of lake trout. Before leaving the locality I climbed on top of the beacon, and there found an old rusty file that had been left when the beacon was established."

PHILADELPHIA FIGHT IS FORMALLY ENDED.

Philadelphia, May 31.—Counsel for David Smyth, former director of public safety and Peter E. Costello, former director of public works, who were deposed by Mayor Weaver, today visited the office of the prothonotary of the department of common pleas and withdrew the papers in the injunction proceedings brought against Col. Sheldon Potter and A. Lincoln Acker, their successors. This formally ended the legal fight that had been begun at the instigation of the "organization" leaders against the appointees of Mayor Weaver.

Drink the Cause of More Crime In Our City.

Another horrible tragedy in our midst, causing much excitement and bitter feeling, goes down a long line of crime in this country resulting from excessive use of liquor. The liquor habit is universally recognized by physicians as a disease. It can be cured by Orrine.

This meritorious cure is the result of over ten years' scientific research by a Washington schemist. It has been tested by physicians who pronounce it wonderful. We have made arrangements with the laboratories of the Orrine Company, Inc., Washington, D. C., to furnish Orrine to people who are desirous of being freed from this horrible disease caused by the excessive use of whiskey, beer or other alcoholic stimulants. Orrine No. 1 (in powder form) can be given secretly in tea, coffee or food without the patient's knowledge. Orrine No. 2 (in pill form) is for those who desire to be free from the craving for alcoholic stimulants. We sell Orrine at $1 per package, and the company guarantees to cure the craving or refund every cent paid for it. We do not hesitate to recommend it to you. F. W. WANDERS AWAY

Boy Takes Dinner Pail to Father and Disappears.

Parents Fear He Has Met With Fatal Accident.

Since handing his father a dinner pail filled with a midday meal, yesterday morning, shortly before noon, little Antoine Prezeskia, an 8-year-old boy, living at 129 East Ninth street, has not been seen or heard of by his parents, and grave fears are entertained that he has met with an accident.

The lad is rather small for his age, and does not appear to be more than 6 or 7 years old. He was sent out by his mother to take a dinner pail to his father, yesterday morning. The father is employed by the Duluth Ice company, on Lake avenue.

The boy carried out the directions given him by his mother, found his father and handed him the dinner pail. He then left, presumably for home, to get his own dinner, but he has not been seen by either parent since that time.

The police were notified of the affair this morning by the anxious parents, and a search is being made for the boy. Up to 1 o'clock this afternoon no trace had been discovered of him.

The police believe that the boy got lost in the holiday crowd, and is either wandering about the city, or has met with some accident, possibly drowning, from the canal piers.

Aside from this no accidents have been reported to the police as the result of the large holiday crowds which frequented the parks and the canal piers.

CAESAR IS DEAD

Largest Dog In Duluth Departs By Poison Route.

Valuable St. Bernard, Property of Rev. Chas. F. Davis.

Caesar is dead.

Not by the treacherous blow from the dagger in the hands of a Brutus did death ensue, but from some poisonous substance either intentionally or unintentionally administered.

Caesar, in this case, was the property of Rev. Charles Fox Davis, pastor of the Lakeside Methodist church, a handsome big black and white St. Bernard dog, weighing 175 pounds and enjoying the distinction of being the largest canine in Duluth.

Caesar, in addition to being the largest dog in the city, also occupied a large space in the affections not only of the family of his master, but of the people of the neighborhood, and was favorably known throughout Lakeside.

Mr. Davis, who is one of the jurors on the regular panel of the present term of district court was at the courthouse this morning, when he heard of the death of his pet. There was a somewhat interesting coincidence connected with the dog's death.

Learning from a perusal of the papers that members of the police force were making a personal canvass of the houses to find the owners delinquent in the matter of a dog license, Mr. Davis decided this morning that it would be advisable to procure the proper credentials for Caesar, so he stepped in the sheriff's office to find out where he should obtain the license. While making the inquiry he was notified by telephone that his dog had been found dead a short distance from the house at Lakeside.

Mr. Davis regrets the loss of his pet very much. The dog was 6 years old, having been raised from a puppy by its master, who refused, a coupie of years ago, a handsome offer to dispose of it.

From the fact that the canine was so great a pet in the neighborhood Mr. Davis is inclined to think that the poisoning was an accident.

Bass Fishing Is Good.

According to the reports the bass fishing season is opening up quite well at some of the inland lakes. One Duluth fisherman returned the first of the week from Deerwood, where he caught in one day 130 fine bass, some of them of pretty good size. Other fishermen who went some twenty-five or thirty miles up the St. Louis river for pike, found the fishing very poor. It is claimed to be excellent fishing in the river from Spirit lake up to and beyond the rapids at Fond du Lac.

MAY MAKE POOR JOB

Claimed That First Street Concrete Should Be Sprinkled.

Several men who have had a wide experience in concrete work, have remarked on the manner in which the concrete forming the base of the First street pavement is being laid.

They state that they have found that concrete should be frequently sprayed for the first twenty-four hours after being laid to keep it from drying too quickly. This is the plan adopted by the government engineers, and it is claimed that the concrete is thus kept from crumbling.

The First street concrete, they state, is being allowed to harden at once under a hot sun and the claim is made that not nearly such good results will be obtained in this manner.

THEY HAVE HOPES

E. M. Ferguson and R. S. Powell Back From Washington.

Confident Congress Will Remedy Private Car Line Evil.

E. M. Ferguson, president of the Western Fruit Jobbers' association, and Roger S. Powell, attorney for Mr. Ferguson and the association in matters pertaining to the private car line question, returned to Duluth this morning from Washington, where they have been for the past two weeks, in attendance at the Armour hearing before the senate committee. They take a very optomistic view of the probable result of the hearing, and express confidence that congress will take definite steps toward remedying the existing evil.

"We have clearly established our side of the case," said Mr. Ferguson today, "and it is now up to congress to remedy the evil. We took up very little of the committee's time with the introduction of new evidence or with new arguments, deeming it entirely unnecessary to do so, in view of the universal acceptance of our claim that so far as our allegations of existing evils were concerned we had established our side of the case thoroughly. There was no use in pounding away in an attempt to furnish additional proof of facts which have already been clearly proved to the satisfaction of all concerned, and thus consuming valuable time, when the senators were anxious to get through with the hearing so that they might adjourn as soon as possible.

"Most of the time we did occupy was yielded to Judge Powell, who discussed the legal difficulties that may arise if our recommendations are carried out. He was listened to with marked attention, and his argument, which closed the hearing, was a very able one. All the more interest was displayed because of the fact that our recommendations differ from those which others have offered, in that we contend for a total elimination of the private car line systems, where others have merely asked for restrictive legislation along these lines.

"The Armors were unable to withstand the searching cross-examination which brought out practical admissions of the truth of many of our most damaging allegations. We find that great interest in the matter is manifested all over the country, particularly in Washington, where it was conceded on all sides that we had the Armours on the run, and that we had offered more than enough proof to sustain all of our charges. We take an optimistic view of the probable results of the investigation, and are confident that congress will take definite steps toward remedying the private car line evil.

"It is not at all likely that the senate committee will hold another meeting before congress convenes, and then there is small likelihood that any more testimony will be taken on either side. I believe the private car line question will be kept separate from railroad rate legislation in congress, as it has been kept separate in the hearings to date. Each question will require different legislation."

Range Woman Insane.

Probate Judge J. B. Middlecoff has received from Dr. Lewis A Moore of Tower information as to the insanity of Mrs. Amanda Wilhelmina Bildo, who has been in this country from Finland only a few months. Dr. Lewis states that her case is so bad that she needs constant care. As Mrs. Bildo is not a resident of this state or country, she will be brought to Duluth and deported by the federal authorities.

CONSIDERING ASSAULT CASE

Van Flattern's Fate Now Rests With the Jury.

The arguments to the jury, and the judges charge in the assault case of the state against Frank Van Flattern were made this morning, the jury retiring at 11:30 o'clock.

Van Flattern was charged with assaulting H. DeMeyers near the foot of Thirty-fourth avenue west, one night several weeks ago, with intent to kill. The penalty for conviction of assault in the first degree can be made ten years' imprisonment or a heavy fine and imprisonment.

In the argument M. H. McMahon, attorney for Van Flattern made a strong plea in his client's behalf on the ground that DeMeyers had done everything in his power to provoke trouble and finally got all the trouble he desired. He claimed that the shooting was unintentional, but that if it had been intentional, Van Flattern was to a certain extent, justified, in using severe measures.

In his charge, however, the court held that the question of provocation, by the use of the vile terms and infectives, no matter how bad they might be, would not justify the use of a deadly weapon; that such weapon should be used only as a last resort in cases of dire necessity.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the jury had not yet reached an agreement.

Following the close of the Van Flattern case a jury was called to try Herman Carlberg, a young man accused of stealing a gold watch from Lewis Mueller, of Seventeenth avenue east, the night before Easter. Carlberg is defended by W. B. Moore.

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION

Of Boiler In Stave Mill at Barron, Wis.

Barron, Wis., May 31.—The boiler in the Barron Heading and Stave mill exploded at 7:30 last night, badly injuring Walter Stowell and Oscar Peterson. It is thought both will recover. The boiler went straight up about 400 feet and completely wrecked the engine room. Peterson was found in the debris over 100 feet from the mill. Stowell crawled out of the wreck. Both were not ten feet away when the boiler exploded.

THE TORRENTS OF SPRING

"IT NEVER RAINS, BUT IT POURS."

It is a fact well known to physicians that there are extremely few people who are in a good physical condition in the spring.

The Cause: The repeated demands upon one's energy during the long winter —shut up indoors, sleeping in the close air of a overheated bedroom—without proper exercise and relaxation in the sunshine and pure air. Then, too, the common diseases of winter swoop down on many and their feeble resistance makes them a mark for the germs of Grippe—"spring fever" and pneumonia. The torrents of spring usually come at the same time with countless cases of nervous exhaustion and a general rundown condition. This is simply a state of vital bankruptcy—it is recognized by the languor, mental depression, "blueness," headache, sleeplessness, lack of appetite, poor digestion, thin blood and nervousness. Vitality and vigor are undermined.

The Remedy: Just the sort of spring remedy you need to make rich red blood and cure that lassitude and feeling of nerve exhaustion is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which bears the stamp of public approval and has sold more largely in the past forty years than any other blood purifier and stomach tonic. The refreshing influence of this extract is like Nature's influence—the blood is bathed in the tonic which gives it new life —the vital fires of the body burn brighter and their increased activity consumes the tissue rubbish which has accumulated during the winter. Dr. R. V. Pierce, the founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, and a physician of large experience and practice, was the first to make up an alterative extract of roots, herbs and barks, without a particle of alcohol or narcotics, which purifies the blood and tones up the stomach and the entire system in Nature's own way. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is just the tissue builder and tonic you require when recovering from a hard cold, grip, or pneumonia. No matter how strong the constitution the stomach is apt to be disordered after a long hard winter; and in consequence the blood is polluted, for the stomach is the laboratory for the constant manufacture of blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery strengthens the stomach—puts it in shape to make pure rich blood—helps the liver and kidneys to expel the poisons from the body. If you take this natural blood purifier and tonic you will assist your system in manufacturing each day a quantity of rich arterial blood that is stimulating to the brain and nerves. The weak, nervous, rundown, debilitated condition which so many people experience at this time of the year is usually the effect of poisons in the blood; it is often indicated by pimples or boils appearing on the skin, the face becomes thin and the person despondent. By taking Dr. Pierce's "Discovery" you soon acquire a clean pure blood supply that makes you vigorous, strong and forceful, a clean stomach which digests your food without fermenting or poisoning your system.

The Reason: This tonic is not a "patent medicine." It is a legitimate prescription of that eminent physician, Dr. R. V. Pierce, and its formula is public property.

This medicine contains the following non-alcoholic vegetable extracts: Golden Seal (Hydrastis Canadensis), Queen's root (Stillingia Sylvatica), Cherrybark (Prunus Virginiana), Stone root (Collinsonia Canadensis), Bloodroot (Sanguinaria Canadensis), Mandrake (Podophyllum Peltatum), scientifically prepared by experienced chemists at the laboratory of the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

SHOPKEEPERS' HOLDOUT.

Cheating of British Public By Short Weights.

London, May 31.—Baillie Thomson, a Govan magistrate, in denouncing the anomalies which exist under the weights and measures act, and the annual meeting of the Incorporated Society of Weights and Measures held here last week, said that in one year the British people bought 5,089,648 ponds of paper and string as tea.

It was an extraordinary position, he said, that while a trader who used unjust weights and scales was liable to prosecution, the act did not empower an inspector to take any cognizance of a deficiency in weight ordered by and delivered to a purchaser.

Under the packet system now so prevalent, in which tea, sugar and other commodities were made up into pound packets and were not weighed in the presence of the customer, much that was fraudulent, he declared, went on daily.

"It is the poor," said Mr. Thomson, "who are the chief sufferers, but so long as a trader keeps his weights and scales correct it is almost impossible to prosecute him successfully for frauds of this character.

Mr. Spencer, the chief officer of the public control committee of the London county council, had stated that the purchaser of a pound of tea very often received only fifteen and one-half ounces, the remaining half ounce being represented by paper and string.

This was a small matter in the individual case, but takling the figures in the aggregate the deficiency reached the enormous total noted by Baillie Thomson.

The woman who never reads store-advertising is about as wise as the merchant who never advertises—but this is too much like "calling names," so we withdraw the comparison, in deference to the woman.

ROMANTIC

Story of Rajah Brooke, of Sarawak, Borneo.

London, May 31.—There is no more romantic story in modern history than that of the English rajahs of the state of Sarawak, in Borneo, the first of whom was Sir James Brooken, his successor, the present rajah, being Sir Charles Brooke.

As already anounced, Sir Charles Brooke has entered with an armed force a portion of the territory recently ceded to him by the British North Borneo company, for the purpose of evicting his nephew, Mr. Brooke Johnson.

This gentleman was the representative of the British North Borneo company in the district in question, called Lawas, a region about 200 in extent, adjoining Sarawak. He claims trading rights in this territory, although it has been handed over to his uncle, the rajah of Sarawak.

Little can be gleaned in London regarding the case. "The district in question," said the secretary of the North Borneo company this week, "was under us, and Brooke Johnson was our representative. A few months ago we ceded the district to the rajah and Mr. Johnson resigned his position. This is all we know."

Sir Charles Brooke is the son of the late Rev. Francis Johnson, and was taught at Crewkerne grammar school. He was a lieutenant in the army when he joined his famous uncle, the first rajah. When he succeeded him as ruler of the country he changed his name to Brooke.

Under the protectorate of Great Britain he has his own army and navy, while his country has a revenue of about $325,000 a year. His life has been one long adventure.

GOOD BLOOD
TELLS ITS OWN STORY

And tells it eloquently in the bright eye, the supple, elastic movement, the smooth, soft skin, glowing with health, a body sound and well, an active brain, good appetite and digestion, refreshing sleep, energy to perform the duties and capacity to enjoy the pleasures of life. The blood is the most vital part of the body; every organ, muscle, tissue, nerve, sinew and bone is dependent on it for nourishment and strength, and as it circulates through the system, pure and strong, it furnishes to these different parts all the healthful qualities nature intended. When, from any cause, the blood becomes impure or diseased, it tells a different story, quite as forceful in its way. Itching, burning skin diseases, muddy, sallow complexions, disfiguring sores, boils, carbuncles, etc., show the presence, in the blood, of some foreign matter or poison. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Contagious Blood Poison and Scrofula, are effects of a deeply poisoned blood circulation. These may either be inherited or acquired, but the seat of trouble is the same—the blood. S. S. S., a purely vegetable blood remedy, cleanses and purifies the circulation and makes it strong and clean. Under its purifying and tonic effects all poisons and impurities are expelled from the blood, the general health is built up, all disfiguring eruptions and blemishes disappear, the skin becomes soft and smooth and robust health blesses life. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison and all diseases of the blood are cured by S. S. S. Book on the blood and any medical advice, free of charge. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

IMMENSE SUM

Distributed By the Life Insurance System Last Year.

Twenty-Four Cities Received More Than $1,000,000 Fach.

New York, May 31.—According to compilications by the Iusurance Press, life insurance organizations distributed in the United States and Canada in 1904 no less than $371,642,577. The tables published today by the Insurance Press show how this vast sum was apportioned by towns and cities. It appears that 203 cities received more than $100,000; 123 cities more than $200,000; 71 cities more than $300,000; 57 cities more than $400,000; 45 cities more than $500,000; 24 cities more than $1,000,000; 16 cities more than $2,00,000; 5 cities more than $5,000,000; 2 cities more than $9,000,000. and one city more than $25,000,000.

New York, $26,566,896; Chicago, $9,876,486; Philadelphia, $8,725,373; Brooklyn, $7,938,-805; Boston, $6,927,555; St. Louis, $4,668,698; Baltimore, $4,252,130; Cincinnati, $3,805,410; Pittsburg, $3,001,580; Buffalo, $2,496,013; San Francisco, $2,333,756; Montreal, $2,252,271; Detroit, $2,250,824; Cleveland, $2,237,093; Washington, $2,101,482; New Orleans, $2,-086,997; Newark, $1,960,644; Louisville, $1,-672,133; Providence, $1,635,257; Milwaukee, $1,546,909; Toronto, $1,479,537; Denver, $1,-064,371; Indianapolis, $1,050,729; Jersey City, $1,013,859.

Summarizing the various life insurance payments from all sources in 1904 we get the following figures:

Claims paid in the United States, U. S. possessions and Canada..$277,757,850
Dividend payments (Connecticut report) 32,672,767
Cash surrender values (Connecticut report) 34,701,960
Claims paid in foreign countries (estimated) 20,000,000
Annuities (estimated) 6,500,000

Grand total $371,642,577

Great as these figures are—signifying as they do the protection of homes, the perpetuation of business enterprises and the comfort of numerous individuals in every community—far greater significance and interest attach to the amount of life insurance in force. These last mentioned sums represent what the people have agreed to do for their own welfare through the system of life insurance, for great as the present distribution is the work of life insurance is really but just beginning.

For example, it appears from the record that the people of New York city have bound themselves together for mutual helpfulness to the extent of nearly $2,500,000,000. And life insurance will pay this sum to the beneficiaries under policies now in existence out of funds which are being paid in, and are to be paid in, year by year, by the people. The people of Philadelphia will pay into and receive from the life insurance clearing house more than $916,000,000; the people of Chicago have arranged to look after themselves to the extent of nearly $845,000,000; the people of Brooklyn to the extent of nearly $712,000,000; the people of Boston to the extent of nearly $619,000,000.

If the life insurance companies never wrote another dollar of business and all the policies now in force shoud be continued until maturity, they would receive in premiums and compound interest on premiums at least $14,000,000,000. How gigantic the responsibilities are which have been placed upon the management of life insurance companies can hardly be realized. Nor are the people always quick to appreciate the faithful work which their underwriters have already done, and are now doing, in their behalf. The present assets of life insurance companies, large as they are, seem to be, pale in comparison with the sum of the contracts which the companies are pledged to carry out it each policyholder continues to pay his premiums. The payments to beneficiaries to be made in the next ten years will far exceed the present assats of the entire life insurance business. Thus the accounting with policyholders goes on rapidly.

Year by year, the life insurance business expands. This growth is as fortunate as it is impressive. It signifies that the American people are in advance of all other nations in "taking care of themselves." The most profound statesmen of the old world, studying social problems, reached the conclusion that the material well-being of a people depends upon a general system of insurance—compulsory if need be. They discerned no remedy for poverty, no provision for old age, no system of thrift comparable with insurance. They evolved elaborate laws to make insurance compulsory. In America the people have not waited for compulsory laws, but have voluntary yet even in countries dominated by those human beings who assume authority by divine right the people are today in far better condition than they were in prior years.

England's trade in general has never been so good as at present, and outside of two counties in the west of Ireland, there has not been such good times in Ireland in the history of that country. In the counties referred to a failure of crops last year produced distress, but the country as a whole has made marked progress, especially in an industrial revival.

The great shipyards at Belfast are working overtime, giving steady employment to more than 12,000 men, with orders already booked for fully eighteen months ahead. Linen and woolen manufacturers in Ireland report excellent business and a marked increase in value and volume of trade.

The tonnage of vessels entering the port of Antwerp increased from 4,517,-608 tons in 1890 to 6,842,865 tons in 1900, and has steadily increased since 1900 to this writing.

The Belgians are exceedingly proud of their advance in commerce, and now claim that Antwerp is the fourth port to rank in Europe. London, first; Liverpool, second; Hamburg, third, then Antwerp, thus surpassing any port in France, Holland, Spain, Italy, Austria or Russia, in volume of foreign commerce. These wideawake Belgian business men have recently secured an appropriation of $50,000,000 to widen channels and improve the quays, docks and harbor facilities of Antwerp, and are full of confidence as to their magnificent and profitable future. Why these changes in conditions in England, in Ireland, in Belgium, and in every other country of the world? Why these industrial revivals and these wideawake betterments in financial conditions, even among earth's toilers?

Presidents, kings and emperors have not produced them. Increase or reduction of tariff duties have not occasioned them. They cannot be attributed to recent reforms in religion or politics. Methods and forms of government have not been revolutionized, and yet prosperity is increasing all over the world.

For the same reason that Ohio, with the most intelligent population on the earth, was financially paralyzed in 1893, 1894, 1895, 1896, by an insufficient supply of money, and prosperous in 1898 to 1905, with increasing supply of cash, so, England, Belgium, France, Germany and all the other countries were depressed then and prosperous now. For the same all-powerful reason the business of Ohio, of the United States, of the world, will continue to increase, and the prosperity will become more widespread with every year, for the output of money, gold, will increase with every year. The crop of gold produced by the earth is more secure and certain than any of the great crops of the agriculturists. Frost, flood or wind has no effect upon it. Boll weevil, grasshoppers, locust or Hessian fly does not curtail it. The emancipators of mankind today are the gold miners, as they toss the hundreds of millions annually to the minds of the world to form the coins which destroy debt and stimulate industry. He that runs may easily read this great sign of the continued prosperity. Each annual crop of gold for the next ten years to come will be many millions larger than the preceding crop, and, large as the gold reserve of the world is today, it will be more than doubled in the coming fifteen years. Merchants and manufacturers will have greater demands for their wares and agriculturists profitable and steady purchasers for their products.

JUNE WILL TELL

Story For Wheat, While Corn and Cotton Must Wait.

Future of Stock Market Depends Largely on the Crops.

New York, May 31.—The stock market has been very changeable in tone during the past week, with very small volume in dealings. The public is not in the market to any great degree, and it is essentially a trader's market and subject to manipulation by second-rate dealers. The powerful men are waiting and watching without committing themselves to either bull or bear side on prices or policies. Crop statistics are only in primary form as yet, with nothing absolutely assured, and these, the strongest basis of a bull campaign, have to be well founded on an abundant harvest before justifying such a movement of advancing prices.

It is the waiting time on crops and the waiting time on stock prices. Yet even with great crops and the assured supply of money there are certain elements that may become powerful factors in results, so that shrewd, careful operators are watching developements of matters outside of crops and money.

The unrest of labor shown in the Chicago strike and mutterings from the coal regions, the dissatisfaction with municipal authorities, as evidenced in New York and Philadelphia recently, the discussion of government control of railway rates and government ownership of railroads and canals, these, each and all, are causing hesitation now, and will continue to affect the stock market, even if the country is assured of bumper crops this autumn.

Of course, the crops, once fully recognized as generally large in volume, the above named sources of disquiet will be minimized, and another general advance will be made in all classes of business enterprises. On the other hand, if crops should prove to be disappointing in large sections of the country, the disquieting symptoms will be magnified and intensified, and a defined check will be apparent all along the line.

Happily the crop prospects are encouraging, and nothing in this situation as yet indicates even local failure in cotton, corn or wheat, while the grass crop never was better at this season of the year.

The month of June will tell the tale for wheat, while corn and cotton will not be determined until August. The stock market will be erratic until the middle of September, and then if crops are all right the bulls will have another inning.

While no one can with certainty now predict crop results, the statistics as to money are full of comfort to the manufacturers and the people in general. The United States in 1904 produced in round numbers $85,000,000 in gold, an increase of $11,000,000 over 1903. The reports from the various gold mining districts and the increased supply of gold coming from the increased copper output indicate that the United States in 1905 will cross the $100,000,000 in gold output.

If even $25,000,000 of this output is used in the arts, it leaves $75,000,000 gold as additions to the currency of this country. In banking circles here and in Europe 25 per cent reserve is deemed ample for safe and sound banking, so that this $75,000,000 of gold furnishes a sufficient reserve for $225,-000,000 addition to the paper circulation of the United States, and the issue and circulation of national bank notes will undoubtedly increase very largely, and yet with security and safety. It is this new gold that is carrying upward and onward the ever-increasing business interests of the country, and it is its irresistible force that is unloosing the energies of millions of men, who hitherto have had no opportunity to earn and no means to provide for their personal or family comfort.

While the people of the United States are in the front rank of prosperity, far beyond the less-favored nations, and Reptile Wrapped Around the Little One's Neck.

Mount Vernon, O., May 31.—"Come and see what Eva has," exclaimed Grace Shamman, aged 3, to her mother. Mrs. Emma Shamman had been working in a garden and when she reached the house she was horrified to see a long garter snake entwined about the neck of her daughter Eva, aged fifteen months. The little one, she learned, had eaten about four inches of the tail of the reptile.

Mrs. Shamman fell to the floor in a dead faint, but the screams of little Grace brought neighbors to the house and Edward Sutton succeeded in killing the reptile.

After several hours' work, a doctor saved the life of the child. A stomach pump was used and great chunks of the snake were removed from the stomach.

THEORY

Of Origin of Plague Held By Hindus.

Bombay, May 31.—The Allahabad Pioneer, one of the leading newspapers of India, is responsible for the statement that the belief is widely held throughout India that the desecration of Queen Victoria's statue, Bombay, is responsible for the present plague epidemic. It is well known that the late queen was deified by the Hindus even in her lifetime, owing to her long and brilliant reign, the extent of her power and the veneration in which she was held. Her statue, therefore, came to be regarded as an idol, and the insult to it some months ago, when it was damaged by vandals, has caused her, in Hindu belief, to visit the land as an avenging deity with a terrible pestilence. The result has been to bring Bombay into bad odor with the rest of India.

HIGH PRAISE FOR OIL KING

Rockefeller's Critics Assailed By Clergyman.

Has Highest Standard of Commercial Morality.

New York, May 31.—The recent criticisms of John D. Rockefeller, growing out of his first gift of $100,000 to the American board of commissioners for foreign missions are declared in an article by the Rev. Dr. Robert Stuart MacArthur, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church of this city, to be published tomorrow in the Examiner a Baptist publication, to be coarse, cruel and perhaps criminal, and to have maligned the entire Baptist denomination. He "protests against the condemnation of our churches by these cowardly and unjust attacks," declares that no one knows better than Mr. Rockefeller, that he cannot buy the approval of Baptists by his millions; that Baptists would advocate his expulsion from the church if it were proved that he had acquired his money dishonestly or by means morally or socially destructive. He adds that he has investigated certain business transactions, which have been fiercely denounced by Rockefeller's critics and has found them in accordance with the highest standards of commercial morality. Mr. Rockefeller, he asserts, is worthy of confidence, admiration and affection and appeals for fairness of judgment for him.

Rev. Dr. MacArthur's article is entitled "The Baptist Brotherhood Defended," and is in part as follows:

"The recent coarse, cruel and perhaps criminal, criticisms of John D. Rockefeller have maligned the entire Baptist denomination. His traducers are its defamers. Baptist pastors ought no longer to remain silent when their denomination is made the subject of such unjust criticism. As a member of the Baptist brotherhood, I protest against the condemnation of our churches by these cowardly and utterly unjust attacks. I affirm that the censures inflicted on the denomination and upon Mr. Rockefeller, as a prominent member of a Baptist church, are unjust. I have known Mr. Rockefeller for many years, and my intimate personal acquaintance with him has convinced me that he is worthy of the highest honor as a man, and of the fullest confidence, esteem and affection as a Christian.

"I have taken pains to make careful inquiry regarding certain business transactions which have been the subject of fierce denunciation on the part of some of Mr. Rockefeller's critics, and I do not hesitate to declare, on the basis of such knowledge, that these transactions, when fully understood and fairly judged, are in accordance with the highest standards of commercial morality. My examination has shown me that many charges are based upon half truths, and that when the full truth was ascertained, these very transactions rebounded to Mr. Rockefellers honor as a leader in business and as a professor of the Christian faith; in so enormous a business as that of the Standard Oil company, it is inevitable that agents of the company perform acts without Mr. Rockefeller's knowledge and without his approval. A high officer of the Standard Oil company, intimately acquainted for nearly a generation with Mr. Rockefeller's daily influence in its counsels, informed me recently that Mr. Rockefeller had always been quick to deplore and to correct instances of unjust and injurious over zeal. Dr. Gladden in one of his defamatory articles, quotes the denunciation of an Ohio judge of a railroad officer for making a certain contract with an agent of the Standard. But this was nearly a generation ago; that the Standard was never a party to the suit, and what is most of all to the point, that this very contract was ordered cancelled as soon as it was brought to Mr. Rockefeller's attention and before any complaint was uttered about it. Or take the case of the Ceveland widow, now become celebrated. Anyone who will take enough pains to read the affidavits printed and accessible, but ignored and suppressed by the hostile critics, cannot fail to see in Mr. Rockefeller's conduct the generosity, the courtesy, the magnanimity and the forebearance of a Christian gentleman.

"It has been affirmed by some of Mr. Rockefeller's critics, that by his gifts to the Baptist denomination, he has purchased its approval, or at least its silence. To say that such a body of Christians could be bought by Mr. Rockefeller's money, is to excite the derisive laughter and evoke the righteous indignation of every intelligent Baptist. No one knows better than Mr. Rockefeller himself that he cannot buy the approval of Baptists by his millions. There are Baptist leaders of today who would not hesitate for a moment, to advocate the expulsion of Mr. Rockefeller from the Baptist denomination, if it were proved that he acquired his money dishonestly or by means morally or socially destructive. The Baptist leaders are becoming thoroughly indignant at the malevolent spirit and contemptible methods of Mr. Rockefeller's opponents."

Rev. Dr. MacArthur declares that the critics of Mr. Rockefeller appeal to the passions of the unthinking multitude and that this is assassination of character. He "repels indignantly" the charge that the Baptist denomination has solicited money from a man whose wealth has been dishonestly acquired; points out that Dr. William J. Tucker, president of Dartmouth college should not be branded as a criminal because Dartmouth college owned stock in the Northern Securities, which company the courts found to be a criminal conspiracy; says that the supposition that Mr. Rockefeller is worth a billion dollars is grossly false and that in the last two or three years his benevolent gifts were at least twice as much as the increase in his estate; asserts that he has made a gift of high value to humanity in revolutionizing business methods and affirms that while some men have been pushed to the wall in the movements of the Standard Oil company every competitor was urged to join it on fair and equal terms.

RAILROAD RATES

Would Government Regulation Specially Benefit Smaller Cities?

Flat Rate Per Ton Per Mile Might Be Result.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—In taking stock of the arguments presented to the senate interstate commerce committee for and against the proposition of governmental regulation of railroad rates, those favoring legislation are inclined to believe that the railroads are making a mistake in attempting to rally the commercial organizations of the great cities in opposition to the proposed legislation by means of the argument that if enacted the smaller cities will be benefited at the expense of the greater. Potent as this appeal to selfish interests has been, as shown by the reversal of position on the part of many commercial organizations of the larger cities, formerly favoring the rate bill, it would seem that in proving to the larger cities that they will be injured, the railroads will simultaneously be demonstrating to the smaller cities that they will be benefited, and if the smaller cities and rural districts ever become convinced of this fact, nothing on earth can prevent congress from taking over the regulation of railway rates. In this case the railroads, now spending millions of dollars in "educating" the people, will find their strongest argument the most powerful influence against them.

The point in question is that congress is prohibited by the sixth paragraph of section two, of the second article of the constitution, from making distinctions between ports, and it is a well defined principle that what congress cannot do it cannot delegate to a commission. The paragraph reads: "No preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one state over those of another," and no one can deny that a railroad rate, established by a government commission, is a "regulation of commerce." Followed to its logical conclusion, if this point is well taken it means that eventually a governmental rate-making body would be compelled to abolish all differentials, put an end to all long and short haul discriminations, and finally establish a flat rate "per ton per mile," varying, of course, with the different commodities transported.

These points were first put forward by Judge Daniel Davenport of Bridgeport, Conn., when appearing last winter before the senate committee as the representative of the Association for the Maintenance of the Rights of Private Property. Since then the changes have been rung on them by almost every railroad attorney who has appeared before the committee, and it is this powerful argument which has appealed so strongly to the commercial bodies of the larger cities as to cause many of them to reverse their position, and they now appear as opposing the regulation of rates, whereas they formerly favored it.

Judge Davenport is known to the country as one of the most astute men appearing before congressional committees. It was he, who, a year ago, discovered the danger of the application of the eight-hour law to the construction of the Panama canal, about which the attorney general and the Panama commission have lately been so much exercised, and there is little doubt that should congress delegate to a commission the power to make railroad rates, there can be but one final outcome—a flat rate per ton, per mile, accompanied or preceded by the abolition of differentials and the long and short haul discrimination to the detriment of the great cieies.

But even so, if the smaller cities will thereby increase in population and industries, is such an outcome to be anticipated with apprehension? On the contrary, is it not possible, yes, even probable, that the best interests of the country—viewed from an absolutely unselfish standpoint—will be served by the checking of the growth of the larger cities and the stimulating of the growth of the smaller communities, thus distributing more equally the population, industries and wealth? Students of economic problems all tell us that congested population is one of the greatest national evils. It is this congestion that keeps Paris in constant turmoil; that makes Chicago the strike-ridden city that she is; that produces the public outbreaks in the sweatshops and hives of the manufacturing and disease-breeding tenement districts of New York.

Great cities like New York and Chicago are undeniably a source of national pride, but is it not probable, nay, even undeniable, that the people of Illinois, the people of the United States, and even residents of Chicago themselves, would, on the whole and on the average, be infinitely better off if there were ten cities of 150,000 inhabitants each, scattered through the state, instead of one city of 1,500,000? It is true there would not be so many great fortunes, so much magnificence, such quantities of royal gold and purple. But there would not be so much poverty, so much hunger, so great distress. Among the many evils attending congested population is the growth of the wealth of the few at the expens of the many, and th diffusion of population invariably averages wealth and prosperity.

To no single agency is the congestion of population more attributable than freight rates, for on them the commercial supremacy of our leading cities is dependent. Just as the rebates and discriminations laid the foundations for the gerat trusts and enormous private fortunes, so discriminations, differentials and long and short haul rates have built up great cities at the expense of their neighboring communities. The principle is the same and it would seem that as the railroads are prohibited from discriminating between individual shippers, namely, communities. And if the prohibition of rebates and discriminations to individuals places every shipper on an equality with every other shipper in his community and gives him a fairer chance for business, why should not the same principle applied to cities give the smaller town a better chance to develop by placing it on an quality with the larger city? If so, the smaller cities have it in their power to wrest from the great ones the forc by which their greatness has been attained for an examination shows that of the ninety senators, sixty-six live in towns of less than 50,000 and only twenty-four in cities of more than that number; of the house, ninety-eight members come from cities of more than 50,000 population while 289 are from the "rural" districts.

ONE LEGAL HANGING

The Capital Punishment Record of Oklahoma Very Brief.

Territory Criminals and Murders Which Made Them Infamous.

Guthrie, Okla., May 31.—But one man was ever legally hanged in the territory of Oklahoma. This was a negro named Milligan, hanged five years ago at Oklahoma City. But three persons were ever lynched during the last sixteen years, and for one of these lynching bees several Oklahomans are serving sentences in the federal prison at Leavenworth.

The death sentence imposed upon R. A. Wright at Anadarko recently calls to mind the different death sentences imposed during the last sixteen years. Of five of the six the death sentence has been commuted to life imprisonment and in one instance a prisoner senteneed to death died in the federal prison at Guthrie on the day he was to have been hanged.

Twice since he has been governor, T. B. Ferguson has commuted death-sentences and twice during the last eighteen months President Roosevelt has saved prisoners from the death trap. Sixteen years ago two halfbreed Creek Indian boys for a murder committed in the territory, were taken to Wichita, Kan., the seat of the United States marshal's office, for the territory, and hanged there. Charles Howard, now internal revenue collector, superintended this hanging. The two Indians were named Tobler, and murdered an itinerent peddler. They robbed his pack, stripped him of his clothes, and the testimony showed one of the Indians sat on the body of the dead man while he drew on the dead man's boots. Shortly before the territory opened, George Sharritt, now clerk of the United States circuit court at Topeka, Kan., officiated at the hanging of an Oklahoma murderer at Wichita. But all these hangings took place outside of Oklahoma.

In 1891 two Seminole Indians murdered a white woman in Pottawatomie county, leaving her body where it was partially devoured by hogs. Because of her death one of her babies died of neglect and another died unborn. Residents of Eastern Pottawatomie county captured the two Indians and burned them at the stake. So great was the feeling against the Indians that little secret was made of the lynching and there was little trouble to get evidence. The leaders were arrested and served different sentences in the federal prison.

William Campbell, a negro, was lynched at Pond Creek on May 25, 1902, for the murder of Deputy Sheriff George Smith. The leaders of this mob were never apprehended.

The first and only scaffold ever built in Oklahoma was built at the federal penitentiary at Guthrie for John Phillips, whose crime was almost identical with that of Wright's. He murdered a Kickapoo traveling companion and robbed him of his team, money and clothes. Phillips would have been hanged, but he took sick of typhoid fever and died on his execution day.

The same scaffold was taken to Oklahoma City, where Milligan was hanged by C. H. De Ford, then sheriff of Oklahoma county. Milligan killed a white man and his wife and attempted to kill a small girl. The girl recovered and identified her assailant.

The two prisoners whose death sentences were commuted to life imprisonment by President Roosevelt are James Brummitt and George Barclay, now in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth. Brummitt and Barclay were horsethieves. They were convicted of the murder of J. L. Poole, a Creek farmer, in the Osage nation. Poole was a member of the Anti-Horsethief association.

For the first time in the history of the territory, Governor Ferguson exercised his authority of governor and commuted the death sentence of Thomas Queenan of Oklahoma City, who murdered his wife in 1900, for which he was three times sentenced to death. The governor took this action only when Queenan and all his relatives signed a statement that they would never ask for his pardon. Governor Ferguson interfered a second time in the case of Nicholas Bruner, a half-breed Seminole Indian, who murdered his boy companion. Brunner was but a boy, and because of his youth the governor saved him from the death trap.

John Dossitt was sentenced to be hanged for the murder of Sherman Long at Pawnee several years ago. Both Long and Dossitt were rivals for the hand of Clementine Denoya, daughter of the wealthiest Indian in the Osage country. Long and Dossitt were at a dance at Pawnee one night. Dossitt gave Long a drink from his whisky bottle and the latter fell dead in a few minutes. Strychnine was found in Long's stomach and also in the whisky bottle from which he drank. Dossitt made a two days' trip for a coffin for Long and was arrested on his return. Clementine Denoya afterward married another man. Dossitt was sentenced to hang, but secured a new trial and was acquitted.

The fate of R. A. Wright is in the hands of president Roosevelt. The president has shown leniency in two other cases, but the crime of Wright was one of the most cold-blooded in the history of the territory. Wright is a lank person of animal appearance, a typical Arkansan. He was employed by William Slaterly, in Caddo county, as a cotton picker. On Oct. 10 Slaterly and Wright went hunting in Slaterly's wagon, on the government reservation. Slaterly never returned, but Wright came back with the team and wagon and showed a bill of sale from Slaterly. Slaterly's body was afterward found covered with a pile of brush and stones in the Wichita mountains. He is sentenced to die July 7.

NAN MEETS WITH FROST

Public Evinces No Desire to See Her on Stage.

Scranton, Pa., May 31.—Nan Patterson, who has been tried three times for the murder of Caesar Yeung, began to profit Monday night by the notoriety which she has received, when she opened at the Lyceum theater here with a burlesque show under the management of Hurtig & Seamon. She received a somewhat cool reception from a fairly large-sized audience composed principally of men, and the general public did not evince any overwhelming desire to see her. The show in which she appeared was called on the program "A Romance of Panama." It was presented by a very bad company and it was full of double entendre jokes, and some of which were rankly indecent.

Miss Patterson did not come out until the close of the show. Then the stage was darkened and she appeared in a spot light. She was visibly nervous and sang the two songs allotted to her in a thin and rather unpleasant voice. She was assisted in the chorus by eight typical burlesque girls. The name of Hurtig & Seamon does not appear on the paper which has been posted up all over town. They claim that the firm's name was not made prominent because of a fear that it would hurt their standing in New York.

M. J. Reis, the lessee of the theater, refused to permit his name to appear in the newspaper advertisements of the attraction. So did A. J. Duffy, the local manager.

The press representative with the show made a reference to the attempt in Wilkesbarre to prevent Miss Patterson from appearing in that city. "Let the priests and ministers protest all they want," he said. "Let them prevent us from showing. We don't care as long as the contracts are signed. It means a lot of advertising for us, and we can collect from the booking agency for a capacity house every time."

Miss Patterson was registered at the Hotel Jermyn as Alice Johnson. With her is a woman who is said to be her widowed sister, Mrs. Lowell. Harry Von Tilzer and wife were also in the party which came on from New York.

HIDES HIS IDENTITY.

Train Robber Survives Blow of Express Messenger.

Phillipsburg, Mont., May 31.—The one train robber who attempted to hold up the North Coast limited at Bearmouth Saturday night has so far recovered from the effect of the blow dealt him by Express Messenger Laub as to be able to eat his meals. He will recover.

He steadfastly refuses to reval his identity, though he admits he is a Swede and declares he was alone in his attempt to rob the train. His coat bears the name of M. Prager & Co., Seattle, Wash.

He says: "I lost at my own game and have got no kick."

All the posses were called in and sent to their homes, the authorities accepting the theory that only one man was engaged in the attempted robbery.

INCREASES FAST

Immigration to Duluth Has a Tremendous Growth Over 1904.

May of This Year Beats Any Month of Last.

Duluth seems to be an attractive point for immigrants. It is growing to be more so every day, if immigration figures go for anything. Immigrant Inspector Dean has been figuring up his monthly reports, and finds that the increase of immigration has been tremendous each month since he came here. Last year started out in fairly decent shape and the immigration was light. Each month, however, showed a big growth, and this year bids fair to surpass any record yet made for immigrations.

May of last year was the smallest month of the navigation season of 1904 and November was the largest. May of this year beats not only May of last year, but last November also.

The increase in percentage over last May reached the enormous figures of 670 per cent. That, doubtless, seems incredible, but it happens to be the fact, and is enough to make the immigration reformers gasp with amazement and take another hold on reform.

Inspector Dean is turning back a great many would be residents of this country on various grounds. The greater number of them are people who come here absolutely impoverished, apparently hoping to find gold in the streets of this great and glorious republic. This kind usually strike the port with only one or two dollars in their pockets and in some instances they have not the price of a meal left when they reach here. Of course, such unless some relatives or friends agrees to attend to their support are turned back at once.

All of thes come here from Canada although not all of them belong to Canada, a good many coming from Europe on Canadian steamer lines and then striking over here on some of the Canadian boats. Whether Canada keeps them or not is not known, but it is supposed she does and lets them get along the best they can.

The tide of immigration through New York is growing larger every day and the agitation for greater restriction in the matter of immigration can hardly be made too strong. The condition is deplorable although the immigration officials in New York, their representatives across the water and their inspectors at the various ports, such as Inspector Dean at Duluth, are thinning out the ranks the best they can under the law.

KEPT FROM ARMY

Russian Soldiers Do Not Know of Naval Disaster.

St. Petersburg, May 31.—Dispatches from the front say the news of Admiral Rojestvensky's defeat is not yet made known to the Russian army in Manchuria, and that the soldiers are still hoping for a Russian naval victory.

The emperor has received, through Rear Admiral Jessen, the report of Capt. Andrieffski of the torpedo boat destroyer Grozny at Vladivostok, but it is understood to contain little more information than brought by Capt. Chagin of the cruiser Almaz. Portions of the dispatch will probably be published later.

Vladivostok, May 31.—The torpedo boat destroyer Bravi arrived here today and brought four officers and 197 men of the crew of the battleship Oslabia.

WILL NOT ASK MERCY.

Berlin, May 31.—Efforts are being made in government quarters, to measure the changed situation of the belligerents in the Far East and the consequent possibilities of peace. The view at present is that the Russian government will not ask for peace and that the war will go on bringing with it most probably fresh humiliations but not at once the supreme humiliation of asking for mercy. The considerations that hold the Russian government to enduring whatever may yet come are the reasons which kept the emperor from yielding after the former great reverses, namely that the vital parts of the Russian empire are not yet touched, that the war so far has only been a colonial war and that Russia may yet attain superiority on land and thus save the dynasty and Russia from a final and historic humiliation. Although it is impossible for military men here to believe that Russia can win on land, it is equally difficult for those following the higher political lines of thought in Russia to believe that Emperor Nicholas will ask for peace. The conviction at the Berlin court is that the Russian emperor believes in the righteousness of his cause and has unlimited powers of passive resistance.

Shorts Have Hard Sledding in Several Markets.

Some Settlements in Duluth May Which Bulges 10c.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 31.—The passing of the May deals monopolized the market interest today and unsettled trading generally. The deals are now out of the way and the trade is glad of it. A good many, however, look for more trouble in July, but that is in the future. In the Duluth market May wheat bulged 10c and closed at $1.25. There were a number of shorts in this market and some made settlements this morning, possibly a quarter of a million of bushels coming in. Some were still unsettled at the close.

In the Minneapolis market there was a bulge at one time of 7c from the close of Monday, and the closing price was 5½c up and just 2¼c higher than Duluth. A rumor came from Minneapolis that Gates was short in that market, and it was received with glee by the trade. In the Duluth market there was a little flurry in May flax also, and the closing price was 5½c up from that of Monday.

In Chicago there was excitement in May corn. An advance of 9c a bus was made, the market going to 60c. Shorts were bidders and offerings were scarce.

Options were weak in all markets. The July in Duluth lost 2c, in Minneapolis 1⅞c, in Chicago 1¼-⅜c, in New York 1¼c, in St. Louis 2¼-⅜c and in Kansas City 1⅛-½c. The September option was also weaker in all markets.

The weather map was generally favorable. The Liverpool market closed 1d lower, Paris ¾c lower to ½c higher, Budapest 2c higher, and Berlin ½c higher.

Bradstreet reported a decrease of 5,886,000 bus. in the world's visible supply of wheat, of which 2,005,000 bus. was east of the Rockies and 3,600,000 bus. in Europe and afloat.

Car receipts at Duluth were 2, against none last year, and at Minneapolis 511, against 178 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 513 against 178 last year. Chicago received 23, against 37 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 760,000 bus., last year 351,000 bus. Shipments 269,000 bus., last year 924,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 25,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼d lower. In the Chicago market July corn closed ¼-⅜c higher. July oats closed ⅛c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 290,000 bus., last year 1,183,000 bus. Shipments 314,000 bus., last year 635,000. Clearances of corn were 57,000 bus.

The world's visible supply of corn last week increased 12,000 bus.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was very dull. The July option opened 2c lower at $1.07, advanced to $1.08 and closed there, a loss of 2c for the day. The new September option ranged between 80¼c and 79c and closed at the latter price, a loss of 2c. The old September fell 1⅜c, closing at 83¼c.

Flax was dull. The October option opened 1c lower at $1.29 and advanced to $1.30, closing ½c off at $1.29⅜. September closed 1c higher at $1.31 and July 1⅜c higher at $1.48. The May option jumped to $1.52 and went out at that price.

Oats declined ¾c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive—No. 1 northern, $1.08. On track—No. 1 northern, $1.08; No. 2 northern, $1.02. Durum No. 1, 90c; No. 2, 89c; May, $1.25; July, $1.08; Sept., old, 83¼c; new, 79c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Perfect Weather Conditions Depress Wheat Somewhat.

Chicago, May 31.—Almost perfect weather conditions throughout the United States caused weakness in wheat here today. Lower prices at Liverpool added to the depression. Pit traders were the principal sellers, offerings being taken by commission houses. July opened ½@⅝c to 1@1¼c lower to 87¾c to 87⅝c, and sold at 87⅜@88c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 536 cars against 168 cars last week and 274 cars a year ago.

After July had touched 88⅝@⅞c, the market became extremely weak. The weather bureau weekly report was a factor in creating the additional weakness. The market closed at the lowest point of the day with July off 1½@1⅝c at 86⅞c.

The feature of trading in corn was the strength of the May delivery. On a fairly active demand from shorts the price of that option advanced over 4c compared with Monday's closing quotations. The opening was 1c higher at 52c. Later the price touched 55¾c and then reacted to 55c. Other deliveries were affected by the strength of May. July opened unchanged to ¼c higher at 49c to 49⅛c and sold up to 49⅝@⅝c. Local receipts 1,036 cars, with 607 of contract grade.

During the last few minutes of trading the demand for May became so urgent that the price was bid up to 60c. The close was at the top with an advance of 9c. After selling at 49⅝c July closed with a gain of ⅛@⅜c at 49¼@⅝c.

Influenced by the strength of corn, the oats market was steady. July opened a shade to ⅛c lower at 30¼c to 30⅜c and sold to 30⅜c. Receipts 240 cars.

Provisions were easier as a result of a 5c decline in the price of live hogs following unusually large receipts. July pork was off 2½c at $12.37½. Lard also was down 2½c at $7.22½. Ribs were 2½c lower at $7.17½@7.20.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.01¼; July, 86⅞c; Sept., 81@⅛c; Dec., 80⅜c. Corn—May, 60c; July, 49¼@⅝c; old, 49¼@⅞c; Sept., 48⅛c; old, 48⅜c; Dec., 45⅝c; old, 46⅜c. May (1906), 45⅝c. Corn—2, 51@⅝c; 3, 50½@51½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

State crop reports:

North Dakota—The fore part of the past week was quite unfavorable for crops. High winds prevailed in most sections about the middle of the week, in some places, especially in the northern and northeastern portions, doing considerable damage to grain that was up, by cutting it down, and blowing out and uncovering seed that was not yet up. A killing frost followed these high winds, in some sections freezing grain off to the ground, and killing fruit buds, but not doing a great deal of damage as a rule. The latter part of the week was warmer and favorable for crops, which were growing slowly, on account of the unseasonable cold weather. On some low land in the eastern part of the state grain has been drowned out, and considerable land there is being resown to oats, flax and barley, while some is still too wet to get on. Wheat is mostly up; that sown early is stooling well, and considering the stormy and cold weather, is looking very fine; some few fields are reported as looking sickly and thin, and in the northwestern portion some seed is said to have rotted, making the stand very poor. Some oats and barley are still being sown, but the most of the small grain is in, except flax, seeding of which is in progress in all parts of the state, and is nearly finished in the southern sections. Corn planting has commenced and is general in all except the most northern portions.

Minnesota—The warmest days of the week were the 23rd, 24th, 27th and 28th, and the coldest mornings were the 25th and 26th, with freezing temperatures or heavy frosts in many parts of the state, which injured tender vegetation in gardens, in a few cases the early corn and potatoes, and possibly some of the setting fruit, but the loss will probably be insignificant. There were scattered and generally light rains on the 23rd, 26th and 28th, those on the 26th and 28th being for the most part in southern portions. The lowlands have dried out a great deal, but the lowest places are still wet. Flax and barley seeding has been going on as fast as the ground was prepared for seeding. Spring wheat, winter wheat, oats and early barley are in good condition generally, but they do not seem to be growing very rapidly; in a few places it is said that early oats are thin. Spring wheat, oats and early barley are stooling. Corn and potato planting is nearly finished, and the early planted are coming up slowly, the cold nights retarding their growth. Rye is heading; the crop is good, except for a few places where it is thin.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Decidedly improved weather, sharply lower cables, coupled with peace in the Far East, gave the market an easier start, from which some little rally developed. On the rally better crop reports were sent in from the Southwest which brought about the late declines. Liquidation in the session was quite urgent and the growing bearish feeling induced short selling. The market has had a sharp decline from the high point and much long wheat has been thrown overboard and a reasonably good sized short interest created. The situation is not at all bearish. It is true that cash demand has eased off, but it would be too much to expect it to continue with millers absorbing all the wheat in sight. The present slow demand merely represents a natural halt, for millers for the time being are supplied with wheat. Market is still a broad, fairly active trading affair and likely to continue so. On sharp breaks we would favor the purchase of wheat especially of September.

Corn—The start in this market was quite strong, which later in the session developed into a runaway affair in the May, the sharp advance representing belated short covering. The futures closed practically unchanged. Selling late in the day of July came altogether from cash people. The action of the market while strong shows no great snap and on bulges would sell the futures, especially the new kind.

Oats—We see nothing very inviting in this market at present level of prices. It was a slow market at best, subject to moderate swings in either direction.

Chicago Record-Herald: "Japan's naval victory will have a very bearish effect on the wheat market, but should be counted bullish on stocks," said A. I. Valentine. "The victories bring peace nearer and peace means a lower wheat market by removing the possibility of having England drawn into the struggle. There were several times during the progress of the war when it seemed quite probable that England would be called upon to take part and once or twice when it seemed as though she would be unable to escape it. It is my belief now that the crisis is passed and that the Russian subjects will soon be back to their crops again."

RECEPTION IS ENTHUSIASTIC

King Alfonso Accompanied By Loubet Is Warmly Greeted.

Paris, May 31.—King Alfonso accompanied by President Loubet and with a brilliant military escort visited the Invalides, Pantheon, Notre Dame and other historic monuments. Along the route the king met with an enthusiastic reception from vast crowds of people. Cardinal Richard, archbishop of Paris, received the party at Notre Dame and showed the king the famous collection of church relics. There were renewed ovations as the king returned to the D'Orsay palace.

Speaking to one of the French officers, the king jocularly remarked that if he heard hisses he intended saluting the hisses. However, the rigid police precautions prevented any demonstrations on the part of the Anarchists. Three Anarchist suspects were arrested during the night and others were kept under close surveillance.

LOYAL LEGION IS IN SESSION AT MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee, May 31.—The tenth quadrennial congress of the military order of the Loyal Legion of the United States met in Milwaukee today for a two days' session. About seventy-five delegates are present from all parts of the country. The business before the congress consists of action on several proposed amendments to the constitution which were introduced by different state commandaries including New York, California and Ohio. Gen. D. McM. Gregg of Philadelphia, is presiding during the sessions.

The various proposed amendments were referred to committees at the forenoon session, after which a recess was taken. The delegates visited the National soldiers home this afternoon.

NO VESSELS KNOWN

As Given in Message Found in Bottle.

Norfolk, Va., May 31.—The following message, received over the government sea coast lines today, has been posted at the Norfolk weather bureau: "A bottle containing the following note was found on the beach at Dam Neck, North Carolina coast, by Capt. J. E. Woodhouse of the life saving station: "On board schooner Phantom, struck by outgoing steamer Bodean. All hands in the tops. Vessel slowly sinking, now at water's edge. Have put off in small boat.

"J. C. A. JONES."

"The names of the vessels mentioned in the note do not appear in any of the records or maritime registers. Capt. Woodhouse says the note is in poor handwriting, but readable. No wreckage of any kind can be found."

"It was almost a miracle. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me of a terrible breaking out all over the body. I am very grateful." Miss Julia Filbridge, West Cornwell, Conn.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

In Early Trading Market Was Steady But Turned Strong.

Closing Dull But Firm, With Steel Stocks Very Strong.

New York, May 31.—Small dealings and narrow fluctuations indicated a languid interest in trading when the market opened. Sugar recovered its dividend of 1¼ per cent on the first sale and Copper and Smelting rose large fractions. Ontario & Western fell ⅝c. The changes otherwise were insignificant.

The market became heavy and the United States Steel stocks, St. Paul and Union Pacific, as well as a number of others, scored large fractional losses. Sugar and Smelting sold a point below their first prices, and Ontario & Western and Pullman as much below the previous close. Lead and Corn Products preferred declined 2. Pacific Mail advanced 1 and Colorado Southern first preferred 1½. Realty gained 4 points on its favorable annual statement. A rise of over a point in Brooklyn Transit carried the Metropolitan stocks up a large fraction and steadied prices elsewhere.

An advance of 2⅜ in Reading helped the market and prices recovered. Union Pacific was in special demand. St. Louis Southwestern preferred rose 1. Pressure against United States Steel preferred was a check. That stock and St. Paul fell 1, Great Northern preferred 2¼ and Snuff 7. Bonds were active and rather irregular.

The 1⅛s and 6s lost an opening gain on realizing, and the 6s first series declined ⅝. All classes recovered again. Bonds were generally firm at noon. Delaware & Hudson and Central Railroad of Jersey gained a point. The general market improved slightly. Union Pacific rose to 123⅜.

Increased business and a decidedly higher range of prices prevailed between 1 and 2 o'clock, the buying movement originating in Reading, gradually spread throughout the active market until there was a fair list of stocks showing advances of a point or more, including most all of the hard and soft coal stocks, Union Pacific, Northwestern, Illinois Central, Copper, Smelting, Tennessee Coal and Metropolitan Street Railway, Consolidated Gas lost 1¼.

Grains were further extended. Union Pacific was carried 1¾ over Monday. Atlantic Coast Lines 3½. St. Paul 4½. Colorado Southern first preferred 3½. Louisville & Nashville 1½. Republic Steel preferred 1¾. Westinghouse Electric 2. General Electric, New York Central, Canadian Pacific, Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Wabash preferred, Locomotive preferred and Pressed Steel Car a point or more. There were some recessions on profit-taking, but the closing was firm and dull.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is closing strong and higher. In early trading the market was steady, but turned strong and showed better form on what looked like short covering in Union Pacific, Amalgamated and Reading. The old story of an increase in Union Pacific and Reading dividends and placing Southern Pacific common on a 3 per cent basis helped the general market. The list at the close acts well. Persistent buying in Union Pacific seems to be bothering the short interest. Considering the news we have had the market should do better.

Dick Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market has been strong today, showing dullness and irregularity at first, but becoming more active and strong in the late trading. Again there seemed to be a limited supply of stocks for sale. Amalgamated was again well bought at advancing prices. Steel stocks were heavy for a time but became very strong at the close. General nervousness among the shorts was evident in the last hour. A late advance in call money rates to 4 per cent was due to preparations for syndicate payments and June disbursements. The market closed very strong in tone.

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was quite strong and steady and while the volume of business was not large there was not a great deal of stock for sale. The tone of the market all day was good and the only selling seemed to be by traders taking profits. We look for a better market tomorrow.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 31.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 2@7 points, in response to lower cables and reports of better weather. There was a good demand at the decline, however, with the South a heavy buyer through commission houses, and shortly after the opening prices firmed up to a net advance of about 11 points on May and of 1@4 points on later positions, following which offerings increased and the market turned irregular around last Monday's finals, pending the weekly report of the weather bureau at midday.

Spot closed 15 points higher; middling uplands, 8.85; middling gulf, 9.10. Sales 24,800 bales. Futures closed steady; June, 8.44; July, 8.53; August, 8.53; September, 8.58; October, 8.65; November 8.69; December, 8.75; January, 8.75; February, 8.82; March, 8.89.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, May 31.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $130,143,031; gold, $67,634,138; silver, $28,237,852.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, May 31.—Cattle—Receipts 16,000; steady to strong. Good to prime steers $5.60@6.40; poor to medium, $4@5.40; stockers and feeders, $2.75@5; cows, $2.60@5; heifers, $2.50@6.25; canners, $1.60@2.40; bulls, $2.40@4.60; calves, $3@6.50. Hogs—Receipts 30,000, tomorrow 25,000; 5@10c lower. Mixed and butchers, $5.20@5.37½; good to choice heavy, $5.25@5.35; rough heavy, $4.70@5.20; light, $5.20@5.40; bulk of sales, $5.25@5.30. Sheep—Receipts 23,000; steady to 10c lower. Hoodoo Steamer Reaches Port, Coming Light For Ore.

The steamer W. P. Rend, which was the Hadley, arrived in the harbor last evening. The Rend is at the Allouez ore docks loading today and will likely leave for lower lake ports tonight. It will be remembered that a few weeks ago, while she was bound up for Duluth light for ore, she went ashore at Manitou Island and after considerable trouble and several days' work the wrecking tug Favorite got her off. The Rend is partly of wood and partly of steel and was not very badly damaged by her collision with the shore.

Formerly she was the Hadley and while bearing that name she ran into and sank the steamer Wilson just outside of the Duluth entrance a few years ago. The Hadley herself managed to get close to shore and then sunk.

She is known as the hoodoo boat, but is hoped has now cast off her disagreeable proclivity for accidents.

PRESS IS BITTER.

Not the People But Bureaucracy Is Defeated

St. Petersburg, May 31.—The catastrophe which has overtaken the Russian fleet has given a tremendous impetus to the demand upon Emperor Nicholas for the immediate convocation of a national assembly, without awaiting action upon the report of the Bouligan rescript commission. With the single exception of the reactionary Sviet, the press pours out indignation and wrath upon the bureaucracy, which is held responsible for all the misfortunes of the war. Only the Novosti and the Bourse Gazette, however, declare that peace should be concluded. The Russ, now the widest read paper in Russia, says:

"Those guilty of Russia's disgrace should be overwhelmed with shame."

"The death of half a million of men," the Russ continues, "and the loss of billions of money, is the price of the rejection of progress and Western civilization. Sebastapol struck the shackles from the serfs, and Port Arthur, Mukden and Tsu island should free Russia from the slavery of the bureaucracy."

The Slovo, another paper, is even more bitter. It says:

"Enough. Blindfolded for 200 years, the Russian people have been marching to the brink of destruction, but the bandages are now torn from the eyes of 130,000,000 of Russians, and they will neither be led nor driven over the precipice. Let the people speak. The bureaucracy has had its day and has crowned its work of national shame and humiliation. Let it now listen to what those who have suffered in silence, and who have supported it in luxury, have to say. From this moment a convocation of the people has become necessary as the air we breathe. If the bureaucracy stands between the emperor and the nation, let it beware. Let it remember the lessons of Russian history—the history of the zemsky sobor of 1649. The Japanese are not fighting the Russian people, but the Russian bureaucracy, which has rejected with energy the talent of the nation for a host of sycophants and time-serving courtiers. Our only consolation in this bitter hour is the consciousness that it is not the people but the government which has suffered defeat. Enough."

The Novoe Vreyma, while milder, defending the Russian nation against the charge of rottenness, and insisting that there is plenty of patriotism, as evidenced by the fact that more young officers volunteered to go out with Admiral Rojestvensky than were needed, nevertheless joins in the cry for an immediate summoning of the people.

"Delay will be fatal," the paper adds. "All Russia's intelligence and all her ability are needed to meet the advancing crisis."

The Listook says: "The war has taught the lesson that education, good government and freedom are always victorious over ignorance, misrule and despotism."

The Sviet remarks: "We must not yield an inch, but fight on, if not on the sea, then on land. An ignominous peace would reduce Russia to a second-class power."

CICERO WINS DERBY STAKES.

London, May 31.—Lord Rosebery's Cicero today won the derby stakes of 6,500 sovereigns for entire colts and fillies about a mile and a half. Jardy was second and Chevalier Ginistrelli's Signorino was third. Time 3:11.

THE JAPS LOST ONLY THREE TORPEDO BOATS.

round the other ships of the fleet like angered wasps, separate flotillas darting in again and again to launch their weapons.

These two ships alone of Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's powerful flotilla lie at anchor here in the harbor of Golden Horn, they having separated from the fleet in the early stage of the battle, which began in the Korean straits Saturday, and headed, in obedience to orders, with full speed to Vladivostok.

Up to 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon no other vessels of the Baltic fleet had yet arrived and the signal stations reported none in sight.

The Almaz, which arrived at her anchorage here Monday evening, bears scars of the battle. Her mizzen mast is shot away, and one of her smoke stacks is pierced by a cannon shot. But the Grozny, though engaged for several hours in a running fight at short range with a large Japanese destroyer, shows no signs of the fray.

After her commander, Capt. Andriffski, had been wounded and an officer and three men had been killed, the Grozny succeeded in sinking her opponent with a luckily placed shot and reached Vladivostok without further adventure at 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

For the past two days Vladivostok had been buzzing with rumor and excitement. The fact that a battle between the rival fleets was imminent, if Rojestvensky was not already at hand grips with Togo, was made known through telegrams from Europe. When it was learned Monday morning that a Russian cruiser had been sighted off Askold island, headed for the harbor, the city was filled with the wildest reports of every nature.

The inhabitants clustered in the streets, thronged the water side, or climbed the frowning hills overlooking the harbor for a better view. Finally, toward 5 o'clock in the evening, a graceful cruiser, with two snow white stacks, shot in view at the entrance to the Golden Horn, and rounded to an anchorage beneath the bristling guns of the curving promontory.

From afar the broken stump of her mizzenmast and a shot hole showing black upon the white paint of one stack indicated that the cruiser had encountered the Japanese. As the anchor chain rattled in the hawse holes the vessel wreathed itself in smoke—it was an admiral's salute in honor of Rear Admiral Von Jesen. Scarcely had the boom of the last cannon begun to echo from the surrounding hills when Von Jessen's flagship, the cruiser Rossia, answered the salute and a minute later the guns of the fortress took up the cannonade.

Excitement beyond description seized the thronging spectators, who with frantic "huzzas" tossed high their caps. Citizens embraced each other and danced jubilantly upon the pier, while the crews of the ships in the harbor joined in wild cheering.

In a trice the boats were dropped from the davits and in a moment the officers of the cruisers and torpedo boats in the harbor and the military officers from the fortress were swarming on board the Almaz to learn news of the fight.

The story was short. According to the officers of the Almaz, the fleet under Rojestvensky met the Japanese in the Straits of Korea, near Tsu island, and the opposing fleets immediately closed in. Being lightly armored, the Almaz, as had been ordered by Admiral Rojestvensky before the battle, separated itself from the main fleet at the first opportunity and headed for Vladivostok soon after the comencement of the action, but not too soon to observe that the losses on both sides in the titanic combat were great.

Early in the battle an officer of the Almaz, while watching Rojestvensky's flagship, the battleship Kniaz Souvaroff, for a signal, saw the flagship shudder from stem to stern as if under a blow from a gigantic hammer, and hesitate in her course, while the waves rose high from her armored sides. Then she commenced to list and sank.

The officers believe that the debut of the submarine boat as an effective agent in naval warfare, or perhaps a large mine caused the disaster to the Kniaz Souvaroff. The damage was so extensive that the flagship soon went down, leaving the deck officers and many of the crew struggling in the waves.

One of the Russian torpedo boats, either the destroyer Buiny or the Bravi, ran in and picked up a number of the swimmers, one of whom was recognized as Admiral Rojestvensky.

Under a gruelling attack by the Japanese warships, aided by torpedo boats, mines and submarines, the Borodino, Osilbia and Orel, were placed out of action and followed the flagship to the bottom.

The fog, which had raised and lowered intermittently during the morning, began to settle down again and the distance of the Almaz, which had now succeeded in disengaging herself in the combat of the struggling ships, made it difficult for her to see clearly, but the officers are positive that they saw two Japanese battleships disappear beneath the sea before their eyes and that two Japanese cruisers appeared on the point of sinking.

The arrival of the Grozny at 11 o'clock yesterday was marked by the same scenes of excitement as those which characterized the advent of the Almaz.

The correspondent of the Associated Press visited the wounded commander of the destroyer, Capt. Andriffski, at the hospital, and the captain confirmd the details given by the officers of the Almaz. He described his combat as a runing fight in which the Grozny was engaged for several hours, finally sinking the pursuing Japanese destroyer.

TOGO'S FIFTH REPORT.

Tells of Added Disaster to Russian Fleet.

Washington, May 31.—The official Japanese report on the latest details of the great naval battle in the Korean straits is made in a cablegram received last night by the Japanese legation here from the foreign office at Tokio, conveying Admiral Togo's dispatches up to yesterday afternoon. The report says that Admiral Rojestvensky and another admiral, together with the staff officers, were taken prisoners on the sinking of Rojestvensky's flagship, the Prince Souvaroff Saturday night, south of Urlesng island, off the Korean coast. The total number of vessels lost to the Russians, according to Admiral Togo, now reaches twenty-two, and he adds that although the full particulars are not yet in, none of the Japanese ships was seriously injured and the loss to the first division of the Japanese fleet was over 400.

The report says that the armored cruiser Dmitri Donakoi ran aground off Urlesng island, that the battleships Osiabia, admitted lost by the Russian admiralty, and the Navarin, were sunk; that the battleship Sissoi Veliki went to the bottom Sunday morning; that the coast defense ship Admiral Oshakoff was sunk after a vigorous pursuit, her crew being rescued, and gives other details as to vessels sunk or disabled. The Japanese admiral, Misu, was slightly wounded.

The protected cruiser Almaz, which has already arrived at Vladivostok, is referred to in the report as "believed to have sunk."

"Fifth report from Togo received afternoon of May 30:

"The main force of our combined fleet upon accepting the surrender of the remaining Russian main force near Liancourt rocks on the afternoon of May 28, as already reported, stopped pursuit and while engaged in the disposition of the surrendered ships found in a southwestern direction the Admiral Ushakoff, a coast defense ship. Thereupon the Itwate and Yakumo were imemdiately dispatched in pursuit and invited her to surrender, but she refused and was sunk at 6 p. m. Her crew of over 300 men were rescued.

"The cruiser Dmitri Donskoi was also found in the northwestern direction at 5 p. m., and was immediately overtaken and fired on vigorously by our Fourth division and second destroyer flotilla.

"She was attacked at night by the second destroyer flotilla, and next morning was found aground on the southeastern shore of Urleung island, off the Korean coast. Our destroyer Sazanami captured, toward the evening of May 27, in the south of Urleung island, the Russian destroyer Biedovy, wherein were found Admiral Rojestvensky and another admiral, both severely wounded, together with about eighty Russians, including staff officers from the flag ship, Prince Suvaroff, which was sunk at 5:29 p. m., on May 27. They were all taken prisoners. Our cruiser Chitose, while cruising to the northward on the morning of May 28, found and sunk another Russian destroyer. Our cruiser Nitaka and destroyer Murakumo attacked, also at noon on May 28, a Russian destroyer, which finally went aground. According to various reports hitherto received, and statements of prisoners, the result of the battle, from May 27 to May 29, is as follows:

'Prince Suvaroff, Alexander III, Borodino, Dmitri Donskoi, Admiral Nakhimoff, Monamakh, Semenug, Admiral Oushakoff, one converted cruiser and two destroyers sunk.

"Nicholi I, Orel, Admiral Apraxine, Admiral Senkavin and destroyer Biedovy, captured. According to the prisoners the Osliabia was sunk about 3 p. m., and the Navarin also was sunk.

"Almaz, on May 27, was observed in a disabled and sinking condition but her fate is yet unknown. The full particulars regarding the injury to our ships are not yet to hand, but so far as I could ascertain none were seriously injured, all being still engaged in operation. The whole casualties are not yet ascertained. Casualties of first division are little over 400. Prince Yorhito in excellent health, Admiral Misubkmisu slightly wounded, May 27.

"Loss of Osliabia, Navarin confirmed. Sissoi-Veliki also definitely reported to Sissoi-Veliki also definitely reported to have been sunk on the morning of May 28.

"Official statement of Russian losses so far as ascertained:

"Following six battleships sunk: Prince Suvaroff, Imperator, Alexander Nicholi I; two coast defense ships, Navarin.

"Following five cruisers sunk: Admiral Nakhimoff, Dmitri Donskoi, Vladimir Monoakh, Svietlana and Jemchug.

"Coast defense ship Admiral Oushakoff sunk.

"Two special service ships Kamtchatka and three destroyers also sunk.

"Two battleships, Orel and Emperor General Admiral Apraxine and Admiral Senlavin, and one destroyer, Biedovy, captured.

"Thus, the Russians lost altogether twenty-two ships, the aggregate tonnage whereof amounted to 153,411 tons, beside the cruiser Almaz, believed to have been sunk.

QUESTION OF PEACE

Being Discussed By Czar and His Advisers.

St. Petersburg, May 31, 5:35 p. m.—A series of conferences is proceeding at Tsarskoe Selo to determine, not only the question of peace, but whether it is advisable to yield to the popular demand for the immediate convocation of a national assembly.

Paris, May 31.—Governmental quarters here for the first time entertain a distinct hope of peace. This hope is not strong, but it is something more than mere deduction from the result of the recent naval battle. What it is based upon is not known outside those intimately conversant with Russian intentions, but it is significant that hope now prevails in high quarters that the peace efforts may not be futile. It is said, however, that everything depends upon a small circle, very closely identified with Emperor Nicholas, who, it is recognized, must have the final word despite any other influences favorable to peace.

Concerning the reports of the possible intervention of the powers, it is said that the time has not yet arrived for such a movement, which might embarrass the pacific tendencies already developing in Russia. At the same time the view prevails that moral influences in France, Great Britain and the United States stand for peace, while the interests of Germany incline towards a prolongation of the war. Therefore, it is expected that influences toward peace will come through France, Great Britain and the United States, if an opportune moment arrives for a separate or concurrent expression of such influences.

RUSSAN OFFICERS LAZY.

Victoria, B. C., May 31.—Advices received by the steamer Empress of Japan include interviews with the German masters of colliers which had been supplying Rojestvensky's fleet with coal when at Hon Kone bay. The Germans said that only on one or two of the Russian ships was there such discipline as one would expect on a warship. The officers seemed fine men, but disinclined for work.

THE JAPS ORDER LARGE ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT.

New York, May 31.—Contracts amounting to fully $5,000,000, calling for the shipment with all dispatch of electrical equipment, machines and tools, have been placed in this market on Japanese account. The orders were mostly closed by the New York representatives of Japanese firms. The machinery is for installing in the principal government ship yards and arsenals.

Because of the inauguration of a war tax ranging from 5 per cent to 10 per cent on various foreign equipments entering Japan, after July 1, most of the orders call for shipment overland to the Pacific coast.

TWO AMERICAN SEAL HUNTERS IN PRISON.

Victoria, B. C., May 31.—A letter has been received here from Habarovsu telling of the imprisonment of a Victoria sealer and two American hunters in common with a score of Japanese in Okhotsk sea in August last. They were each sentenced to one year and four months' imprisonment for hunting fur seals, though captured on the high sea. The sentences date from Feb. 8 and will be served at Habarovsu.

A LARGE INCREASE OF NEW CORPORATIONS.

New York, May 31.—New incorporations in the Eastern states in May, together with increases in capital were the largest totals since 1903. Those involving $1,000,000 or more aggregate $249,250,000. This is the heaviest monthly total since May, 1903, when it stood at $307,666,000. The April figures were $180,111,000.

New Jersey led the list of states, followed by New York. An increase of $50,000,000, each in the capital of two industrial concerns accounts for a large portion of the increase.

KILLED BY CLOUDBURST.

Heppner, Or., May 31.—A cloudburst on the Rhea river, about twelve miles south of here, has caused the death of Mrs. J. R. Nunemaker and her youngest child, and two children of A. R. Cox, who were caught by the water and drowned.

NEW POSTMASTERS.

Washington, May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following Minnesota postmasters have been appointed: Aure, Beltrami county, Peter Bakke, vice Edward Stubban, resigned; Hereford, Grant county Roney M. Johnson, vice J. P. Nelson, resigned; Menahgha, Wadena county, Matthew Ristinen, vice Leonard Carjala, dead.

BARR'S SEAMANSHIP WON THE VICTORY

Tribute to Captain of Atlantic---Hamburg Finishes Second.

Southampton, Eng., May 31.—The American three-masted auxiliary schooner, Atlantic, winner of Emperor William's cup, arrived here early this morning, flying the stars and stripes. She soon attracted a crowd of admirers to the quay side. Wilson Marshall, owner of the yacht, was full of praise for Captain Barr's splendid handling of the schooner and attributed her victory to Barr's remarkable seamanship. Barr himself was especially pleased and announced that the Atlantic had beaten the Endymion's record to the Needles, of 13 days 20 hours and 36 minutes from Sandy Hook. He paid tribute to the crew of the Atlantic and their smart work throughout.

Later in the day, the Atlantic was taken into dry dock for a cleaning preparatory to competing in the Dover-Heligoland race, which Barr says he calculates on winning.

Scilly Islands, May 31.—The English yacht Valhalla, one of the contestants in the trans-Atlantic race, was sighted this morning twenty miles southwest of these islands.

Liverpool, May 31.—The British steamer Vancouver, which arrived here today from Portland, Maine, spoke the two-masted schooner yacht Endymion, May 25, in lat. 45. and long. 38. and the auxiliary three-masted schoone- Sunbeam, May 26, in lat. 47. and long. 31., both contestants in the trans-Atlantic race.

Plymouth, Eng., May 31.—The Hamburg-American liner Deutschland, which arrived here today from New York, May 25, yesterday sighted the three-masted schooner Utowana, owned by Allison V. Armour of the New York Yacht club and one of the contestants in the trans-Atlantic yacht race, 436 miles west of the Lizard.

London, May 31.—The German schooner yacht Hamburg finished at 7:21 p. m. yesterday.

Capt. C. Peters of the Hamburg, replying to a megaphone message, said he had a splendid voyage and had not met with any mishaps. He had good winds and met with only one gale. When informed of the record made by the American yacht Atlantic, Capt. Peters said he was astonished at such an achievement.

"I understand," said Capt. Peters, "that the Atlantic steered a northerly course and came up with ice. That I suppose happened to all of us. It happened to me, but just when the chances were equal the fog crept up and enveloped us, leaving the Atlantic clear. That lost us a golden opportunity.

"About May 25 the gale gave us a tough battle and for three days we had to reef for our main sail, but nothing was carried away. From that time on we had favorable breezes and on May 29 made our record sail of 312 miles. The behavior of the Hamburg was excellent. Every man had a good time and we have been as happy as kings."

SUPERHUMAN EFFORT TO SAVE COMPANIONS

Rescuers Are Working In Three Minute Shifts on Cave-In.

Montrose, Colo., May 31.—No information has been received up to 10 o'clock today concerning the fate of the workmen, estimated at twenty to twenty-two, imprisoned in the Gunnison reclamation tunnel by a cave-in or the progress made in the efforts to secure them, as the government authorities early today did not permit correspondents to use the telephone wire to the scene of the accident. Eight of ten men were at work at the point where the earth came down and it is feared that most, if not all of these were killed. Among those believed to be dead are:

FOREMAN STEELE, Oklahoma.
BLUMING KEMPER, Grand Junction.
FLOYD WOODRUFF, Montrose.
JOHN GRASSE, Colorado Springs.

Several hundred men have been employed in three-minute shifts in the rescue work under the charge of Engineer McConnell and Superintendent Knowles. The cave-in occurred thirty feet from Cedar creek and the channel of the creek has been changed to remove any chance of the water percolating into the tunnel and drowning the imprisoned men. This stream, generally dry, is running over 100 cubic feet of water per second at present. A shaft is being sunk on the north side of Cedar creek to cache the timbered work of the tunnel. Signalling on the air pipe by striking with a hammer brings answering signals from those imprisoned. Later a message was received announcing that rescuers working from the western portal of the tunnel came upon a body, but before it could be taken out, it was again buried by a fresh slide of dirt. Two men, caught in the timbers are known to be still alive and strong hopes are entertained that most of the imprisoned men will be rescued through the shaft that is being sunk.

A REWARD OF $10,000 FOR STOLEN LETTERS

Family Skeleton of Prominent New Yorkers May Be Revealed.

New York, May 31.—Offers of a $10,000 reward are published here today for the return of a packet of letters said to have been stolen from a private safe in the home of a wealthy and socially prominent New York family, whose name probably never will be mentioned in connection with the affair, unless a scandal should arise from an expose of the letters' contents. Incidentally, it is hoped to recover $60,000 worth of jewels and many thousands of dollars worth of stock certificates which were stolen at the same time as the letters; but in comparison with the letters, the loss of jewelry is considered insignificant. Every effort has been made to keep the affair secret.

Some time between March 15 and a few days ago, an old fashioned mahogany treasure box was stolen from a safe, where it had for many years held the most valuable of the possessions of the women members of the family. A scandal in the form of a family skeleton hidden for fifteen years from the head of the household is said to have formed the basis of the theft which is believed to have grown out of a new romance in the family. The detectives at work on the case, say they confidently believe that the son of the household is the thief for whom they are seeking. He is only about 23 years old, a graduate of one of the leading universities and a well known figure at the social functions of the younger set.

His motive is believed to be the necessity of maintaining the appearance of having a large income during his engagement to a wealthy young society woman. His own family are opposed to the match and have limited his allowance; hence his desire to acquire funds.

The suspected man left town some time ago, but he is under close surveillance and the detectives believe that the offer of the rich reward, just made, will procure the return of the letters. The contents of these missives is unknown even to the detectives in the case.

LEWIS AND CLARK CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION OPENS AT PORTLAND WITH ELABORATE CEREMONIES

Vice President Fairbanks and Other Notable Men Participate.

Legal Holiday In Three States Sends Multitude of People.

Portland, Oregon, June 1.—Amidst a scene of festivity and splendor never equalled in the Pacific Northwest, with din and clamor of cheering thousands accompanied by the booming of artillery, the chiming of bells and the blaring of bands, Portland today made her greatest bow to the world in the formal opening of the Lewis and Clark centennial exposition. The event took place under conditions presaging complete success to this historical commemoration of the blazing trail to "old Oregon" by Capt. Merriwether Lewis and William Clark, who, commissioned by President Jefferson, explored the great Oregon country 100 years ago.

Today's celebration was participated in by the president of the United States and his personal representative, Charles W. Fairbanks, representatives of the state and of the house of representatives of the national congress, of the army and the navy, together with the governors and staffs of the states of California, Idaho, Washington and Oregon and multitudes of people from far and near.

All Portland was decked in her best, business was suspended and the holiday spirit was everywhere in evidence.

The states of Oregon, Washington and Idaho, in which June 1st, had been declared a legal holiday in honor of the centennial sent thousands of visitors. The trains of yesterday brought the van guard of the excursionists and today the railroads and boat lines entering Portland have been taxed to their utmost. Never in the history of Portland has this city been called upon to care for so many people.

The prelude to the actual opening ceremonies at the exposition consisted of the parade, a grand peagant of militarism led by Vice President Fairbanks, the congressional party, visiting governors and other dignitaries and the exposition officials. With martial music constantly playing, this immediate forerunner of the actual of the actuality was greeted with continued cheering along the entire line of march from the new postoffice and through the business and residential sections of Portland to the fair grounds. As the troops passed the mass of sightseers flanking the column fell in behind and when the exposition grounds were reached there was a stream of humanity miles long following in its wake. Thousands in the meantime, anticipating the onward rush, had packed themselves around the speaker's stand and occupied every point of vantage, and late comers had to be content with being within seeing distance. As the parade swung into the grounds the vice presidential, congressional and fair parties were detached from the column and were escorted by the cavalry between long lines of cheering thousands to the New York state building. Almost simultaneously bodies of troops took their position on the esplanade, extending from the rear of the speaker's stand down to the lake front. Grand Marshal of the Day Col. E. S. Steever, fourth cavalry, U. S. A., had distributed the soldiery about the grounds, to hold the crowds in check and preserve order generally.

Everything being in readiness, at 11:45 o'clock Vice President Fairbanks and party emerged from the New York building, receiving the vice presidential salute of eighteen guns. Flanked on either side by a line of trops, the party walked to the speaker's stand. As the word was passed that the party was coming, an air of expectancy settled over the crowd, which gave way to a tremendous outburst of cheering and hand-clapping, as the official party ascended the speaker's platform.

Promptly at 12 o'clock noon, President H. W. Goode of the exposition arose, and, gavel in hand, announced the beginning of the ceremonies, which meant the realization of Portland's dream. The announcement was received with tremendous cheering, which echoed back and forth through the crowd for several minutes. As the echo died away the Rt. Rev. David H. Moore, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, stepping to the front of the platform, raised his hands and invoked the divine blessing. A perceptible stillness prevailed in the vast throng as the prayer was spoken.

The impressive silence which followed the prayer was broken as the inspiring strains of "Imperial Oregon," a march, composed by Innes, and dedicated to the memory of Captains Lewis and Clark, and inscribed to the people of Oregon, was played by the band. While the last notes of music reverberated through the grounds, and before the great applause which greeted the rendition of the piece had subsided, President Goode again rose to address the people. His appearance on the rostrum was the signal for renewed cheering, which continued for several minutes. Finally, in response to his appealing gestures, the president was permitted to begin his address. In welcoming the people of the "Old Oregon" country, and the people of the United States as the guests of the exposition, Mr. Goode said:

President H. W. Goode of the exposition delivered the following address:

The states of the Pacific border today give hearty welcome to the world to share with them in the felicitations upon the triumphal achievements on these shores by aggressive American civilzation and the signal victories of peaceful conquest.

The people of the Pacific Northwest desire to give Lewis and Clark their venerated place in history as surely as they do honor to the man who urged the exploration of what he called "this repectable breadth of country lying westward of the Mississippi river," and it may be that in history President Jefferson's reputation will stand higher for the quiet, determined persistency with which he brought about the Lewis and Clark exploration of the country west of the Rocky Mountains than for the acquisition of the territory of Louisiana.

In all enterprises of great moment contributing benefits to the many at the cost of the few, it is gratifying to feel that the law of compensation discloses always a more worthy and moving cause than mere material gain. When we dwell upon the journey through the continent wildernesses and deserts and think of the explorers pressing onward ever in the very teeth of obstacles that would have turned back many men actuated by the UPRISING OF NATIVES IS AGAINST ROBBER AGENTS.

Manila, June 1.—Brig. Gen. George M. Randall will sail for the United States on June 15.

Brig. Gen. Carter, comander of the department of the Visayas, now engaged in the pacification of the natives on the east coast of the Island of Samar, has sixteen companies of infantry and twelve scouts operating in the field, with four more companies of fantry under orders.

The uprising of the natives in this quarter is not against the government. They have rebelled on account of the corrupt practices of native officials and hemp agents, who have been underpaying them for their products.

After removing this objectionable class of officials, the military are inducing the natives to return to their peaceful pursuits, guaranteeing them protection.

TEAMSTERS' STRIKE CAUSED BY BUSINESS MEN, SAY UNIONISTS

Teamsters Offered $10,000 to Bring About the Trouble.

Business Man Wanted Strike Called on His Competitor.

Chicago, June 1.—Implied charges were made today that the teamsters' strike, which has caused fearful riots here and widespread paralysis of trade, grows partly at least out of antagonism between two business rivals of this city. President Shea of the Teamsters' union, and Former President Young, made the statements from which the inference is plain as to the alleged origin of the strike. Shea and Young asserted explicitly today that $10,000 was offered the teamsters, in the presence of a prominent business man identified with the present trouble, if the teamsters would bring about a similar strike against a certain competitor some time ago. The offer was refused.

"Since this strike has been on, has any money been offered you?" Mr. Shea was asked.

"If they knew," replied Shea, referring to the employers, "that the teamsters had solicited or accepted a bribe, these fellows would be the first to tell the grand jury about it. Now is the golden time. If they know of any such thing let them now speak or forever after hold their peace."

Speaking of efforts alleged to have been made by the coal dealers to force the office building managers to use coal throughout the year, instead of substituting gas during the summer months, President Shea said: "The records of the teamsters show that the strike benefits, some $30,000, were not paid by the Teamsters' union."

The teamsters' leader made similar charges with reference to the street car strike of 1903.

Former President Albert Young of the Teamsters' union declared today before entering the grand jury room that he would tell a story involving a well-known business man in the alleged attempt to call a strike on Sears, Roebuck & Co. The story told by Young was sensational, and involved a person implicated by Shea, besides the business man. Four persons were present, according to Young, when the $10,000 was offered. Young said he would give the names of two of the persons involved, the amount and the business man.

Chicago, June 1.—Efforts toward a settlement of the strike were made today by the teamsters opening negotiations with the individual members of the Employers' association. A committee consisting of three members of the Department Store Delivery Drivers union was appointed by the Teamsters joint council to call upon the State street merchants. The terms upon which the committee was authorized to treat with the employers appeared to be practically those previously rejected by the merchants as a body, namely, that in event of the raising of the boycott with reference to the members of the Employers' association the teamsters should not be required to deliver to or receive goods from the express companies.

Cornelius Shea, president and Albert Young, former president of the Teamsters' union, announced today that they are ready to go before the grand jury and explain how $25,000 was paid into the treasury of the organization by certain agents of employers' associations. President Shea today reiterated his statement, made to the grand jury, that two years ago he was offered $10,000 by an official of the associated teaming interests, to call a strike against the mail order house of Sears, Roebuck & Co. President Shea also reaffirmed allegations he made concerning conspiracies by certain employers to prevent the big office buildings from using gas for fuel. He declared that the coal teamsters were induced to enter that strike on the belief that they would secure more work. President Shea went further today and declared:

"Not a strike of any consequence is called in Chicago where the employers do not try to bribe the unions."

BUT THREE CASES OF FEVER.

Washington, June 1.—Governor Magoon of the isthmian canal zone today cabled the war department that there were now three cases of yellow fever on the isthmus and that all were doing well. The last case is that of William J. Kennedy, an American, not an employe of the canal, who was taken May 29.

BRAKEMAN JOHN ECKLEY KILLED

Hibbing, Minn., June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Eckley, a brakeman on the Great Northern railroad, was crushed between two cars at Kelley lake this morning and died later at the Rood hospital in Hibbing. He was engaged in coupling cars in the yard for Conductor Conway's train, when he was caught in some manner and badly crushed. He was at once removed to the hospital, but succumbed soon after reaching there. Eckley was 29 years of age, single and his folks live at Ludington, Mich.

WERE THEY VICTIMS OF FOUL PLAY?

New York, June 1.—Officials of the Park police department express the belief that the drowning of Albert Bergman and his cousin, Josephine Tauber, in the Central park lake, Tuesday, was not accidental, and they are working on the theory that the young couple may have been victims of foul play. Bergman came here last January from Chicago, where his parents reside. He was only 22 years old, but had charge of the wall paper department in a large store. When recovered from the lake, Bergman's body was found to bear a wound from the sixth to the eighth rib, and a serious abrasion of the nose. There was missing from his clothes $20.

Miss Tauber's body, which was found after the lake had been dragged all night, also bore signs of violence. Her clothing was torn and disarranged, indicating, the police say, that she made desperate efforts to save herself.

The water was only five feet deep where the bodies were found. The police will investigate closely the possibility of Bergman's death having been due to a jealous quarrel with another admirer of Miss Tauber.

FRICK COMMITTEE STILL SILENT

New York, June 1.—H. C. Frick, chairman of the Equitable Life Assurance society committee, today declined to confirm or deny any of the reports purporting to give details of the proceedings at yesterday's meeting of the directors. Mr. Frick and other members of the committee assembled today in Mr. Frick's office, and it was understood that they probably would hold an all day's session. One of Mr. Frick's early visitors was Gage E. Tarbell, the Equitable society's second vice president. It was reported that Mr. Tarbell's visit to Chairman Frick's office enddde in his demanding a copy of the committee report, which was thereupon handed to him by Mr. Frick.

Francis Hendricks, state superintendent of insurance, again took up his investigation of the Equitable society's affairs today. This examination is being conducted at the branch office of the insurance department, and not in the offices of the Equitable society, where previous examinations have been held.

BATTLESHIPS ARE DOOMED

Congressman Bede on Lesson of Korean Straits Fight.

St. Paul, June 1.—The battleship is out of fashion. Big ironclads will not be "worn" a few seasons hence by any up-to-date nation.

This is the conviction expressed by Congressman J. Adam Bede of Duluth. It was echoed in the main by his colleague, Congressman Steenerson of Crookston, who also chanced to be a local visitor.

Discussing the Oriental war in the Merchants hotel lobby, Representative Bede insisted that the new Togo fashion plate demonstrated a rapid and pronounced change in naval styles.

"The battleship must go," said Mr. Bede. "Not the way of Rojestvensky's. That was too abrupt. But it must go because it has been historically Osierized. When a dinkey little torpedo boat or submarine that costs no more, probably, than a ten-inch gun, can send to the fishes in half an hour a battleship costing $5,000,000 to $7,000,000, what's the use of building battleships?

"From all accounts it wasn't Togo's battleships that destroyed a Russian fleet valued at $100,000,000. It was accomplished by torpedo boats, by destroyers, by mines, and presumably by submarines. A mine that would annihilate a battleship wouldn't cost as much as the officer's silver service. Submarines and torpedo boats would cost less than $100,000 each, perhaps no more than half that amount. Even the destroyers aren't worth more than $200,000. But a first-class battleship may cost $5,000,000 or as much as $7,000,000.

"This last battle off Korea merely strengthens the belief that many members of congress have held for some time. Why, we shouldn't have authorized the building of any battleships at the last session, if we hadn't wanted to meet the president's wishes and to show foreign nations that we don't intend to neglect our naval defenses. It was for those reasons only that we authorized the construction of one battleship.

"Not to speak of the tremendous loss of life when these big ships are so quickly destroyed, she should remember that so rich a country as the United States is finding the battleship fad uncommonly expensive. Money is wasted by the million on these doubtful experiments, while public improvements of great importance can't be secured because the treasury is depleted. It was the navy estimates, for instance, that prevented at the last session appropriations for public buildings and for internal improvements, the value of which is open to no question.

"The country will soon realize that one torpedo is more than a match for any battleship, and that the cost of a single battleship would furnish several fleets of torpedo boats."

DIETZ UNDISTURBED.

Chief Marshal Returns to Madison For Orders.

Park Falls, Wis., June 1.—After a week of anxious waiting word has been received from the posse which left for Cameron dam. John Binsleiner, one of the posse, wrote to Village President Esterl as follows, under date of May 27, at Cameron dam, the letter being mailed at Winter, May 29:

"We got here all right and are having a good time so far; lots of mutton, bacon and a good cook. We have seen Deitz, but only at a distance. By all reports there will be trouble here before long. The chief marshal is going back to Madison for further orders and it will be dead or alive for Dietz. I have got a big stump picked for myself when the fun begins."

The letter contains a rude sketch of Dietz's farm. The posse does not expect to leave the dam for at least another week.

The feeling here for Dietz grows more friendly every day. Those who have carefully weighed the situation strongly maintain that Deitz is protecting his rights and is taking the only practical way of doing it. It is hoped that when the marshal returns from Madison he will carry orders to abandon the project.

BOND APPROVED.

Washington, June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Secretary Hitchcock today approved the bond filed by Robert J. Montague, recently appointed register of the land office at Crookston, succeeding George Peterson, whose term has expired.

Scene Was Terrible When the Japs Fell Upon the Enemy.

The Doomed Russian Ships Were Battered From All Sides.

The Russian Line Broke In Utter Disorder In a Short Time.

London, June 1.—The Tokio correspondent of the Daily Telegraph sends an interesting description of the naval battle from a correspondent with the Japanese fleet, who describes the scene as terrible, the guns of nearly fifty warships firing.

Togo's vessels, this correspondent says, maneuvered with perfect precision. For a time both belligerents gave shot for shot, but with a hostile squadron on each side and another ahead of him, Rojestvensky was practicaly defeated within a few hours and was caught in the trap which had been waiting for him since he left Madagascar. He displayed hesitation in his tactics and this resulted in the utter confusion of the Russian fleet.

An infernal concentration of fire reached its zenith at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. As the Russians advanced in the direction of Vladivostok, a Japanese fleet was lying between them and their destination, and the doomed Russians were battered on all sides. Between 3 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon a cruiser of the Admiral Nakahimoff class and the repair ship Kamchatka foundered after their upper works had been shattered. The Russians broke in utter disorder, lost their formation and went zig zag. The Japanese closed in and pressed them towards the Nagoto coast.

The fight lasted until 7 o'clock in the evening. The correspondent continues:

Togo risked nothing and lost nothing. Darkness brought a glorious night with smooth and transparent seas. The Russians were edging northward with the powerful Japanese fleet in a horizontal line across their bows, forming an effective barrier. Then, under searchlights and the cover of the big guns of the warships, the Japanese torpedo flotilla began like locusts to sting and sink the enemy, the Russians continuing to return the gunfire. At 2 o'clock in the morning the fighting was fierce and no rest was allowed the Russians.

With dawn of Sunday the Japanese fleet came into still closer range. All day long the battle continued, and by evening was raging off Northern Nagoto. The Russians were powerless to offer any effective resistance."

Tokio, May 30, 9 p. m.—(Delayed in transmission.)—Admiral Togo's supplimentary report which reached the navy department this afternoon, makes the Russian defeat a staggering disaster unequalled in naval history. practically every fighting ship of a once splendid fleet was either sunk or captured representing a loss of tonnage exceeding 150,000 tons. The remaining units of the fleet consisting largely of auxilaries and transports have been dispersed, some going to Vladivostok, others to the China coast. Admiral Rojestvensky, gravely wounded, occupies a cot in a Japanese hospital, a prisoner of war.

Tokio, astounded and elated at the first measure of victory, seems to be unable to clearly grasp the still greater triumph that Admiral Togo brings to the nation.

Before the combat, a practical victory with operations around Vladivostok during the summer was generally expected. No one dreamed of annihilation at the first blow. Later reports indicate that the fighting was of the most desperate nature. On Saturday and Sunday there were persistent torpedo attacks following heavy gun fighting. Admiral Rojestvensky appears to have been hopelessly outclassed in gunnery. It is reported that it was necessary for Rojestvensky to change his flagship five times during the battle. He finally took refuge on the torpedo boat where he was captured.

Admiral Togo's later dispatches given to the public early this evening created the highest enthusiasm. High officers of the army and prominent officials hurried to the navy department and offered congratulations.

The entire staff of the bank of Japan, headed by a band marched to the navy department and cheered in honor of the victory.

Admiral Rojestvensky's injuries consist of a wound on the forehead, a slight outer fracture and other slight wounds.

VOELKERSAM DEAD.

Prominent Russian Admiral Was Killed In Battle.

Tokio, June 1, 11 p. m.—Rear Admiral Voelkersam, who was commander of the battleship squadron of the Russian fleet, was it was announced today, killed the first day of the battle, May 27, in the conning tower of his flagship Osliabia, one of the vessels sunk by the Japanese.

Rear Admiral Voelkersam was appointed commander of the battleship squadron of the Russian fleet in July last and left Cronstadt August 25 with

THE CZAR PROMISES NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

To Appease Wrath of People---Opposed to Ignominious Peace.

St. Petersburg, June 1.—The extraordinary council at Tsarskoe Selo yesterday, reached no conclusion on the subject of peace, but definite reports say the emperor agreed to meet the internal situation by the immediate promulgation of a decree providing for the convocation of a national assembly. M. Witte president of the committee of ministers, who was present, is understood to have assumed the leadership of the advocates of peace and the immediate convocation of a national assembly is anticipated as the only means of averting the popular trouble which is threatening to break out. The war party is dying hard. It is the opinion in diplomatic circles that the logic of events points to no other issue except peace, but the diplomats also admit that the decision rests with the emperor. But even when all the ministers, except War Minister Sakaharoff and Minister of Marine Avellyan are solidly arrayed against a continuance of the hopeless struggle, the emperor has refused thus far to say a word. To a visitor his majesty is reported to have declared that he would rather die than sign an ignominious peace.

St. Petersburg, June 1.—The immediate realization of the imperial reforms seems the only thing which can save the government from the wrath of the populace. The truth is now known to the humblest people in the capital and will soon spread through the empire and the mutterings of the people are certain to have an ominous effect on the army at the front. It is feared that the revolutionaries and Socialists are planning to take advantage of the government's discomfiture by inciting demonstrations and a renewal of the strikes. As a precautionary measure, more guard regiments have been ordered back from camp and additional Cossack reinforcements have been brought to St. Petersburg. The Liberals also consider that the government is at last in a corner and that the time has come to strike. Their press no longer asks—it threatens. The Slavo this morning menaces the government, boldly declaring that if it does not give what the people need, the latter will take it.

"Russia's disgrace," the Slovo adds, "is not due to the people, but to the 'gentlemen' who have been misgoverning them."

Continuing the paper holds up the specter of another Cugachev, a famous Cossack, who for years led the insurrection against the Empress Catherine.

The Nasha Shishn even more scathingly denounces the bureaucracy, from which it says there is no hope of peace, and paints a revolting picture of the officeholders last night amusing themselves instead of mourning.

"Everywhere," the Nasha Shishn says, "they were hurrying to pleasure resorts. The dance halls were full. Even army and navy officers took part, oblivious of the frowning attitude of the people. Can Russia's defeat surprise anyone when such men keep the masses in ignorance and thrust the true patriots into cells and underground dungeons?"

Even the Novoe Vremya warns the government that it cannot temporize and act the coward, but must come out openly, immediately convene the people and let them decide the future.

Industrial members of the labor committee, headed by Finance Minister Kokovosoff, withdrew in a body at today's sitting on a plea that owing to the national calamity, they were unable to discuss current affairs and considered that the alarming situation required their presence in their respective provinces.

M. Kokovcsoff declined to postpone the work of the commission, saying that the interests of the working classes would thereby be prejudiced and vainly appealed to the industrial members to reconsider their decision. Finally M. Kokovosoff decided that the government members should continue their work.

GAMES TODAY.

The aggregation of pitcher destroyers known as the Duluth White Stockings arrived in the city yesterday, having an off day in the league schedule.

They are home for a visit of three weeks, during which time they will give exhibitions of how young and aspiring twirlers can be cut off in their prime.

This afternoon Winnipeg will be the first victim. The Canadians have been struggling up toward the top of the heap again since the last meeting with Duluth, and are in fit shape for the second slaughter. They have been strengthened, however, since the last series, and there is just a possibility that they will spring a surprise on the local men.

"Our great advantage was that we had an early start," said Manager Van Praagh yesterday, after returning from Winnipeg, where he saw three of the league teams perform. "We have no better material in our team than two or three of the other nines in the league, and when they get away properly they will make things interesting. Our men have the advantage of about two weeks' extra training, and the other teams are just now getting into the condition that we were in when we opened the season.

"All the other nines are strengthening their teams, and they will get after us before the month is over, so that we will need all the games we have to our credit. I don't look for any runaway race this year like we had last summer.

"Winnipeg will have a winning team before the summer is over, or it won't be for want of trying. That town is baseball crazy, and the fans want a winning team at any cost. It's a revelation to witness a game up there. The fans fairly tear things loose every time a man is put out, and every good play is cheered to the limit. But they want a team that will win, and the management is trying to get it for them."

The weather man smiled on today's celebration, completely overthrowing all precedents, and there will doubtless be a record-breaking crowd at Athletic park this afternoon to welcome home the champions.

THE TWINS WIN.

Hammer Out Seven Runs In Sixth Inning.

St. Cloud, June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—In today's game with the score 3 to 2 in favor of the Maroons in the sixth inning, St. Cloud-Brainerd went to bat and before the smoke lifted seven men had registered at hotel de home plate. Whitman for the Maroons gave two bases on balls, hit one and allowed four safeties, one home run with three men on bases, all in the sixth. Neither team scored after.

In the first, Bradley's error gave White a life and enabled him to score later on Nehr's two bagger. Two singles and sacrifice gave the Twins another run in the fourth.

In the third Davidson for the Twins passed Whitman and Piper and both scored later on Tucker's double. The Maroons added another in the sixth through singles by Gatewood and Tripp and an error by Nehr. This tells the tale of the scoring.

Bradley's errors both figured in the final score. Davidson for the Twins outpitched the Winnipeg man, striking out three to his one and allowing six hits to the other's eight. Each passed four men.

TIGERS WIN AGAIN.

Defeat Crookston Team In One Sided Game.

Grand Forks, June 1.—The fourth game of the Crookston-Grand Forks series was played here yesterday. The attendance was fairly good considering the threatening weather. Several showers of rain fell during the progress of the game, and the visitors were very much disappointed because it didn't rain.

It was a game similar to one of those 60 to 0 football games. The Tigers just played with Dorn until the fifth inning, when Mullen went on the slab, and was treated likewise. Dorn had allowed the locals seven hits up to the fifth inning, and the Tigers just initiated Mullen by taking five safe hits, and sending four men home in the fifth.

In the first inning it looked very much as if Crookston would score. Fitzsimmons, the first man up, went on an error by Muller. Olsen got to first on an error by Houch, and Livingstone singled. Fitzsimmons was put out at the home plate. Slatter struck out, and Sperry got a life on fielder's choice. Ludwig tried hard to score, but managed to send a foul fly up to Chandler, and the side retired with the bags full. Varco for the Tigers was issued a pass, and Chandler struck out. Varco stole second, and went home on Anderson's hit. Hanrahan was put out in center field, and Spanton struck out.

It was in the third inning that the Tigers had the visitors going a few. Varco led off with a hit, and Chandler got to first on an error by Burke, and Anderson went on an error by Dorn. Hanrahan got to first on a fielder's choice, and Anderson went to second on Livingstone's error. Spanton sacrificed, and Caldwell took a hit scoring Anderson and Hanrahan. Varco and Chandler having made home on Dorn's error. Muller struck out and Smith got a life on an error by Slatter. Houch, the ninth man up, struck out.

In the fourth inning hits by Varco and Muller, a three-bagger by Hanrahan, and a home run by Spanton caused four more scores to be chalked up for the Tigers. Five singles in the fifth by Varco, Anderson, Hanrahan, Caldwell and Muller, and an error by Burke allowed the Tigers to send four more men across the plate.

In the sixth Varco went to bat first, for the fourth time, as nine men batted for the Tigers in the third, fourth and fifth innings, and went to the initial sack on an error by Leighty. Chandler hit a fly to Leighty who touched Varco out, making the first and only double of the game. Anderson flew out to Fitzsimmons.

ADSON IS GENERAL PASSENGER AGENT

General Passenger Offices of South Shore Come to Duluth.

MARTIN ADSON.

It was officially announced at Marquette, Mich., yesterday, by President W. F. Fitch of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic road, that Martin Adson, general agent of the road in Duluth, has been appointed general passenger agent, to succeed George W. Hibbard, who recently resigned to go with the National lines of Mexico as general passenger agent.

Mr. Fitch also announced that the passenger department of the road will be moved from Marquette to Duluth, placing this department at the point of greatest competition for through business. The general freight offices of the South Shore are already in Duluth.

James Maney, rate clerk, will also be promoted, receiving the title of assistant general passenger agent. The appointments of both will go into effect June 15. It is believed that Mr. Adson will be succeed as general agent at Duluth by Andrew J. Perrin, at present city ticket agent for the South Shore in Superior. This has not yet been officially announced, however. The promotions will probably mean other changes in the local office. Bringing the general passenger office of the road to Duluth will mean the removal here of several employes of the road and their families.

Mr. Adson is today receiving the congratulations of his friends. The promotion is universally commended, and everybody is glad to know that "Mart" has received further recognition, for a more popular railroad official never had his office in Duluth. He holds the respect and esteem of his associates in the railroad world as well as of all the men with whom he has had dealings in the past in a business way. Mr. Fitch could have made no other selection of a general passenger agent which would have proven so popular at the Head of the Lakes.

Mr. Adson has rapidly worked up from the bottom of the ladder through merit alone. Late in the summer of 1893 he entered the employ of the South Shore road in the capacity of stenographer in the Duluth city ticket office. About a year later he was promoted to the position of assistant ticket agent in the Superior office. He served here for two years more and then, early in 1896, was made cashier and city ticket agent at Duluth.

In 1898 he became traveling passenger agent, and in March, 1901, received the appointment of general agent for the road at Duluth, the position he now holds. So great has been his popularity and success as general agent that as soon as it became known that Mr. Hibbard had resigned, Mr. Adson's friends expressed themselves as being confident that he would be promoted to the place vacated by Mr. Hibbard, and a rumor to this effect was soon floating about the streets.

It is also reported that J. D. Morrissey, who has been in the freight office at Superior, will be made general agent at Superior.

LOOKING FOR CANDIDATE

To Run Against Governor Johnson Next Year.

St. Paul, June 1.—The selection of a man who as the Republican candidate for governor would try to defeat Governor John A. Johnson a year from this fall, was the subject of a general conference of Republicans from all parts of the state held in St. Paul yesterday. Among those who were present were Congressmen J. Adam Bede of Pine City, and Halvor Steenerson of Crookston, Senator Knute Nelson of Alexandria, State Senators R. E. Thompson of Preston, and T. M. Pugh of Duluth, and Representatives Elmer E. Adams of Fergus Falls, W. J. Stock of Melrose, John Zelch of Cottage Grove, and Sherman Smith of Minneapolis. Congressman Bede said there was no particular significance in his visit.

The prevailing sentiment seemed to be that the contest for the Republican nomination, as the matter now stands, will be between State Treasurer Julius H. Block, Secretary of State P. E. Hanson and Senator Samuel Lord of Kasson. Mr. Block met several of the legislators at the Ryan hotel, and some of them called on Mr. Hanson in the afternoon. Senator A. D. Stephenson of Crookston, Senator R. B. Brower of St. Cloud, Speaker Frank Clague of Lamberton, Charles F. Staples of the railroad and warehouse commission, J. F. Jacobson of Madison, W. A. Nolan of Grand Meadow and Congressman F. C. Stevens of St. Paul, were others suggested for the Republican nomination.

SETTLERS AID MIKE CAPEN

Authorities, After Long Search, Unable to Locate Fugitive.

Deputies Michael Horgan and Owen Gately of Sheriff Bates' office have returned from the man-hunt near Eveleth. For some days a rigorous search has been conducted for Mike Capen, alleged murderer, who has been wanted since last fall. Further search for the present will be abandoned, as the authorities are satisfied that the settlers living about the swamps are aiding Capen in every way possible to evade the officers of the law. The swamps are said to be well cut up with trails to such a degree that it would take a regiment of soldiers to successfully watch all the possible outlets. The officers found evidences that Capen is still in the vicinity of Eveleth, but so long as the people of his nationality are leagued together to protect him by hiding him from the authorities, it is felt that any further efforts will be a waste of time and expense.

MRS. ROGERS MAY LIVE UNTIL JUNE 23.

Montpelier, Vt., June 1.—Governor Charles J. Bell yesterday granted a second reprieve to Mrs. Mary M. Rogers, who is under sentence of death for the murder of her husband, and for whose execution on Friday next, preparations had been made.

This second reprieve extends until Friday, June 23, and it is not believed that Governor Bell will again exercise executive clemency in behalf of the woman. Yesterday's action was influenced by the fact that the question of the constitutional rights of the prisoner has been raised by her counsel.

Mrs. Rogers' attorneys will now bring the matter before one of the justices of the United States supreme court. An answer is expected within the period of the reprieve.

ROBBERS GOT NOTHING.

New York, June 1.—Four daring robbers held up Charles Keuhn, a messenger of the Yorkville bank of this city, in a crowded business section, at Houston and Hudson streets, yesterday, choked him and robbed him of an empty bag. Keuhn was on his way to other banks, from which he usually returned with the bag filled with thousands of dollars in gold and notes. Three of the robbers escaped. The fourth, an ex-convict, named Hogan, who only a short time ago finished a twelve-year sentence for highway robbery, was pursued and captured by a detective after he had attempted to shoot his pursuer.

BURNED TO DEATH

Little Freddie Fitzsimmons Is Victim of Horrible Accident.

Was Playing About Bonfire When Clothes Became Ignited.

While playing about a bonfire yesterday afternoon, Freddie, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Fitzsimmons of 1431 East First street was fatally burned, and died from his injuries three hours later.

The little fellow, who was only 4 years and 9 months old, was playing with some other children about the smouldering embers of a bonfire which had been lighted in the rear of the brick row on the opposite side of the street to consume some rubbish. The fire had burned itself out, but a few glowing embers still remained. Freddie, according to the statement of his playmates, picked up a newspaper that was lying near and cast it on the coals. The children watched it burst into a flame shouting with glee at the sight, but Freddie stood too close to the burning paper, and in some manner his clothes became ignited.

He screamed with pain and fright, and his cries together with those of his playmates, soon brought several women living in the vicinity to his assistance. They succeeded in smothering the flames and summoned Mrs. Fitzsimmons.

The child, shrieking with agony, was carried to his home where Dr. Peter Krafts and Dr. J. B. Weston dressed his wounds.

The clothing was almost completely burned from the child's body, only the remains of his shirt being left. The skin about his face, neck, chest and back was horribly burned and blackened.

Despite the fearful suffering which he was undergoing, the little fellow attempted to explain how he met with the accident. When asked if he had thrown the paper on the fire himself, he said that he did not do so.

The lad lived for less than three hours after the accident, and death put an end to his sufferings early last evening.

This is the second accident which has occurred within a month from bonfires. Little Ruth Bakken is still in a critical condition from burns sustained several weeks ago, while playing about a bonfire.

The funeral will be held tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock from the residence.

SPOONER RETURNS FROM FOREIGN TRIP.

New York, June 1.—Senator John C. Spooner, of Wisconsin, and Mrs. Spooner have arrived here from a tour of Europe, taken for the benefit of the senator's health. He refused to discuss the probable result of the Japanese naval victory. "We all think we should have a good navy" he replied when told what President Roosevelt had said in his memorial day speech delivered in Brooklyn as to the lesson of the great battle.

INCREASE SHOWN

Building Operations In Duluth Larger Than Last Year.

Monthly Report For May Shows a Greater Activity.

The extent of the building operations undertaken in Duluth during the month of May, 1905, show an increase of over 35 per cent over the corresponding month of last year.

According to the books of the building inspector the total value of the buildings for which permits have been taken out during the month just passed, was $169,707.

The value of the buildings for which permits was issued in May, 1904, was only $125,488, showing an increase of $44,219 in the extent of building operations over a year ago.

Every month this year has shown an increase over the corresponding month of last year, with the exception of March, in which there was a slight decrease. If the ratio of increase is maintained, the total value of the building done during the year will pass the $2,000,000 mark, whereas last year it amounted to only $1,200,000.

There were no large permits issued during the month just passed. One was issued to T. F. Cole for a residence costing about $12,000 and another for $15,000 repairs on the Hunter block, but aside from these the permits consisted largely of small residences costing from $1,000 to $3,000, with a few small flat buildings costing from $4,000 to $8,000.

Quite a number of large permits are due for the early part of June. Among them are those for the construction of the new Bijou theater building, and the residences of W. M. Prindle and Julius H. Barnes.

THE RUSSIANS FELL INTO TOGO'S TRAP

the other vessels commanded by Rojestvensky. It was Voelkersam's squadron, according to report, which fired on the British trawlers in the North sea mistaking them for Japanese torpedo boats.

RUSSIAN LOSSES

Besides Captured Men Estimated at Nearly 12,000.

Tokio, June 1.—Rough estimates made of the Russian losses in the battle fought in the Sea of Japan exclusive of nearly 4,000 prisoners, vary from seven to nine thousand. It is feared that the majority perished. Calculating on the complements of the sunken and captured ships ten to twelve thousand men remain unaccounted for. Many bodies have been washed ashore on the islands and in the shores of the neighboring coasts near the scene of battle.

JAPANESE CAPTIVES

Overpower Prize Crew and Recapture Their Ship.

Nakasaki, June 1.—Russian torpedo boats from Vladivostok captured the Japanese steamer Daishen of 700 tons off Hokkaido and placed a prize crew of thirteen men on board with orders to take the vessel to port. By mistake the Russian commander of the Daishen headed for Gensan (Korea) and met a Japanese transport. The latter, seeing the Russian flag flying from the Diashen, intended to recapture the vessel when the Japanese captives aboard the steamer on seeing their compatriots, atttacked the prize crew, recaptured the vessel and eventually took her to Gensan. The Russian prize crew have been taken captives to Sasebo.

ROJESTVENSKY MAY DIE.

Little Hope For Recovery, Says Nagasaki Report.

Nagasaki, Wednesday, May 31.—A report reaches here to the effect that little hope is entertained of the recovery of Admiral Rojestvensky, who is now in a hospital at Sasebo.

Tokio, Wednesday, May 31, 7:15 p. m.—The serious wound of Admiral Rojestvensky, who was taken to Sasebo on a Japanese battleship is a bruise on the forehead and a slight fracture of the skull. The nature of his internal injuries is not known. The admiral's temperature and pulse are normal and there is no sign of brain trouble. He has other wounds, but they are not serious.

A YEAR AFTERWARD.

Japanese Admit Loss of Fine Battleship Yashima.

Tokio, June 1.—The necessity for secrecy no longer existing the navy department confirms the reports of the loss of the Japanese battleship Yashima off Port Arthur in May, 1904, and announces other naval losses heretofore withheld. The list is as follows:

Battleship Yashima, sunk by mine May 15, 1904, while engaged in blockading Port Arthur.

The torpedo boat destroyer Akatsuki sunk by a mine May 17, 1904, while taking part in the blockade of Port Arthur.

The gunboat Oshima sunk in collision May 17, 1904, while co-operating with the army off the Liao Tung peninsula.

The torpedo boat destroyer Hayatori sunk by a mine Sept. 3, 1904, while taking part in the blockade of Port Arthur.

The protected cruiser Takasago was sunk by a mine Dec. 12, 1904, while taking part in the blockade of Port Arthur.

The Japanese battleship Yashima was reported to have been sunk early in June, 1904, but although the reports were reiterated and repeatedly denied it was not until Nov. 3 of that year that the Associated Press was able positively to announce that its dispatches from Chefu, Port Arthur and Tokio in June to the effect that the Yashima had been sunk had been officially confirmed. The Yashima was one of the finest battleships of the Japanese navy. She was about the size of the American battleship Maine, had a speed of 19 knots and carried a nava battery of four 12-inch guns and ten 6-inch guns, in addition to twenty-four other guns of smaller caliber.

RUSSIAN OFFICERS

Captured In Naval Battle Will Be Paroled.

Tokio, June 1, 8 a. m.—It is understood that the emperor intends to direct that the Russian officers captured at the naval battle of the Sea of Japan on May 27, be given terms of prole, identicl with those granted the army officers taken at the surrender of Port Arthur.

An officer of the Russian battleship Borodino, brought as a prisoner to the Maizura navy yard, says that while Rear Admiral Rojestvensky had raised his flag on the battleship Kniaz Scuvaroff he was really on board of the Borodino, during the action. When the Borodino was sinking he boarded the Russian destroyer Bedovi on which he was eventually captured by the Japanese.

LATER REPORTS

From Different Divisions of the Japanese Fleet.

Tokio, June 1, 7 p. m.—The navy department made the following announcement today:

"Later reports from the different divisions of the fleet engaged in the naval battle of May 27 show as follows:

"The Russian battleship Osliabia was heavily damaged in the early part of the fight on Saturday, going down at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

"The Russian vessel sunk was the battleship Sissoi Velikv.

"The armored cruisers Admiral Nakhimoff and Vladimir Monomach, after being in the general engagement during the day time, were still further damaged by torpedoes during attacks by night and were eventually completely disabled. They drifted into the vicinity of Tsu islands, where they were discovered Sunday morning (May 28) by the auxiliary cruisers Shilano, Yawata, Tainan and Sado, which were about to capture them, but they all sank.

"The crews of our auxiliary cruisers rescued 915 of the crew of the sunken Russian ships.

"The battleship Navarin was torpedoed four times after sundown on Saturday (May 27) and sunk. The survivors of the Navarin's crew confirm the story of her destruction.

"The cruisers Niytaka and Otawa discovered the Russian cruiser Svietlana at 9 o'clock Sunday morning in the vicinity of Chappyan bay and immediately attacked and sunk her. The commander of the Niytaka reports the fact.

"It is suspected that the Russian cruisers Almaz and Aurora were sunk by torpedoes on the night of May 27.

"The former report includes the statement that the Russian cruiser Jimtug sunk but as yet this remains unconfirmed, and the cruiser's name has been excluded from the revised list of Russian vessels destroyed.

"Judging from this and former reports of the enemy's main strength, consisting of eight battleships destroyed or captured, three armored cruisers and three coast defense ships distroyed or captured, with the second class cruisers and other vessels destroyed, the enemy's fighting power is thus annihilated.

"Later reports show that during the night of May 27, our torpedo boats Nos. 34, 35 and 69 were sunk. Comrades rescued the majority of their crews. Besides the above there was no damage worth reporting. No warships nor destroyers suffered any loss of fighting or navigating power.

"We anticipated a heavy loss of life, but find that our casualties were comparatively slight. They do not exceed 800 killed and wounded. The casualties reports will be rendered as speedily as possible in order to reassure families and friends.

"Nearly the whole strength of both combatants met in battle, and the area of the fighting was very wide.

"The first day proved foggy, and even without the smoke and fumes resulting from battle, it was impossible to see five miles. Consequently during the day it was impossible to locate or observe all the ships under my command. Moreover the fighting having lasted two days and the ships of my command being scattered for the purpose of chasing and attacking the enemy, having received special orders after the battle, it is impossible to collect and frame any detailed report covering the whole battle at the same time."

CRUISER IZUMRUD

Escaped From Japs and Rcaches Vladivostok.

St. Petersburg, June 1.—The Russian cruiser Izumrud has arrived at Vladivostok.

According to the latest Japanese reports about the Isumrud, she was one of five Russian vessels surrounded by the Japanese May 28 near Liancourt rocks, northeast of Oki island, and fled while the other four vessels, the battleships Nicholai I and Orel and the coast defense ships Admiral Senivin and General Admiral Apraxine surrendered.

RUSSIANS CAPTAIN'S STORY

Of the Sinking of Cruiser Admiral Nakhimoff.

London, June 1.—The Daily Mail's Tokio correspondent says that the captain of the Russian cruiser Admiral Nakhimoff, who is now a prisoner, relates the following story of the battle between the Japanese and Russian fleets:

"We first saw the Japanese at 6 o'clock on the morning of May 27, when suddenly and unexpectedly we encountered the enemy's fleet as we were moving to the east of Tsu island. They steamed toward us and opened fire. Only ninety minutes after the firing began a sudden shock was felt under the Admiral Nakhimoff and she began to sink with great rapidity. My belief is that she either struck a mine or torpedo. My crew numbered 600 men, a majority of whom went down in the ship as there was no time to get the men on deck.

"Myself and a number of survivors, aided by life belts, swam to a small launch and about 10 o'clock in the morning we went aboard a fishing boat. All of the officers were sent to Shimonosoke.

"In the engagement fought off Liancourt rocks the Russian battleships were surrounded by Japanese ships, which circled about them pouring in a terrible fire and they almost imediately fell into hopeless confusion. Seeing their plight Vice Admiral Togo signalled from the flagship Mikasa a demand to know whether the Russians were ready to surrender. Our ships complied with the demand."

Other accounts of the battle describe the roar of the cannonade as so terrible that houses were shaken at Yamaguchi, twenty-eight miles distant, and the people supposed it was an earthquake.

The Japanese fleet suffered little. The battleship Azahi was hit the most times and suffered the heaviest loss, but did not quit the firing line. Admiral Kamimura was sent southward with the deliberate purpose of beginning the battle with a small squadron. He, however, allowed the Russians to pass him. Then Rear Admiral Uriu broke in upon them from Iki island and passed across the head of the third line, raking them again and again.

Japanese submarine boats, the correspondent says, proved most effective. The armored cruiser Vladimir Monomach hoisted the white flag during the battle and with a hundred of her crew surrendered.

The repair ship Kamtchatka was badly hit early in the battle. Her steering gear was so disabled that she could only circle round and round. While in this condition a shell hit her engines, completely disabling her. Fifty-six of her crew took to the boats, but these were barely lowered when the Kamtchatka lurched. Her bows rose in the water, and she sank with a tremendous roar. Her captain was killed and three officers were drowned and two were wounded, while the fate of the others is uncertain. One of the Kamtchatka's officers, while in a boat, saw the Japanese close around three Russian battleships, which were sinking, and torpedoes appeared to be exploding all about them.

RECONNOITERING

By Japanese Going on Actively on Land.

Headquarters of the Japanese Armies in Manchuria, via Fusan, June 1.—The Russians have been reconnoitering more actively on the plains west of the railroad.

More frequent rains than usual fell during May. The rainfall in the past week was very heavy, resembling the downpours of the rainy season.

The Chinese are engaged in plowing and planting. The numbers of men and animals working for the army hinder this work, but the old men and the women with donkeys and cows are managing to till and plant the fields.

FATE OF CREW UNKNOWN.

Nagasaki, June 1, 5 p. m.—The fate of the remainder of the crew of the British steamer Oldhamia is at present uncertain. They were on board of the Russian battleship Orel, but it is supposed that they were afterward transferred to one of the transports. It is rumored that the Russian armored cruiser Rossia and Gromoboi were sunk by torpedo boats.

WILL INVADE CHICAGO.

"Flying Rollers" Looking For More Profitable Field.

Chicago, June 1.—The "Fying Rollers" are preparing to roll into Chicago. The field that has already been found so fertile for more secis than are gathered in any other place in the world, is to be invaded by still another "prophet" claiming to be the Messiah.

The leader of the new scheme of salvation is Benjamin Purnell, who declares that the end of the world is coming in 1916 for all those who fail to join his sect, and limits the number saved to 144,000. Should he find that Chicago will yield a larger number of followers than that, even though they be "strong in the faith," as he puts it, only twelve times twelve will be admited into the gates of the millenium, in which Brother Benjamin and his wife, Mary, are to rule forever.

The new sect is already well established near Benton Harbor, Mich., where its members are gathered into a colony, farming a rich tract of 210 acres, from which Purnell expects to reap $20,000 during the year. A number of the small business men of the Michigan city have joined the band, and have turned their money into the common store, the key to which is kept by Brother Benjamin.

The "Flying Rollers" all wear their hair long, they eat no meat, and have no chickens, ducks or geese, these fowls being declared "unclean" in the belief of the faithful.

Several hundreds of these long-haired, chicken-hating candidates for the land of the millenium, will move to Chicago in wagons, and one more "prophet" will be added to the warring "prophets."

STRIKE AVERTED.

New York, June 1.—What threatened a few days ago to develop into a general foundrymen's strike in this city and vicinity has been averted by concessions to the workers. The largest firms have granted a demand for $2 and $3 a day minimum, to go into effect at once. Six large firms in Manhattan and several foundries in New Jersey made the increases.

ANARCHISTS ARRESTED.

New York, June 1.—An anarchist named Garnier has been arrested at Port Mahon and five other anarchists have been arrested at Barcelona for alleged complicity in the attempt on King Alfonso in the Calle Fernando some weeks ago, says a Herald dispatch from Madrid. Denials were published in the Madrid papers of the reports from Paris that a man was arrested Monday for shaking a dagger at King Alfonso.

KING ALFONSO NOT AFRAID OF BOMBS

Monarch of Spain Enjoys Visit In Spite of Anarchists' Attack.

Paris, June 1.—King Alfonso today continued to enjoy the festivities which France had prepared in his honor, apparently undismayed by the anarchistic attempt on his life while on his way with President Loubet from the gala performance at the opera last night. Accompanied by President Loubet, the king left Paris, at 8:30 a. m., for the camp at Chalons-Sur-Marne, to review the troops of the Sixth army corps. Everywhere he was the recipient of tremendous ovations, as yesterday's outrage evoked a national sentiment of affection and sympathy for the young monarch, and universal reprobation for the attempt on his life. The king arose early and made anxious inquiries concerning the condition of the persons wounded by the explosion of the bomb, and was assured that they were all alive, which relieved him, as the first report was that one policeman had died from his wounds. The king discussed the event with the French officers attached to his suite, and did not display any apprehension of further danger.

President Loubet, escorted by a troop of Cuirassiers, arrived at the D'Orsay palace later, and held a brief interview with the king. The party then proceeded to the Invalides railroad station, where a special train conveyed them to the corps maneuvers at Chalons.

In the meantime the police continued their investigations, and great crowds visited the scene of the bomb throwing. The front of the Louvre, facing the Rue De Rivoli, showed three distinct traces of the projectile. The violence of the explosion was so great that particles of the bomb, about the size of nuts, were found on remote portions of the roof of the Louvre. The pavement where the missile struck was blackened and rent, and under the direction of the police a square yard of the burned paving blocks was removed, for the purpose of being used in the investigations at the municipal laboratory.

During the early hours the ssupects arrested immediately after the explosion were further interrogated, and the police later announced that the main suspicion appeared to attach to a young man named Arsene Arnould, who is held on the evidence of a woman who alleged that she noticed him lightning a supposed fuse. Arnould, who is employed as a laboratory attendant and resides in Paris is suffering from a wounded eye. It developed today that shortly after King Alfonso passed last night, another bomb was found in the Rue De Rivoli, near the spot where the explosion occurred. This bomb also contained dangerous explosives.

The plot is said to have been planned in a hotel near the scene of the explosion.

The names of several additional injured persons have been reported to the police, the number now reaching ten, and including several who were struck while watching the procession from balconies.

Before his departure for Chalons, the king attended Ascension day service at St. Clothilde. Rigid police measures were in force along the route followed by the king. The crowds cheered the king, who saluted amiably in reply.

On arriving at the field of maneuvers, the king, wearing the uniform of a field marshal and mounted on a superb bay, rode before the troops, President Loubet acompanying him in a carriage.

During the day members of the diplomatic corps called at D'Orsay palace and expressed the regrets of many countries.

ELEPHANT KILLED

By Falling From Cliff, While Fleeing Execution.

Buffalo, June 1.—Pirate, a wicked elephant, belonging to Ringlings' circus, was killed yesterday afternoon in the Jamethal stone quarry in Fillmore avenue. For a month the elephant had been ugly, and his death was decreed by the circus folk, who decided to kill the animal. The big brute, that weighed more than four tons, was shunted in a car to a spot near the Jamethal quarry. In the midst of the preparations, Pirate, with fierce trumpeting, tore loose from his chains and lumbered along to the edge of the quarry where he fell over the cliff and was killed.

FERD. T. HOPKINS, Prop'r, 37 Great Jones St., N. Y.

Last evening a thoroughly delightful entertainment was given at the Lyceum by the ladies of St. John's Episcopal church of Lakeside, for the benefit of this little church, and the affair was successful, both in the financial aid it will give the mission and the pleasure afforded the auditors. The vocalist of the evening was Harold Jarvis of Detroit, Mich., who, with his large and clear voice, completely satisfied his listeners, and in the readings of the Hon. W. I. Nolan of Minneapolis a chord of sympathetic enjoyment was struck that apparently every one in the audience vibrated to. In none of the surrounding seats could there be seen a face with that superior, deprecatory smile that is such a damper to others. Every one was frankly amused and happy at Mr. Nolan's selections.

Grace Senior-Brearley of Duluth was heard in two piano numbers, and a large measure of the audience's favor was given her. It was her first public appearance in some time, and a fine advancement in her art was to be plainly seen. She has been endowed with the strength requisite to play great numbers, and can execute them with that mastery which makes them delightful. The straining after effects that are physically impossible, which is characteristic of so many pianists, and are always painful, are not to be found in Mrs. Brearley's work, but there is rather the feeling that she has not drawn upon the full measure of her reserve power. Her selections were Liszt's Polonaise in E Major, and the Chopin B Minor Scherzo, and they were given with an artistic interpretation and fine technique that made them most delightful. For an encore a prelude by Chopin was given.

Mr. Jarvis opened the program with the aria, "Racondita Armonia," from "La Tosca," by Pucini, and from the first note of this opening number to the selection with which he closed the program, his every moment on the stage was enjoyed. His voice is a tenor, sympathetic and sweet, and with a glorious volume. In his encore numbers a little Irish ballad and a Scotch selection, he was particularly happy. He sang the well known "Du Bist Wie Eine Blume," by Stern, and a Godard number, "LesSauviens Tu" and two of Noel Johnson's songs, "Just a Rose" and "The River and the Sea." His closing number the recitative, "The Penitent," by Vandewater, was gloriously sung. Mrs. J. A. Stephenson was the accompanist.

Mr. Nolan appeared twice, and in the stories he told, and the way he told them, could scarcely have been more pleasing or entertaining. He announced that he would begin his narrative back 4,000,000 years, in order that he might be consistent in at least the time when some of the stories were first heard. In spite of this admission the stories he told were new and charmingly related. In his second selection he gave "The East and the West," from the Kipling "Barrack Room Ballads," and without striving for oratorical effect, the absorbing story of the theft of the colonel's mare by the chieftain of the tribe of desert pirates, and the recovery of the same by the colonel's son, was told with an intensity that held his audience completely.

The ladies of the church are to be congratulated upon achieving such a success in their undertaking.

THE WHY OF IT.

Mystery of Beauty of Stage Gowns.

"I wish to know," said the girl with the chiffon muff, "why stage gowns, like stage love-making and stage sentiments, are always so much more beautiful than those in real life." relates the New York Press.

"They are not," said the other girl. "Half the gowns one sees on the stage one wouldn't wear in a drawing room or on the street for anything in the world. It is not the gown, but the way in which an actress wears it that makes it so attractive. She knows what sort of frock to buy, just how to put it on and just how to carry it. That is what nine women out of ten in private life don't know. The average woman selects a frock without any reference to herself whatever. She just buys it because it is pretty and puts it on exactly as it goes. Usually she looks like an animated clothes rack, with her garments hanging on her.

"An actress gets into the 'feeling' of her gown. The moment she slips into it she 'feels' her role. If the gown is long and clinging and flimy and diaphanous she simply 'floats' every minute that she has it on. If it has yards and yards of train she learns how to manage it; how to sit down so that it will wind itself around her; how to sail across the room as though she were trailing wings after her; how to turn without stumbling all over her skirts. She feels every inch of the dignity that a train gives, and she puts on her haughty look with her haughty frock. But the woman in private life always looks as though her trailing skirts were just hooked on behind. They are not a part of her. Every bride I have seen this autumn looked as though she felt the weight and enormity of her train. She was entirely subordinate to her clothes.

"Did you ever see Mme. Rejane in one of her chiffon confections? I did. It was of a sky-pink with a mantle of pink chiffon falling from her shoulders and almost completely enveloping her. Well, that was a 'floating' dress, and I don't remember once having seen Mme. Rejane walk a step while she had the dress on. She just seemed to float on to the stage like a cloud, to float from chair to divan and to float out again. She didn't sit, she didn't stand, she didn't kneel; she just 'moved,' and that was all you knew. When she changed that frock for a short, girlish one with a baby waist, you wouldn't have recognized her. She looked ten years younger. Her chin had been lowered, her eyes had grown big and innocent looking, and she seemed suddenly to have acquired feet and to have lost ten years and gained ten pounds. It was all in the 'feeling' induced by the frock.

"An actress makes her frocks a part ow herself. If they are frilly, she flutters and flirts in them; if they are nobby she becomes at once jaunty and debonair; if they are magnificent she takes on a new dignity. She trails them, clutches them, flutters them, or hugs them, just as they seem to need it. She makes them subordinate to herself, while at the same time she brings into relief their most striking feature and displays to advantage their slightest suggestion.

"Every gown has some sort of motif, and unless you are able to discover its artistic significance you will appear as badly in it as though you should quote a bit of poetry without knowing what it meant."

IN MERCY'S NAME

By George T. Pardy.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

It was while sitting in an old German garden at Munich, chatting over a foaming stein of beer, that my friend, Capt. De Longho of the French Twenty-fourth Hussars told me this story.

It all came about through the custom of quartering the soldiers on the town folk wherever we went. At the time I speak of we were maneuvering at Toulon.

It was late, about 11 o'clock at night, when I found myself standing at the door of the old stone house to which the quartermaster had directed me. A venerable old man appeared in answer to my ring.

Upon my explaining the object of my visit, he bowed his head sorrowfully, and without speaking led the way to an inner room.

"Sir, "said he, when in answer to a courteous wave of his hand I had seated myself, "you will pardon the sadness of your welcome. My daughter is dangerously ill.

"Her husband is, like yourself, a captain of artillery, and now with the army in Algiers. She is delirious and does not recognize us, but is constantly calling for him. He has been sent for, every day we have expected him, and when we heard the rattling of your spurs on the steps we dared to hope——"

Here the old man paused and his lips quivered pitifully, as he strove to control himself.

The accents of a weak, girlish voice trembled across the hall.

"Are you not coming, Jean? I know it is you. Oh, father, why does he linger? I have waited so long and I heard—I heard him come in!"

There followed a sound of feeble but passionate sobs. The old man gazed at me in mute, hopeless agony.

"She truly believes he has arrived," he whispered hoarsely. "Ah, sir, if I dared but beg of you——"

He paused, our eyes met, and in that one glance we understood each other. To gratify the wish of a dying soul—would it not be well? I arose and said, "Surely it would be for the best—it may be but a little while—I will go to her!"

The old man's eyes sparkled.

"Then good God bless you, captain," he exclaimed, "it is a harmless deception and may comfort my poor child's last moments."

Together we stepped softly toward the bedchamber and entered.

A penetrating odor of ether filled the air and the rays of a tiny lamp glimmered feebly through the darkness. I drew near the bed where the young woman lay.

"At last!" she murmured softly.

Gently I bent over her, fearing lest each light breath might be her last. She spoke again.

"And it is really you—you at last, my love. Come closer, I can hardly see you. I am so sick, so very sick, and have so much to tell you, dearest one."

The great dark eyes aglow with the fires of fever, met mine and the parched lips murmured:

"Kiss me, dear."

Reverently I touched her forehead with my lips. Then as the wistful eyes still rested upon me with the painful intensity that lack of reason gives, I closed them with gentle kisses, carressing her brow, cheek and soft, dark hair, with nothing but sad joy in my breast that I could comfort her.

"I must leave you soon, Jean," she said. "Sit beside me, dear, and hold my hand."

I took her burning hand in mine.

"I am now happy, dear," she whispered faintly, and seemed to fall into slumber.

At the foot of the bed stood the old man, and as my eyes grew accustomed to the gloom I could make out the outlines of another figure huddled in a chair. It was the mother watching by her child's death bed.

I thought over the strangeness of my position. This young creature of whose existence an hour ago I had not been aware, now revealing the tenderest thoughts of her loving heart to me!

What of a husband who might arrive at any moment, to find a stranger seated beside his dying wife?

But, after all, what mattered it? Jealousy could scarcely exist in the very shadow of death, and for myself I cared not.

Several times she awoke and spoke of old-time memories, her fancy roaming back through the vanished years.

"That night by the sea, dearest, she said. "You remember, do you not, the moonlight on the water—the song of the waves and what they told us? And afterwards, how long we stood by the open window watching—watching where the path of silver lay across the beach!"

Her little hand pressed mine convulsively, as though to enforce those golden dreams of a past in which I had no part.

Earnestly I entreated her not to speak, fearing to be drawn into the intimacies of that lost life. Yet I dared not arouse her suspicions and thereby destroy the effects of the kindly deception which was quieting the pain of her last hours.

Often she spoke, and reverently I heard the revelation of a pure woman's heart. I felt as though in a sanctuary through which there thrilled in a silver monotone the confessions of an angel.

Slowly the dreary night passed away. At times her pulse beat rapidly and then slowly, feeling like the heart throbs of a bird imprisoned in my hand. At length the clock struck 5, and in the distance I heard the shrilling of the bugle that summoned me to roll call.

She was sleeping peacefully as I gently disengaged my hand from her grasp and left the house.

• • • • • • • • • •

Six months passed before I visited Toulon again. My heart was heavy with forebodings as I approached the house, for I feared to listen to the tidings of what had transpired since that eventful night.

But the father met me joyously.

All was well; that night had been the turning point of the fever. The husband arrived when the crisis was over. To him the parents confided the story of my visit and the strange deceit that had been practiced.

It had been kept secret as far as the innocent invalid was concerned, and to her the hours I had spent beside her were a blank.

The old man led me to a window overlooking the garden.

"She is there—my child, whose life you saved," he said simply.

Clad in a loose, white gown, she lay in a reclining chair among the flowers. The sun was setting and the Western sky splendid in rainbow colors of gold, purple and crimson.

Her great, dark eyes were fixed upon the far-off glory, and the radiant light of happiness shone upon her face.

I gazed silently, dreaming of the long, fateful night when I held her soft hand in mine and together in the darkness we awaited the coming of Death. I had kissed her lips, listened to her last confessions, for a short space we had been all in all to each other.

And now—she would not know me, for her there lived no memories of the fleeting hours when I had watched at her bedside.

"Come," said the father, "you must meet her. I will introduce you as a friend of mine."

I felt an almost hysterical desire to laugh aloud, for a strange bitterness possessed me. Almost to the gates of Death had my gentle spirit traveled with mine, and now—I was a stranger. For me the drama was finished—I had played my part.

"Come," said the old man insistently, but I shook my head.

"It is better as it is, friend," I said grasping his hand. "She must never know. Farewell!"

TO ABOLISH GRAND JURY

Judge Wade of Iowa Declares Against the System.

Iowa City, Iowa, June 1.—Hon. Martin J. Wade, former Democratic member of congress from the Second Iowa district, who was defeated last fall in a sensational campaign for re-election, is not in favor of the present grand jury system, and believes that it should be abolished. The matter has been under consideration by the reform committee of the State Bar association, of which Judge Wade is a member, and it is believed that in the annual meeting in Des Moines, July 12, 13 and 14, the committee will report in favor of a constitutional amendment abolishing the grand jury system.

"I think that the grand jury system should be abolished," declared Judge Wade, "because whatever good purpose it may have served in the past, under our modern practice it is not necessary for the protection of the innocent or the conviction of the guilty. It is a hearing at which the accused cannot be represented or heard—in which he can offer no evidence without the consent of the state. Indictments are often returned which cannot be sustained when the evidence is heard on both sides. It is safe to say that more than two-thirds of the indictments returned result in dismissal or acquittal.

"It is unfair to the accused to have an indictment returned against him after a hearing in which he cannot be represented, because while legally an indictment is only an accusation, yet in the public mind an indictment is often equivalent to conviction. It is unfair to the accused, especially if he be innocent, to be compelled to wait several months before his side of the case can be heard. It is unfair to the prosecution because it is compelled to go through two trials instead of one, and it discloses to the accused the nature of the evidence often many months before the trial, thus enabling him, if guilty, to manufacture evidence to secure an acquittal.

"It involves a very large expense, which would be avoided if the parties were put upon trial immediately after the charge had been brought. In those states where the grand jury has been abolished, the courts, the bar and the public have been well pleased with the change."

It gave immediate relief and she was able to walk about in three days. I am sure it saved her life." Sold by all druggists.

MENACE TO BOATS

Vesselmen Anxious For Marking of Breakwater Outside Harbor.

Nothing to Mark It and Boats Sometimes Strike It.

A great deal of complaint is being made by vessel owners, particularly owners of lumber carriers, because no steps have been taken by the government to put a buoy on the outer end of the old protection dike which was built out in the lake many years ago, from a point between Fourth and Fifth avenues east and paralleling Minnesota Point.

The vesselmen claim that they have time and again importuned the government in the past years to mark the outer end of the old dike for the reason that it is a serious menace to vessels going to or away from, the outside dock of the Northern Pacific Railway company. Of late the dock has been very much in demand for to unload the carloads of lumber from the inland mills directly on to the boats. As the trade is on the increase the outside dock is more and more in demand, and the danger to the lumber boats that use the dock is said to increase in the same proportion.

Complaints have been made by the vesselmen to the United States engineer's office, but that department has nothing to do with the buoys or their establishment, and the petitions have not been acted on.

It is claimed that the buoys come under the control of the lighthouse board on the Great Lakes and that while the necessity of such a buoy on the outer end of the pier, to mark its location, has been called to the attention of the lighthouse board by the vesselmen every year, for many years past, nothing has ever come of it, and the boats still continue to hit the old dike occastonally and sustain damage.

The old dike is shown on the chart, but as it lies from a foot to eight feet under water and extending out in the lake 1,000 feet from the shore line, it is not visible to the vesselmen and they have many times miscalculated in getting out from the lumber dock and hit it.

The lumber carrier Tempest was hung up on top of the dike last evening, and it required the work of three tugs to pull her off. Fortunately the sea was smooth and no serious damage was done. Had it been stormy the vessel would probably have been wrecked.

Several years ago the steamer George King ran on top of the old dike and lost her shoe, rudder post and wheel, entailing molishment and succeeing storms soon only two instances out of many that the vesselmen claim have happened since the dike was established.

The history of the old protection dike which was built out in the lake in the early '70's, at the same time that the Duluth ship canal was being cut through Minnesota Point, is more or less familiar to the older residents of Duluth and of some degree of interest to those who have come to the city since the old dike passed out of existence. From the site of old elevator A which was destroyed by fire many years ago, a breakwater comprised of timber cribs 20 feet wide, resting on the bed of the lake and filled with rock was extended out in the waters of Lake Superior to give protection to the harbor that it was the project to establish behind it. The outer end of the pier lies in about 20 feet of water. The work on the pier was started by the old St. Paul & Duluth Railway company and it was taken up by the goverment in 1871 and 1872 and extended out 1,000 feet.

The pier was never completed. The $110,000 spent on the structure was simply money thrown away.

In November, 1872, a severe storm on Lake Superior started the work of demolishment and succeeding storms soon destroyed all visible evidences of what was to have been a permanent structure establishing an outside harbor.

The bottom portions of these old cribs sunk way back in 1870 to 1782 are still in place under water and their top is so close to the surface that they can be easily discerned from a boat passing over them when the water is smooth. These cribs are a menace to navigation, the vesselmen claim, and should be marked with a buoy.

Another interesting feature in the history of the old pier is that while Maj. D. C. Houston, who was then engineer in charge of the Lake Superior district, finally recommended to the government the abandonment of the outside breakwater scheme, owing to the fact that the ship canal gave ample inside harbor, and he also recommended that if the outside pier was to be maintained, that a second line of cribs be built 40 feet distant and parralleling the first breakwater and that the intervening space be filled with rubble and rock. This would have given a breakwater 100 feet wide and such, Maj. Houston maintained, was necessary to bear the brunt of the force of the waves.

The vessel interests are also anxious that the government take some steps toward deepening the waterway to the outside docks. At the present time the depth from the docks out for about 200 feet is not more than 13½ feet and boats having a draught of more than that amount cannot get in at all even when the water is smooth. With a northeaster making the water rough any lumber boats tied up at the dock have to get out very quickly owing to the shallow water and the danger of being wrecked. Many of the harbor tugs draw from 8 to 10 or 10½ feet of water and in rough weather the tug owners show great reluctance about sending a tug to the outside dock even when the necessity for such a tug is apparent, for the reason that there is danger of getting aground and damaged.

PEARY IS SURE

That He Will Reach the North Pole.

South Paris, Me., June 1.—Lieutenant Commander Robert E. Peary is to sail from New York either on July 1 or 4 for his last attempt to reach the north pole. Many requests have been made on him for accommodations on the Roosevelt, the vessel which he has constructed for the trip. The wireless apparatus has been installed upon the steamer and his entire crew engaged.

"I know that when I return to New York two years after my sailing from there I shall bring the good news that I have at last discovered the pole," said Mr. Peary yesterday. "I have today received a telegram from President Roosevelt in which he extends to me the good wishes of the American people. Under those circumstances can I be unsuccessful? Never."

Mrs. Peary and daughter Mildred will accompany the explorer.

Danderine

GREW MISS LEWIS' HAIR AND WE CAN PROVE IT

The Great Danderine Never Fails to Produce the Desired Results

MISS Lewis' hair was very thin and it was less than two feet in length when she began using Danderine. She says her hair and scalp are now fairly teeming with new life and vigor.

That's the main secret of this great remedy's success as a hair grower. It enlivens, invigorates and fairly electrifies the hair glands and tissues of the scalp, causing unusual and unheard-of activity on the part of these two most important organs, resulting in a strenuous and continuous growth of the hair.

January 3, 1905.

Dear Doctor Knowlton:—
You know I told you in my first letter that my hair would not reach much below my shoulders, and that all of it together only made one tiny braid.
I am sending you my photograph, which I had taken at Stevens Bros. It tells the whole story better than I can tell it.
Everybody I know is using Danderine, so you see I am doing something to show my appreciation.
Sincerely yours, (Miss) EVA LEWIS.

HOSTS OF HEROES.

Carnegie Commissioners Dismayed by Their Numbers.

Among most peoples, the heroic age is placed in the remote and half-forgotten past, when gods and demi-gods walked the earth and made goo-goo eyes at the daughters of men, and when nymphs and nereids made love to bashful swains, or sirens beguiled them with sweet songs, says the Brooklyn Eagle. America has, therefore, long been at a disadvantage. A debateable period, in which creatures of myth and tradition, hardly distinguishable from historic personages, stalk across the stage of action is really necessary to any self-respecting country, just as a family skeleton or a genealogical tree is indispensable to any household that aspires to gain admission to the inner circles of society. A heroic age, even though wholly mythical, is a necessity for the encouragement of poets and novelists, and America's lack thereof has compelled its literary lights to delve deep in the dust heaps of Europe and Asia, seeking inspiration from the mythologies of the Norse and Saxon, the Celt and Roman, the Egyptian, the Babylonian, or even the heathen Chinese. Now believers in the Monroe Doctrine and its Twentieth Century corollaries regard it as hardly consistent, or at least as showing a lack of national pride and self-sufficiency, to thus be dependent upon the Old World for the background of national art and literature. They demand something purely American—the product of home industry, protected by a high tariff wall of exclusiveness.

When Mr. Carnegie established the hero fund, it was doubtless his idea that there must be in this broad land many deeds of genuine heroism performed of which the world at large never hears. The hero therefore misses the med of glory that is rightfully his and the public is deprived of the inspiration that comes from the contemplation of noble deeds. Just as Diogenes armed himself with a lantern and started out in the big world in search of an honest man, so did Carnegie figuratively equip the hero fund commissioners with lanterns and start them forth in search of heroes—of whom he had dreamed as flowers born to blush unseen and waste their away in the darkness of modest retirement and self-depreciation.

It is not on record that Diogenes met with the same embarrassing measure of success that has attended the efforts of the twentieth century hero hunters. The heroes came in a conquering army, with an avalanche of petitions, applications, affidavits, newspaper clippings, testimonials, recommendations and communications of every imaginable description. How many applications of one kind or another have been received from those who imagine that they are entitled to recognition, no one knows exactly excepting the members of the commission, and they won't tell. It is said, however, that the applications number more than 22,000. These come from every state and territory in the Union; from the Philippines, Porto Rico, Alaska, Hawaii, the canal zone of Panama, and every portion of Canada and Newfoundland. They are sent in by men, women and children of all races and colors, and describe pretty nearly every kind of exploit that human being has ever performed.

The commissioners put out their lanterns in a hurry and hastened to cover, in order to save themselves from being overwhelmed by the host that was after all the recognition or glory that could be derived from their real or imaginary exploits. Never before was such a rush known to get in the rays of the spotlight. Now the commission is trying to keep in the dark, and shuns newspaper men as if they were bill collectors. They say that newspaper publicity tends to embarrass them in their work, and they would regard it as an especial favor if the newspapers would forget or ignore their existence. The American hero is not the chap to waste his sweetness on the desert air if he can help it, and he is after the commission hot-footed to get his share of the swag.

It is not meant by any means to insinuate that the members of the commission are not trying to do their duty. But they are only human, and the task before them is almost superhuman. In comparison, the twelve labors of Hercules were a soft snap. The commission was organized on the first day of February, and has put in a good many sleepless nights since then. From the 20,000 applications that had piled up before that date, fifty-nine were sifted that bore evidence of good faith and merit. Fifty-nine out of 20,000 do not seem to be a very large proportion; but that is about the ratio that will have to be maintained if the money available is to be stretched to go around. After these selections had been made, George A. Campsey, a Pittsburg newspaper man, was selected for the position of special agent—expert hero hunter, as it were—to personally investigate each individual case before a final award should be made. He is now on a still hunt, and will visit practically every nook and corner of the United States and Canada on the trail of the simon-pure brand of heroism, warranted not to fade or to come out in the wash. As fast as new applications come in they are examined in all their bearings. Most of them are ruled out as not coming within the scope of the commission's purpose. The few that remain are forwarded to Mr. Campsey for detailed investigation, and upon his report the final action of the commission depends.

The amount of money at the disposal of the hero fund commission is the income of $5,000,000. The aplications that are received show some very curious misconceptions of its purpose. It seems to be the general idea that the commission has at its disposal an unlimited sum of money, which it is anxious to distribute to almost anyone that needs it or wants it. Many state emphatically just how much they want and intend to have, and request remittance by return mail. It appears to be a common misconception on the part of persons who have narrowly escaped death or injury that that fact entitles them to share in the distribution. Others who have been instrumental in saving life or property without the slightest risk or danger to themselves think they are entitled to a reward, and still others come forward claiming recompense for acts performed many years ago.

It should be remembered that no application will be considered based upon an action, no matter how heroic or meritorious, if it was performed prior to April 15 of last year. The commission does not intend to delve into ancient history, and they feel that there are enough heroic actions being performed in the present to justify an absolute refusal to go back any further than the date of Mr. Carnegie's donation. The person who has performed or who shall perform an act since that date entitling him or her to recognition from the commission, but who survives uninjured, will receive a medal, but nothing else. This provision cuts off the hopes of many self-styled heroes who are living in the expectation of monetary reward. It also strikes a fatal blow to the aspirations of those who thought they foresaw the possibility of a new and remunerative occupation—that of professional hero. There is no money in it unless the hero happens to get hurt—and even then the amount of money will depend upon uncertain quantities, such as the extent of his injuries, the measure to which they interfere with his capacity for making a living, his financial circumstances and the amount of hard cash the commission happens to have in the treasury. To make it really pay, however, the hero must get killed. In that event his family or dependent relatives will be compensated for his loss by a gift of money proportionate to their needs and to the commission's estimate of the value of the man.

Another essential is that the hero must be such of his own spontaneous volition. If he is hired to risk his life it will profit him nothing, even though he lose it, so far as the Carnegie Hero fund is concerned. Soldiers, firemen, policemen, sailors and all others who assume hazardous risks and who perform hazardous acts in the discharge of their duties are expressly barred from participation. A railroad engineer, who sticks to his engine in the face of danger; a member of a life-saving crew on the Great Lakes or the sea coast, who braves the terrors of the storm; or a coachman who sticks to his seat when the team runs off, may display heroism of the highest type. But they are simply doing their several duties, and are, therefore, entitled to no consideration from the Hero commission. With these limitations any resident of the United States or Canada, or of the territories or dependencies thereof, may cherish the hope that he or she will some day be able to display a Carnegie Hero fund medal. Since Chimbera that every boy may reasonably entertain the ambition to become president has been exploded, the hope of a hero medal may well take its place.

The Hero fund is something so novel and unlike anything else that people are accustomed to deal with in this materialistic age of grab and barter, that it is difficult to consider it seriously. There is nothing in either the past or the present with which it can be compared. It is hard to see just what object the donor had in view, or what he expected to accomplish by it. More than any other of Mr. Carnegie's benefactions, it shows the idealistic tendencies of his mind. Many have criticised or questioned the wisdom of the gift, but none can doubt the benevolence of the motive that prompted it.

The Hero fund commission has not yet made its first awards, although it is the expectation of its members to do so in the very near future. For an outsider to select from the thousands of names in the hands of the commission, without the full and exact information at their disposal, any number of persons and say that they were entitled to an award would be an act of gross presumption. However, it can do no harm to mention a few typical claimants. Whether or not any of them will receive medals or monetary reward cannot, of course, be told. The most that can be said is that they are all able to make out a good prima facie case that their friends regard them as certain winners.

The woman who never reads store-advertising is about as wise as the merchant who never advertises—but this is too much like "calling names," so we withdraw the comparison, in deference to the woman.

Divorced Wife Sues Former Husband's Beneficiaries For Division.

Husband Had Nothing When Decree Was Granted.

One of the civil actions of interest which has been submitted in district court this term was that heard by Judge Cant and entitled Mrs. Maria Quinn and children against Charles Quinn and his mothers and brothers.

The action was brought by Mrs. Quinn and the children to recover a share in the estate of her deceased husband, Dr. John Quinn, from whom she had been divorced some years ago. The divorce was granted Mrs. Quinn, together with custody of the children, at Detroit, Mich., some years ago on the grounds of drunkenness and bad treatment. The testimony went to show that Dr. Quinn, when he left Detroit and came to the Head of the Lakes, had practically run through his practice and had nothing on which to base a claim for alimony or for the sustenance of the children.

Through aid rendered by his mother and brothers, the latter being railroad men living in this city, Dr. Quinn came to Superior, where by attending to his practice he soon established himself and acquired some property. Later he attended a post graduate course at some medical college and came back to the Head of the Lakes, dying shortly after his return.

Dr. Quinn is said to have left his property interests together with some life insurance to his mother and brothers and it is a share in this property that the divorced wife is seeking for her children.

Some of the property involved in the case is claimed to have increased in value within the past few years.

Judge Dibell has filed findings and conclusions in the civil action brought by Hilda Ketola against Gula Mottonen, an action heard before the court yesterday afternoon. The court orders that Miss Ketola has had her reputation damaged in the extent of $500 by false and malicious charges of drunkenness and unchastity, made by Gula Mottonen, and the latter is ordered to pay the judgment and the costs and disbursements. Mrs. Mottonen did not make any appearance at the trial, and judgment was rendered after testimony was introduced by Miss Ketola, to show that the other woman had made defamatory charges claimed, in the presence of other persons, causing the complaining witness great mental agony, humiliation and disgrace.

TRIALS ARE COMPLETED

Last Criminal Case For the May Term Is Heard.

The case of the State against Herman Carlberg, accused of stealing a gold watch from a man residing on South Seventeenth avenue east, the charge being grand larceny in the second degree, was submitted to the jury this afternon, the arguments having been completed when the noon adjournment was taken.

This was the last criminal case for trial this term of court. The case against Former Village Recorder Sundquist of Hibbing, indicted for illegally using village funds, has been continued over the term, with the consent of the county attorney. Mr. Sundquist, it is claimed, is going over the books with an expert accountant, and will not be able to get his defense ready for trial at the present time.

MANY ELKS ARE COMING

Estimated That Over 1,000 Will Be Here Next Week.

Anywhere from 1,000 to 2,000 visiting Elks will be in Duluth next week, according to reports that have been received by officers of the local lodge.

It is very difficult to form any estimate of the number that will come to attend the first state convention of the order, but local members say that 1,000 is a very conservative estimate.

The convention will be held on Thursday and Friday, June 8 and 9.

Rates of fare and a third have been made by all the railroads running into Duluth, and many others besides the Elks are expected to take advantage of the cheap rates for a trip to the Head of the Lakes.

FOR THE ORPHANS.

Benefit Entertainment at New Cathedral Auditorium.

A pleasing entertainment for the benefit of the orphans of St. James' home will be given this evening at the new Cathedral auditorium under the auspices of the local Knights of Columbus. There will be a stereopticon lecture on "Rome" by Rev. H. Moynihan, president of the college of St. Thomas at St. Paul, and a short musical program, which will include numbers by Prof. Tyler and Mrs. James McAuliffe. A Minneapolis paper speaks of an entertainment given by Rev. Moynihan in the following terms:

"The lecture, illustrated by stereopticon views, was an instructive and delightful one. All the pictures were well chosen and grand in themselves, but were made doubly attractive by the original and pleasing manner in which the reverend speaker described them. Gods, goddesses, warriors and statesmen, vestal virgins of old and high born saints of later times, columns, arches and temples were indeed made real. Historic associations were reviewed and obscure points made so clear that the lecture proved a very great treat to the faculty and students of the academy."

LEASE IS TRANSFERRED

J. M. Nash Will Assume Control of Metropolitan Theater.

The deal whereby the lease of the Metropolitan theater is transferred from John Condon to J. M. Nash, the present manager of the Bijou theater, was closed at noon today.

Mr. Nash will assume control of the Metropolitan at once, and open the theater on June 12 with a vaudeville production.

The Metropolitan will be run on the same plan as the Bijou, with the execution that the prices will be 10 and 20 cents, in place of 10 cents.

Mr. Condon will leave Saturday for New York on a business trip.

"I am not quite ready to say what my plans will be, but I have lived here twenty-five years and Duluth is good enough for me as a home for as many more years. My trip to New York is on business and my home will still be in Duluth."

TO INSPECT THE CELLARS

Annual Spring Cleaning of City Is About Finished.

On June 8, inspectors from the health department will commence the annual inspection of cellars in the city of Duluth.

"We have about finished our annual "cleanup," said Health Commissioner Murray this morning, "and next week we will start on the cellar inspection. We aim to inspect every cellar in the city of Duluth and will have any unsanitary piles, of rubbish which have accumulated during the winter removed.

"The inspectors will not only go through the public buildings, but will visit all the private residences in the city where we have any suspicion that it is necessary."

A Pronounced Success.

The announcement of a half price sale in the cloak and suit floor of the Silberstein & Bondy Co.'s establishment brought a rush of buyers today unprecedented in the history of the house. At several intervals during the day many customers were either obliged to wait for some little time or make their own selection from the extensive lines on the show tables—although seemingly ample preparations had been made to handle the crowd, the force proved inadequate at times to take care of the throngs of buyers who had evidently been waiting for the firm's announcement which are usually made about this time—However, the opportunity to buy Duluth's most desirable line of women's fine wearables at half prices proves a temptation that few women can resist. The sale continues tomorrow with a still greater force and the manager promises that all will receive prompt attention.

THE WEST WINS

In Loyal Legion Contest on Primogeniture Feature.

Milwaukee, June 1.—By a vote of sixteen commanderies to four the proposed amendment to the constitution of the military order of the Loyal Legion of the United States doing away with the primogeniture feature, carried at the tenth quadrennial congress of the order today. This was the most important business before the congress. It was a case of the West against the East, the former winning out. The effect of the change will be to make all sons or more properly "companions" eligible to membership in the order instead of eldest sons as heretofore. The proposed amendment providing for the court-martial of companions against whom are lodged complaints for an offense under the constitution was lost by a vote of twelve to eight, it requiring a three-fourths vote to carry all amendments.

Annual Reception.

The board of directors of the Duluth Children's Home society will hold their first anniversary reception at the home on Friday, June 9, from 2 to 8:30 p. m. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to view the institution and the work that is accomplished by the society.

J. M. GIDDING & CO.

Have Inaugurated a Clearance of Their Various Stocks

Preparatory to occupying the annex to their present store now being built and which they have been notified by the builders will be finished by July 1st—(fully four weeks sooner than they had expected), they began today a clearance of various garment stocks in order to clean them out before they are compelled to break through the walls into their annex. They are fully determined to put their stocks to their lowest point in the coming four weeks and today has been the starting point. Their store was crowded with buyers which is proof enough of the confience readers have in their values.

THINKS DEATHS ACCIDENTAL.

Chicago, June 1.—Alexander Bergaman and his daughter, respectively father and sister of Albert Bergman, whose body, together with that of Josephine Tauber, has been recovered from a park lagoon in New York, expressed the opinion that the deaths were accidental. "There was no love affair between them," said Mr. Bergman, "at least my son never spoke of one. His body is being sent to Chicago."

NIAGARA TO DRY UP.

And Chicago to be Submerged, Geologues Say.

Chicago to be swallowed up by a relentless flood, the Niagara Falls to be blotted out of existence and their thunder hushed forever, the Great Lakes to empty into the Mississippi instead of the St. Lawrence river—such is the dismal prospect portrayed by the geologists, says the Brooklyn Eagle. To be sure this may not happen for three thousand years or more, but that it is one of the inevitable results of the topographical shifting of this part of the American continent seems to be unquestioned by those scientists of the modern school who have studied long and carefully on this subject.

But in the meantime the rapacity of man is planning to obliterate Niagara Falls in much shorter order. If the bill lately before the legislature at Albany to grant a franchise to an electrical power corporation to use the water of the Niagara Falls above the Falls should eventually became a law it will result in destroying the American Falls as effectually as the tilting of the land will destroy them thirty-five hundred years from now.

There are remedies for two of these untoward events. Niagara Falls may be saved for the present by defeating the bill of the corporation in the general assembly. Chicago may be saved thirty-five hundred years hence by the skilful construction of dams and canals. But Niagara Falls in the far future is doomed. Nothing can save it but some remarkable upheaving of the land or a return of the glacial period, and even then the flow of the waters would eventually return to their pre-glacial outlet—the Mississippi or ancient Ohio—and the chances are that the great masses of ice would crush out the present escarpment and form a new falls.

A consideration of these things—present and future—excites the interest of the politicians, the lobbyists, the capitalists, the geologists and the lovers of nature. In this question there is a strange commingling of commercialism and science. The grandeur of God's handiwork and the meanness of the dollar are brought face to face. It is enough to cause the shade of Father Hennepin, the first white man to see the Falls in all their pristine glory, to descend from his abode of peace and raise his hands in holy protest.

One of the best informed men on this subject is Prof. Amadeus W. Grabau, now occupying the chair of geology at Columbia university, and formerly professor of geology at Rensselaer Polytechnic institute, and lecturer in geology at Tufts college. Prof. Grabau has written several books on geological subjects in general and Niagara Falls and the Great Lakes in particular. He has gone into the matter deeply and scientifically. He deplores the raid on the Falls by corporations and he discusses their fate and the fate of the Great Lakes in the centuries to come in a manner that is interesting and convincing.

"Chicago will be submerged in about 3,000 years," said Prof. Grabau the other day. "There is but one hope for it, and that is the construction of dams and canals. Before that time it is probable that engineers will have become so expert in their profession that this great catastrophe may be averted. But no power that we can now conceive of can prevent the flow of the waters of the Great Lakes into the Mississippi channels and the drying up of Niagara Falls.

"A phenomenon? No; it will be only a return of pre-glacial conditions. The original flow of the waters was through the channel of the Mississippi and the ancient Ohio. Then came the glacial period, and when the ice disappeared the land was so depressed that the waters flowed through the St. Lawrence channel. During the centuries these land depressions, caused by the mass of the ice, began to regain their natural elevations, and the result is that the waters will again flow into their original channels.

"But while Niagara Falls, with a return of these conditions is necessarily doomed to destruction, there is no reason why, in the meantime, grasping corporations should hasten this destruction and completely obliterate the American Falls in our own time. It is a sacrilege of nature that the legislature of New York state should prevent. The protest against such a grab cannot be made too strong. The natural wonders of the falls and the great chain of lakes draw forth our admiration. Already their beauty has been marred to some extent by corporations that draw the waters of the Niagara river. The amount of water that will be drawn from the river by this proposed company will be worked soon enough by natural causes. Why not allow future generations to enjoy their grandeur instead of having them wiped out by private greed?"

There are many lovers of nature, however, who do not believe that the ultimate destruction of Niagara Falls by natural causes is any excuse for destroying them at once by the corporations. It was with the view of protecting this territory that the state reservation at Niagara was formed in 1883. The state offered the land along the Niagara river for sale in 1805, and large tracts of it were bought by Augustus and Peter B. Porter and others. Two years later the first grist mill was built on the Niagara, but was destroyed by the British in 1813. It was rebuilt on the same site in 1815, and replaced in 1822 by a new mill. From the beginning of this mill the encroachment on the scenery of the river and falls was rapid. Two more mills soon followed, hideous sign boards were erected and cheap traders put up all kinds of booths and hotels. In a short time the ground was pre-empted, and there was not a foot on the American side where the falls of Niagara could be seen without paying for the privilege. Then came the movement for the state reservation and the necessary legislation was brought about. The first work undertaken by the commission of the reservation was clearing the old buildings from the grounds. One hundred and fifty buildings were taken away, and several mills and a foundry, bathing houses, and other eyesores were removed. Many improvements were made, among them the construction of the Rapids drive from Bridge street to Falls street, and the erection of the Administration building, in Prospect Park, and two massive stone-arched bridges connecting the mainland with Goat Island. The net cost of the reservation thus far has been $2,067,676.

Despite the care that has been taken and the money that has been spent to preserve the falls for the people, the legislature has granted franchises for corporations to use the waters of the Niagara. By 1894 eight corporations had been chartered to use the waters above the falls for commercial purposes. Some of these companies were not limited to the amount of water they could divert.

The immediate danger that threatens Niagara Falls proceeds from three sources:

First: From the power companies now in operation on the American side, which take from the falls between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 gallons a minute, or about 6 per cent of the total flow over the falls.

Second: From the construction of commercial and drainage canals which will divert the waters of the Great Lakes from the St. Lawrence to the Mississippi. The Chicago drainage canal, designed to take 600,000 cubic feet a minute from Lake Michigan, is an example of this. Another menace is the proposed canal across the state of Wisconsin from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi, and another canal from Lake Superior at Duluth to the Mississippi river at Minneapolis.

Third: From Canadien enterprises, like the Welland canal and the proposed canal connecting Georgian Bay with the Ottawa river; from the Ontario Power company and the Canadian Niagara Power company and from a third Canadian corporation to which the commissioners for the Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park have granted similar privileges. The constant drain that is made on the water has already greatly diminished the supply. The popular idea that there is an unlimited supply of water at Niagara Falls is entirely incorrect. By the measurements of the United States engineers in the years 1899 and 1900 it was shown that the normal discharge of the Niagara river for mean level in Lake Erie was 222,000 cubic feet per second. At times, however, this amount is as low at 165,340 cubic feet per second. As large as this volume of water may seem, it is not beyond the capacity of water power developments like those about Niagara Falls to diminish or entirely dry up the cataract. When all the works along the Niagara now in operation or under construction on both sides are running at their full capacity the volume of water consumed will be 67,400 cubic feet per second, which is 41 per cent of the minimum discharge rate of the Niagara river, not including the water taken by the Welland canal for navigation and power purposes.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN DULUTH

TO SUBSCRIBERS:
It is important when desiring the address of your paper changed, to give both old and new addresses.

PUSH THE CENSUS.

The Herald has said several times that it is to the interest of every citizen of Duluth and St. Louis county to see that the census is complete, and that the count includes every soul. A good many people have read the statement, admitted that it was so, and forgotten it. It is everybody's business, and while everybody will admit that it is everybody's duty to do everything possible toward the success of the census, very likely nearly everybody will overlook doing anything.

But it is not a mere empty phrase. Suppose, because it is all left to the enumerators, who have but a short time in which to do their work, a lot of people are overlooked. Suppose when the count is complete word goes out that instead of going forward Duluth has gone backward, and that her population is less now than it was five years ago. The result would be bad for business, would discourage citizens of Duluth and drive away those who have thought of coming here, and in one form or another would affect every citizen whose living and prosperity depends upon the prosperity of the city.

The work of the census started today, and there is work for everybody to do. If you have a list of names, of your secret society membership, of your union, of your church, of your club, of your friends, of your neighbors, send it in to the superintendent of the census, in the Manhattan building. In this way the office can have a check on the enumerators, and the more lists it gets the surer it will be that the count is complete.

If you are going to be away during the month, let the office know about it over either telephone, so you will not be missed. If your friend or your neighbor is going to be away, let the office know about it, so that he will not be overlooked. Don't be content to leave it all to the enumerators, but do some of it yourself; make sure you are in the census, and that everybody you know is in it.

Another thing everybody can do is to let everybody else know that there is nothing going to happen as a result of the census that is going to cost anything or bother anybody. Every enumerator is sworn to secrecy about what you tell him, and nobody has any interest in the information until it is all added up. Some will be fearful of these things, and those that know better can help by enlightening them.

Push the census; let no guilty soul escape.

THE DEADLY BONFIRE.

The death of the little son of C. T. Fitzsimmons, burned to death yesterday afternoon while playing with a bonfire, was a most shocking event, and the sympathy of the community will go out to the family that has been stricken in such a fearful manner.

But the incident serves to call attention to the danger that lurks in the cheesful bonfire, a danger that is recognized in many cities by ordinances strictly forbidding them within the city limits. There is such an ordinance in the city of Duluth, but apparently the city authorities have not considered that it was enacted seriously, because it has never been enforced.

The danger in bonfires, while seldom considered until some little life is offered up in this useless, horrible sacrifice, is apparent to anyone. Bonfires are as fatally attractive to little ones as the flame is to the moth. Children who see their elders starting them often follow the example by starting bonfires of their own.

This is the second little life that has been lost in this manner in Duluth in two months. While there are wagons capable of carting off rubbish there is no necessity of bonfires within the city limits, and while it will not save the child-lives that have already gone, nor sooth the grief of stricken parents, the ordinance should be enforced at once, that there may be no more such shocking accidents.

THE ORE SHIPMENTS.

It is interesting to note that the ore shipments from the Head of the Lakes for May have reached the immense total of 2,911,912 tons and that they have broken all previous records for the month, but the meaning back of it is still more interesting to St. Louis county than the bare figures themselves, imposing as they may be.

It means activity in the range country, an activity that promises to continue throughout the season. It means that the United States Steel corporation, with the minor concerns that are shipping ore, will have larger pay rolls than they have had, and that the merchants as well as the laborers of the range country will be prosperous. This in turn means that the range towns will be more prosperous than usual, and back of that is the fact that Duluth itself will benefit materially.

It is good news for the range country, and good news for Duluth; good news for the iron interests; good news for the shipping interests, the mercantile interests, and the labor interests. It is the beginning of a summer full of activity and prosperity for Duluth and its neighbors of the iron country.

SECRETARY BONAPARTE.

While the appointment of Charles J. Bonaparte of Baltimore as secretary of the navy in place of Paul Morton, resigned, comes as a complete surprise, the first impression of those who have heard of him of the historic name is that the appointment is a very good one, and one quite in harmony with the policy of President Roosevelt. What later impressions will be depends, of course, upon Mr. Bonaparte and his official acts, but at any rate it seems very probable that the substitution of a man who has a record as a reformer for a man who has a record as a railroad rebater cannot be anything but an improvement.

Mr. Bonaparte has been an intimate friend of the president for many years, and the chief executive's confidence in him was shown by his selection to investigate, in company with another, the postal frauds. That investigation was made fearlessly and without favor, and resulted in bringing much contumely upon the head of Mr. Bonaparte for his zealousness, and punishment upon the head of the evil-doers in the postoffice department. In Baltimore, in Maryland, and in the large field of national affairs, the new secretary of the navy has a record as a reformer and an enemy of "graft" in every form.

The appointment will go a long way toward strengthening popular belief in the good faith of the president.

THE THREE R'S.

The title of a current magazine article is "The Reaction Toward the Three R's." Of course this means that there is a popular feeling against the ever-increasing number of so-called educational fads in the public school curriculum, and a tendency to force educators to pay more attention to "Readin', 'ritin', and 'rithmetic."

It is probably true that the tendency of educators, in their desire to turn out pupils equipped with a universal knowledge of everything there is to know, has been to crowd out, in a greater or less degree, the highly important fundamentals of education. They have not been crowded out entirely, of course, for the public schools still teach children how to read, how to write and how to figure. But the old-fashioned idea was that these were the essentials, and that if children did not get them in the schools, no knowledge of higher subjects could compensate.

And examples tending to prove that undue attention has been given to the frills have not been wanting in any city in which modern methods of teaching prevail. High school graduates that could not spell, with miserable penmanship and sadly deficient in the commonest rules of mathematics have been too common. And many of them, sad to say, have been graduated from the high school's courses with honors. Considering all the evidence, it seems clear that the departure from time-honored methods has been a little bit too wide, and that the children have been robbed in some degree of the knowledge of fundamentals to which they are entitled. Therefore, if there is a reaction toward the three R's, it can do no harm, and may do much good.

POOR OLD SPAIN.

Shorn of her distant possessions, and forced by the bitter logic of the survival of the fittest from a commanding position among nations to a meek and inconsiderable one, poor Spain is now confronted by internal troubles that threaten to reduce her still lower in the scale of nations, for hunger and riot and robbery stalk abroad through the land over which the boy king rules.

First there were the labor troubles, then the difficulties of Andalusia, then political confusion piled upon political confusion. A Paris review reports conditions as absolutely intolerable, and getting worse daily. In Andalusia misery and want are the rule, and bread riots happen daily. A garden when the Moors came, Andalusia is today described as a kingdom of hunger. The bandit and the brigand plunder unmercifully, and destruction of property, abduction of individuals, stealing of cattle and acts of vengeance are part of the daily routine.

At Vinaros, a seaport on the border of the provinces of Castellon and Tarragona, there is a movement to place the city under British protection, a sad commentary on the lowly state to which the Spanish kingship has sunk. In Barcelona there are 40,000 unemployed men, and strikes are rife. At a recent meeting a manifesto was issued, signed by thirty-one labor groups, headed with this cry of despair: "We wish to live!"

Poor Spain, with her days of grandeur and power succeeded by days of poverty and disgrace, is a pitiful, pitiable spectacle.

THE FIELD SURVEY.

It is to the interest of every citizen that the count shall be full, so don't overlook a chance to help the census enumerator, who began work today.

It is hard to believe the Russians are very bad fellows when, possessing such names as Rojestvensky, Kashtalinsky, Matongievitch, Pflug and Zassalitch, they send us easy ones like Cassini and Rosen. Or maybe they trim their ambassadors' names before they send them over.

Hotel Gossip.

"New fire insurance companies are continually springing into existence, but the increase in their number does not keep up with the increase in insurable property values," said E. F. Hewit of Minneapolis at the McKay. "The business is coming to be of greater importance as time advances, and now you can find few buildings, log piles, tie piles, lumber piles or other timber piles that are not insured against loss by fire. Competition is keen, as in all other lines of present-day business, and to get along at all the agent has to do a lot of hustling.

"I have just returned from the range, where I have been looking after the business of the firm I represent. Most of the range towns are known among the insurance companies as conflagration towns. The buildings in them are for the most part closely grouped and are, almost without exception, constructed of wood in the majority of range villages. If a fire should gain good headway there, it would be pretty apt to mean the total destruction of the town, and this is where the conflagration brand comes in.

"Because of this liability there are some companies that will take no insurance at all in the range towns, while others limit themselves to $3,000 or $5,000. Even in the cities in congested districts all the companies place a limit on the amount of fire insurance they will handle. A modern building in the down-town business district of Chicago, for example, cannot be fully insured in a single company. It may be necessary for the owners to take out a piece of insurance in each of a half a dozen concerns before he gets the full value of the property. This does not mean that a man can insure his property to more than its full value and then make money by allowing it to be burned at some later date. The companies have made provision against such a proceeding, and when a man takes out fire insurance he is compelled to give in detail an account of the insurance he already has on the property, and he is thus kept from running over the full value."

"Both the mayor of Chicago and the governor of Illinois have come into considerable prominence of late, the latter because of his policy of vetoing a large number of appropriations of the people's money for things that are not really needed," said R. A. Seltz of Chicago at the St. Louis. "He has made a great slaughter of bills providing for spending money in doing things not needed to be done, and to enter upon extensions and enlargements of work and buildings uncalled for by any emergency or any lack in present arrangements.

"The number of such bills vetoed by him is so large that the Illinois governor has saved the state nearly $1,000,000 by killing them. For years past both Democrats and Republicans in Illinois have pursued the policy of giving the state institutions whatever they have asked for. The result has been that they have asked for continually increasing appropriations, and contractors and jobbers with pulls have found them their finest field of enterprise and exploitation. The action of Governor Deneen is certain to attract widespread attention, for it is the doing of a thing which many men, in the highest executive post in many states, have felt should be done, but which none, until now, has had the courage to do.

"Illinois is no worse in this respect than other states, but the ever-widening circles of grafters, spoilsmen and political favorites pivoting around the big public institutions of great states have been seen for some years past, to be raising a problem with which some honest and independent executive would have to deal. As a sample of the appropriations asked for in Illinois, take the one providing for an expenditure of $150,000 for the erection of a single building to be used by the classes in physics at the State university, where the classes in physics are now furnished with ample class rooms and apparatus."

"Many people who complain of the scarcity of desirable government claims in certain sections of Northern Minnesota are making a big mistake in passing up tracts which at present appear to be largely swamp," said E. S. Faulkner of Bemidji at the St. Louis. "While all swamp lands are supposed to revert to the state, there are some that are not so marked on the official plats of survey, owing either to carelessness on the part of the surveyor or to the fact that they do not contain enough water to be classed as swamp. Such tracts as these are of little use for agricultural purposes at the present time, and for this reason are not filed on by people looking for government land. If I were taking a claim, however, I would just as soon have this swampy land as any other, for there is no doubt that, in the course of a few years, it will be just as good for farming purposes as any other, and probably a little better. It has been demonstrated time and again that as a region becomes settled up and as the forests are cut away the swamps have a tendency to disappear, leaving a rich black soil admirably adapted to farming purposes. This has occurred in different parts of Wisconsin and Minnesota, as well as in other states, and history will but repeat itself in this respect in Northern Minnesota."

An Up-to-Date Plant.

The Herald is in receipt of the issue of the Utica Press of Saturday, May 27, on the front page of which is a picture of the new building into which the Press has just moved. The Herald is particularly interested in this, not only because the Press is one of the great newspapers of New York state and the East, but because Otto A. Meyer, its publisher, some time ago paid a visit to Duluth while he was considering plans for his new building, and looked over the building into which The Herald moved two years ago. To a considerable extent the new building and plant are modelled after those used by The Herald, and the result is a handsome building and a modern, complete and exceptionally convenient equipment.

After Marriage.

The tale is old
But sadly true;
When dinner's cold
Then love is, too.
—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Weather.

Yesterday grew a bit sultry as it grew older, and naturally this condition was followed in the night by welcome showers. And they were "right smart showers," too, as the Virginian would say. They were accompanied by an edifying electric display, and once or twice the lightning "struck" with a sharp, appalling detonation that caused every fearsome lady within a wide radius of the occurrence to shudder, and demand that her drowsy spouse tell her at once if it "struck our house."

Then this morning, when the clouds had slipped away with the night, and the sun rose bright and cheerful upon a world washed clean by the night showers, it was another of the days full of delight that have become the rule lately. It was still summer, and the wind, from the western quadrant, was warm and soft. The unfathomable blue of the skies was shaded by that summery haze again, and strangely enough, taking it all in all, June opened with a typical June day. Held back a long time by a backward spring, vegetation is going forward now in a way that can almost be seen, and under such influences as the heat of yesterday and today and the showers of last night this tender generation of grass and flowers and trees is rapidly coming into its graceful adolescence.

Mr. Kicker, poor soul, hasn't been able for several days, when advised that it was "a nice day," to grudgingly say: "Yes, but——" and follow the blank with one of those depressing flaws that such folks delight in spoiling everything good with if they possibly can. He has been unable to do this because there have been no flaws, for nature's production of delightful days has been perfection.

It will be cooler tonight, says the weather man, and it will be partly cloudy tonight and Friday with fresh northerly winds. It will be all right so long as they keep out of the East. The precipitation last night was .15 of an inch, and the highest velocity of the wind was 14 miles an hour.

Temperatures were moderate this morning everywhere. Rains fell over a wide area, from coast to coast and from Minnesota to Florida. Low barometers are reported from British Columbia, Arizona, Lake Superior and South Atlantic states.

And in Duluth, Too.

Minneapolis Journal: James Dalrymple the Glasgow streetcar man says:

"On the busiest of the lines the cars are operated on half-minute schedule, and we have always maintained that a seat is provided for every passenger. The only secret to this is in running a sufficient number of cars."

Funny that that seems never to have occurred to the management of the Minneapolis street railway before, but now that the secret is out we shall doubtless see an improvement.

The Erudite Waiter.

A. J. Drexel Biddle of Philadelphia was on the Riviera in the spring. At the Nice races he described America to a group of Russians.

"Your Boston," one of the Russians said, "she is called Hub sometimes, da? You call her Hub for that inteligence, great learning, there shall prevail. Yes? Da?"

"Yes, da," said Mr. Drexel Biddle. "Every inhabitant of Boston is most liberally educated."

"Exemplify," said the Russian eagerly. "The proofs. Show, if you can, proofs."

The American thought a moment.

"Well, here is one proof," he said. "A young man in a Boston restaurant ordered a sandwich. The sandwich was brought promptly to him, but it contained no meat. He called the waiter over.

"'Look here, waiter,' he said, 'there is no meat in the sandwich.'

"The waiter, elevating his brows, said:

"'Then why call it a sandwich, sir? With a minimum of erudition one should be able to avoid a rhetorical solecism so cacophonously glaring.'"

Let the Toast Pass.

(A Very Old Favorite.)

Here's to the maiden of bashful fifteen,
Here's to the widow of fifty;
Here's to the flaunting, extravagant queen,
And here's to the housewife that's thrifty.
Let the toast pass,
We'll drink to the lass,
I'll warrant she'll prove an excuse for the glass.

Here's to the charmer whose dimples we prize,
Now to the maid who has none, sir;
Here's to the girl with a pair of blue eyes,
And here's to the nymph with but one, sir.
Let the toast pass, etc.

Here's to the maid with a bosom of snow,
Now to her that's as brown as a berry;
Here's to the wife with a face full of woe,
And now to the damsel that's merry.
Let the toast pass, etc.

For let 'em be clumsy, or let 'em be slim,
Young or ancient, I care not a feather;
So fill a pint bumper quite up to the brim,
So fill up your glasses, nay, fill to the brim,
And let us e'en toast them together.
Let the toast pass, etc.
—RICHARD BRINSLEY SHERIDAN.

Lines to Limburger.

Freewater, (Or.) Times: Owing to the fact that the restaurants went out of business the first of the week, the editor and staff are baching—that and other reasons—and yesterday a rural subscriber brought us in a piece of limberger cheese, saying that if we didn't care to eat it we could use it to drive away ants.

Will it drive away ants? Will it? Verily I say unto you, it will drive dogs out of a tanyard; it will drive buzzards away from a carcass; it will drive a herd of buffalo through a burning forest and a mule through a barbed wire fence; it will drive a man crazy if compelled to stay within twenty feet of its polluted presence; indeed, it will drive away ants—and uncles, too, and mothers and fathers, brothers, sisters and grandmothers, even to the seventh generation; still there are some who claim to like limburger.

Owen Fargusson commenced excavating this week for the foundation of a new building, on the corner of Superior street and Fourth avenue west. It will be connected with his present fine marble front, on the adjoining lot, and will be either three or four stories high, and will possibly be after the style of the present building, thus making an imposing structure, 100 by 115 feet.

At the council meeting, Tuesday evening, a petition, signed by members of the fire department, asked for a salary for Chief Mannheim. It was moved that he be paid $500 per annum to act as chief of the fire department and chimney inspector, but the motion was lost. The treasurer reported $20,082 to the credit of the general fund and the fire department $394 "in the hole." The mayor thought the council should exercise care in expenditures, as the probable receipts for the year would be $61,000, and the known expenses $44,250, leaving $16,400 with which to meet other expenses and make improvements.

LAUGHING GAS.

Philadelphia Press: Tess—These men who are always trying to kiss you make me very tired.

Jess—Me too. There's nothing I admire so much as a successful man.

Chicago Tribune: "You needn't tell me," observed Uncle Allen Sparks, "that three-fourths of all the misery and crime is caused by whisky. It's caused by the doggoned fools that drink it."

Washington Star: "Have you ever done anything you regretted?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "There have been several occasions when I didn't ask for all I might have gotten out of a deal."

Philadelphia Ledger: Mrs. Jenks—He's got queer old-fashioned ideas about everything. He's an antiquarian, you know.

Mrs. O'Bull—An anti-aquarium, eh? Well, I'm opposed to them things, too. I don't think it's right to keep fish cooped up in glass globes.

Yonkers Statesman: Mr. Yeast—And you say your wife allows you one drawer in the bureau for your own use?

Mr. Crimsonbeak—Yes, only one.

Mr. Yeast—But how can you tell which one is yours?

Mr. Crimsonbeak—Why, because there are fewer of her things in my drawer than in the rest.

Chicago Tribune: Archimedes had announced that if he had a lever long enough he could move the earth.

"Suppose you go out into the garden and move a little of it with a spade," suggested his wife, who had become tired of his everlasting dreaming.

At which point, thinking the story needed no explanatory diagram, he suffered the incident to close.

MINNESOTA COMMENT.

Windom Citizen: Senate revision must come before rate revision.

Mankato Free Press: An enterprising Illinois man has accumulated thousands of dollars by selling the "blue sky" to E. Z. Marks. He must be the twin brother of the fellow who makes an easy living by disposing of "hot air" to the gullible public.

Red Wing Republican: Thousands of bushels of strawberries are going to waste in the state of North Carolina. Most everyone in Minnesota wishes it was their waist they were going to.

International Falls Border Budget: The Mesaba Ore and Eveleth Star are hard at it, while the rest of the Mesaba papers are huddled around the ring with sufficient witch hazel and hard ore dope to revive the vanished.

The Way of the Transgressor.

Chicago Chronicle: Mr. Machen, late of the postoffice department, pleads that he did not know he was violating the law when he was sharing in the proceeds of swindles perpetrated upon the government. It is thus manifest that Mr. Machen prefers to be set down as a fool rather than as a knave and he is, of course, entitled to that option. The circumstance that he goes to the penitentiary for two years more is of more importance than Mr. Machen's casuistry.

Policemen and the Gun.

Baltimore American: A very sensible suggestion made in the convention of police chiefs at Washington is that policemen should be able to shoot before they are armed. A bull on a rampage is hardly more dangerous than a man with supposed official authority to use firearms over which he has no control in public places. The safety of innocent and law-abiding citizens is of quite as much, if not more, importance than the capture of escaping criminals. It would also be a prudent measure to have policemen taught their legal rights in the matter of making escape subject to death penalty for all classes of offenses, and to be made strictly to observe the limit of those rights before the law. It is as well to make for those charged with the enforcement of the law to be the first to set an example of obedience to it.

A Nation's Playground.

The World Today: What is there anywhere that can be even compared with the marvels of the heart of the playground, the Yellowstone National Park? Here in one place the terraces surpassing those of New Zealand, geysers far more wonderful than those of Iceland, waterfalls more stupendous than those of Cumberland or Killarney, hot springs of greater heat and mineral springs more marked than those of the Auvergne, pools of incomparable beauty, with bear, deer, elk, buffalo and eagles to give life to the scene, the whole set among canyons of glowing tints and crags of beetling height, while all the region is easily accessible on splendid government-built roads, policed by United States troops. This is the play-ground par excellence. Some day the weary ones of France and Germany will fall into line and spend their summers in the Rockies. To the unimitated this will all sound like characteristic American brag; to the initiated, as a weak understatement of the facts.

Something to Learn.

Washington Post: Col. Bryan announces his intention of taking a trip around the world for the purpose of studying municipal problems. The announcement is somewhat startling, as it conveys an admission that there is a subject in the world that Col. Bryan does not know all about.

Forestry Reserves in Idaho.

Springfield Republican: President Roosevelt's most praiseworthy support of the forestry movement is further recorded by his announced decision to create in Idaho five new forest reserves and add largely to two others, the total additional territory thus put under reservation in Idaho being 6,225,000 acres. The important feature of the decision is that it is taken in face of vigorous opposition from the Idaho Republicans, who are reported as almost solidly against the step.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Popularity never begins at home.

Some men are so lucky they don't die even if they have no insurance.

Horse racing is a very enjoyable sport for everybody except the horses, the jockeys and the betters.

It is pretty hard for a man to figure out the difference between a woman's spring hat and Fourth of July fireworks.

No Place for 'Em.

Cleveland Leader: The young engineer had been sent to report on the feasibility of running a railroad through a hitherto unexplored country. He anticipated immense difficulties, but he was just out of college and ready for any of them.

But his disappointment was greater than his confidence had been. After weeks of hard toil he telegraphed to the company: "Can't build railroad. Country perfectly flat and dry; no place for tunnels or bridges."

GET OUT.

Get out where the bayous are shaded and brown,
Get out where rose petals are eddying down,
Get out where the world wears a dew-spangled crown,
Get out, oh, get out, oh, get out of the town—
Get out of the town in the morning.

Get out where the ripples run glad in the sun,
Get out to the fields where the green billows run,
Get out where the forces of Nature have fun,
Get out, oh, get out, to where day is begun,
Get out of the town in the morning.

Get out of the town in the morning and hear
The birds in the thickets all caroling clear,
Where the mocking bird hollers: "Good morning!
Good cheer!"
Where the sky arches blue and where heaven seems near,
Get out of the town in the morning.

Get out of the town at the break of the day
Find a dusty, bloom-bordered and winding old way,
That leads past a cot where are children at play,
Where each breath is pure wine and there's nothing to pay,
Get out of the town in the morning.

Get out in the country and be just a boy,
Get out and drink deep of the old-fashioned joy,
Get out where no trials shall bring you annoy,
Where God walks in splendor and days never cloy,
Get out of the town in the morning.

What Jerome Would Do.

District Attorney Jerome of New York visited Philadelphia not long ago, and delivered a lecture for the benefit of the men who are trying to reform the politics of the Quaker City. At the conclusion of his discourse, which was eminently practical, one of the local reformers went up to him and said, with the air of a man who was about to put a poser:

"Your remarks were very interesting, but what would you do if what is known as the 'organization' was composed of the machines of both political parties?"

The pugnacious district attorney from New York did not even pause to think, but exclaimed,

"Raise hades and holler murder."

Well Enough Described.

Champ Clark, representative from Missouri, dearly loves a good story at the expense of the state of Arkansas. "One day," said Mr. Clark, "as a train from the east pulled up at the dinky little station of a most depressing town in the fever-and-ague district of Arkansas a passenger, thrusting his head out of a car window, demanded in bitter tones of a dejected looking citizen who was leaning against the station door: 'Tell me, what do you call this dried-up, dreary, God-forsaken place?' 'That's near enough, stranger,' replied the native in a melancholy voice; 'let it go at that.'"

Auf Wiedersehen!

The little gate was reached at last,
Half hid in lilacs down the lane;
She pushed it wide, and, as she passed,
A wistful look she backward cast,
And said—"Auf wiedersehen!"

With hand on latch, a vision white,
Lingered reluctant, and again,
Half doubting if she did aright,
Soft as the dews that fell that night,
She said—"Auf wiedersehen.

The lamp's clear gleam flits up the stair;
I linger in delicious pain;
Ah, in that chamber, whose rich air
To breathe in thought I scarcely dare,
Thinks she—"Auf wiedersehen!"

'Tis thirteen years; once more I press
The turf that silences the lane;
I hear the rustle of her dress,
I smell the lilacs, and—ah, yes,
I hear—"Auf wiedersehen!"

Sweet piece of bashful maiden art!
The English words had seemed too fain,
But these—they drew us heart to heart,
Yet held us tenderly apart;
She said—"Auf wiedersehen!"
—JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

The Best Show Window.

Philadelphia Record: A retail merchant would as soon think of trying to get along without a doorway for the ingress and egress of customers as of trying to do business without one or more show windows in which to display his wares. Yet the goods exhibited in windows for the enticement of passers-by catch the attention of but a minute proportion of the people who dwell within the radius of the store's activity.

The daily paper is a show window that carries attractive merchandise to the homes of prospective purchasers and spreads it out for inspection under the most favorable auspices. The newspaper display is examined by a thousand consumers where the stationary window is examined by but one. Its value as a business-getter is proportionate.

They Don't Count.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "But there is much opposition to your proposed bill."

"Does Senator Graball oppose it?"

"Oh, no."

"Is Leader Graphter against it?"

"Not at all."

"Then who does oppose it?"

"The people."

"Oh, shucks!"

LEWIS AND CLARK CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION OPENS AT PORTLAND

highest resolution, "fiction lags after truth, invention is unfruitful, and imagination cold and barren."

With the opening of the exposition today are consummated the efforts that have been put forth within the brief space of two years to commemorate a century of progress since the explorers commissioned by President Jefferson showed the way to this land. Our centennial celebration constitutes the supreme effort of the people of the Pacific Northwest, and more particularly the Oregon country fittingly to recognize the services performed by Lewis and Clark.

We celebrate today in connection with our sister states of the West the acquisition of the Oregon country to the Union. As the acquisition of this country was the greatest expansion of our national domain and the only section secured to us by right of discovery, so too this centennial is the greatest undertaking of the people. In keeping with the confident prophecy of her great and splendid future, the people of the Pacific West have united to prepare a fitting climax for her rapid evolution from pioneerdom.

Originally projected upon a modest scope, engineered carefully in reality and backed by hope and confidence, the exposition expanded until it has reached the point where it takes an important place in the list of international exhibitions.

The results are now spread before you and the scene must arouse gratitude in the individual for the opportunity of sharing in the triumphs of this day and the proud consciousness presenting the best educational accomplishments of our civilization, and the advancement of science and arts, crafts and industries.

The Pacific Coast desires, through the medium of this exposition, to illustrate to the world its resistless progress, its advantages for home building and the abundant rewards held out for industrious effort in almost any pursuit. For the first time an effort has been made to gather together an adequate display of the many products of the states on the Pacific slope. The showing made, considering we are only emerging from practically, the infancy of development is one which, it is believed, entitles us to the admiration of the world. The State of Oregon, by its liberality, has added materially to the scope of the exposition.

Brought here from foreign lands and far and near are magnificent displays for the edification and comparative deduction of everyone who takes an interest in his fellow man.

Among the thoughts that rise uppermost in acknowledging our debts of gratitude is the deep sense of obligation to the president of the United States, who used the limits of official and diplomatic propriety to excite national and international interest in this event.

The people of the Pacific coast are deeply appreciative of the recognition which their claims secured in congress, making possible the magnificent display of the resources, activities and functions of the national government.

I congratulate the official representatives of the various states and foreign governments upon their magnificent buildings and exhibits, and I bid you all a cordial welcome.

Following President Goode, Governor George Chamberlain of the state of Oregon was introduced. Governor Chamberlain, in a short address, congratulated the people of the state, the city of Portland and the Lewis and Clark corporation upon the achievements of an event so notable in the history of the city and state.

Hon. Jefferson Myers, president of the Lewis and Clark centennial commission for the State of Oregon, was enthusiastically aplauded when he took his position on the rostrum to address the people on behalf of the commission.

Perhaps the most enthusiastic applause which greeted any of the notable speakers was accorded Hon. George H. Williams, the mayor of the city of Portland, whose 82 years of life have not sapped the vigor of his youth nor detracted from his ability as a public speaker.

Hon. Clarence D. Clark of Wyoming, representing the United States senate, was next to extend felicitations upon the opening of the exposition. Senator Clark was attentively heard, his address being frequently interrupted by bursts of hand clapping.

Hon. James A. Tawney followed Senator Clark on behalf of the federal house of representatives. Like his predecessors, Congressman Tawney was heartily applauded on his appearance on the speakers' stand and that his remarks were pleasing was testified to by the hand capping and cheering which followed the concluding sentences of his address.

The congratulations and felicitations of the various departments of the United States government on the completion of the exposition were expressed by Hon. H. A. Taylor, first assistant scretary of the treasury and chairman of the United States government board, who said:

Having been appointed by the president chairman of the government board composed of prominent officials in the various executive departments organized to prepare exhibits for this exposition, I am glad, through the courtesy of the exposition managers, to be permitted to take part in these opening exercises.

The distinguished vice president has brought to you greetings from the president, and told you of his interest in this great enterprise. Senators and representatives are here to represent the lawmaking power. I can assure you that all departments of the government are glad of the opportunity to take part in this exposition. Indeed, no such assurance will seem necessary when you come to see the many interesting exhibits that the government has presented here. Every department is represented—the implements of peace and war—the works of art and the products of agriculture—the genius of the inventor and the skill of the artisan—records, models, and machines, all representing some important department of governmental affairs. There is the main building, with its myriad of interesting exhibits, the life saving service, the fisheries, and the historic revenue cutter McCulloch, that, with its heroic crew, went into Manila bay with Dewey and brought to the world the first news of the destruction of the Spanish fleet.

Mr. Chairman, all these varied exhibits give better evidence than can any words of mine that the government takes a vital interest in the success of this exposition. It is a long distance from Washington here—the width of the continent separates you from the capital of the nation, but the care and interest of the government knows no bounds of space, but encourages with equal zeal its citizens on whatever part of its vast domain they may reside. It contributes to every great exposition, and rejoices in the success of every legitimate enterprise. Wherever a hammer is lifted—a plow held—a shuttle thrown—there the government gives protection and encouragement. Its highest pride is not in the valor of its armies and navies, although they always move to victory and carry order and civilization and progress wherever they plant the flag; but in the industry, intelligence, and splendid achievements of its citizens in civil life, who capture the forces of nature and draw tribute from the field, the forest, and the mine. From these sources come the wealth that develops the country, builds cities, and makes such expositions as this possible. The laborer is the true soldier of empire after all. Upon his broad shoulders and brawny arms rests the public destiny. But while we admire the great army of toilers, let us remember too to give deserved praise to the genius and enterprise of the great captains of industry, who, with their talents and money, organize and carry on the vast concerns that have made the industries of America the wonder of the world.

I take pleasure, Mr. Chairman, in assuring you that the people of the country as I have met them in Washington take a deep interest in this exposition. So far as my personal experience goes I have heard more men, strange as it may seem, express their desire or intention of visiting here than I heard speak of going to the great exposition at St. Louis, recently closed.

It has been my fortune, either in a private or official capacity, to cross the continent a great many times, and every time I am surprised and delighted with the great developments which appear on every hand. I can well remember when the whole vast empire stretching from the Mississippi to the Pacific was all undeveloped and practically unknown. Only a few little hamlets here and there, only an occasional woodman's ax rang through the unbroken forest, and here and there a solitary farmer turned his furrow within sight of the retreating Indian. Today much of this vast area is covered with fertile fields, with innumerable streams turning the busy wheels of labor, with thriving cities and villages, with schools and churches, happy homestead marts of trade. It is not strange that after these years of labor and growth you desire to exhibit your resources, wealth and business, and exploit all the vast concerns that go to make up your prosperity.

No region of the country has made greater progress or has brighter prospects than the Pacific coast. The growing trade of our new possessions in the East—and its possibilities are enormous—comes through your ports. The great district of Alaska is mainly supplied from your fields and factories, sends its fish and furs to your markets, and pours its golden stream into the channels of your trade. The expansion of our territory has brought fresh blood and new life into the commercial system of the Pacific states. A dozen years ago no prophet would have predicted such a future as now opens before you. The logic of events, which can be thwarted by no eloquence and changed by no argument, have brought you new and boundless opportunities. This exposition is one of the evidences that they are to be widely improved.

Mr. Chairman, I thank you for the privilege of being here, and on behalf of the government board, I express the hope that your exposition may prove a great success.

Hon. Joseph F. Cannon, speaker of he house of representatives, in his old, apt way, brought out the greatness of the exposition and the sentiment for which it stands. The noted humor of the speaker was several times made apparent during his discourse, the orator being obliged to cease talking several times to permit the hand clapping to die down.

At this period of the program the steadily increasing enthusiasm of the multitude found expression in a tremendous ovation to Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks, the personal representative of the president of the United States. Through his previous visits to this city, notably during the national campaign, Mr. Fairbanks became somewhat intimately known to the people of the city and state. When he was at last able to make himself heard above the noise of the greeting, he said:

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen: President Roosevelt has taken a very great interest in the Lewis and Clark Exposition from its inception, and it is at his request, and on his behalf, I have the great honor of participating with you in these opening ceremonies.

We commemorate an important event in American history. We pay tribute to the intrepid explorers who made their arduous expedition up the Missouri, across the Rocky mountains, down the Pacific, and pointed the way to this land of unparalleled opportunity. Their fame is secure where the deeds of men of heroic mold are forever recorded. They were the forerunners of a high order of civilization in a territory which, prior to their venturesome enterprise, was terra incognita. It was a wilderness, inhabited by the aborigines, into which no white man had entered; it has become the seat of empire—of vast commercial power. We look upon their work with genuine admiration and grateful appreciation.

The expedition which we celebrate was in the command of Capt. Meriwether Lewis, who had been the private secretary of President Jefferson, and of Capt. William Clark, a brother of George Rogers Clark, who rendered such signal and lasting service on the frontier during the American Revolution. The small band who composed the expedition possessed the qualities essential to a successful issue. They were young and full of enthusiasm. They had great powers of endurance; they had tact, and they possessed moral and physical courage of a high order. They went about their difficult and important undertaking in a manner to insure the best results. They not only went to explore an unknown region, but to make such report of their discoveries as would be of the utmost practical value to the world. There was no misadventure and no failure. They proceeded with good judgment, with patience, and with firm resolution. Their appointed task was fraught with far-reaching consequences and beset with unknown dangers. The expedition lay far beyond the frontier and the reach of aid, should grave perils arise. We must measure the undertaking from the environment of the time in which it was laid. The courage which calmly braves unseen perils is often of a higher order than that which confronts known dangers.

> This exposition has risen as an expression of the gratitude of the people for what brave men wrought for humanity and civilization in the long ago.

Thousands followed in later years the pathway of Lewis and Clark with no less dinager than they encountered and no less heroism than they displayed. We gladly acknowledge our indebtedness to those who came hither and erected this state. The pioneers who crossed the Alleghenies, the Mississippi river, the great plains, the Rocky mountains, and built their homes here were of the best quality. They were well fitted to found a commonwealth and to raise here the torch of our Western civilization. They were not idlers. They were not aimless wanderers. They were the soul of energy and came with high and fixed purpose. They have made their ample contribution to our national strength.

As we stand here amid the rich fruits of human effort and surrounded by comfort unknown to any other time, we recall with unmeasured appreciation the pioneers who led the way to greatness upon this coast. We erect monuments to commemorate the services of our statesmen, the valor of our soldiers and sailors. The evidence of our gratitude should not stop there. The American pioneers are as worthy as they of some enduring tribute. Their services were not so picturesque as the services of those who won glory upon the field, but they were quite as perilous and fruitful of as lasting good to the human race. The pioneers were, indeed, soldiers—soldiers in the army of peace. They were pickets on the outposts of civilization. All honor to those who "through moving accidents of flood and field" laid the foundations of organized society upon the shores of the Pacific. This exposition is, in a very special sense, a monument to their wisdom, their virtue and their fortitude.

This exposition logically follows the great exposition which commemorated the Louisiana purchase. It appropriately supplements it. They both irresistibly suggest our obligation to Thomas Jefferson. We do well to recall his service in connection with the acquisition from France of the province of Louisiana, and his organization of the Lewis and Clark exposition, which opened the way to the expansion of the zone of American civilization. We may well pause to pay tribute to his lofty genius, his profound, far-seeing wisdom, and his service to the cause of human liberty and progress upon this continent. The fruit of his services will bless mankind for ages.

William McKinley, one of the greatest and most beloved of Americans, well said in his last speech that "expositions are the timekeepers of progress." They denote our growth in trade and commerce, in industry and knowledge, and in the arts and sciences. They assemble the fruits of the genius and endeavor of the people of the country and the world. Each succeeding exposition finds us occupying a position of advance.

We find gathered here the latest improvements in the multitudinous handiwork of the inventor and the artisan, and in contrast with them the obsolete instruments of a not remote period of a bygone civilization. New applications of old forces and old principles are continually made in the physical world. New results are rapidly wrought by those two potent, confederated forces—the brain and the hand of man. They are so subtle, so strong and untiring, that it is impossible to fix any limit to their accomplishments. We oftentimes seemed to have reached the utmost of mechanical development, but the apparently impossible has been so frequently achieved that we no longer marvel at the results of either invention or discovery. Much that has been done since the event we celebrate would have been regarded as impossible even in the days of the miracles.

> The wizards of the laboratory, the genii of the shop, the captains of industry and commerce, go forward, breaking down the barriers of ignorance, unlocking the secrets of nature, enlarging the field of human effort and opportunity, and making the age in which we live the mightiest in all of the annals of the human race. Not only that, they give abundant assurance that we stand but at the morning of an era of incomparable grandeur for the American people.

A beneficent Providence has scattered His bounty about you with a prodigal hand. The mighty Pacific is at your very doors. It invites you to an illimitable commerce beyond. Your agriculture, your minerals and your forests, your genial seasons and the high quality of your citizenship attract hitner the home-builder. The future has much in store for you. Yonder is Hawaii, acquired for strategic purposes and demanded in the interests of expanding commerce. Lying in the waters of the Orient are the Philippines, which fell to us by the inexorable logic of an humane and righteous war. The Panama canal to the south, so long demanded in the interests of American commerce, of the commerce of the world, is now an assured reality, through the wisdom of American diplomacy, the firm and just resolution of President Roosevelt, and the pluck and enterprise of American genius and American labor. The undertaking has for centuries baffled the efforts of other governments and successfully challenged the capital and exertion of other peoples. The United States has put its hand to the task, and, apparently, insuperable obstacles will fast disappear. No doubt, when the next world's exposition is held, one of the great achievements then to be noted will be the Panama canal, bearing the peaceful commerce of the world, under the protection of the flag of the great republic. It will be in a very special sense a mighty contribution to the civilization and welfare of all mankind. It will bring Portland and the Pacific Coast into closer relations with the Atlantic seaboard and the markets of Europe. More than 8,000 miles will be saved in the transit and interchange of the products of our Eastern and Western coast. A fresh impulse will be given to commerce, which will be of widespread and wholesome influence. We shall be joint sharers in the increased development, but you will be the larger beneficiary.

At the north is Alaska, a territory possessing vast present and future commercial possibilities, secured to us by far-reaching statesmanship, and her integrity preserved by enlightened and courageous diplomacy.

We must have a vigilant care for our increasing interests in the Orient. We must cultivate relations of amity with the millions who dwell beyond the Pacific. There lies a field of vast trade which we have long desired to possess, and which we have but slowly and inadequately gained. Our foothold is steadily increasing, and if we are but true to our opportunities it will be immeasurably enlarged to the advantage of the entire country. If we would have the trade of the peoples of the Far East, we must first have their confidence. Moreover, we must suit our commodities to the needs of those with whom we would traffic; we must study their tastes and their whims and minister unto them. While our goods may suit us, they may not be adapted to the requirements or satisfy the desires of people in other countries.

The tragic events which are transpiring in the Orient are deeply deplored by every lover of peace and humanity the world over. The mighty and bloody conflict had its inception in a desire for commercial conquest. The American people were not indifferent to their own interests and early in the struggle made sure of the preservation of their commercial advantages in the very theater of war. Our trade interests are to be pushed in that far-off country not by the instruments of battle, but through the potent agencies of peace.

> We are destined to play a more important part than heretofore in the commerce in and beyond the Pacific. We must not underrate the commercial opportunities which invite us to the Orient.

While we seek Oriental and other markets, we must have a care that we do not lose sight of the fact that our greatest and our surest market is at home and that to jeopardize it in a desire to possess uncertain alien markets would be the part of inexpressible folly. While we look for the expansion of our trade throughout the world, we should beware that we do not yield our hold upon that home production, which from every just consideration belongs to American labor and American capital.

You have accomplished much since the first paramount settlement appeared upon this coast. Within comparatively recent years, prosperous cities and villages have been built, railways have been constructed, and everywhere we observe the sign of thrift, progress and contentment. There is no seer with vision so penetrating that he can forecast the future possibilities of this people in all of the manifold avenues of human effort. Who would attempt to mirror the developments upon the Western coast one hundred years hence? Who would dare to prophesy the transformation which will be witnessed by those who shall stand here at the close of the present half-century? Yes, who will venture to foretell the measure of your upbuilding in the quarter of a century beyond the present hour?

The future, indeed, is full of golden promise; and we have faith to believe that you and your children will possess and enjoy the rich inheritance of thne and opportunity, which are, of right, yours and theirs.

You have made admirable display of the trophies of our progress and our civilization. No American can look upon what is here presented without increased admiration of his countrymen, and no foreigner who is sharing our hospitality can see this exhibit of our country's development without marveling at the resourcefulness and virility of the new people who have attained a giant's strength, but who seek to use it only in promoting the priceless arts of peace.

The foundation of our highest and best development is not to be found in nature's illimitable wealth, but in the observance of the orderly process of the law and the practice of those virtues which are the cornerstone of the home, and which are the strength of the state—its sure stay in the hour of strain and stress.

We are assembled from remote neighborhoods, yet we are in close touch and sympathy. We are bound together in the everlasting bonds of national affection and national unity. Our nation's honor is our common honor. Our nation's glory is our common glory.

The presidentil salute of twenty-one guns was the signal to the impatient throng that the moment of the opening of the exposition was at hand. Upon a telegraph operator seated at an instrument in the speakers' stand the eyes of the multitude were riveted, and while the guns were still booming, the movement of his hand at the key was a sufficient indication to the watchers that President Roosevelt was being advised that all was in readiness to receive the signal from the White House which would formally open the exposition.

Then followed a wait of several minutes, marked by an impressive stillness, during which eye and ear was strained to catch the first move of the operator's hand, or a sound from the telegraph instrument. Suddenly, out of the quiet came a faint click, President Roosevelt's signal, and Oregon's greatest hour had come.

Almost simultaneously with the clicking of the telegraph instrument, President Goode's gavel fell, and he proclaimed the exposition open. The throng seemed hardly to realize it, but as the clear, sweet tones of the cathedral chimes in the government building floated out, and hundreds of flags broke to the breeze, and cannon roared their thunderous accompaniment to the "Star Spangled Banner," played by the massed bands, pandemonium loosed itself. One wild, exultant shout, and then cheer after cheer resounded through the grounds; hats were thrown into the air and the noise was swelled by a thousand horns and the shrieking of whistles.

When, through the people's inability to continue the rejoicing longer, quiet was restored, the benediction was pronounced by the Most Rev. Alexander Christie, archbishop of Oregon City. The playing of the National Anthem followed the benediction, all heads remained uncovered. As the centennial salute of 100 guns, the closing of the ceremonies, was being given, the rejoicing broke out again, and the crowd threw itself into the abandon of holiday making.

Following the conclusion of the literary program the official party guests repaired to the New York state building, where refreshments were served and an informal reception was held. In the meantime vast numbers of the sightseers followed the injunction to "hit the trail," the exposition Midway.

All portions of the exposition grounds received their quota of visitors, and the various state buildings and exhibit palaces were thronged with people. The Peninsula, on which is situated the government buildings and exhibits, attracted large crowds of sightseers. During the afternoon bands in different parts of the grounds discoursed music, and various attractions kept the great crowd in good humor.

OPENING OF OAK HALL CLOTHING STORE

AL. ABRAHAM.

HENRY ABRAHAM.

The formal opening of the Oak Hall Clothing store, at the corner of Fourth avenue west and Superior street, will occur this evening, Professor Muhlbauer's orchestra has been secured for the occasion, and an exceptionally fine musical program will be rendered. No goods will be sold while the select program is being given.

A feature of the opening which will be popular is the fact that rose favors will be distributed among the women in attendance, and every person who enters the store tonight will be given a ticket entitling him or her to a chance in the drawing for three Columbia gramaphones, valued at $50 each, which will be given away free, with ten records of popular selections for each.

The new store, while it will be formally opened tonight, has been doing busines for the past two or three weeks, and already the patronage accorded it has grown to gratifyingly large proportions. It is a fine establishment in every respect, up to date in all departments, and one of the best stores in the West. Albert and Henry Abraham, the proprietors, are too well known in Head of the Lakes business circles to need any particular introduction to the public. They have been in business in Superior for the past fifteen or twenty years, owning one of the largest and most popular clothing stores in that city. They came to the Head of the Lakes in the early days, recognizing the great possibilities of the two cities located here, and have ever since that time energetically devoted their time and energies to the upbuilding and advancement of this section. By fair and square business methods they gained the confidence and patronage of the people of Superior, but despite this fact, came to the conclusion that Duluth offered a wider field. Accordingly, they closed out their store in Superior and came to this city, opening up at the corner of Fourth avenue west and Superior street with an entirely new line of goods. At first they occupied only the middle portion of the Phoenix block, but soon found these quarters were inadequate, so secured a lease on the corner store as well. The partition between the two rooms has been torn out and the whole made into one store, giving a very large floor space, and greatly improving the general appearance of the corner.

This evening the following concert selections will be rendered by the orchestra:

March, "Yankee Grit"...Abe Holzman
Overture, "Bohemian Girl" .....Baefe
Two movements from "Suite of Four" .. ..Theodore Bendit
a. Parting.. .. ..
b. Reconciliation .. ..
Valse Suite, "Dance Souvenance".. .. ..

DEMAND IS GOOD

Copper Market Situation Is In Every Way Healthy.

Domestic and Foreign Consumers Buying—Shares Hold Well.

George L. Walker reports copper as continuing strong and the condition of the market very healthy. Domestic consumers are buying liberally for future delivery, and the foreign demand continues active. He says in his weekly letter:

"Copper continues strong, and the situation is in every way healthy. Lake is selling for 15¼ and electrolytic for 15⅛ cents per pound. Domestic consumers, while still disposed to be conservative, are buying considerable copper for July delivery. The foreign demand continues active. China is a buyer of copper here constantly, and Germany has again been in the market for large supplies. Exports so far this month exceed the total shipments in May last year. Producers of copper are sold out sufficiently far ahead so that there is believed to be no possibility that the price of the metal will be offered down; and the prospect is more favorable to an average 15-cent copper market during the remainder of the present year than it was a month or two ago.

COPPER SHARES.

"In view of the very heavy liquidation in the New York market, the coppers have held surprisingly well. There has at no time been heavy selling pressure, and speculative and investment buying demand has been constantly in evidence. The good support of Amalgamated, Utah, United States Mining, Greene Consolidated, Osceola and Mohawk, and the continued excellent buying of Allouez, Boston Consolidated and Michigan, give holders of coppers in general confidence that better things are yet to come in this class of stocks. One large interest, who bought stocks heavily more than a year ago, and has since been rolling up big profits, has recently been selling his railroads and investing the proceeds in dividend paying copper stocks. It is probable that others will follow this example.

"The strength of the metal market is a sufficient reason for belief that copper stocks are to enjoy a substantial advance and greatly increased activity between now and the beginning of the holiday season. We have had better than a 15-cent copper market for a little more than six months, and the prospect favors its continuance for another half year at least. In this period the producing copper companies have added tremendously to their cash reserves. Some of them have already increased their dividend payments and others will in the near future. There is hardly a producing company on the list that is at present earning less than 10 per cent on the selling price of its stock.

The general speculative situation is especially favorable to a movement in the coppers. There has been no boom in the stocks for several years, and though prices have had a splendid recovery from the lowest of two years ago, there has been no distribution of securities. Very few coppers are to be found in margined speculative accounts, and no considerable buying interest will have to be enlisted to start a substantial advance in quotations.

"Boston is probably one of the strongest financial centers in the country at the present time. Commission brokers were carrying very small lines of speculative stocks when the break in prices began, and losses of traders have been exceedingly small. The public is rich and ready to speculate in coppers as soon as a little encouragement is offered. There is ground for the belief that this encouragement will be forthcoming very soon, and that all holders of copper stocks will have an opportunity to sell at a substantial profit."

IMPRISONED IN A DUNGEON

Fort Scott, Kan., Man In Mexico Nearly Three Years.

Fort Scott, Kan., June 1.—W. W. Barbarick, an old resident of the city, who left here three years ago to seek a new location, and who had been heard from only once since his departure, returned last week. Mr. Barbarick says that he served two years and nine months in a Mexican dungeon.

Barbarick's first stop in Mexico was at Lecheria, where he spent two weeks in a hospital, receiving treatment for sickness caused by the high altitude. Upon his recovery he went to Chihuahua on a locomotive with the engineer, whom he had met at the former place. Just as the train was going into Chihuahua a Mexican in a cart with his wife and son drove upon the track and the man was killed. The engineer, "Jack" McGraw of Little Rock, Ark., the fireman, Thomas Burns of St. Louis, and Barbarick, were arrested by government officials and were placed in a dungeon without trial, Barbarick says. They were allowed to see no one, except their attendant, who visited the cell twice a day with rations, consisting of Mexican beans, stale cornckes and a cup of water. After fifteen months' confinement McGraw died of a broken heart. The body was allowed to lie in the cell two days and nights. The cell was without ventilation and not a ray of light except from the lanterns of the guards was seen during the confinement of the men.

Barbarick says that he and Burns were taken from the prison to the edge of town on March 22, and a body of government police beat them and pounded them with their fists until the prisoners were unconscious. They were then left for dead. After a time the two men regained consciousness and climbed into a freight car on the railroad which was attached soon after to a train and taken away. At the first stop one of the train crew discovered the men and was about to put them off when they told him their story. The injured men were taken to the caboose and given treatment, and it was there found that Barbarick had a broken shoulder and Burns a broken leg. Letters written by Barbarick to his wife here are said to have never reached her, and she applied to the district court of this county about six weeks ago for a divorce. The case was to have been heard next week. The suit will be withdrawn at once.

Shortly after Barbarick's departure from here Mrs. Barbarick gave birth to twins. They died when they were 15 and 17 months' old, respectively. Barbarick is still suffering from his broken shoulder, but it is believed he will be able to do some light work and support his family. He is a boilermaker and had been employed by the Missouri Pacific railroad for years before he left Kansas.

Burns, the fireman, was 28 years old, and when he went to the dungeon was a perfect type of manhood. When he was released he was a total wreck physically and his hair ws as white as snow. When in the dungeon neither of the men had a bath or a change of clothing, and when they were released their clothes barely hung together as rags and both were barefooted.

LESS CHILD LABOR

Employed In Duluth Than In Twin Cities.

St. Paul, June 1.—Less child labor is employed at Duluth than any other of the larger cities of Minnesota, according to a statement issued by W. H. Williams, state labor commissioner. Mr. Williams is at work compiling the returns from the superintendent of schools at Duluth, showing the number of children under 16 years of age that are employed during school sessions, and he reports that during the school year 1904-1905, there were about 150 children under 16 years of age employed, but only one or two were employed in violation of the law, and it is believed that there were extenuating circumstances in those instances. The youngest child so employed is 12 years old; he is a messenger, his father is dead and he has to support his mother and several brothers and sisters. A few children are employed as young as 13, but most of them are 15. Permits are rarely issued when the child is less than 14 years old.

It was announced at the office of the state labor commissioner yesterday that the annual inspection of the iron mines on the Vermilion and Mesaba ranges will begin next week. The inspection will be made by Julius Moersch, who will probably have one or two assistants. It is announced that complete statistics will be secured regarding the output of the mines, the number of men employed, the wages paid, the accommodations provided for the employes, the sanitary condition of the mining camps and much other information that will be used in preparing the annual report. The report will also include a statement of the recent strike at Hibbing.

PROSECUTE MILK DEALERS.

St. Paul, June 1.—E. K. Slater, dairy and food commissioner, announced yesterday that he will begin prosecutions against milk dealers in Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Paul who have not renewed their licenses as required by law. Yesterday was the last day to renew them, and fees have not been paid by more than 900. The penalty for failure to renew them is $25 fine or thirty days imprisonment.

IMPORTANT RULING

By Insurance Commissioner Regarding Land Sales.

St. Paul, June 1.—Insurance Commissioner T. D. O'Brien made a ruling yesterday which will have an important effect on several land firms in Duluth and the northern part of the state that sell lands on the installment plan. Mr. O'Brien holds that a firm which sells land on condition that, if the contract holder dies, the installments shall be cancelled and the widow or heirs given a deed of the property is engaged in writing life insurance and must qualify under the insurance laws of the state.

The question came up on the inquiry of W. M. Prindle & Co. of Duluth, who enclosed a circular explaining the terms on which the land was sold. It is understood that this firm purchases a life insurance policy for the contract-holder, so that all it will have to do to comply with the law is to secure an agent's license for the permission to write the insurance. It is said, however, that other firms assume the risks themselves, and Mr. O'Brien says there is no law that will permit this sort of transaction.

ROOM IN MINNESOTA FOR MORE FARMERS

As Good Opportunities Now as In the Pioneer Days.

Diversified Farming Can Now Be Conducted With Success.

There are but few states that offer the opportunity for diversified farming that Minnesota does. The soils, climatic conditions, transportation facilities and markets are all favorable for a diversity of crops and agricultural resources have been tested for over half a century and during that time some of the most prosperous agricultural regions to be found in any land have been developed within her borders.

Minnesota hard spring wheat has become famous for the excellent quality of flour it produces, and Minnesota wheat and flour have become standards in the world's markets. Within recent years her butter has taken equal rank with her wheat. The dairy interests which has been developed upon a co-operative basis among the farmers, has directly and indirectly added a large sum to the wealth of the state. The live stock industry is developing rapidly and good stock of all kinds is found within the state. I believe that, within the next ten years, the income from live stock alone will be more than doubled. The natural facilities for live stock husbandry are unsurpassed, the numerous small lakes, pure water, and all kinds of forage can be grown cheaply and in large amounts. Minnesota has already become a great live stock state, and her interests along this line are destined to become still larger. Her horses and cattle and other live stock have already taken the highest awards and prizes in both national and international contests.

Minnesota is a large state and some parts are only sparsely settled, and there is room within her boundaries for more farmers and home makers. There are nearly as good opportunities today for the prospective farmer as there were in the pioneer days, and without the hardships of pioneer life. The farmer has now the benefit of a half century of agricultural development within the state. He can undertake grain raising, dairying, sheep husbandry, beef production, or any line of animal husbandry or general farming or fruit production with an assurance of success, provided he is the right kind of a man. It is not necessary for him to first experiment and find out what can be grown, but he can begin to do business at once.

There is a great diversity of soils within the state. Over a large area, rich black loam resting upon a silt sub-soil and containing an abundance of lime and plant food predominates. In other parts of the state sandy loams and clay loams are found. There are also some poor sandy lands within the state, but on the whole, the rich fertile soils predominate, soils which are among the most productive of the country. In soil wealth alone, Minnesota is unexcelled. Minnesota is not in the dry belt; the average rainfall at Worthington, in the southwestern part of the state, for six years is reported as 27.54 inches; in the northwestern part of the state as 25.6 inches; of the southern central as 29 and of the northern central as 31.

Diversified farming in Minnesota is rendered possible because of the high fertility of the soils and the favorable climatic conditions, including a sufficient rainfall for all farm crops. As a result, all grasses and grains grow luxuriously and produce large yields. In many parts of the state clover seeds itself and grows naturally upon the wild lands. Corn fodder is grown in all parts of the state, and corn has become one of the staple crops over a large area. In addition to wheat, oats, barley, rye and flax are grown in large amounts. Choice grades of timothy hay and wild prairie hay are also marketed, and millet, broom grass and alfalfa are all successfully grown. Fruit growing and market gardening have become prominent among the agricultural activities of the state. The large cities, as St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth afford excellent markets for the truck farmer. There is a large area of cheap lands reasonably near to good markets, which are available for market garden purposes. The agricultural industries are found distributed all over the state, as flour mills, oil mills, a sugar factory, sorghum factories, starch factories, creameries and packing houses. The by products from these industries are produced in large amounts and afford excellent concentrates for stock feeding purposes.

Minnesota offers other advantages to the prospective home-seeker, besides fertile soils, capable of producing a great diversity of crops. The early pioneers came from the best farming communities of North Europe and the Eastern states. It is the early settlers who have developed the soil resources and made Minnesota a great agricultural state, and the home-seeker now has all the advantages of good neighbors, excellent schools, the best of transportation facilities, good markets and established churches. Lawlessness has never been rampant in the state, the taxes are low, there is no large state debt for posterity to pay, nor repudiated bonds to mar the credit of thes tate. The opportunities for the small farmer to make a comfortable home in Minnesota, engage in diversified farming and receive a fair recompense for his labors, are unsurpassed.

MANY REFUSE

To Toast the King at Irish Banquet.

Dublin, June 1.—Considerable indignation is being excited throughout Ireland by the published reports of an affront to the king which took place at the banquet in connection with the annual congress of the Irish national teachers' organization, which took place in the town hall of Sligo recently.

A number of the invited guests, including some clergymen, having observed that the first toast on the printed program was that of the king, decided to leave immediately, and they did so, being unwilling to participate in a function of which the toast was a feature. Those who left the hall at this period did not return. Others disassociated themselves from the toast by leaving the dininghall before it was proposed and remained outside until it had been disposed of. When the toast was actually given by the president the majority of those present, guests and congress delegates, remained seated, choosing this third method of indicating their nonparticipation in this particular item of the program. There were repeated cries of "seats!" The president hastily passed to the next toast on the list, which, with the succeeding ones, was enthusiastically honored.

TRADE OF JAPAN

Rapid Progress In Foreign Commerce During Past Decade.

Trade With United States Shows Especially Large Growth.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual return of the foreign trade of the empire of Japan in the year 1904, issued by the department of finance of that government and just received by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics, presents the statistics of commerce of Japan during the past year, as well as data showing the proportion of its trade with each of the principal countries. Japan has made rapid progress in her foreign commerce during the past decade, and her trade with the United States shows an especially rapid growth.

The imports into Japan in 1904 were the largest on record, being $184,938,000 in value, as against $157,933,000 in 1903, $143,056,000 in 1900, and $66,311,000 in 1895. Exports from Japan in 1904 also established a new high record, being $158,992,000 in value, as against $144,172,000 last year, $101,506,000 in 1900, and $69,825,000 in 1895. Thus the imports into Japan have increased by $118,627,000 and the exports from Japan by $89,167,000 since 1895.

During the past ten years Japan has imported about $290,000,000 more than she has exported, the excess of the imports over the exports averaging about $29,000,000 annually during that period.

An examination of the statistics of commerce with the principal countries shows that Japan imports most largely from Great Britain, British India, the United States, China, and Germany, these five countries supplying about 77 per cent of her total imports. Of the total imports into Japan in 1904, amounting to $184,938,000, the United Kingdom supplied $37,346,000, or 20.2 per cent; British India (including Straits Settlements), $35,228,000, or 19 per cent; the United States, $28,942,000, or 15.7 per cent; China, $27,296,000, or 14.8 per cent, and Germany, $14,291,000, or 7.7 per cent.

Of the exports from Japan, amounting to $158,992,000 in 7904, the principal countries of destination are the United States, $50,423,000; China, $33,857,000; France, $15,087,000; Hongkong, $14,024,000; Korea, $10,154,000; Great Britain, $8,787,000, and Italy, $6,011,000, these seven countries taking about nine-tenths of the exports from Japan. It will be observed that the United States is by far Japan's best customer, exports to the United States from Japan representing about one-third of her total sales to foreign countries. Among the nations exporting goods to Japan, however, the United States occupies a lower rank, being exceeded in that respect by both Great Britain and British India.

The relative progress made by the United States and the United Kingdom in the import trade of Japan will be seen from an examination of the following table, which shows the imports into Japan at quinquennial periods from 1884 to 1899, and annually from 1900 to 1904. In 1884 the United States supplied 8.4 per cent of Japan's imports, while the United Kingdom supplied 43 per cent; in 1889 the United States supplied 9.3 per cent, the United Kingdom 35.4 per cent; in 1894 the UnitedStatesStates supplied 9.3 per cent, the United Kingdom 35.4 per cent; in 1899 the United States supplied 17.3 per cent, the United Kingdom 20.3 per cent, and in 1904 the United States supplied 15.7 per cent, and the United Kingdom 20.2 per cent. The United States has therefore increased its proportion from 8 per cent of Japan's total imports in 1884 to 16 per cent in 1904, while the United Kingdom, meantime, has lost ground relatively, having supplied 43 per cent of Japan's total imports in the former, and but 20 per cent of her total imports in the latter year.

Total imports into Japan and share from the United States and the United Kingdom respectively, at intervals from 1884 to 1904:

Year.	Total imports into Japan.	Imports from the United States.	Imoorts from the United Kingdom.
1884	$25,786,000	$2,163,000	$11,087,000
1889	48,520,000	4,509,000	19,134,000
1894	58,271,000	5,448,000	20,926,000
1899	109,769,000	19,031,000	22,329,000
1900	143,056,000	31,256,000	35,678,000
1901	127,397,000	21,229,000	25,187,000
1902	135,392,000	24,229,000	25,081,000
1903	157,933,000	23,044,000	24,271,000
1904	184,938,000	28,942,000	37,346,000

Note.—Value of yen: 1884, 86.9 cents; 1889, 73.4 cents; 1894, 49.6 cents; 1899 to 1904, 49.8 cents.

The exports of Japan to the United States during the period in question increased at a rate far in excess of those to any of the leading European countries. As against a growth of total Japanese exports from $29,434,000 in 1884 to $50,017,000 in 1894, and to $158,992,000 in 1904, the exports to the United States for the same years show the following figures: 1884, $11,411,000; 1894, $21,488,000, and 1904, $50,423,000. In other words, while the total Japanese exports increased 90 per cent druing the decade 1894-1904, the Japanese exports to the United States increased over 88 per cent during the decade 1884-1894, and about 125 per cent during the decade 1894-1904. During the latter decade the increase of the imports from the United States was 431 per cent, while the increase of the exports to the United States was 135 per cen.

The principal articles imported into Japan from the United States in the calendar year 1904, in the order of their magnitude, were: Kerosene oil, $5,550,000; flour, $4,600,000; raw cotton, $4,500,000; machinery and parts thereof, about $2,000,000; iron and steel manufactures, $1,900,000; leather, $1,700,000; cotton manufactures, $1,100,000; wheat and other grains, canned provisions, cars and carriages, leaf tobacco and coal, the last five items ranging downward and each showing figures less than $1,000,000.

Japan's principal exports to the United States in the calendar year 1904 were: Raw silk and waste, $30,400,000, silk manufactures, $6,100,000; tea, $5,600,000; mats and matting, $2,900,000; porcelain and earthenware, about $1,000,000, and camphor, straw braids, wood-chip braids, sulphur, tooth brushes and rice, ranging downward from $620,000 to about $300,000 each.

WORK AMONG THE LEPERS

In Canton, China, as Observed By Presbyterian Pastor.

New York, June 1.—The Rev. Dr. S. B. Rossiter, formerly a New York pastor, and now in charge of the First Presbyterian church in Manila, has sent to the Presbyterian board of foreign missions an interesting story of the work among the lepers in Canton, China, as observed by him in a recent visit. "Outside of Canton," he says, "is a leper village! a thousand lepers congregate there. In the evening you can see the stricken ones, clad in filthy rags, bowed with infirmity, leaning on canes, each one carrying a begging tray, coming from different sections of the city. A more wretched assemblage of people cannot be found on the face of the earth than a leper colony. To this Canton colony had been sent a Chinese girl who had previously come under the teaching of the missionaries, at a time when she was in the hospital of the medical mission. This girl, Un Ho by name, had been in the leper colony about a year when word came to the Presbyterial mission that a missionary was wanted at the leper village, 'the lepers were beginning to believe.'

"One of the Presbyterian missionaries, Rev. Dr. Andrew Beattie, although confessing that he shuddered at the possible consequence of the contact, went into the colony. He found that the poor girl, Un Ho, had prepared the way and that a church might be formed. Twenty lepers became members at the first, and now the church has about 100 members. A chapel has been built in the shape of an L, with the pulpit at the intersection. On Sundays one arm of the L is filled with lepers, and the other with poor people from the vicinity."

Dr. Beattie has continued in charge of this work among the lepers, and the great problem he has to face is what to do with the children. Authorities are agreed that the children of leprous parents are not and need not be tainted. But it is necessary to separate them from those who have been touched with the disease. A school has already been commenced for boys and it is nearly finished. Here they will be kept apart from the leprous household. But a school for girls is as much needed and Dr. Beattie is hoping that it may soon become possible.

Another need of the leper colony at Canton, reports Dr. Rossiter, is a hospital. For the lepers are subject to all the ills that assail other people, and contrary to the general belief that leprousy is in itself such a dire disease that others do not atack those suffering from it. the lepers do fall sick of the ordinary diseases and a hospital in which they may be cared for is a crying necessity. Dr. Beattie suggests that a hospital be built and named for the litle girl, Un Ho, by whom the Christian work of the colony was commenced. He says it will soon have to be a memorial hospital, for she has not much longer to live. Her hands will soon drop off, and she now speaks scarcely above a whisper, for her throat is giving out.

RUINED BY GAMBLING,

Russian Prince Takes His Life at Nice.

Nice, June 1.—It is now known that the person who jumped into the sea out of a boat off this place recently and was drowned was Prince Charles Bakunin, son of the Russian revolutionist. The prince had been for the last two years at Nice. He was married to a rich Italian lady and had three children. The prince had lost $225,000 at the gambling tables and was utterly ruined. He committed suicide by tying a heavy stone around his neck on board a boat which he had hired, and from which he dived into the sea and sank.

WHAT JOY THEY BRING TO EVERY HOME

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

KING'S LIFE IN PERIL

Bomb Thrown at Carriage Containing Alfonse and Loubet.

Many Soldiers Hurt But the Rulers Escaped Injury.

Paris, June 1.—An attempt to assassinate King Alfonso and President Loubet was made at midnight. As his majesty drove with President Loubet from a gala performance at the Grand opera house a bomb, thrown by an anarchist, exploded with deadly effect near the royal carriage. As if by a miracle both the king and president escaped uninjured, but fragments of the missile seriously injured five persons, killed or maimed a number of cavalry horses forming the escort and knocked out a child's eye. Intense excitement followed the incident. The king and president retained their presence of mind, his majesty sending back a member of his suite to make inquiries as to the condition of the wounded. The person who is believed to nave thrown the bomb has been arrested with two others who are thought to have been implicated in the plot.

The projectile struck a soldier belonging to the cuirassier escort on the shoulder and then fell to the ground and exploded without injuring his majesty or the president, wno continued their drive to the Palais d'Orsay. Several soldiers of the escort were thrown from their horses and injured whilst fragments of the bomb struck a number of persons in the crowd.

King Alfonso and President Loubet had been cheered along the entire route to the opera by enthusiastic crowds, the young monarch having completely gained the hearts of Parisians since his arrival here.

The gala performance comprised "Samson and Delilah" and "Midletta."

When King Alfonso and President Loubet entered the building surrounded by a brilliant staff and followed by nearly the entire diplomatic corps and superior officials, the public, which was composed of the elite French society, rose and cheered, while the orchestra played the Spanish and French national anthems.

The performance went without a hitch. His majesty chatted gaily with President Loubet during the intermissions and at the close of the performance the orchestra again played the national hymns of the two countries and the king and president arose to leave.

They proceeded down the grand staircase and arrived at the gaily illuminated and decorated Place de L'Opera, where the royal carriage awaited them. The king and president took seats side by side and the vehicle started off, surrounded by several squadrons of cuirassiers toward the Avenue opera.

The space around the opera house was cleared for 200 yards, but the avenue was packed with a dense throng, which, while awaiting the passage of the royal and presidential parties, admired the charming scene, the decorations extending as far as the Palais Royal.

When the king's carriage passed at a gallop, followed by others containing the diplomatic corps and the ministers the crowd cheered itself hoarse, shouting: "Long live the king," and "Long live the president."

The procession arrived at the end of the avenue De L'Opera and crossed the Palace Theater Francaise, where were assembled at least 1,000 persons in the Rue De Rohan, a short street, forming practically a continuation of the Avenue De L'Opera, right opposite the arched gateway of the Louvre, leading to the Place Carousel. There, just a few yards before reaching the Rue Rivoli, a man sprang forward with his arm raised in the air, and before the cordon of police could prevent him, without uttering a word, threw a projectile in the direction of the royal carriage.

The police immediately rushed toward him. At that moment a deafening explosion occurred. Cries from the crowd were heard and a scene of intense excitement began, the crowd surging to and fro.

Soldiers were seen to fall, but as the flash of the bomb died out it was observed that the king and the president had not been struck and their carriage proceeded on its way.

The bomb had been thrown with too great force and passed over the royal carriage and struck the shoulder of a cuirassier and then fell to the ground, where it exploded, fragments of it striking the horses of the soldiers, causing them to bolt and throw their riders. Capt. Schneider, who was riding at the right side of the carriage, and Capt. Gardner, who was on the left, were both thrown. Fragments of the bomb also struck five persons—a sergeant, two policemen, a woman, who were seriously injured, and a child, who was struck in the eye. One horse of the escort was killed outright and six others lay about maimed and bleeding.

The force of the explosion was terrific and caused a derangement of the electric lights, which were all extinguished, adding darkness to the scene of the confusion. Women and children screamed, and a panic was for a time threatened in the vast throng until the police succeeded in restoring order.

In the meantime the remainder of the escort to the royal carriage had closed around the vehicle, which disappeared under the archway of the Louvre.

The young king was to be seen sitting beside the president. He was pale, but apparently calm. Just before the carriage disappeared the king called one of the attaches to the Spanish embassy and sent him back to make inquiries concerning the wounded. Then the carriage drove off to the Palais D'Orsay, hemmed in by troops and cavalry.

The police immediately gathered in a strong force and cleared the surrounding streets and began attending the wounded, who were carried to a nearby hotel.

Immediately following the explosion an individual was seen to dash into the crowd, but men seized him before he could escape and turned him over to the police. He is believed to have been the author of the outrage.

Many other arrests were effected. The first person taken was a man about 20 years old, having an injured eye. It was not known whether his wound was caused by the explosion or by the violence of the crowd. He refuses to speak.

A woman informed the police that she saw the man under a neighboring gateway talking to two men just before the explosion. He had something conical shaped in his hand. She also declares that she saw him lighting what she now considers must have been a fuse, but at the time, she says, she did not pay much attention to him.

After they had returned to the Palace D'Orsay, President Loubet remained for a considerable time with King Alfonso, who requested that he be informed of the circumstances surrounding the event. He desired to know whether anybody had been wounded, and he expressed his intention of not retiring until completely reassured on this point. His majesty telegraphed to his mother, informing her that he had safely returned to the royal quarters.

President Loubet withdrew after telling the king how much he deplored the shocking attempt, and congratulating him on his happy escape. Lights were observed until very late in the king's apartments. The king did not retire until informed that nobody had been mortally injured.

Late this morning the police reported that Paul Carlier, stenographer of the chamber of deputies, was among the wounded, having been struck in the groin by a fragment of the bomb. The woman hurt proved to be a dressmaker. Her injuries are not dangerous. Another woman had her dress torn to ribbons by the force of the explosion.

The policemen are the most seriously wounded. One received a fragment of the bomb in the back, while another was seriously injured in the leg.

The entire force of police reserves have been called on duty to maintain order.

An anarchist, who was arrested early this morning, was known by the police to have brought a number of bombs from Spain. Diligent search led to the discovery of all except one of them, which is believed to have been the bomb thrown at the royal carriage.

It was at first reported that all festivities would be suspended, but it is not thought that such action will be taken. The program today provides for a visit to the naval academy.

It is a singular coincidence that the minister of the interior received a dispatch from the queen mother only half an hour before the explosion, thanking France for the reception of her son and the good care taken of him.

A LASTING EFFECT

This Evidence Should Prove Every Claim for Doan's Kidney Pills in Duluth.

Relief from the pains and aches of a bad back is always welcome to every backache sufferer; but to cure a lame, weak or aching back is what's wanted. Cure it so it will stay cured. It can be done. Here's the strongest evidence to prove it:

H. G. Hibke, clerk in the Northern Pacific R. R. freight house, and living at Hunter's Park, Duluth, Minn., says: "In a testimonial given by me in 1898, which has been published often in the Duluth papers, I told how Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of a severe attack of kidney complaint, from which I had suffered for a long time. I believe that it was brought on in the first place by exposure to all kinds of weather and the jarring of driving. Backache set in, and the pains and aches made stooping and lifting very painful. Whenever I took cold it settled in my back and aggravated the trouble. The kidney secretions became discolored, irregular, and contained a sediment. I also had frequent attacks of backache. However, as I have emphatically declared, and will always affirm, Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of all these conditions, and today not a symptom of my former trouble remains."

THE FRICK REPORT WAS NOT ADOPTED.

New York, June 1.—At the meeting of the directors of the Equitable Life Assurance society, held yesterday, the report of the committee, headed by Henry C. Frick, was not adopted, the conference being devoted to a preliminary discussion of the most important recommendations of the report, some of which, it was ascertained, were of a very radical character. When adjournment until Friday was taken, Mr. Frick said he was unable to say when the report would be made public. All the directors at the meeting were pledged to maintain absolute secrecy.

CONSPIRACY IS CHARGED

Members of the Theatrical Trust Must Appear For Trial.

New York, June 1.—Twenty-four members of the so-called theatrical trust will have to stand trial on a charge of conspiracy, in accordance with a decision rendered yesterday by City Magistrate Joseph Pool in the West Side court in the long pending complaint of James S. Metcalfe, the dramatic critic, against the Theatrical Managers' association. Metcalfe charged conspiracy in that the members of the association passed a resolution Jan. 12 last, by which they agreed to bar him from their theaters.

The men held are Marc Klaw, Abraham L. Erlanger, Oscar Hammerstein, Daniel Frohman, Charles M. Burnham, Joseph K. Brooks, Heinrich Conreid, James H. Curtin, Martin Dickson, Frank McKee, J. W. Rosenquest, Al Braden, Joseph L. Springer, Leo Teller, W. C. Watson, Percy Williams, W. C. Jordan, Al Hayman, George Kraus, Ed. Stair, W. F. Keogh, L. L. Lichenstein, Antonio Pastor and Henry B. Harris. None of the managers were in court when the decision was rendered, but it was said they will be represented at the district attorney's office to arrange for bail.

In his decision, Magistrate Pool says the proceeding was brought by the district attorney under a section of the penal code relating to two or more persons conspiring to prevent a man from following a lawful calling. Of the contention that Marc Klaw and Abraham Eranger, though present when the resolution was passed, did not vote and should not be held, Magistrate Pool says:

"The evidence shows Marc Klaw and Abraham Erlanger were the principal subjects of the resolution and they subsequently carried out the resolve of the meeting by preventing the complainant from entering their several theaters though he demanded entrance and presented unquestionable tickets of admission. I hold that any member of the association, whether present or not, at the meeting who either directly or indirectly carried out the resolve of the meeting on Jan. 12 or threatened to do so, or who prevented the complainant from entering their respective theaters on his presenting himself for admission with good and proper tickets of admission, is liable to the same charge as if present at the meeting and voting."

Magistrate Pool denied the contention that a theater is private property and the legal right of the defendants to exclude the complainant on the ground that the theater is a 'quasi public' place, and said: "I hold a person cannot be denied admission to a theater solely on the ground that he had written criticisms reflecting on one or more members of the Theatrical Managers' association."

A TEMPLE OF ART.

Dedicatory Ode By Richard Watson Gilder.

Buffalo. N. Y., June 1.—At the opening of the Albright Art Gallery in this city yesterday afternoon, the following dedicatory ode. "A Temple of Art," by Richard Watson Gilder, was read:

I.

Slowly to the day day the rose,
The moon-flower suddenly to the night,
Their mysteries of light
In innocence unclose.

II.

In this garden of delight,
This pillared temple, pure and white,
We plant the seed of art,
With mystic power
To bring, or sudden or slow, the perfect flower,
That cheers and comforts the sad human heart;
That brings to man high thought
From a starry region caught,
And sweet, unconscious nobleness of deed;
So he may never lose his childhood's joyful creed,
Though years and sorrows to sorrows and years succeed.

III.

Though thick the cloud that hides the unseen life
Before we were and after we shall be,
Here in this fragment of eternity;
And havy is the burden and the strife—
The universe, we know, in beauty had its birth;
The day in beauty dawns, in beauty dies,
With intense color of the sea and skies;
And life, for all its rapine, with beauty floods the earth.
Lovely the birds, and their true song,
Amid the murmurous leaves, the summer long.
Whate'er the baffling power
Sent anger and earthquake and a thousand ills,—
It made the violet flower,
And the wide world with breathless beauty thrills.

IV.

Who built the world made man
With power to build and plan,
A soul all loveliness to love,—
Blossom below and lucent blue above,—
And new unending beauty to contrive.
He, the creature, may not make Beautiful beings all alive,—
Irised moth nor mottled snake,
The lily's splendor,
The light of glances infintely tender,
Nor the day's dying glow nor flush of morn,—
And yet his handiwork the angels shall not scorn,
When he hath wrought in truth and by Heaven's law,—
In lowliness and awe.
Bravely shall he labor, while from his pure hands
Spring fresh wonders, spread new lands;
Son of God, no longer child of fate,
Like God he shall create.

V.

When brotherhood is real
And all that justice can for man is done,
When the fair, fleeing anguished-for ideal
Turns actual at last; and neath the sun
Man hath no human foe;
And even the brazen sky, and storms that blow,
And all the elements have friendlier proved,
By human wit to human uses moved,
Ah, still shall art endure,
And beauty's light and lure,
To keep man noble, and make life delight,
Though shadows backward fall from the engulfing night.

VI.

In a world of little aims,
Sordid hopes and futile fames,
Spirit of Beauty! high thy place
In the fashioning of the race.
In this temple, built to thee,
We thy worshipers would be,
Lifting up, all undefiled,
Hearts as lowly as a child;
Humble to be taught and led
And on celestial manna fed;
So to take into our lives
Something that from heaven derives.

BONAPARTE TO BE SECRETARY

Baltimore Lawyer to Succeed Morton as Head of Navy.

Washington, June 1. — President Roosevelt yesterday authorized the announcement that Charles J. Bonaparte of Baltimore, would be appointed secretary of the navy to succeed Paul Morton, who earlier in the day stated he would retire July 1 to take charge of the plans for the contstruction of the New York subway system for operation in connection with the surface lines. The president also authorized the statement that no other change in the personnel of the cabinet was likely to take place in the near future. Secretary Shaw already has indicated his intention of retiring from the cabinet probably next February. Rumors of the retirement of Attorney General Moody have been published, but it is understood to be his intention now to continue in the cabinet for a year and a half and perhaps longer.

To all except President Roosevelt's closest advisers, the announcemtnt of the selection of Mr. Bonaparte as the heard of the navy came as a distinct surprise, although it had been determined on by the president for some time in accordance with Mr. Morton's retirement. In all the gossip Mr. Bonaparte had not been suggested as Mr. Morton's possible successor. For many years Mr. Bonaparte has been an intimate friend of the president. So great is Mr. Roosevelt's confidence in him that on many matters of national concern he has sought his advice and counsel.

To determine accurately the legal phase of the postoffice frauds, the president designated Mr. Bonaparte and Holmes Conrad to investigate the subject and on their report he took decisive action without hesitation. Eminent as a lawyer and as a publicist and a consistent advocate of civil service reform, Mr. Bonaparte has not been supposed to have more than an academic interest in the navy. In the upbuilding of the navy, however, he is known to be in perfect accord with the president and doubtless will carry into effect the views of Mr. Roosevelt in the strengthening of the naval establishment.

TABLES NEATLY TURNED.

Detective Fined For Carrying Concealed Weapons.

Washington, Ind., June 1.—The entire town is laughing at the peculiar turn of events following the arrest of William Cates, a Washington boy, on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Cates went to Mitchell Sunday morning to meet the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern excursion train from Cincinnati and distribute bills on the train. A railroad detective named Edward Gaston arrested Cates for carrying a revolver, and brought him to Washington and took him before Mayor Cirk for trial. The detective had Cates' revolver in his pocket when he entered the courtroom with his prisoner.

The mayor held that he had no jurisdiction in the case, as Cates was arrested while the train was traveling through Martin county, and Cates was acquitted. The latter then filed an affidavit charging the detective with being in possession of a concealed revolver in the mayor's office. The detective pleaded guilty and was fined $2,

Cates has filed suit against the railway company for $10,000 damages, alleging that he was marched through the streets of the city in irons, and that he was accused of a misdemeanor which the company's agent was unable to prove in court.

TOO MUCH WAR FOR BUSINESS

Conditions Not Favorable For Calm Consideration of Iron Markets.

Cleveland, June 1.—The Iron Trade Review this week says war has been uppermost in the minds of men this week, and whether honoring the memory of the heroes of the Civil conflict, or eagerly reading the acts of one of the greatest naval battles of the world's history, conditions have not been favorable for calm consideration of the markets, but there is much reason for hoping that peace will soon be declared in the Far East, and that as the smoke of battle disappears, an era of progress and prosperity will be inaugurated. The benefits of such a change cannot fail to be felt in the United States, for unless all indications are misleading, the demand for materials, not merely for battleships and guns, but also for countless implements of peace, will be very great.

A cablegram from the Japanese war department at Tokio orders the delivery by an Eastern Pennsylvania company of 1,000 trucks and other railroad supplies to be shipped to Port Arthur, for use by Oyama's army in equipping the Manchurian railway. The order was placed tentatively months ago, its consummation depending on the result of Togo's meeting with Rojestvensky.

The leading features of the markets have been continued dullness in pig iron, with Northern irons firmer than those of the South's prices on finished material well maintained as a rule, with a strong demand for scrap. It does not seem probable that the United States Steel corporation will buy Bessemer iron from the merchant furnaces for June delivery. The rail tonnage for this year now amounts to about 1,600,000, and in spite of recent announcements, the $28 price on standard sections will continue through the year and the apportionment of tonnage decided on for 1905 remains unchanged. Among recent heavy orders was one for 167 miles of line pipe and casing for Texas, Kansas and Washington, taken by a Youngstown Iron company, and another for 20,000 truck bolsters, placed by the B. & O. railroad, representing in money the largest order ever given to one concern for bolsters.

RELIGIOUS EPIDEMIC

Seizes the People In Several Chinese Districts.

New York, June 1.—It is reported by one of the missionaries in the work of the Presbyterian foreign board, that in the districts of Kaomi and Kiaochou, in China, there is a sort of religious epidemic similar to those occurring in Europe in the Middle ages. A belief has started among the people that the Gods are passing through the skies, and that, if besought, they will provide remedies with which the sick may be healed. The belief has spread with remarkable rapidity from village to village, and in the fields hundreds of people may be seen kneeling in front of burning incense, with some cake and wine as offerings. It is said that in one village 2,000 people were thus engaged. When the incense is burned the ashes are taken and given to the sick to eat. The officials are fearing that disturbances may result and are seeking to put a stop to the practice.

JUDGE HARGIS ARRESTED.

Winchester, Ky., June 1.—A sensation was caused here last night by the arrest of Judge James Hargis of Breathitt county, Senator A. H. Hargis and B. F. French of this city, on a charge of complicity in the murder of James B. Marcum several years ago. The warrant charges the men and Sheriff Ed Callahan of Breathitt county, with conspiracy, aiding and abetting Tom White and Curtis Jett, who it is alleged, did the actual killing. The warrant was issued by Police Judge Cardwell of Jackson, and was served by sheriff McCord.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Man Killed at Dollar Bay In Dispute Over Woman.

Dollar Bay—John Rogers of Dollar Bay was shot and killed and Charles Andrews has been arrested charged with the crime. The tragedy occurred during a dispute between the two men which is said to have been over a woman.

Marquette—A great stir has been caused in this portion of the upper peninsula by notification that a suit has been brought against the stockholders of the Manna Cereal company of Detroit by creditors holding claims of $20,000. The company was launched two years ago to manufacture a new breakfast food, but suspended business after its factory had been operated only a short time. Its capital was half a million, and large blocks were floated throughout northern Michigan, thirty-six Marquette men alone putting $20,000 into the venture.

It is asserted by the stockholders they were assured that the shares were full paid and non-assessable, and as the money invested is considered lost, notice of the suit has caused great resentment and the promoters are being vigorously scored. A conference of the upper peninsula shareholders will probably be called to outline a plan of action.

Saxon, Wis., the junction point of the South Shore and Chicago & Northwestern roads, 150 miles west of Marquette, is under quarantine against smallpox. The disease is reported to be epidemic, and it is said there are many cases. No one is permitted to leave the place. Officials of the state board of health have taken charge.

Calumet—Railroad extensions under way and contracted for in the upper peninsula indicate that there will be an unusually active season in the pineries next winter. At several points railroad extensions are being built to penetrate timber tracts now inaccessible and in each instance these extensions are preliminary to the construction of sawmills and manufacturing plants along their route.

An extension of ten miles is to be added to the Escanaba & Lake Superior railroad at once in order to tap a large tract of pine timber land owned by the I. Stephenson company north of Kates. A crew of men is already engaged in grading and within thirty days it is expected that the company will be hauling logs over the first four-mile stretch of the new line.

Manistique—A large hole was made in the ceiling of the Western Express company's office at Manistique a few nights ago by the explosion of a keg containing brewer's yeast. The noise was heard a long distance, and for a time it was supposed burglars had blown the safe. When shipped the yeast contained a cake of ice to keep it cool, and it is presumed the ice melted away, allowing increased fermentation, causing the keg to burst. The keg was strongly constructed of one and one-half inch oak and was well hooped.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Woman Attempts to Kill Five Children—Two Are Dead.

Hankinson—Mrs. James Burrows attempted to kill her five children and herself Tuesday, by giving them rhubarb sauce in which she had put laudanum. Kenneth Burrows, aged four, died a half hour after swallowing the second dose of the poisoned sauce. The mother insisted that the children take the sauce, saying that it would do them good. Four of the children refused a second helping of the mixture, but the youngest, not feeling any ill effects, took some more and was dead in a few minutes. The eldest boy summoned a doctor from the Spotswood hospital, but the child's life could not be saved. The verdict of the coroner's inquest was that the boy died from the effects of laudanum administered by his mother. Mrs. Burrows will be examined as to her sanity.

Fargo—Widowed after being a bride less than a month is the lot of Mrs. Wesley Arnold. Her husband was found dead in a local hotel, and nothing was known of the address of his relatives. Mrs. Arnold was at Buffalo, awaiting the return of her husband, when she saw the notice of his death in a Fargo paper. They were married at Watertown, S. D., early this month, and came to Fargo.

A message from Minot says that two attorneys of that city were among those indicted in connection with the Nurenberger land frauds in Ward county. The claim is made that they were in a conspiracy with Nurenberger. As no arrests have been made, local officials refused to discuss the matter. Many witnesses are here to testify in the Nurenberger case, the majority coming from Bowling Green, Ohio, where he formerly resided. The hearing of the criminal case against Nurenberger will probably be taken up Monday.

The jury in the case of G. R. Wannamaker vs. the Northern Pacific railway brought in a verdict for the plaintiff for $10,000. He sued for $25,000. He was riding in the caboose of a stock train. At Driscoll another train hit the caboose and caused injuries to Wannamaker which made him a permanent cripple.

As a result of an indictment by the recent grand jury, W. H. Young, a butcher at Neche, was brought here and jailed on the charge of smuggling hides across the boundary.

Lidgerwood—The Richland county Sunday school convention will be held in this city on June 2 and 3. A program has been arranged and a large attendance is expected. Prominent among the speakers will be John Orchard, Rev. C. D. Gambriel, Mrs. Jennie Mason and others. The business meeting will be held on Sunday afternoon.

The commencement exercises of the high school will be held Friday evening. The graduates are Henrietta Movius, Cora Bonzer, Maud McCutcheon, Ella Parizek, Clarence Bonzer, Gordon Stewart and Herbert Movius.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Huron—Never in the history of Huron was Memorial day more generally observed than this year. The procession to the cemetery was preceded by the cornet band, followed by the G. A. R., the W. R. C., Battery A of the South Dakota National Guard and many hundred citizens in carriages. The exercises were under the direction of the Grand Army, assisted by the W. R. C. The graves of forty-three Union soldiers and two Confederate soldiers were profusely decorated with flowers. In the afternoon an immense audience listened to a splendid address by Judge Charles S. Whiting. The exercises were presided over by Mayor Cleaver, and were interspersed with readings by Miss King and Miss Coffin, with solos by Miss Vander Stein and Rev. Fred W. Long, and patriotic songs by a male quartet. A feature of the day was the absence of athletic games and amusements and the closing of government offices, banks, county offices and business houses.

Pierre—An opinion was handed down in the supreme court in the following case: By Corson—Joe Kirby, appellant, vs. J. B. Martindale, Minnehaha county. Affirmed. This is a case in which Kirby sued Martindale for libel, charging damages in the rating, which was given him in the American Law Directory, published by Martindale. The defendant demurred to the complaint, and was sustained by the lower court and the supreme cort on the ground that the complaint did not show sufficient cause for action.

Notice of Dissolution.

The law partnership heretofore existing between the undersigned is dissolved by mutual consent of the parties from and after this date. Mr. Marshall will continue to occupy the suite of offices at No. 506 Providence Building, and Mr. Whipple has opened offices at No. 509 of the same building.

FUNERAL HELD

Final Services Over Remains of Brown Mallough Are Held.

Conducted By His Life Long Friend, Dr. Robert Forbes.

The funeral of Brown Mallough took place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Westminster Presbyterian church, and interment was in Oneota cemetery. Rev. Robert Forbes, the well-known Methodist clergyman, conducted the funeral services, and Euclid lodge of Masons attended the funeral in a body, the funeral being under the auspices of that order, of which Mr. Mallough was a member.

Dr. Forbes has been a life-long friend of Mr. Mallough, having known him since he was a boy. In fact, Mr. Mallough went to school to Dr. Forbes before the latter entered the clergy.

The funeral was largely attended. for Mr. Mallough was well and favorably known throughout West Duluth and Superior, and quite a number from each place were in attendance.

OLSON FUNERAL

Takes Place Friday Afternoon From Home.

The funeral of Arthur Olson, the 12-year-old son of Alfred Olson of 5516 Columbia avenue, will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2:30, from the family residence. Interment will be in Oneota cemetery. The parents and three surviving sisters have the sympathy of West Duluth people, as the boy, unusually bright, was the only son of the family and was a general favorite. He died Memorial day of bowel trouble.

Mr. Olson is section boss of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, and it was at his house that the three men injured yesterday by a Missabe road train, boarded.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Mrs. Haldora Olson is now running a private hospital at 329 North Fifty-eight avenue west, and has the place excellently fitted up for the purpose.

Mrs. M. Charistensen has gone to Neenah, Wis., on a visit of several weeks to friends.

Prescriptions at cost at Spencer's drug store, postoffice corner.

Miss Leota Hoyt has gone to Lafayette, Ind., to join her parents, who moved to that place from West Duluth this spring.

Reduced prices on drugs and sundries until June 1st—Olander's.

The tennis club will meet tomorrow night and organize for the year. It is likely that the site of the old skating rink, at Fifty-first avenue west and Ramsey street, will be made into grounds for the club. That will be decided at tomorrow night's meeting.

J. P. Weir and Rev. Peter Knudson, the latter pastor of the New Duluth Presbyterian church, have returned from the general Presbyterian assembly at Winona Lake, Ind. They were there as delegates from the Duluth presbytery.

Large Gifts to Charity.

Donations and bequests for last year total nearly a half billion of dollars, as compared with about $123,000,000 in 1901, which was then the record-breaking year. The record-breaking medicine for the year 1904 was Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, it having been the means of restoring more sickly people to robust health than any other. It is really a wonderful medicine for those whose stomach has become weak, whose liver is inactive or whose kidneys are unable to perform their proper functions. Thousands of such sufferers use it exclusively. It positively restores the stomach to its normal condition and thus cures indigestion, dyspepsia, nausea, costiveness, bloating, heartburn, sleeplessness, female disorders, cramps or malaria, fever and ague. Try it today. Our Private Stamp is over the neck of the bottle.

MARRIED ON MONDAY,

She Was Made a Widow on Wednesday.

La Crosse, Wis., June 1.—By the death of Walter S. Davis yesterday morning his wife of forty-eight hours formerly a young lady compelled to work for her living becomes heiress to a third interest in the Davis estate the value of which has not yet been definitely settled but which is estimated to be worth several hundered thousand dolars.

Walter Davis and Elizabeth R. Stipek fell in love with each other some time ago, but Mr. Davis' health was poor and he did not wish to mary. Monday realizing that he was near death, he married the young lady. The R. L. Davis estate is to be settled next January, and the only heirs are the young bride, her mother-in-law and brother-in-law.

BAPTIST PASTOR

Leaves Church In Iowa Under a Cloud.

Mason City, Iowa, June 1.—Rev. Mr. Marsh, pastor of the Baptist church at Rockwell, has taken sudden leave of his parish and with his wife left for Holyoke, Mass., his old home. His act, it is said, was brought about by persecution, to which he has been subjected by citizens of Swaledale, a former pastorate, where his associations with a certain young woman engendered much talk and resulted in his resignation only a few weeks ago.

The preacher drove to Cartersville, where he took the Northwestern, bound for the East. He had not yet severed his connection with the church at Swaledale, so it will have the task of disposing of the matter.

JILTED DOCTOR

Sues Girl For Broken Promise of Marriage.

Pittsburg, June 1.—Dr. W. W. Campbell, a well-known young physician of McKeesport, has brought suit against Miss Ross Breitenreiter, a prominent society girl of that city, for breach of promise to marry. He places the damages done to his affections at $25,000. The plaintiff claims that he became acquainted with the defendant in January, 1904, "after which he started to keep company with her at her home in McKeesport."

He claims that he proposed marriage in February, and that May 4, 1905, was set for the day of their wedding. Campbell says that after their engagement he went to live at the house of the defendant and remained there for several months; also, since their engagement he has not "kept company with any other women," and has been deprived of all opportunities of marrying.

GOOD STANDING

Louis W. McKeethan of Minneapolis leads the third class with 149.82 points, and Philip G. Lauman of Des Moines, Iowa, is fifth with 140.90 points, out of a maximum 160.

MRS. BRODIE DUKE

Expects Final Victory Over Her Enemies.

Chicago, June 1.—Mrs. Brodie L. Duke, wife of the millionaire tobacco magnate, whose fight against being placed in an asylum on the claim of his family that his marriage showed a weak mind, which made him the prey of a designing woman, was in Chicago yesterday.

She stopped in this city for the purpose of conferring with her partner in her Texas tobacco ventures, Charles F. Taylor.

She charges the fight against her and her husband, to whom she was married in January, to have been dictated by the tobacco trust, which, she says, is endeavoring to break up her tobacco plans.

"The war is not yet over," she said. "It has been a long fight, and so far I have won. I feel jubilant because of my victory."

Mrs. Duke said she expected to join her husband, who, she said, will soon be released. Mrs. Duke said she and her husband were on the best of terms.

SHIPS SURRENDERED WITHOUT FIGHTING

Admiral Nebogatoff Made No Resistance Sunday Morning.

French Minister Hurries to Russia In Interests of Peace.

Tokio, May 31, Wednesday, 9:30 p. m. (Delayed in transmission.)—A number of wounded Japanese sailors have arrived at the hospital at Maidhury navy yard. They describe the battle between the Japanese and Russian fleets as follows:

At dawn Saturday our squadron left its rendezvous and advanced through the Tsushima channel. At 2:08 in the afternoon we sighted the Russian fleet. Gradually closing in, we found the Kniaz Souvaroff leading the line with the Borodino, the Alexander III, the Orel, the Osliabia and the Navarin following in the order named. The Nicolai I brought up the rear. Parallel to this line was observed five cruisers. After them came the special service ships and torpedo boat destroyers. We counted thirty-two Russian ships in all.

Our fleet with the battleship Mikasa leading, proceeded towards the Russians in vertical line formation. The Souvaroff opened fire first, and then suddenly turned, reversing her course. Almost simultaneously the Mikasa opened fire with her big guns and thus the curtain rose on the great battle. The hostile fleets gradually closed toward each other, exchanging a vigorous fire. The armored cruiser Asama appeared within 3,000 yards of the Russian fleet and carefully observed its action.

After a short but fierce fight the Admiral Oushakoff's deck was observed to be ablaze and the ship left the line. By 4:30 in the afternoon the Russian line was dirordered and his fight slackened. The Borodino and Kamtchatka had been disabled and soon sank. The Borodino continued fighting bravely until she was sunk.

The Japanese fleet continued to maintain enveloping positions from sundown until dawn. Sunday morning opened misty but the weather soon cleared and the search for the remainant of the Russian fleet was begun. Five Russian ships were discovered in the vicinity of Liancourt island and they were at once surrounded. One, supposed to be the Isumrud, escaped at full speed. The remaining four offered no resistance and hoisted the Japanese flag over the Russian colors, apparently offering to surrender. Captain Yashiro, commanding the Asama, started in a small boat to ascertain the real intentions of the Russians, when Admiral Nebogatoff lowered a boat and came on board the Asama, where he formally surrendered. The prisoners were distributed among the Japanese ships and prize crews took charge of the captured vessels. About this time, we received a message saying that a portion of our fleet was hotly engaging the remaining Russian ships.

The Asama went to the scene of the combat and found the Russian cruiser Dmitri Donskoi vigorously resisting the Japanese attack. The Donskoi tried to escape and we pursued her until after sundown, resuming torpedo attacks at nightfall. On Monday morning the search was resumed by a portion of the Japanese fleet, and it was learned that the Donskoi had been beached on Ulloun island. We were ordered to bring the Orel to Mladzuru. On the way the captain of the Orel died of wounds received during the battle. While we were proceeding we were advised of the capture of Rojestvensky and our men were greatly cheered by the news.

St. Petersburg, June 1, 7:10 p. m.—An evening paper today printed a sensational story from a Paris correspondent, saying he was in a position to state that after the passage of many telegrams last night between the French foreign office and the French embassy here, M. Bompard, the French ambassador, is returning hastily to St. Petersburg from Paris, at request of Russia, to arrange for peace negotiations, France having agreed if Japanese terms are too onerous to undertake to ask the concert of all the powers to compel both powers to mediate.

At both the foreign office and the French embassy the story was denied, but there is reason to believe that M. Bompard is bringing a direct message from Foreign Minister Delcasse, urging Russia to make peace.

SEIZE HOSPITAL SHIPS.

London, June 1.—The Daily Telegraph's Shanghai correspondent says that the hospital ships Orel and Kostroma have ben captured and taken to Sasebo, charged with infringing The Hague convention. The Daily Telegraph's Tokio correspondent says that three Russian warships of the Izumrud, Kniaz Souvaroff and Auroras types have arrived at Hamada, on the west coast of Honshiu, Japan, and will probably be captured.

LOOK FOR LAND VICTORY.

Headquarters of Gen. Kuroki's Army, via Fusan, June 1.—There is every reason to believe that the next campaign of this army will be even more successful than the past. The soldiers have the spirit and discipline of veterans, and nothing is lacking in equipment and supplies. No engagements have occurred east of the railroad for a fortnight, and the only shots fired are when the cavalry patrols of the two armies have brushes.

REPORTS CONFIRMED.

Washington, June 1.—The Japanese legation today received an official dispatch which confirms in every detail the Associated Press report from Tokio today, giving the details of the Russian defeat and designating the three Japanese torpedo boats, which were the only Japanese losses. It states that practically the whole fighting strength of both fleets were engaged and that the Russian fleet was practically annihilated.

AMERICANS DEFEATED IN ENGLISH CONTEST.

London, June 1.—The first round of the international golf championship contest at Cromer opened today with two Americans still fighting gamely for championship honors. Miss Mary B. Adams of Boston in this round beat Miss Nevans of Woolton by 6 up and 5 to play, thus reaching the sixth stage, but Miss Margaret Curtis of Massachusetts lost on the nineteenth green to Miss Thompson.

Miss Adams, the last of the American players left in the contest, was defeated in the sixth round by Mrs. Brown by 5 up and 4 to play.

HAD A VERY CLOSE CALL

King Alfonso and President Had a Narrow Escape.

Paris, June 1.—A semi-official version of the bomb explosion last night given out today increases the gravity of the affair and shows the narrowness of the escape of both King Alfonso and President Loubet. The right panel of the carriage, which side M. Loubet occupied, has five perforations. A footman named Victor, who was sitting on the left side of the carriage, received splinters in the thigh and both horses were injured. The horse of one of the guards belonging to the escort received the full force of the charge in his chest, thus averting it from the two rulers. The king noticing a momentary confusion among the escort calmed them by saying:

"Reassure yourselves, gentlemen. This is nothing."

Then turning to the frightened crowd, he added: "Calm yourselves. This is nothing."

Afterward the king told M. Loubet that this was his fourth escape from an attempt on his life. He said his only concern was the agony it must have caused his mother.

Horse Ran Away.

A dangerous runaway took place Tuesday afternoon on the boulevard and only luck prevented a more serious result. W. M. Gravatt was driving a livery rig and near Lake avenue stopped for a moment. The horse suddenly plunged forward and bolted down the avenue. After running some distance it fell and broke a leg so badly that shooting was necessary. Miss E. Tyson who was in the buggy was thrown out and suffered a sprained ankle which has confined her to her home.

WARLIKE FEELING

Said to Be Absent Among the Norwegians.

Christiania, June 1.—All party feeling has been obliterated in the face of the crisis between Sweden and Norway, and the whole country is of one mind, but the people and the newspapers preserve a sober and unprovocative temper and there is a complete absence of any warlike feeling. At the same time Norway's defenses are said to be in a far better state than they were during the crisis of 1895.

The first two are Austrians, Matt and George Maranitch. They were on their way to the Stevenson mine to work. The consumptive is a Finlander, John Santala by name. They were ordered back to Port Arthur.

TRAIN HITS OIL WAGON.

Dayton, Ohio, June 1.—Pennsylvania passenger train No. 28 from St. Louis struck an oil wagon at Stillwater Junction early today. As the oil tank bursted, the engine fires ignited the oil and Engineer Edward Gimby and Fireman Charles Pryor of Columbus, Ohio, were burned to death, the driver of the wagon escaping uninjured. The train was not damaged.

ROOSEVELT TO GO SOUTH IN AUTUMN.

Washington, June 1.—President Roosevelt will start on his trip through the South next autumn on the night of Oct. 17. This announcement was made at the White House today. Coupled with it was the statement that the extraordinary session of congress, which it is the present intention of President Roosevelt to call, will not begin until after the November elections.

WITCHCRAFT CHARGE.

Appears In a Modern New York Court.

Emanuel Wilkins, a very black, very neat little negro, and Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Johnson, a very black, very neat little negress, fought out a charge of witchcraft in Jefferson Market court yesterday morning, says the New York Sun.

Mrs. Johnson, who has gray kinky hair and copious jewelry, keeps a lodging house at 149 West Thirty-third street, and she told the tale of enchantment in a soft Southern brand of English.

Wilkins, she said, went to her house early Sunday evening, inqured for a room, and deftly changed the subject to the occult. He was a seventh son, he explained, and the pupil of a white "planet man." This was Mrs. Johnson's planet day, and he could show her how to make a great fortune. He added that one of her friends was trying to poison her.

Mrs. Johnson fetched a newspaper, a glass of water, a salt cellar, a spool of thread and all her ready money, $45 in six bills, at Wilkins' suggestion. He added a needle and a piece of muslin He folded the bills in the paper, the paper in the muslin, sewed the ends, and placed the packet on Mrs. Johnson's head. She put her hands up to it.

"If you touch it," the wizard warned her, she says, "you'll spoil the planets."

He sprinkled the packet with water and salt, made mystic motions over it, and pronounced a number of strange-sounding incantations. Then he took it down.

"Keep it in your bosom all night," he said, "or you'll drop dead. Take it out in the morning, and if it's green, some one is trying to poison you. Then take out the money, burn the paper in a hot fire, and you'll be safe from poison and your money will keep doubling."

As the necromancer went out Mrs. Johnson cried to Mrs. Bird, her lodger,

As the necromancer went out, Mrs. Johnson cried to Mrs. Bird, her lodger, "I believe I've thrown away my money."

They ran after the wizard, but he was nowhere in sight.

None the less, Mrs. Johnson kept the packet in her bosom all night. When she opened it, it was still white. Also it was empty. On Thursday she and Mrs. Bird saw Wilkins pass the house and had him arrested.

Wilkins, whose speech is interrupted by constant grins and chuckles, described himself in court as an elevator attendant, 36 years old, living with his wife, Elizabeth, at 222 West Sixty-fourth street. He declared that he had never seen Mrs. Johnson, and with the aid of his wife and Thomas J. Bell, secretary of the Colored Young Men's Christian association, he established a fairly complete alibi for last Sunday and proved a good reputation.

"One point will settle it," said Magistrate Cornell. "Is this man's irrepressible joviality habitual?"

"Yes," said Bell and Mrs. Wilkins together.

"How did the necromancer talk?" the magistrate asked Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Bird.

Both agreed that he was grave and solemn in the extreme, as befitted a worker of magic.

"I'm afraid you've made a mistake in the identification," said the magistrate. "I don't doubt that there was black art, but I don't think this man is the artist. Discharged.

NOT EASY TO DO

Railroad Commission Trying to Devise Hay Inspection System.

They Hold Conference With Hay Dealers of Duluth.

A meeting of the state railroad warehouse and commission, comprised of Judge Ira B. Mills, Charles F. Staples and William E. Young, with the local commission men and dealers in hay and feed products is being held at the Board of Trade building this afternoon to determine on some plan whereby the new state law providing for some sort of hay inspection in the distributing markets, may become operative under a practical system, or a system that will make the inspection department self-supporting.

The problem is a difficult one to solve and Commissioner Staples declares that wherever the commission has taken the matter up it has been a "haystack problem."

The meeting, which was an informal discussion, was attended by an even dozen of the local dealers and commission dealers in hay and feed. It convened at 2 o'clock and at 3 o'clock, although the question had been discussed at some length, the commissioners and the dealers seemed to be just at much at sea as to what would be a satisfactory inspection system as when they started out.

The discussion developed that there has been, according to Judge Mills, a great deal of complaint from country hay shippers that when their hay passing through this market to the range country was unloaded and disposed of there was little remaining in the deal for the shippers. This complaint he held embodied both the grading and weighing.

This idea was combatted by local dealers who, selling on commission, send the original cars of hay straight through to range consumers without being unloaded at this point. The dealers claimed, however, that they took into consideration the honesty of the shipper and of the buyer and that when an occasion did arise where a car of hay was refused or complaint was made by the consumer, negotiations were entered into for a satisfactory settlement for all concerned, or the car of hay was sold to another party.

One dealer claimed that nine-tenths of the complaints about the grade of the hay comes from the city trade, that when the country consumer occasionally finds a bale or two of hay not up to the grade in the car, he takes it as a matter of course and says nothing, whereas the local consumer will make a great deal of trouble.

Another point brought out in the discussion was that about 75 per cent of the hay shipped into Duluth is unloaded here while the remaining 25 per cent is reshipped to other points depending on this market.

Commissioner Young suggested the idea of a door inspection, subject to a reinspection, where the cars are sent out without unloading, the fee to be fixed on all the cars at $1 each. He asked if that amount would be acceptable to the shippers, and whether the additional cost of reweighing and transhipping the 25 per cent of the hay would be made up out of the dollar by the lesser cost of inspection of the hay unloaded here in the warehouses.

Some of the dealers were inclined to think the idea had merit, while others thought that sort of inspection would not prove satisfactory.

The local dealers claim that their door inspection now for cars for re-shipment and not unloaded here is subject to approval of the buyers.

A dealer who buys all his hay direct and puts it in his warehouse before re-shipping it, stated that the cost of unloading and reloading was in the neighborhood of $2 per car. Questioned by Commissioners Staples he said that the inspection was done between himself and the seller, but that his warehouseman really grades the hay and he refuses to accept it if the hay is not up to what it was purchased for.

The law, Commissioner Staples contended was passed at the instance of the farmers who do the shipping and that it is the sellers that some provision for inspection must be made.

The idea advanced by the local dealers of having a "hay track" in the Northern Pacific yards with an inspection at 50 cents a car was under discussion at a late hour this afternoon.

Many Cars Handled.

The total number of cars handled by the Lake Superior Car Service association during the month of May, according to figures compiled by James Kelly, chairman, was 13,587, as compared to 16,886 cars during a corresdonding period in 1904, and increase of 1,701. More building material was handled than in May, 1904, and also more coal cars. Last month the coal cars handled by the association was 6,978, and in May, 1904 the total was 5,602.

INGRATITUDE.

"That's the last time I shall ever act as social mentor," said the nervous woman. "When Mazie was married she came to me for advice. I ordered her wedding announcements, gave her tips about her trousseau, told her what she was expected to provide and what the bridegroom paid for, and did all those little things.

"I went to the wedding, and I must say that I could not see the effects of my careful coaching. Now that she was married I knew she would want to drop a lot of what she called her 'table d'hote' best boys, who used to take her out to supper Sunday evenings.

"'Remember, Mazie,' warned as I was leaving. 'When you come back from your trip, send cards to all those whom you wish to have call. But if there are any whom you want to drop just forget to send them a card, and that is all.'

"Well?" asked the friend.

"I received no card," was the wail. "I had taught her how to cut me."

THROW OUT PLANTS.

Scientists Say House Plants Communicate Disease.

The cold-hearted scientists who have made us give up kissing and a lot of pleasant things in life, all on account of microbes, now say we must get rid of the house plants and beautiful flowers with which our wives and daughters make home different from a barn, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

There is no doubt that the scientists slander some of the pretty house flowers when they class them as poisonous and full of danger. They say, for instance, that the oleander is rank poison, every part of it. Yet there is a man in Brooklyn who lived in the same room with a big oleander for years and never suffered any ill effects; and there are hundreds of other people who have oleanders in the house and do not get poisoned.

However, the doctors and scientists have the best of the argument as to some flowers. They produce medical records to prove their claim that certain house plants are very dangerous.

Eczema, dermatitis and other serious skin diseases have been caused by house plants. In this pleasant spring time the warning of the doctors sounds a harsh note, but there is no time when the warning is more urgently needed.

The beautiful primroses we see in the homes are very naughty flowers. They give people eczema and other skin eruptions. Maybe there are hundreds of women in this borough suffering from an eruption of the skin, and all unaware of the fact that it was caused by primroses. The Bordeaux Medical Journal published recently a report on a number of cases of dermatitis caused by primroses. In one case a gardener who had suffered from violent attacks of eczema in the right hand every spring for nine years, was relieved of the painful eruption soon after he excluded primroses from his house.

A more curious case was that of a woman who received a birthday present of several pots of China primroses on Oct. 15, 1894. In a short time she broke out with a violent eruption on the hands and face. It would not yield to treatment, and did not disappear until the following spring. The pots of primrose were set out in the garden in the spring, and the eruption disappeared. The woman did not connect the primroses with her eruption. Every fall, as soon as the primroses were carried into the house, the eruption would reappear. This continued until 1901, when the woman learned that the primroses were the source of her skin trouble. The primroses were then kept out of the house and the eruption never returned.

Another woman was fond of a China primrose given to her, and she spent a great deal of time cultivating it and caring for it. The result was an acute eruption of the forearm and face, with inflammation of the eyes and eyelids.

In most of the reported cases the primrose poisoning was localized in the hands and face, but Pizza has observed a case of eruption on the chest of a woman who had worn a bouquet of China primroses. Another woman bit off primrose blossoms and had acute sores on the lips and in the mouth.

The beautiful rambler rose that is just now beginning to bloom in all its splendor is one of the most dangerous of plants. Several Brooklyn florists have had severe trouble with their hands and face as a result of handling rambler roses.

Chrysanthemums are irritants of a very disagreeable kind. No florist enjoys handling these queens and princesses of the daisy world. Quite recently an article appeared in the Munich Medical Weekly telling of a woman who spent six hours in cutting chrysanthemums, and was then seized with a mild eruption on the face and arms.

Arbor vitae is another dangerous plant. There is a record of a case where a waiter crushed one of the leaves in his fingers and was attacked by a a serious eruption that was hard to cure. Oleander is possibly the most dangerous of house plants. This magnificent plant, known as the South Sea rose, the rose bay and rose laurel, has won a bad reputation by its poisonous qualities.

Clematis of the hedges is so notoriously irritant that it is nicknamed beggar's weed, the professional mendicants using it to cause an acute eruption and arouse sympathy from gullible people along their way. Clematis has about the same effect as stinging nettles.

There are several poisonous species of Rhus used as house plants because of the beauty of their foliage. They are not necessarily dangerous and rarely cause irritation, the exceptions being in persons with a predisposition toward plant poisoning. This susceptibility is very marked in some persons, others being immune. A great many people will break out with a violent eruption after walking several yards distant from a poison ivy plant; others can crush the poison ivy leaves in their hands without ill effects.

PENNIES PILE UP.

The sum paid yearly for rent by the proprietor of an amusement enterprise is $55,000, says the New York Sun. The highest price of any amusement he provides is one cent. They are all stores in central parts of the city, flashily decorated and arranged for the display of the various electric devices. There always seem to be crowds in these places, and the fact that he pays such a high rent is ample evidence of the public appreciation of his efforts. It takes a great many cents to make $55,000, but this impressario is constantly adding to his list of places of cheap amusement.

HIS ENGAGEMENT.

New York Sun: An active operator in real estate, who had planned to close a title at 1 o'clock, telephoned his lawyer:

"Have these men come at 11 o'clock. I have a positive engagement at 1." The change in time was made and when the transfer had been accomplished the real estate man turned to his lawyer with a smile.

"Do you know what that engagement was?" he asked. "Well, it's the ball game. I haven't missed one in years, and I couldn't think of letting a mere matter of business make me late."

GREAT AMATEUR FARMER.

Austin Chamberlain's favorite hobby is amateur farming, says the Kansas City Journal. He has at Highbury (at his father's country residence, for the same home serves for father and son), a little farm, separated from the garden only by a high wall. He has stocked on this farm some of the choicest cattle to be found in England; in particular, a herd of Jerseys, which he obtained originally from Lord Rothschild. His model farm supplies the home with the best quality of milk and butter.

A MARRIAGE MASCOT.

Alderman Hamburger of New York city has been in office three and a half years and during that time he united 6,000 people in wedlock—that is, he had performed 3,000 ceremonies, says the Kansas City Journal.

He points with pride to the fact that only two knots of his making have been severed by the divorce courts and justly draws the conclusion that there is something lucky about a marriage made by him. "Let's go to the man who has no divorces on his record," has become such a favorite slogan that the alderman was overrun during Easter week with applications for marriage. There is no money reward for the alderman who gets up in the middle of the night to exercise this charter privilege.

CLUB DRINKS CHEAP.

The cheapest place in New York to buy a drink happens to be a Fifth avenue club, which boasts many millionaires among its members, says the New York Sun. They pay less for food and drink than the customers of very modest restaurants. The reason is that the club is conducted only for the convenience of the members, who are numerous enough to make such cheap rates possible. They also patronize the club restaurant and order liberally. The prices in clubs depends on the amount of money the members spend. And thus it happens that the club which has the largest dining room and the most extensive bill of fare can supply its members much more reasonably than the club with very limited kitchen resources and few to patronize them.

Moving Time Has Arrived 4 Weeks Sooner Than We Expected!

The time given us to occupy our annex was August 1st to 15th, but the contractors have pushed their work ahead so rapidly that we are able to take possession several weeks before that time—in fact, July 1st is the date given us now. But four weeks remain in which to adjust our stocks before moving time—four weeks in which to clean our garment racks and shelves, many departments of which will hereafter be in the annex to our present store. We hope to have our stocks so reduced in the coming four weeks so as to have very little, if any, of certain stocks to move.

We began today the clearance of every garment in our house, including Women's Tailored Suits, Dresses, Costumes, Evening Wraps and Coats of various kinds, Tan Covert Jackets, Black Jackets, Separate Skirts, Waists and everything contained in our garment department. Also Girls' Coats, Dresses, Skirts, etc. The reductions are a fourth, a third, a half, and, in some instances, less than half regular prices—for we are determined to clean them out rather than get them dusty from the walls that we are compelled to break through.

Coming practically at the beginning of Duluth's summer season—the time when Summer Coats, Suits, Skirts and Wraps will be in greatest demand—it is evident that it is an opportune time for buying one's needs.

BIG BULGE IN JULY OPTION IN WHEAT

Duluth and Minneapolis Markets Advance About Five Cents.

Congestion In July Now Looked For—Flax Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 1.—The grain trade had been very generally looking for a temporary cessation of pressure on the wheat market after the May deals were out of the way, but as usual the market took the course opposite to the general sentiment. Both Duluth and Minneapolis had sensational advances in the July option, and the conviction is now strong that there is trouble ahead for shorts in these two markets, and that the punishment given them may be worse than that suffered by those who were short in the May. In the Duluth market the July closed 4¾c up and sold ⅛c higher than that, while in Minneapolis the gain was 5c and the high point ¼c higher than that. In Chicago this option gained 1⅝-¾c, in St. Louis ¾-⅞c, in Kansas City 1-1⅛c and in New York 1¼-⅜c. The September option closed 1⅝c higher in Duluth, 1⅝c higher in Minneapolis, 1¼c higher in Chicago, 1-1⅛c higher in New York, 1c higher in St. Louis and 1-1⅛c higher in Kansas Cley.

The cash demand again shows signs of stiffening up. For a few days before the May option went out it had dropped off, awaiting the close of the deal, in the belief that conditions would then be less strenuous.

The Liverpool market closed ½@¾d higher and London unchanged.

Car receipts at Duluth were 12 against 18 last year, and at Minneapolis 344 against 166 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 256 against 126 last year. Chicago received 4 against 17 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 305,000 bus, last year 275,000 bus. Shipments 304,000 bus, last year 233,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 48,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed 1d higher. In the Chicago marekt July corn closed 1-4d higher. July oats closed ½c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 366,000 bus, last year 1,168,000 bus. Shipments 682,000 bus, last year 772,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 49,00 bus.

In the Duluth market there was a little more activity in the trading than there has been for some time. The July option opened 1c higher at $1.06 and bulged steadily to $1.12⅞ at 10:50 and continued there for some time. At 12:30 it sold at $1.12⅝ and then rallied a few moments later to $1.12¾, at which price it closed. This was an advance of 4¾c. The new September opened ½c higher at 79½c, advanced to 80⅞c, and closed at 80¾c. The old September opened ⅝c higher at 83⅞c, advanced to 85¼c and closed at 84⅞c, an advance of 1¾c.

Cash wheat prices are now based on the July option No. 1 northern being quoted at July price. Durum wheat advanced 1c today.

Flax was fairly active in the October option. It opened unchanged at $1.29¾, fell to $1.28½, rallied to $1.28⅞ and fell back to $1.28¾.

The close was at $1.28¾, a loss of 1c for the day. The July option advanced 2c to $1.50 and then closed unchanged at $1.48.

Oats advanced ½c and rye was unchanged.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive—No. 1 northern, $1.12¾; On track—No. 1 northern, $1.12¾; No. 2 northern, $1.06¾. Durum No. 1, 91c; No. 2, 89c; July, $1.12¾; Sept., old, 84⅞c; new, 80¾c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Active Demand Gives Wheat a Strong Tone.

Chicago, June 1.—A strong tone pervaded the wheat market here today as a result of active demand for the July option. An advance of over 4c in the price of that delivery at Minneapolis was the main cause of bullish sentiment here, although unexpectedly firm cables contributed to the upturn. July opened ½c to ⅝c higher at 87¾c to 87⅝c. The price continued to advance until it had touched 88⅝@½c, when a reaction to 88¼@¾c followed. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 260 cars against 295 cars last week and 143 cars a year ago.

Shorts were good buyers throughout the day. With increased strength at Minneapolis prices here made fresh advances, July selling up to 89c. Part of the gain was lost during the last hour, the market being subject to considerable liquidation, the close, however, was strong with July up 1⅝@1¾c at 88½@⅝c.

Influenced by decreased receipts and numerous reports of damage, sentiment in the corn pit was bullish. Prominent commission houses were liberal purchasers of the July delivery. That option opened⅝@¾c to ¾@1c up at 45¾c to 49¾c and advanced to 50c. Local receipts were 291 cars, with 127 of contract grade.

Exceptionally good demand was in evidence the entire day, and with comparatively small offerings, the price of July rose to 51c. The close was strong with July up ⅞@1c at 50⅝c.

Strength of other grain created a firm undertone in the oats market, offsetting the bearish effect of fine weather. July opened unchanged to a shade lower at 30¼@⅜c to 30⅜c and advanced to 30⅝c. Local receipts were 149 cars.

Provisions were firm on a fair demand from packers. A steady tone in hogs had a strengthening influence. July pork was up 2½c at $12.45. Lard also was up 2½c at $7.27. Ribs were a shade to 2½c higher at $7.22½@7.25 to $7.35.

Wheat—July, 88½@⅝c; September, 82¾@⅞c; December, 81⅝c. Corn—July, 50⅝c; old, 51c; September, 49¼c; old, 49⅝c; December 47⅝c; old, 47¾c; May, 47c. Oats—July, 30⅜c; September, 29½c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

South Dakota weekly crop report: The temperature during the week averaged lower than usual, with mostly cool nights. There were well distributed showers and considerable cloudiness, and the soil is amply moist generally. Wheat on the whole continues in very healthy condition, is stooling well and has made favorable growth, but there is still complaint of some scattered fields showing thin stands and being weecy. Oats, barley, spring rye, and spelt have made healthy progress and the earlier sown are stooling out very favorably, but complaint continues of some scattered fields of oats being thin and weedy. Corn planting is nearing completion, having apparently been but little retarded by the showers, and in all sections the early planted is either up or coming up. Germination and growth have been slow, however, because of the cool nights and considerable cloudy weather, and in some localities considerable replanting appears to have been necessary. The sowing of flax on old land is far advanced and considerable of the early sown is up and looking healthy. In several counties reports indicate that some sod will be broken and be partly sown to flax. Winter rye and the limited acreage of winter wheat are in thrifty and growing condition. In the southeastern counties some rye is beginning to head.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—From the start our market took its cue entirely from Minneapolis and Duluth, both of which were sharply higher for July. Prices of cash wheat even for far off grades were exteremely strong and buoyant. This seems to indicate some one is anxious to buy cash stuff in Minneapolis. Trade today has been almost wholly local. The recent decline incensed the short interest and much of the early buying in today's market came from covering of shorts. The continued strength in Northwest markets added to the uneasy feeling. The trade had evidently overlooked the fact that stocks are small and it required very little selling to place July in a congested position. It is still a trading maket subject to good swings in either direction. On sharp declines would buy wheat.

Corn—Nothwithstanding liberal receipts and improved weather for the growing crop the market was extremely strong right from the start. The prices bid for No. 2 and 3 cor on track o not show any weakness. With the clearing up of the weather and higher temperatures the new crop will make up for lost time. Seeding is about done and if present prices are maintained we feel the farmers will take advantage of their chance to market some of their surplus stocks. Without improvement in the shipping demand we doubt if present prices will hold.

Oats—A little healthier cash demand may result in some higher prices for the futures, but such advance appearing we would favor sales for moderate turns. Trade gave some indication of broadening out but is still extremely slow.

Edwards, Wood & Co.: Wheat—Another day of perfect weather throughout the wheat belt, and large receipts as well, yet prices were higher for this commodity in all markets. At Minneapolis 1,412 cars more were received for the month just closed than for May, 1904, and stocks at that point for the five days of last week show a decrease of only 85,000 bus. As we have stated in the previous advices, we do not anticipate any very lower prices. The statistical position is strong, but at the present time in view of the excellent weather and a probable continuation of good receipt, it would seem that prices are high enough.

• • •

Chicago Record-Herald: "Flour buyers will soon have to come into the market in a large way," said W. G. Oliver, of Patterson Bros. & Co. "If it were not for the strike, which gives them an excuse for running along without making deliveries, some of the big local distributors would have to be in the market now."

• • •

McQuiston, Chicago: It is just as well to bear in mind that our stocks of wheat are still light and if the bears get short too much wheat, the market will advance on their buying. Think wheat should be bought on all the breaks until the situation changes.

•

Cincinnati Price Current: Corn crop making slow growth, much replanted, more warmth needed, but situation not discouraging. Wheat crop maintaining a favorable position. Some fear of rust and lodging, but not serious. Improvement in condition in western sections. Oats situation not disturbed. Spring wheat is favorable. Warmer weather desirable.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Equitable Fight Seems to Have Caused the Weakness.

Traders, as a Rule, Were Inclined to Hold Off.

New York, June 1.—Opening prices on the stock market today were at sharp concessions from yesterday's closing, ranging up to 1½ in Union Pacific, Copper yielded nearly as much and St. Paul, Reading, Southern Pacific, Smelting and United States Steel stocks were ⅝ to a point lower.

Scarcely any interruption occurred to the downward movement of the first hour, prices falling sharply in all directions under the weight of realizing sales inspired by yesterday's advance. While losses of a point or more were common, the most acute weakness was displayed in the transcontinental group, led by St. Paul and Union Pacific, which dropped nearly two points. The local traction stocks offered effective resistance to the tendency, Brooklyn Transit gaining ⅝, Metropolitan Street Railway 1⅜ and Metropolitan Securities 1¾. Northwestern sold ex dividend and ex rights at 199, compared with 217½, the previous close.

Business became almost nominal when selling orders were curtailed, but the market showed little recuperative powers and ruled at about the lowest around 12 o'clock. Losses were not much extended beyond the low level of the first hour, but the Metropolitan stocks and Brooklyn Transit surrendered their rights. Bonds were heavy at noon, Japanese 6's, first series, losing ⅞ and Union Pacific convertibles 1¾.

Stocks dribbled out on the market from time to time, but the general unloading appeared to be momentarily over and the market had a sort of breathing spell. Northern Pacific was hammered down 4¾ and Great Northern preferred and Rubber Goods preferred 2 points.

Bull operators were discouraged at the inability of the market to rally when pressure was relaxed and gradually threw over their holdings. Practically all the favorites reached a lower level than in the morning, St. Paul figuring for a loss of 2⅜c and Union Pacific 2¼. Tennessee Coal, and Atlantic Coast Line were down from 1 to 2½.

It was not until late today that a light demand from shorts to cover caused small fractional rallies. Northwestern subscription rights sold at 14½@13⅜ and the stock with the rights and the 3½ per cent dividend off sold at 195 compared with 217½ yesterday. The decline in Canadian Pacific and Sugar reached 2. Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis fell 3¼ and Great Northern preferred 5. The close was very dull and easy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Market closed lower and weak. Aside from possibility of unfavorable disclosures to be made by the Frick investigating committee in the Equitable matter, nothing of a disturbing nature developed in today's session. Traders, as a rule, were inclined to hold off. All things considered the market flattens out very easily. It takes but little to shove prices to a little lower level. It is certainly a discouraging outlook and we see no immediate prospects of immediately sustaining prices. On the bulges we would sell stocks.

• • •

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was dull and inclined to be weak. Traders cold early and caught some stop loss orders. There was not a great deal of stock for sale, and the market took it fairly well. There was no news of importance and the Equitable fight seems to have been the reason given for a weak market. There was some little better feeling before the close, but the market was very dull.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 1.—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 4@9 points in response to lower cables, less bullish acreage and condition reports and better weather in the South. There was little selling, however, and the market was steadied at the decline by covering and buying for Southern account, but after working up a couple of points from the opening offerings, became more moderate, and the market turned easier, with prices by the middle of the morning about 16 to 19 points lower.

Spot cotton quiet, 10 points lower; middling uplands, 8.75; ditto gulf, 9.00. Sales 2,642 bales. Futures closed steady; June, 8.24; July, 8.34; August, 8.35; September, 8.36; October, 8.43; November, 8.47; December, 8.53; January, 8.58; February, 8.62; March, 8.65.

A SHARP CLERK.

How He Caught a Rich Farmer Customer.

William A. Pinkerton, the head of the noted detective agency, was talking in Chicago about amateur thieves, says the Los Angeles Times.

"There are," said Mr. Pinkerton, "more amateur thieves than you would believe—men of good standing, even churchmen, who, suddenly yielding to an unpowerful temptation, steal a pen from a stationer, a tooth brush from a druggist, a book from the house of a friend.

"Often the stationer, the druggist and the friend overlook these thefts. Why, for the sake of a few cents, disgrace a man for life? Sometimes, though, they are able to retrieve their loss with interest, yet without tainting the amateur thief's good name. I'll tell you of a case in point."

Mr. Pinkerton smiled.

"One of Chicago's greatest millionaires," he said, "began life as a clerk in a general store in the country. He was a good clerk. He had his employer's interests as well as his own at heart.

"On a certain morning there entered the store a rich farmer. The farmer bought ten pounds of wool at 60 cents a pound, and then, when the clerk's back was turned, grabbed up a 5-pound chunk of cheese and dropped it in his bag on top of the wool.

"This honest farmer, you see, had been unable to resist a sudden great temptation. He was scared now at the thought of what he had done. He trembled; he looked at the clerk anxiously; so strange, indeed, was his demeanor that the clerk became suspicious. He looked about the shop, missed the cheese, and at once knew what had happened.

"The farmer was a good customer and a good citizen. It would be unwise to ruin his reputation. The clerk, as he made out the bill for the wool, asked himself how, without exposing the thief, he might get back the cheese's value.

"Suddenly a thought struck him.

"'By crimus!' he said, 'I can't remember how many pounds of wool that was.'

"'Ten pounds,' said the farmer promptly.

"'It seems like more to me,' said the clerk. 'Are you sure it wasn't more?'

"'Ten pounds, I'm positive, was all,' the farmer said.

"The clerk took the bag from the man's hands.

"'Just to make sure, he said, 'we'll weigh her again.'

"And the bag, put on the scales a second time, registered, of course, an additional five pounds, the weight of the stolen cheese, for which the farmer now paid at 50 cents the rate per pound for wool, instead of at 12 cents, the rightful rate for cheese. Then this amateur thief slung his bag over his shoulder and departed with a gloomy, sour look."

BOOST RED HAIR.

The red-haired women of Portland are organizing a glee club to be composed of 100 voices, to be trained and conducted by L. H. Hurlburt-Edwards of the Oregon Conservatory of Music, says the Kansas City Journal. A goodly crowd of auburn and golden-haired damsels has already been gathered, but the full number is being obtained by the means of a circular letter written to the chosen of Titian locks. The scheme is being taken up seriously, the purpose being ostensibly to give concerts, but in the circular letter a deeper plan is revealed. The writer, a red-headed woman herself, who is doing the promoting, appeals to those blessed with burnished hair on the ground that red hair as a mark of beauty has not been fully appreciated by the world, and that to gather together the fair of face and red of hair, combined with the power of voice, will make all those who hear and see fall down and worship.

FOLDING BABY CARRIAGES.

That necessity is the mother of invention is nowhere proved more conclusively than in the furniture which is designed for the modern flat, says the Kansas City Journal. Progress has been as rapid in the line of baby coaches as in any other. A few years ago the only kind of baby coach known was the big, old-fashioned willow one, that took up too much room and was far too clumsy and heavy for a woman to handle easily. Then came the little go-cart, which was hailed by mothers with delight. The latest in this line is a folding one that shuts up almost like a camp chair, and can be stored in a corner of a closet.

CUTTING A DIAMOND.

It is estimated by experts that the great "Cullinan" diamond (3,025 carats), found last January in the Transvaal and now in London, will cut down to a very deep brilliant of about 1,200 carats, remarkably free from flaws and of a high quality of purity and color, says the Kansas City Journal.

The "chips" will vary in size from 20 carats downward. The cutting will cost at least $150,000, and the value of the stone is now given as $5,000,000.

NEW BOAT NOW

United Empire Has Been Rebuilt and Renamed Saronic.

Noted Passenger Steamer Just Turned Out of Shipyards.

The United Empire of bygone days is no more. The modern steamer Saronic has taken her place, and the Northern Navigation company's fleet now contains five boats whose name ends in "ic," namely, the Huronic, Saronic, Brittanic, Germanic and Majestic.

The old United Empire has just been turned out of the shipyards of the Collingwood Shipbuilding company at Collingwood, Ont., a new ship. She has been remodelled during the winter so that she is now one of the strongest vessels on the lakes. Her frames, keelsons and planking are all of the heaviest and best white oak, and she is strengthened by steel arches. Improved quarters for the crew have been built on the forward main deck, and a cold storage plant having a capacity for two cargoes of perishable freight has been put in. Aft on the main deck there has been constructed excellent quarters for second-class passengers. The staterooms in this part contain three berths each.

The saloons of the steamer have been refitted and decorated and are reached from the main deck by a new stairway from the passenger entrance. The steward's department is on the forward part of the saloon deck, but is entirely shut off from the dining saloon, so that no odors can reach the latter.

A turtle deck forward changes the outward appearance of the vessel somewhat. The promenade deck has a large music room finished with quartered oak. The ship's boilers have been retubed and her engines completely overhauled. The Saronic's officers are: Captain, A. L. Campbell; chief engineer, H. Myler; chief steward, F. F. Bailey; purser, J. Bartlett.

SIGNS OF BREAK.

Vessel Rate Not Strong at 1 3-4 Cents.

There is some sign of a break in the vessel rate on wheat which has been maintained at 1¾c for several weeks. Vessels are still offered at that figure and there seems to be no hurry on the part of shippers to accept room at that. Some predictions are made that the rate will soon be at 1½c. The amount of grain to be had is small and is steadily dwindling, so that before the summer is over vessels wanting grain may have trouble in getting it. The amount of oats on hand at the opening of this week was only about 1,850,000 bushels and this is expected to be out within a couple of weeks' time.

TUG TO MILWAUKEE.

Zenith Leaves to Go After Scows.

The tug Zenith of the Union Towing & Wrecking company will leave tonight on a long trip after some scows. She will go from here to Milwaukee and will bring back two scows for the Northern Dredge company. The trip will occupy some time as she has to sail the full length of Lake Superior and the greater part of the length of Lake Michigan both ways on the going and coming trip. The towing of the scows will occupy some time also.

THEIR RISING HABITS.

Marked Differences in Some Washington Diplomats.

One bright, sunshiny day last week a man in silk hat and frock coat walked briskly up the broad steps leading to the big red brick mansion at the corner of Fifteenth street and Rhode Island avenue, formerly the property of Vice President Levi P. Morton, and now occupied by the Russian embassy, says a Washington dispatch to the Brooklyn Eagle. It was just ten o'clock as the stranger pushed the electric button at the door.

"The Russian ambassador," said the caller, producing a card and handing it to the liveried flunky who answered his ring.

"His excellency is not up yet," replied the man with the tray.

The visitor departed and returned promptly at 12. The whistles were blowing as a warning to the government clerks that half of their day's labors were concluded. The man with the silk hat handed his card to the man with a tray a second time, and again the latter said:

"His excellency is not up yet."

The caller, who was a business man, accustomed to getting to work at 8 o'clock in the morning, left the embassy in disgust, and made no further attempt to see the representative of the czar.

Count Cassini, or his excellency, as the members of his household call him, is not an early riser. He never gets out of bed until 12:30, unless an international crisis demands his presence at the state department, or at some other point sooner. He believes in taking life easy, and always starts the day in a leisurely manner. The fact that the count is a late riser does not mean that he always retires at a late hour. The time of his going to bed has nothing to do with his habits of rising. The other members of the embassy follow the example of their august chief, and as a result it is impossible to transact any business at the headquarters of the Russian ambassador until the afternoon. This is the way the count has himself described in the diplomatic list of the state department: "Comte Cassini, Master of the Imperial Court, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary."

In striking contrast with the easy going, luxurious methods of the Russian embassy, are the customs of the lively Japs. A person cannot call too early or too late to be received at the Japanese legation. If Mr. Kogoro Takahira, the minister, is abed or absent, Mr. Hioki, the charge, or Mr. Hanihara, the third secretary, is certain to be on deck, ready for any emergency that may arise. Mr. Ladislaus Hengelmuller von Hengervar, privy councillor, the Austrian ambassdor, never allows any duty, diplomatic or social, to rob him of his afternoon siesta.

HIS LITTLE JOKE.

At the session of the legislature just ended a constituent of Assemblyman Young politely requested him to introduce a little bill repealing a chapter of the laws of a former year, says the New York Sun. Mr. Young is a lawyer and inclined to be skeptical, but he is also affable, and his affability overcame his incredulity. Well acquainted with the man who made the request, he readily consented to father the measure.

Mr. Young was only saved from introducing the joke bill of the session by the clerk, whom he requested to prepare a proper title for the bill. The clerk found that the chapter repealed by the bill was the penal code.

AND WHY NOT?

They were all to have a Sunday night supper at a friend's house, and even the boarding mistress was invited; so the girl got an extra Sunday night out, and the household split up into parties for the afternoon, says the New York Sun.

By twos and threes they arrived at the host's home, until there were left only the boarding mistress and the husband of the woman who had engineered the party. There was a quarter hour wait, and at last the husband strolled in.

"Miss Blank says she can't come," he announced, as he sniffed the odor of the old-fashioned shortcake. "I guess she must have another of her sick headaches, for she seems to have gone to bed; just poked her head out of the doorway and said she was sorry."

Late that evening the other woman took home a generous slice of shortcake and found the absent one sitting, disconsolate, in the parlor.

"I thought you were ill?" she cried. "Will said you had gone to bed."

"My dear," sobbed the boarding mistress, "all my dresses button up the back, and when I started to get ready the only person in the place was your husband, I couldn't very well ask him, could I?"

And the only comfort she received was: "Why not? I've trained him to do it beautifully."

CURE THAT FAILED.

How a Doctor's Jag Cure Theory Worked.

Dr. ——— has a new scheme for curing the drink habit, says the Portland Telegram. That is, he did have a new scheme—but he has given it up as unsuccessful.

The doctor is—or rather was—a believer in the theory that it was only because people were unfamiliar with liquor, and that it was forbidden, or considered wrong for them to have it, that made them drink. His theory went so far that he declared if a man were made thoroughly familiar with liquor, found it everywhere he turned, he would become sick of it and never wish to see it again. And with this object in view, he made up money and began a test. He went down into the North end and selected six of the most spiffiicated old soaks he could find and took them to his improvised sanitarium. When they entered the smell of whisky was everywhere. There were bottles of it on every table, the faucets in the wall leaked brandy, wine stood in milk-pans in the pantry, and the house was lighted by alcoholic lamps. The water-pitchers contained porter and the bathtubs were filled with beer. The patients were turned loose and went at things with a will.

That night nobody in the neighborhood slept. There was "sound of revelry by night" with a vengeance.

The next morning indignant neighbors broke in the door and raided the house. One old rounder was asleep in the bathtub, his effete breath blowing bubbles whenever his head fell forward into the beer. Two were locked in each other's arms behind the sofa, babbling at intervals of home and mother. Two of the other three were trying to build a fire in the kitchen stove, while the sixth was dead drunk and tucked away in the oven.

The sanitarium has closed, though there were more than 300 applicants for treatment that afternoon.

A QUEER CUSTOM.

An ancient custom still prevailing in many old burial grounds was described by a Richmond gentleman who has been interested in tracing family records, says the Chicago Chronicle.

"When my wife and I were in Y——," he said, "we had occasion to visit the graveyards of the quaint little town, many of my wife's people being buried in the neighborhood. It struck me as queer, finding similar names in all three graveyards. Scattered here and there, they were, but always alike.

"I puzzled over it for a long time and finally asked the sexton. He was an old, old man and remembered away back to the beginning of things. 'I can tell you,' he said, wagging his gray head solemnly. 'It was customary in old times to divide the families according to their religious beliefs. If a husband and wife were Methodist and Baptist in life after death the husband's grave was placed near some Methodist brother, while the wife's body went hunting her Baptist sisters. In that way the families were scattered hither and yon and the same name occurred, perhaps, five or six times in one graveyard."

There is a tax on carelessness—and it cannot be "sworn off." When you buy something in the poorest market, because you failed to read the ads. you pay such a tax.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

A NEW PRESIDENT, TWO NEW VICE PRESIDENTS FOR THE EQUITABLE

Said to Be the Substance of Frick Committee's Report.

Indications Are That the Report Will Be Defeated.

New Alignment of Parties Seems to Have Been Established.

New York, June 2.—A new alignment of the parties concerned in the controversy in the Equitable Life Assurance society, appeared to have been established today when the directors' meeting began. This meeting was expected to be most exciting and it was expected that the directors either would decide to make public the report of the Erick investigating committee with a resolution that its recommendations be carried into effect, or that a number of directors would resign. The friends of Vice President Hyde today gave out a statement to the effect that the report of the Frick committee probably would be voted down. This plan, it was said had the support of President James W. Alexander, who heretofore had opposed Mr. Hyde. A conference between Mr. Hyde and his friends and attorneys was held this morning and it was noticed that neither E. H. Harriman nor Jacob H. Schiff attended it, although up to the time of the presentation of the Frick report, it was believed that Mr. Harriman and Mr. Schiff were strong supporters of Mr. Hyde. George J. Gould, however, attended the conference in Mr. Hyde's office.

A director was quoted to the effect that the Frick report recommended that the directors appoint a committee of five to select a new president, first vice president and second vice president to succeed Messrs. Alexander, Hyde and Tarbell. Four members of this committee, it was said, had been agreed on.

The Equitable directors took an hour adjournment at 1:25. The early session was taken up principally with statements made by President Alexander and Vice President Hyde, opposing the adoption by the directors of the Frick committee report. Mr. Ingalls, a member of the Frick committee, was asked what he thought would be done with the Frick report. He replied that he believed it probably would be defeated by a vote of 20 to 16.

Mr. Frick said he could not tell when the committee report would be given to the public. The directors will meet again at 2:30.

New York, June 2.—Directors of the Equitable Life Assurance society gatnered at the society's building, 120 Broadway, early today to attend the meeting of the board of directors, scheduled for 11 o'clock. Intense interest was shown by all, and there was active discussion of the Frick report, in small groups of directors, up to the time the meeting began. Another topic of these discussions was the report that a gigantic scheme has been planned to obtain control of the society's immense capital holdings, in the interest of Standard Oil financiers. That anything of the kind was in prospect was denied by Samuel Untermyer, attorney for James H. Hyde. Mr. Untermyer said: "That report is too ridiculous for any comment from me. I need not take notice of it at all. It is perfectly absurd."

Mr. Hyde and Mr. Untermyer were in consultation some time this morning, prior to the adjourned meeting of the board of directors, which was to consider the report of the Frick committee.

The Hyde forces assembled in conference in Mr. Hyde's office before the meeting. Those present included Senator Depew, Samuel Untermyer, George Gould, A. W. Krech, W. C. Gulliver, H. C. Harstick, John J. McCook, Bradish Johnson, D. H. Moffat, H. R. Winthrop, William H. McIntyre and C. B. Alexander.

Melville E. Ingalls of the Frick committee called at the office of E. H. Harriman just before the directors' meeting began. Asked what he expected as a result of the meeting, Mr. Ingalls said:

"I expect a hot old time."

Shortly before the directors' meeting a representative of William Nelson Cromwell, the lawyer, visited Vice President Hyde's office.

ANOTHER PHILADELPHIA OFFICIAL "RESIGNS."

Philadelphia, June 2.—William H. Baker, assistant director of public works, today, by request, tendered his resignation to Mayor Weaver. This is the first move by the mayor of what he terms a general shake up in the departments which come under his jurisdiction. Baker was known as an "organization" man. The salary of the office is $4,600 a year.

BANK AT LADYSMITH, WIS., CLOSES ITS DOORS.

Washington, June 2.—The president of the First National bank of Ladysmith, Wis., has advised the comptroller of the currency that the directors have voted unanimously to close its doors temporarily, and at their request, National Bank Examiner Peter R. Earling, has taken charge. Examiner Earling has been appointed receiver.

LOCUSTS APPEAR.

Janesville, Wis., June 2.—Swarms of seventeen year locusts have appeared all through Southern Wisconsin.

TEAMSTERS MUST DECIDE WHETHER TO ARBITRATE OR NOT

The Team Owners Issue an Ultimatum to Their Drivers.

Conference at Mayor Dunne's Office Will Settle the Matter.

Chicago, June 2.—On the outcome of a conference in Mayor Dunne's office today between committees representing the team owners and teamsters, at which the latter were to be asked to give a definite answer regarding their willingness to submit to arbitration, the right of the team owners to deliver merchandise to "struck" firms, was said to depend on developments that might bring the strike to a sudden termination.

Many of the team owners said that as a result of the teamsters' failure to settle the question whether the members of the Truck Drivers' union, should be compelled to abide by a clause in their contract providing that all disputes should be submitted to arbitration, they were ready for decisive action on their own part, even though it directly involved them in the strike.

It was the purpose of the team owners to inform the representatives of the teamsters that they desired an immediate and decisive answer to their request for arbitration. Should the teamsters deny the request, a meeting of the team owners would be called at once, and a vote taken on the question of making deliveries to "struck" concerns. With the team owners making delieveries the teamsters would face the alternative of calling off the strike, or seeing it spread to 9,000 more drivers.

Rioting broke out afresh today in the lumber district, when a wagon belonging to Rittenhouse & Embree was attacked by a crowd of 100 persons, at Thirty-second street and Center avenue. The crowd threw stones and coal at the teamster. Two policemen, who were guarding the wagon, were hit by the missiles and slightly injured. The police were obliged to fire several shots into the air in order to keep the crowd at bay. Upon the arrival of additional police the crowd quickly scattered. No arrests were made.

Members of the grand jury are endeavoring today to gather more complete and later details of the bribe stories told by President C. P. Shea of the Teamsters' union and its former president, Albert Young. As the statute of limitations has run against most of the alleged bribery matters concerning which Shea and Young testified, the investigators are prepared to search for later overt acts connected with the so-called "outlawed" conspiracies.

To this end the grand jury has directed the docket clerk to issue subpoenaes for the records of the coal and other teamsters' unions. Shea and Young testified that records would show proof of their statements that prominent coal men paid $30,000 in strike benefits when the downtown building owners substituted coal for fuel gas.

The conference in the mayor's office ended when President Shea of the teamsters had to go before the jury. Nothing was accomplished, the conference was to be resumed this afternoon, in the hope that an agreement might be reached.

Four hundred drivers for the Frank Parmalee Transfer company threaten to strike. Stablemen employed by the firm, 100 in number, also ask an increase, and if the strike of drivers occurs it is probable that the stablemen will quit. In anticipation of a walkout, cots to be used by prospective strike-breakers have been put in the barns.

CIRCUIT JUDGE SPOILS THE PLANS OF ADMINISTRATION

Washington, June 2.—The designation by Judge William B. Gilbert of the Ninth circuit of Judge John D. Haven of the Northern district of California as presiding judge in the trial of the land fraud cases in Oregon, has led to some embarrassment among officials here. The recent death of Judge Bellinger, who was to have tried these cases, caused a vacancy in the Oregon district. It practically had been determined by the president and the attorney general that Judge Hunt, United States judge for the district of Montana, should be designated to succeed Judge Bellinger in the trials and that the appointment of Judge Bellinger's successor should not be made at once. At this point Judge Gilbert, exercising authority which he supposed he had, directed that Judge Haven should try the cases.

This was displeasing to officials of the department of justice and a telegram was sent to Judge Gilbert by Attorney General Mcody inquiring by what authority he had directed Judge Haven to act. Thus far no reply has been received to that telegram. What the result of the situation will be is uncertain and whether the action of Judge Gilbert will be overruled may depend upon the reply he makes to the attorney general's inquiry.

A STRIKE IS LIKELY AT SAGINAW

Saginaw, Mich., June 2.—By unanimous vote the employes of the Saginaw and Bay City street railway systems and of the Interurban line connecting the two cities at a meeting held here early today, decided to strike. The employes had asked for an increase in wages and the adoption of the "two turn" system of hours, both requests being refused. Cars are running today, but it is believed that D. L. Worth, national chairman of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes, who is in charge of the situation, will call the men out on Sunday. The strike will call out 225 men.

GREAT LAND FRAUDS IN CALIFORNIA

San Francisco, June 2.—The Examiner says today: The story of the land frauds in Oregon will be duplicated in California by the discovery of an elaborate system of robbery under color of law, by which means, with the help of forgery, great bodies of the public domain in Modoc and other northern counties have been brought under private ownership. In many instances this process has been worked out by means of dummy locaters, but in some cases of which the Examiner has proofs, the land thieves, grown bold by long immunity, have forged names of applicants on the files of the surveyor-general's office.

Lieu land selections furnish what lawyers call the "base" for the fraudulent locations in the northern mountain counties.

SULPHUR IN COFFEE

Acted as Antidote For Poison In Soup.

Chicago, June 2.—But for the fortunate fact that Lena Ritter, a cook employed at a boarding house, 8934 The Strand, placed sulphur in the coffee that she gave five boarders whom she had also given soup containing poison, the five boarders would not be alive today.

Miss Ritter believed that the boarders had conspired against her, and, wanting to get even with them, she placed enough poison in their soup to have killed them. She is not a chemist, however, and when she put a quantity of sulphur in the coffee she did not know that her second dose, instead of being more poison, was in reality an antidote for the poison in the soup.

After their meal all the boarders were taken sick and a physician was summoned. He learned from Miss Ritter what she had done, and when he satisfied himself that all the men would recover, told them that if they had not taken the sulphur they would have died. The cook will be examined as to her sanity.

STABBED HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW.

Missoula, Mont., June 2.—Chess Thomas, a well-known citizen, was stabbed on the Higgins avenue bridge, by J. H. Cooley, his brother-in-law, and is not expected to live. They had quarreled and Thomas was the aggressor.

THOROUGH SEARCH BY TOGO'S WARSHIPS FAILS TO REVEAL A RUSSIAN CRAFT ANYWHERE

Cruisers Sent Northward and Southward Make Their Reports.

Great Fleet of the Czar Was Completely Swept From the Sea.

Nebogatoff's Sailors Mutinied and Hoisted the White Flag.

Tokio, June 2, 10:30 p. m.—Admiral Togo, telegraphing yesterday, says:

"The ships sent northward to search for Russian ships returned yesterday. The cruisers Iwate and Yakumo and other vessels sent southward to find Russian ships returned today. They thoroughly searched the Shanghai course, from Tsushima and vicinity, but on both sides found no trace of the Russians."

Admiral Kamimura, on board the Iwate, reports: "During the battle on May 27, at 3:07 p. m., the cruiser Iwate vigorously attacked the protected cruiser Jemtchug, at a distance of 3,000 meters. The Jemtchug sank in one minute. The loss of the Jemtchug is therefore confirmed."

During the engagement fire broke out on the Jemtchug, and smoke concealed the hull of the vessel. Consequently the remainder of our fleet were unable to see the ship.

CREW MUTINIED.

Treachery Among Admiral Nebogatoff's Men Reported.

New York, June 2.—Details from a trustworthy source leave little room for doubt, says a Times dispatch from St. Petersburg, that Admiral Nebogatoff's sailors mutinied in the battle of the sea of Japan, and either threw the admiral and many officers overboard, or according to another version, bound them in their cabins and hoisted the white flag.

Eight men in Nebogatoff's fleet were, it is again asserted, hanged for mutiny while still in the Red sea.

PEOPLE SHOULD DECIDE.

Summoning of National Assembly Advocated.

St. Petersburg, June 2.—The Russian press this morning still is advocating more vigorously than ever the summoning of a national assembly, even the reactionary Sviet joining in the general chorus. In view of the current rumors, it is most significant that the papers, which are more or less in the confidence of the government, unanimously take the position that representatives of the people should decide the question of peace or war.

All censorship is now removed from foreign dispatches, and the people are appalled at the horrible stories of slaughter on board the Russian ships. The admiralty has not yet been able to estimate, even approximately, from the foreign advices, the loss of men, but as the ships were over rather than undermanned, the total will be greater than the ordinary complement of the vessels would indicate, and probably will exceed 10,000, if only about 4,000 were saved.

Requiem masses are being celebrated constantly in all the churches and chapels for the repose of the souls of the slain, although the distracted relatives are unable to learn definitely the fate of those dear to them. The admiralty up to the present time has been unable to throw any light on the situation, except to announce the safety of those who have reached Vladivostok.

Ugly stories are circulating in this city of the demoralization and even treachery of the crews of several of the Russian ships during the battle, and it is even said that the crew of the battleship Orel bound their officers and hoisted the white flag. The origin of these stories, which are discredited by all naval men here, cannot be traced, as the only direct information comes from Japan, but doubtless they are based on the trouble among the crew of the Orel before her departure for the Far East. She was sunk at her dock before she left Cronstadt, and later at Libau the crew were mutinous. Indignation against Admiral Nebogatoff is growing. The epithets, "coward" and "traitor" are coupled with his name, especially since the receipt of the Tokio dispatches, showing that his surrender was not in the heat of battle, but with the land close under his lee, to which his crews could have escaped after the destruction of the ships.

Conservative Russians are alarmed at the possibility of disorders in various parts of Russia, as a result of the disaster, and a feeling of disquietude for the future is manifested everywhere.

DROWNED THE WOUNDED.

Unconfirmed Story Comes From Battleship Orel.

Tokio, June 2, 4 a. m.—It is planned to bring the battleship Orel to Yokosuka, where the emperor will visit her.

A remarkable story is in circulation concerning the wounded on the Orel. It is said that at the opening of the fight 300 men were killed and wounded and that the groans and shrieks of the wounded exercised so harmful an effect that it was decided to throw the mortally wounded into the sea.

One hundred and forty, it is said, were thrown overboard. Those slightly wounded were then fastened to the mast to prevent their interference with the fighting.

It is impossible to obtain confirmation of this story, but later reports indicate that the crew of the Orel fought with desperate bravery throughout the day previous to their surrender. The hull of the vessel is shell marked, and many of her guns are smashed and dismounted.

IZUMRUD BLOWN UP.

Russian Commander Destroyed Ship at Vladimir Bay.

St. Petersburg, June 2.—Official reports bearing on the naval battle are beginning to be received by the emperor and Grand Duke Alexis, the high admiral, the most important of these reports, revealing the fate of the cruiser Izumrud, being a telegram from her captain, Baron Ferzen, dated June 1, saying that he had blown up the cruiser at the entrance of Vladimir bay and briefly describing the battle. Baron Ferzen's account concludes:

"I was cut off from the squadron and, finding it impossible to rejoin it, resolved to make for Vladivostok. I put on full speed and the enemy's cruisers came on in pursuit. Owing to the insufficiency of my coal supply and the certainty of meeting the enemy's cruisers, I subsequently altered my course for Vladimir bay, where I arrived on the night of May 29. At 1:30 o'clock next morning in pitch darkness the Izumrud ran full on a reef at the entrance to the bay. Having only ten tons of coal and seeing that it would be impossible to refloat my vessel, I ordered the crew ashore and blew up the Izumrud to prevent her falling into the hands of the enemy. Ten of my sailors were wounded in the battle, but the officers and the rest of the crew are all safe."

According to the dispatches from Baron Ferzen, commander of the cruiser Izumrud, the battleships remaining in the fight were still in squadron formation when he was cut off and this increases the deep resentment felt here at the surrender of the ships, the Novoe Vremya even declaring that the officers ought to be courtmartialed and shot for hauling down their flags and turning their ships over to the Japanese. The paper cites articles of the naval regulations forbidding a commander to surrender except as a last emergency after taking measures to destroy his ship. It points out that it required only the opening of the seacocks to send the ships to the bottom. The crews would be given a good chance of life, the paper says, and cites example of the cruiser Rurikо of the Vladivostok squadron, which after the fight with Admiral Kamimura in August last, went down heroically with colors flying.

The report from Lieut. Dournovo, of the torpedo boat destroyer Bravia, telling how that boat was disabled on the first day of the fight and escaped to Vladivostok through the midst of a hostile flotilla of destroyers, being obliged to burn her woodwork to reach the harbor, awakens a gleam of satisfaction and though the Izumrud failed to reach Vladivostok, her destruction at the hands of her own crew is regarded with almost equal pleasure.

The saddest blow for St. Petersburg was struck by the destruction of the battleship Alexander III, which was manned by sailors of the guard and officered exclusively by men prominent in society and at court. Her crew served, during the winter time as a regiment of the guard, of which the dowager empress was honorary commander.

HELD AS A SPY.

Japs Have Strong Case Against French Captain.

Victoria, B. C., June 2.—Advices were received by the steamer Kanawa that a strong case is being made out by the Japanese government against Captain Bergoiun, a prominent Frenchman of Tokio, formerly of the French legation, who with his son-in-law and a Japanese engineer in his employ has been arrested charged with being a spy in the Russian service. Copies of messages alleged to have been sent to Russian agents, giving information with regard to movements of transports, warships and troops, were found in his residence at Tokio. It was stated that the transports Hitachi and Sado were intercepted and the former sunk a year ago by the Vladivostok fleet because of information furnished by Captain Bergouin. Strong protests were made by the French government regarding his arrest, but no notice is being taken by the Japanese government, which has a strong case against the alleged spies.

JAPS KNEW RUSSIAN PLANS.

RUSSIA TO SOUND PRESIDENT ON THE SUBJECT OF PEACE

Count Cassini Makes an Appointment For a Discussion.

President Willing to Take Up Matter If Russia Is In Earnest.

Washington, June 2.—Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, has made an appointment with the president for 230 o'clock this afternoon. It is understood they will discuss the entire Eastern situation in the light of recent developments.

Washington, June 2.—Russia will know officially how ready this government is to assist her in commencing peace negotiations with Japan at the earliest possible moment, if Cassini, the Russian ambassador carries out his intention of seeing the president.

For several days the ambassador has planned calling at the White House and would have done so yesterday afternoon, but for the fact that the president was engaged in opening the Lewis and Clark exposition. Indirectly Count Cassini is already informed of the willingness of the president to take up peace terms with Japan, provided Russia is prepared to discuss the subject in good faith, but unless he receives instructions from his government between now and the time he calls on the president, the ambassador will personally express the firm conviction that his government has no intention of negotiating with Japan at this time. It was suggested that the failure to receive any advices from St. Petersburg regarding the views of the emperor was one reason why Count Cassini deferred his call at the White House. The whole situation was thoroughly discussed in an informal way by Count Cassini with his warm personal friend, Baron Speck Von Sternberg, the German ambassador, who dined at the Russian embassy yesterday after having had a conference with the president earlier in the day.

Indicative of the importance of the two conferences of the German ambassador was the statement of the Russian ambassador that he hoped to see the president within the next twenty-four hours. Meantime it can be stated on the best authority that the Washington government is biding its time, believing that Russia must be given an opportunity to fully realize the crushing character of her defeat before she will be willing to consider the advisability of abandoning her determination to continue the war.

FRENCH AMBASSADOR

Has Not Returned to Russia as Was Reported.

Paris, June 2.—The report that M. Bompard, the French ambassador to Russia, who has been here on leave of absence, is hastening back to St. Petersburg as France has agreed to ask the concert of the powers to bring about peace between Russia and Japan, is said by the officials here to be incorrect.

M. Bompard intends to remain here a week or ten days, which would seem to confirm the reports that the peace situation at St. Petersburg has not reached a decisive state. The trend of opinion in well informed quarters is that Russia will put off decisive action until after the next land battle.

The following official note was issued today: "M. Bompard is still in Paris. Therefore it is not true that he has been recalled to St. Petersburg. It is equally incorrect that France has addressed an appeal to the powers with the view of consulting them on the situation."

GERMANS TO CARE FOR CASTRO'S DEBTS

President of Venezuela Tells of Arrangement With Berlin Bank.

Caracas, Vez., Thursday, June 1.—President Castro read his message to congress today. He said in part that the Venezuelan government had maintained good relations with foreign countries in the degree their respective representatives desired. Therefor, the relations of Venezuela with all countries were relatively cordial. The government had acceded to the desires of the respective representativs of foreign countries, as far as justice, equity and the dignity and honor of the nation permitted. On the other hand, Venezuela had duly paid the allies the amounts peremptorily demanded by them, and had then paid them 30 per cent of the customs duties collected at La Guayra and Puerto Cabello. When the claims of the allies had been paid the 30 per cent of the customs duties of La Guayra and Puerto Cabello would be devoted to the payment of the claims of the other powers, which had been presented pacifically. In regard to the debts of Venezuela, other than the claims of the powers previously referred to, the government of Venezuela had twice sent Gen. Jose Antonic Velutini to Europe to make new arrangements with her creditors.

Continuing, the president said: "I have the satisfaction to announce that such arrangements have already been made that the agreements have been signed, and that the arrangement relating to the Disconto bank of Berlin has been ratified by the German government. As soon as it is ratified here Gen. Velutini hopes that the British government will also ratify the new arrangement made for the payment of the British debt. I consider this matter to have been definitely settled with the German and British holders of Venezuelan bonds. These measures are exceedingly important to the credit of Venezuela and in promoting tranquility and harmony with foreign nations.

"Venezuela, it will therefore be seen, is strictly executing the terms of the protocols.

"With the United States, through causes foreign to our will, and without the least responsibility on our part, we have had a slight difference, but the discussion of the questions seems to have made the facts clear to the American government, judging from the measures the said government lately passed in favor of our good and cordial friendship. Those questions refer to the Bermudese and Orinoco companies. The latter have already been adjudged, under the protocols, but nevertheless Mr. Bowen desired a new arbitration. The government could not accede to this, as the sovereignty and independence of the republic were involved."

In conclusion, the president expressed the hope that diplomatic relations between Venezuela and Colombia would be renewed at no distant date.

CRUSHING DEFEAT

For Government In Bye-Election In Yorkshire.

London, June 2.—The bye election in the Whitby division of the north riding of Yorkshire yesterday, folowing the succession of Ernest W. Beckett to the Grimthorpe peerage owing to the death of his uncle, Baron Grimthorpe, April 29, resulted in the election of a Liberal, Noel Buxton, by a majority of 445 over Gervase Beckett, Unionist, brother of the late member for Whitby. This was a crushing defeat for the government as the election was fought mainly on the fiscal question and in view of the fact that Whitby had been a Conservative stronghold for twenty years.

GERMANS CHEER FRENCHMEN.

Berlin, June 2.—French delegates to the wedding of Crown Prince Frederick William, Gen. De Lacroix, Francois Argo and Rear Admiral De Maoiles, arrived here today and were cheered by a considerable crowd. This was probably the first time in a generation that Frenchmen have been cheered in Berlin.

The principal losses were S. C. Niles, brick block, $20,000 and the Oneonta Grocery company, an occupant of the Niles block, $30,000.

PRESERVE NOW

Dealers Say Strawberries Are at Best and Cheap.

Cherries Now on Market —Green Vegetables Getting Cheaper.

Now is the time to begin to buy strawberries for preserving, say the commission men and the grocers.

The season for the Missouri berries is at its height at the present time, and the quality of the consignments that are being received is unexcelled by anything yet seen on the local market.

Next week the Illinois and the Iowa crops will be the source of supply for the local market. The commission men say that the berries in these states are not of as high a grade as the Missouri crop and not so plentiful. The Wisconsin berries will not be in the market for two or three weeks yet. Many people prefer to wait for the home crop to ripen, expecting lower prices, but the dealers say it is doubtful if the Wisconsin and Minnesota berries will be any lower than the Missouri berries, and very doubtful if they will be as desirable for preserving.

"The housewives that buy their berries for preserves right now won't make any mistake," said one of the dealers today. "The price may go a little lower on the home grown fruit, but I don't see how we can get any better stock than we have now."

The berries are quoted at from $1.75 to $2 per case.

Both sour and California cherries are now on the market. The sour cherries are coming from Iowa and Southern Illinois. It is a little early for them yet, but next week the season will be at its height. They are selling for $3 for a twenty-four-quart case, and are retailing at two boxes for 25 cents.

The California cherries are still scarce and high and it will be a week or two yet before they are on the market in any large quantities.

The oranges coming in at present are mostly Mediterranean sweets and the larger sizes of navels. The market still continues active with a brisk demand.

* * *

Fresh vegetables are a little lower all along the line. New potatoes are now down to $1.50 per bushel, and there is beginning to be a good demand for them. The old stock is getting pretty well cleaned up, and there is quite a brisk demand for seed potatoes. The price is a little firmer this week, being quoted at 30 cents. In another week or ten days the new potatoes should be down to the $1 mark if the receipts continue to increase as they have done during the last two weeks.

Asparagus is a little lower, being quoted at 50 to 65 cents per dozen. Cauliflower, lettuce, peas, raddishes, pie plant and spinach are also lower this week.

The demand for green vegetables is steadily increasing as the prices get lower.

The cheese market broke last week owing to the increased receipts, and the prices are once more getting down to a normal gure. The market has been very firm and high for the last two or three months, but all kinds of cheese have dropped from a cent to 1½ cents a pound during the week. Wisconsin flats are now selling for 14 cents in place of 15, and Limberger at 13 1-3 in place of 14 cents.

* * *

Butter receipts have greatly increased during the week and during the next few weeks the supply should be more than sufficient to meet the demand.

Creamery prints are quoted at 22 and 23 cents a pound, with the fancy dairies at 18 and 19 cents.

The market is not likely to go much lower, although it may fall off a point or so. If the receipts continue heavy for another week storing will be commenced, and all the surplus supply will be taken care of in this way. This will prevent the bottom falling out of the market at the present time, and also help to keep prices within reach in the winter months.

The egg market is firm but unchanged in price, fresh eggs being quoted at 16 cents a dozen on Michigan street.

After another week or ten days apples will be about out of the market. Some of the houses have a few barrels of New York Baldwins in stock, but after they are disposed of there will be nothing left to offer until the new stock commences to arrive. The market will not be long without apples, however. Owing to the cold storage methods, apples can now be secured at almost any season of the year, and it will not be more than two or three weeks after the old supply is exhausted before the new stock commences to arrive.

* * *

Little change has taken place in the poultry and meat prices during the week, and conditions are about the same as a week ago.

Change of Time.

On and after Sunday, June 4, the Northern Pacific train now leaving Duluth at 8:40 a. m., will leave Duluth at 8:20 a. m., for Deerwood and all points West, and returning will arrive at 6:25 p. m., instead of 4:55 p. m.

SCOTCH PEERS

Want Right to Sit In the Commons.

London, June 2.—The Master of Elibank desires that peers of Scotland, who are not members of the house of lords, may be allowed to sit in the house of commons. This privilege is enjoyed by Irish peers.

The fact is that if the heir of a Scotch peerage is a Liberal, his succession to the title usually means political extinction. He has no chance of being elected a representative peer, and he is excluded from the house of commons.

This position would be very exasperating and disheartening for the Master of Elibank himself, for he has been for some years a member of the house of commons, but if his father died his public life would be at an end, unless the Liberals were in office, in which case he would no doubt be given a peerage of the United Kingdom.

When the Scotch representative peers meet at Holyrood for an election they invariably choose Tories, and have more than once refused to re-elect a peer who had shown signs of Liberal sympathies. In 1868 Lord Rollo did his best to secure the return of Liberal members for the Scotch counties in which his estates lie. He had then been a representative peer for eight years, but when the next meeting at Holyrood took place he was rejected. Mr. Gladstone, however, at once compensated him for this disaster by creating him Baron Dunning, in the peerage of the United Kingdom. The late duke of Buccleuch e xercised a despotic control over the Scotch peers for more than half a century.

BUFFALO'S SOIREES

Enlivened By Lady Who Posed as Theodosia Garrison.

Soulfully Recited Real Theodosia's Poetry at Moonlight Strolls.

New York, June 2.—There is a mystery in New York's literary world. There are two Theodosia Garrisons!

That's the mystery. Theodosia Garrison says that sometimes she herself is a little mystified, but she doesn't think she could make a mistake about her identity. The mystery amounts to this: Some lady has been having a glorious time passing herself off as the well-known poetess and magazine writer.

She has been attending social functions, soirees, musicales, dinners and has been treated like a literary lion, all the time pretending to be Theodosia Garrison.

The first news of the literary duplicity came from that up-state city where prominence in poesy has heretofore been confined to the boisterous passenger's request to the conductor to "put me off." Henceforth Buffalo will be dear to the hearts of literati as the discoverer that there are two Theodosia Garrisons.

The real Theodosia Garrison, who is a charming young woman, one whose attractive personality destroys all time-worn ideas that the clever can't be good-looking, lives in a quiet apartment in Eighth street, off Central Park west. She was reluctant to disclose clews to the suspected double's identity, but still rebellious at having been disposed of so arbitrarily by her other self.

"The first news I had of a rival claimant for my poems," said Mrs. Garrison, "was two years ago when I received word from an unknown friend in Rochester that a woman who was enjoying the delights of Rochester society was supposed to be the writer of my poems.

"I never did anything about the matter, though I heard occasionally of the woman's claims to certain writings of mine.

"A short while ago a new crop of troubles came up, this time from Buffalo. I began to receive letters from women in that city begging me in the name of literature to explain just who Theodosia Garrison was."

The woman who enjoys the reputation of being the most prolific contributor to the magazines laughed heartily at the interest taken in the matter.

"The Buffalo papers began to have notices concerning me," she continued, "and then a controversy arose in one of the papers of that city about my identity. One day I received the startling announcement, a clipping from a Buffalo paper. It represented me as the widow of a Frenchman and a comic opera queen. A little surprise was in store for me. This came in the form of a letter from a Buffalo society woman, who wrote me that I had been dead six years and that on my deathbed I asked the imposter to perpetuate my name in literature.

"Now what do you think of that?" demanded the poetess, whose indignation was modified by her keen sense of humor. "I had been widowed and thrust into the limelight of comic opera without a protest, but when it comes to being planted six feet under ground I think I am entitled to make a feeble wail of remonstrance."

Up in Buffalo parties were given, at which Theodora Garrison received great attention. Her poems, copied from magazines, which were appearing in the local newspapers, threw additional glamour about this mysterious and interesting person. Buffalo gallants tell of moonlight strolls, when "Theo" quoted the real Theodosia Garrison's poetry in a voice that thrilled with emotion. She had a playful habit of claiming all the poems that appeared in the Buffalo papers signed "Theodosia Garrison," and she would point to it with indifference and remark that she had jotted it down in an idle moment.

It may have been a real desire to clear up a literary scandal; female wrath in Bufalo decided upon an investigation, and the real Theodosia Garrison was informed of the filching of her name, reputation and even her life.

"I could have this person arrested for murder," said Mrs. Garrison. "And on two charges. She not only murdered me, but my husband also."

Though Mrs. Garrison has the address and proofs of her masquerading she refuses to expose her.

"What's the use?" asked the writer good naturedly. "Of course, I have been greatly annoyed, but I will gain nothing by making this woman ridiculous."

In the meantime, over in Newark, N. J., there is a little woman who is quaking for fear that the role she has been assuming will bring embarrassing discovery down upon her head. This woman, who answers to the name of "Theo," has developed a sudden reticence in discussing Theodosia Garrison and her work, but she can rest in peace so far as the magazine writer and poetess is concerned, for, if she sins no more, she is forgiven.

As for the real Theodosia Garrison, the one who actually writes the poems and short stories, if you want to settle in your own mind whether she is the widow of a Frenchman, a corpse, or a coryphee, you will discover that Theodosia Packering Garrison is the daughter of Silas Wright and Annie Bedell Packering, and that she was born in Newark, where she was educated in private schools. She married Joseph Garrison, a lawyer, of New York City, in 1898, and resides in West Eighty-eighth street, New York.

ENGLISH ARMY

Short of Officers, Pay Being Too Small.

London, June 2.—The military forces of the crown are, by the latest computation, 4,000 officers short of the requirements as laid down in the army and auxiliary establishments for 1905-6.

This serious shortage, combined with the fact that resignations are still as numerous as ever, is causing considerable misgiving in the minds of the authorities, and conferences are now taking place at the war office under the director of staff duties and other officials, the object of which is to find a remedy for the situation.

The bankruptcy of an officer, whose examination was held at Colchester, Tuesday, has shown the futility of subalterns attempting to meet their expenses out of pay. The decision of the army council that this officer should resign has spread alarm throughout the subaltern ranks of the army, for numbers of young officers are heavily in debt to tradesmen or in the hands of money-lenders.

In spite of the smallness of his pay, the officer is burdened on every hand with expenses for mess, band, regimental clubs, servants and social items.

The changes in uniforms absorb a abnormal amount of his pay. First it is a new undress, then a new full-dress alteration, a change in headgear or overcoat, a new pattern sword, or field-service dress.

At Sandhurst recently the cadets had changes of headdress involving the possession by each cadet of no fewer than five caps, none of which is of any use after passing to a regiment. The cost of altering cadet kit to regimental pattern involves an outlay of from $100 to $150.

ALLIGATOR HUNT

Alexander Schuetz Tells of Lively Florida Experiences.

Alexander Schuetz, a pioneer resident of Duluth, who for many years past has been an attache of the county auditor's office, returned this week from a visit of several months in Florida where he went at the beginning of last winter for the benefit of his health. Mr. Schuetz visited several Florida points, but spent the most of his time at the plantation home of George Berkleman, of Interlaken, Fla., who will be remembered by many Duluthians as one of the former St. Louis county auditors. Mr. Schuetz began service for the county under Mr. Berkleman's administration. The latter has a delightful residence in Florida with an orange grove and is doing very well.

Mr Schuetz although he has passed the age when he can class himself as a young man, has been greatly benefitted by his sojourn and will resume his duties at the county auditor's office next Monday. He brought back many interesting souvenirs of the south for his friends at the courthouse in the shape of small stuffed alligators which were so mounted that they appear to be standing on their hind legs, braced up by their tails, playing miniature mandolins while their mouths are wide open suggestive of a midnight serenade in some one of the Southern bayous.

In speaking of his experiences in the South during the past winter, Mr. Schuetz says one trip that is especially impressed on his recollection is an alligator hunt in which he participated. The hunt was conducted from a small boat, one dark night, the hunters wearing bull's eye lanterns on their hats somewhat after the manner in which illegal hunting of deer is often carried on in some of the northern lakes. Whenever the rays of light would strike the eye of a floating alligator there would be an answering reflection distinct enough to form a good mark for a rifle ball.

Mr. Schuetz says that on the night the hunt was conducted they stirred up a number of big fellows, but they went under water too quick for the hunters to get a good shot. Finally one lusty young alligator about five or six feet long, with more curiosity than discretion, remained at the surface longe enough to receive a bullet that stunned him.

One of the peculiarities of alligator hunting, Mr. Scruetz says, is that an alligator killed by a bullet will immediately sink to the bottom of the river. In this case the young alligator stunned remained floating and the boat was quickly put alongside, the colored man who propelled it reaching over and grasping the alligator, with both arms about the head, close arcund the jaws and lifting him into the boat.

When the alligator began "coming to" Mr. Schuetz says that he was for some time rather uncertain as to his own convenience and safety, for, although the fight is all taken out of a wounded or stunned alligator, it can make things exceedingly lively when it begins to do a little knocking about with its tail.

The boat was run ashore and the scaly quadruped was unloaded and tied to a tree, its jaws being securely tied up with stout cord.

After a little more time spent in hunting, Mr. Schuetz and his companions went back after the captured alligator. By that time it had recovered from its dazed condition and was ripe for trouble. It began threshing about with its tail and making lunges, which served to keep its captors at a distance. It finally broke the rope tying it to the tree. In the running battle that ensued the alligator got down in the weeds, close to the water, and, rather than lose their prize, the hunters killed it.

Mr. Schuetz is having the skin mounted by a taxidermist down in Florida, when he will have it sent up here to be kept as a memento of his hunt.

Mr. Schuetz says that alligators are becoming so scarce in Florida, because of the hunting, that the state legislature has, or is about to, pass a law prohibiting their destruction. The proprietors of the Southern resorts are pushing the protective measure, as they claim that with the loss of the alligators they are losing one of their chief attractions for Northern visitors.

Stuffed or mounted alligators, Mr. Schuetz says, can be found in every conceivable form and size down South.

ARRESTED AT THE DEPOT

James Murphy Sold Furniture Held Under a Mortgage.

While waiting in the depot for his train which would take him and his family to New Mexico, James Murphy, a laborer, was arrested yesterday afternoon on the charge of disposing mortgaged property.

Murphy was claimed to have bought a quantity of furniture from French & Bassett, to be paid for on the installment plan. He secured a position in Albuquerque, and was preparing to go there with his family. He disposed of some of the furniture to a neighbor for $10, and the rest he attempted to sell to A. Fox, a second-hand dealer. The latter saw the mark on the goods, however, and notified the firm.

Murphy was arraigned in court this morning. The members of the firm did not wish to persecute the prisoner, but wanted it made clear that such actions could not be allowed to go unpunished. The charge against Murphy was changed to petty larceny, to which he pleaded guilty, and was fined $10 and costs by Judge Windom, after paying for the furniture which was sold.

West Duluth

MUST BE DONE

City Must Build Jenswold Bridge Before Dock.

When Money Is Available Latter Will Be Built.

There is considerable kicking at West Duluth over the fact that the city council intends building a steel bridge across the Jenswold street subway before building a city dock at the foot of Ramsey street. The condition is unfortunate, but the lack of funds makes it necessary to choose one of the two things and let the other go until the permanent improvement fund is in better shape.

By choosing the Jenswold street subway, according to one city official, the city is merely fulfilling an obligation which should have been taken care of last September. The city obtained the consent of the Northern Pacific road to dig the subway on condition that a steel bridge would be constructed across the subway for the road's use. This was agreed to, and should have been done last September. Lack of funds, however, prevented the fulfilling of the agreement on time and now the city is obliged to put in the bridge or get into trouble with the road. As both this and the dock cannot be constructed now, the dock must wait. When enough money has been placed in the fund the dock will be built.

But there is one thing before that also. It is the matter of the improvement of Superior street from Eighth to Twenty-fourth avenues west. Of course there will be assessments for this, but the city will likely have to stand the assessment expense of any railroad frontage and also that at the Point of Rocks, which property cannot be said to be benefited by the improvement. Just how much the city's part of this street improvement will cost is problematical as yet, but will be known before long and after that, the Ramsey street dock comes next.

Northern League Salary Limit No Joke This Year.

The salary limit of the Northern league clubs goes into effect today, and yesterday every team in the league had to put retrenchment into effect.

The change in the Duluth team consisted in the sale of Kennelley to Winnipeg. The big first baseman was a valuable man to the team, but Duluth could get along without him, and he was badly needed by the Maroons.

O'Dea will go back to first base, and "Si" Bennett will be brought in to second, one of the pitchers playing the outfield. Duluth has now only ten men on the team, Harris having been released.

The salary limit this year, it is claimed, is no farce, as it was last season. Each manager has posted a forfeit of $500, which will be turned over to the league if his team exceeds the limit after today.

Kennelley should greatly strengthen the Maroons, and with Rogers playing steadily behind the bat, the team is much stronger than it has ben at any time this season.

Harris, first base; Ott, second base; Congdon, third base; H. E. Crassweller, shortstop; Bartlett, left field; Hanford, center field; Frank Crassweller, right field.

DELUSIVE FIGURES

Stencilled Car Weights Not Depended on By Shippers.

State Warehouse Commission Places Little Confidence In Them.

The meeting which was held yesterday afternoon between the members of the railroad and warehouse commission and the local dealers in hay and feed with a view of fixing on some plan for a hay inspection to comply with the law passed by the last state legislature, developed several interesting things relative to existing conditions which the public is not generally aware of.

One of these was that the stencilled weight seen at the end of every box car operated by the railway companies is, as a rule, a delusion and a snare. It was claimed by various hay dealers in the meeting of yesterday that the weight of some cars did not come nearly up to the stencilled figures, and Commissioner Staples of the railroad and warehouse commission stated that the commission, after an investigation, has found the stencilled weights to be so generally erroneous that the commission has thrown them out of calculation entirely whenever it is desired to get at a true basis as regards weights and capacity of cars.

In the discussion over the subject of car weights a local dealer who claims to have been observing the matter carefully for some time, declared that it depended on the point where the car weight was taken whether the figures were correct or not. He claimed that weights taken, for instance, at Spooner, Wis., Brainerd, Minn., or other points which are not terminals, are generally found to be erroneous as compared with the true weight, the difference being from 100 to as high as 6,000 pounds. It was also claimed that where the weight of the car was taken at a terminal point, as Superior, it was generally found more nearly correct.

This difference in correctness of weights was explained by the fact that at points not terminals the cars are usually weighed "on the fly," that is, they are weighed without coming to a full stop, as they passed over the scales, while at the terminal points the cars are weighed while standing. This difference in weight of a standing or moving car is said to amount to a great deal, increasing with the rapidity with which the car is being moved.

Asked by the members of the warehouse commission how the true weight of the cars could be arrived at by the dealers, the local dealer who has been an observer claims that where the stencilled weight of the car compares closely with the weights given by the shipper and the buyer of hay it may be considered as nearly correct. He cited instances where the stencilled weight of the car was between the figures given by the shipper and those returned by the buyer.

The discussion of arriving at the true weight developed the sentiment among the local dealers in hay that the only safe way of arriving at the true weight is to take all the hay out of a car and weigh it. It was contended, however, that this process is rather an expensive one and that it was doubtful if the shipper would stand for it. The cost of unloading and weighing a car of hay and reloading it is estimated, by actual experiment to be from $1.00 to $2 per car, depending largely on the familiarity of the men handling the hay, with the work.

USING "SWEAR WORDS"

Does Not Constitute Malfeasance In Office.

St. Paul, June 2.—To use a few "swear words" at meetings of boards of county commissioners does not constitute malfeasance or nonfeasance in office, according to an opinion filed by Attorney General E. T. Young, on the charges preferred against Andy Donaher, chairman of the board of county commissioners of Beltrami county.

Donaher was charged with using violent language at meetings of the commission, with refusing to put motions made by other members and with soliciting a bribe in connection with the letting of a contract for county printing. Mr. Young rules that the charge regarding violent language, even if true, does not constitute malfeasance or nonfeasance in office, and he says that after an investigation he has found that the charge concerning the soliciting of a bribe is without foundation.

This opinion means that the investigation of the affairs of Beltrami county is a closed incident as far as the governor and the attorney general are concerned.

NEW NAVY NEEDED

How the Czar Will Rebuild His Ruined Fleets.

Battleships Are to Lead In His Great Program.

Philadelphia, June 2.—If Russia, fifteen months ago, had had the navy she is about to build, the war with Japan would not have been begun. At the beginning of this year it was announced that the czar had sanctioned the spending of $900,000,000 for the rebuilding of his sea power. A few days ago word from St. Petersburg was received stating that Charles M. Schwab had captured the contract for the construction of some of the new battleships.

This announcement was received with some incredulity. It was later partially confirmed by Mr. Schwab, who said while in Berlin that he preferred to allow the St. Petersburg authorities to make public the details of the contract.

The Japanese had scarcely destroyed Russia's Far Eastern bulwark before the shipbuilders of the world were in St. Petersburg with offers to replace the fleet. In the matter of shipbuilding, especially the construction of warships, the United States occupies a foremost position, and the news that American shipyards will be employed to build the new and powerful fleet was not wholly unexpected.

The recent attitude of Germany toward her neighbor, whom she once jealously watched, gives ample reason for the belief that German shipbuilders will be given a considerable part of the contract.

Whatever part of the contract which comes to this country for its share, Pennsylvania, as the home of the armor-plate industry in the United States, is bound to figure largely. The Delaware river, as the "Clyde of America," has at least five shipyards capable of building warships of any size.

With the destruction of the Baltic fleet, a new navy is essential to Russia's national existence. Although the details of Russia's naval program have not as yet been made public, if indeed they have been decided upon, it is known that it provides for shipbuilding for ten years. Navies cannot be bought ready-made, nor can they be built in less than a comparatively long period, and even the decade in which this program is to be completed is relatively short, if not unprecedented, for the construction of the large number of ships to be built. No country, perhaps, has facilities for doing so much warship building within ten years. So far as Russia is concerned, although Peter the Great desired to establish shipbuilding on the grand scale, the thing is impossible.

The ships already decided upon, which are to be delivered within three or five years include eight 16,000-ton battleships, eight 13,500-ton battleships, six 7,800-ton armored cruisers, six 3,100-ton protected cruisers, six 6,675-ton protected cruisers, fifty 500-ton destroyers, 100 destroyers of displacement varying from 150 to 350 tons each; ten mine-laying steamships of the type of the unfortunate Yenesei and four repairs ships of the Kamschatka type.

The total tonnage for the 138 ships thus far decided upon is about 450,000, or considerably more than the tonnage Great Britain has provided for in her program, which will not be completed for several years yet and exceeds by almost 100,000 tons the announced program of the United States, which was considered of enormous dimensions. If this building policy is carried out along the lines suggested, in 1910 Russia will have regained her former position in the ranking navies of the world. In 1915, if the navies of the other powers have not been augmented considerably in the meantime, the Russian fleet will probably be on a par with that of Great Britain, in tonnage at least, and will thus compel a change in what has been a British tradition—that the British fleet must be equal to those of any two powers.

If the war in the Far East has taught any lesson to naval men, it has proved that the battleship is the only ship for a naval engagement. It alone can take punishment as well as inflict powerful blows, and in order to live through projectile fire it must be heavily armored. The armor on the first-class battleship weighs nearly one-third of the ship's total displacement. As an illustration, a 16,000-ton battleship will have bolted to its sides and over its decks, with its turrets, no less than 6,000 tons of armor. In nearly every instance of delay in completion of a battleship the delay has been occasioned by the tardy receipt of the armor plates.

Naval constructors have lavished more thought and attention upon the designs of the battleship than upon any other unit of a fleet. It has become recognized in the service that the battleship, more than ever, has become the factor which, all other things being equal, will determine the result of an action. The United States led the way in the matter of armaments of battleships by omitting the intermediate batteries and some protection and mounting as many large guns as possible. In addition to the twin 12-inch guns in the turrets, the board of naval construction has advocated the use only of 10-inch guns.

Last summer the British naval constructors were advocating a return to the smaller battleships—the King Edward VIII., just completed, being the largest in the world—16,350 tons. It was believed that the larger battleship was defective because of its vulnerability below the water. It was also believed that there was not relatively as much fighting quality as the big tonnage would indicate. However, they studied the lessons in the Far Eastern war, and when the designs for the Lord Nelson class were made public it was found that the King Edward had been exceeded. As the Lord Nelson class is the latest type of battleship to be devised, and as it will be only a little less in tonnage than the new Russian ships, which will probably have included in them some of its features, a few of its distinguishing characteristics may be given.

Chief among these features is a determined attempt to neutralize the deadly efficacy of torpedo attack. It had been in contemplation originally to armor these new ships under water with 14-inch Krupp plating, but this intention was abandoned—first, on account of the excessive weight imposed, and, secondly, because the protection imparted against torpedoes by light armor is very problematical.

The plan adopted consists of a novel development of the double bottom. In all existing battleships the double bottom extends the whole length of the ship, and is carried in armored vessels to the height of the lower edge of the armor belting, which rests upon its shoulder.

The distance between the inner and outer skin has heretofore been only a few inches. It is hoped that by building the inner wall of stouter plating, and allowing a considerable space between it and the outer bilge of the ship, the explosion fo a torpedo outside the vessel will not suffice to fracture both skins. To minimize the risk of this still further it is intended to fill the intervening space between the inner and outer wall with some loose material that will "take up" much of the concussion.

A longitudinal bulkhead will run fore and aft at some little distance inside the shell plating, and this is expected to offer an effectual resistance to the explosion of a torpedo on impact with the outer wall. It will, furthermore, exclude any inrush of water into the interior.

Another striking departrue in design is afforded by the midship cross-section of these new battleships. They will have virtually no curve at all to the bilge, being very nearly square. The idea is that in a hull of this shape the bottom is less likely to be affected by torpedoes. The walls of the magazines are to be very much more massive than in any preceding type. This is due to the fact that in some of the Russian warships the magazine walls are known to have split in action.

Alcohol Kills Fisherman.

Peter Norman, an old fisherman residing on Wisconsin Point, was found dead in his bed, yesterday, by a cousin, Andrew Sjalmar, who went to call him. Norman was found fully dressed and lying across his bed. An examination showed that he had been dead some hours. He was last seen alive Tuesday afternoon and it is supposed that he died shortly after that time, the cause being acute alcoholism.

ENGLAND FEARS

Being Involved In Another Torpedo Boat Scandal.

London, June 2.—A mysterious torpedo boat, the destination of which is causing the foreign office a good deal of concern, is now lying off Messrs. Thornycroft's works at Chiswick, being hurriedly prepared for a sea voyage.

The vessel, which is 55 feet long, and which has twin screws, is a novelty in naval construction, for she is the first high-speed torpedo-boat to be fitted with petrol-driven engines. The rapidity with which she has been constructed may be judged from the fact that she was only laid down two months ago.

Messrs. Thornycroft received the order for the vessel from a Swedish harbor board, but the foreign office is afraid that after she leaves the builders' hands an attempt may be made to run her to a Russian port.

So determined are the authorities that the Caroline incident shall not be repeated, that they have placed a customs official on board the vessel and arranged for a sharp look out being kept all down the river to prevent the craft from slipping away. When the vessel passed the custom house during her trial spin signals were exchanged between the official on board and others who were gathered on shore.

GASOLINE IS CHEAPER.

Cleveland, June 2.—The Standard Oil company today reduced the price of naphtha and gasoline from 1½ to 1 cent per gallon. On tank wagon naphtha and gasolines the reduction is ½ cent per gallon while on barrel goods the quotations are cut 1 cent per gallon. V. M. & P. naphtha is now quoted at 12 cents, deodorized stove gasoline 11 cents and 74 deg. to 76 deg. gasoline 13 cents.

BICYCLE RECORD BROKEN.

Ogden, Utah, June 2.—In a three open lap race at the Glenwood saucer track in which ten professional riders were entered, N. C. Hopper of Minneapolis, broke the world's record of 5.11 made by W. E. Samuelson in Salt Lake City, July 1, 1904, by riding the three miles in 6.07 3-5.

It's Annoying

It's very annoying to have to look about for clothes. It isn't strange, however, that "particular" people, who have looked at clothing in the other stores cease to look further, once they have seen ours!

"I've been buying clothes at So-and-so's, but I like your clothes so much better," is an expression frequently heard here. If every man in search of clothes would make it a point to see ours, we imagine there would be little business for other stores.

ONTARIO TORIES

Made a Few Hits at Late Session of Legislature.

Premier Whitney Stopped Electric Railway Grab For One.

Toronto, Ont., June 2.—Government, three hits, one run, no errors; opposition, no hits, no runs, no errors. Such is the baseball fan's estimate of the happenings of the first session of the first Conservative legislature which this province has had since confederation. The adjournment took place with much of that pomp and ceremony popularly supposed to be dear to the hearts of all good Tories, though it could not vie at all with the opening when thousands of the faithful gathered from all parts of the province found themselves able to get standing room only in the corridors of the immense parliament buildings.

The government's solitary run may safely be called a "homer," since Premier Whitney brought himself and his colleagues safely through the hitherto unknown dangers of the session without doing anything over which even the most rabid Liberal could make much of a howl. True in some of the departments many officials have been dismissed, but on the whole the idea seems to be that for men who have been hungering for office for thirty years the Conservatives have been pretty moderate. There is, however, the feeling that now the session is over there may be more doing. No one knows save the premier and he has acquired the habit of telling very little. Also, the well-informed say that Sir Wilfred Laurier has told Mr. Whitney that for every Liberal he dismisses the Ottawa government will dismiss two Conservatives. This they are well able to do, for the Conservatives in their long tenure at Ottawa filled the ranks of the civil service with the faithful.

Of the premier's three hits the most picturesque is that which concerns the York Radical Railway company's bill. This company, which is said to be identical with the Toronto street railway comapny, brought in a bill giving them what were practically perpetual franchises through several suburban towns to Toronto. The company's friends had secured a majority of the committee and its passage looked like a certainty when the chairman proposed that it should be laid over. It had been brought in too late to allow of proper consideration, he said, and anyway the premier did not approve. Even this did not have the desired effect and before he would take the vote the chairman sent for the premier. When Mr. Whitney arrived he promptly stopped the whole matter. In general, he did not approve of legislation being brought in at the last moment and being railroaded through; in particular he did not believe in giving away perpetual franchises and he would not allow the bill to pass the house. It did not pass the committee either, though Dr. Beattie Nebitt braved his chief's anger and voted for the bill.

Not quite so spectacular, but just as effective probably in its notice to corporations, is the premier's statement that he will not, unless under the most exceptional circumstances which he does not now forsee, bonus any more railways.

The third effective thing the premier has done concerns the provincial university in this city. He has outlined a comprehensive program of improvement and extension which involves the spending of a million and a half dollars. The half-million was voted this year, and the first step is to be the building of a million-dollar hospital in connection with the medical school. This is to be built by the city and government jointly and to be a provincial institution. It is noticeable that the considerable expenditure on the university—the only unusual one the premier allowed to be voted this year—has met with wide approval. The late government always defended its niggardly policy on the ground that the people cared nothing for the university. In consequence of that policy its standing as the first university of the country has been threatened.

Mr. Whitney came pretty close to making a bad error over one of his pre-election pledges, that he would separate the administration of the lands and mines, making a new portfolio for mines and giving it to a man from New Ontario where most of our mineral lands are. When he got into power and learned more of the details of administrative work, the premier found that he had promised an impossible thing. Perhaps the simplest way out of it would have been to confess that he was wiser now than he was last January, but he didn't take that course, and has doubled several corners in trying to square his present action with his previous promise. In the end he has changed the name of the department of crown lands to that of lands and mines, and it is practically settled that in the reconstruction of the cabinet, which is to come soon, this portfolio will go to a New Ontario man, Frank Cochrane. This will be made possible by Mr. Whitney taking of the new portfolio he has created—that of president of the council—while Hon. Mr. Foy, now minister of crown lands, will take the attorney generalship which Mr. Whitney has had.

The premier was able to fill his other pre-election pledge more easily and the numbered ballot was in the first instance introduced to prevent tampering with the votes. For the past two or three elections there has been an uneasy suspicion that it was used to enable Liberal candidates to learn just how their constituents voted and there are those—nor are they few in number—who claim to have seen lists of voters in various constituencies, each name carelessly marked to correspond with the ballot cast.

As for the opposition, it seems scarcely to have recovered from the blow it received in January. It has occupied its twenty-nine seats and duly voted against the government bills, but that is the most that can be said about it. Hon. Mr. Ross, ex-premier, since his return a month ago, has been leader, but he has not accomplished even any effective criticism. Meantime Hon. G. P. Graham, who entered the late administration when Hon. J. R. Stratton was forced out, is forging to the front as the most likely man among the younger element of the party.

Of course, no one expected that the Conservatives would do very much in the way of new legislation this year. They had not time before the meeting of the house to prepare measures, but for next year Mr. Whitney has promised an extensive program. There is to be a radical reform in the administration of the civil law of the province; many reforms in the matter of the different departments of government; a new mining policy; a new settlers' policy, and last, but by no means least, he has promised to examine thoroughly into the temperance question.

From the viewpoint of the hotel men, Mr. Whitney has already done a good deal for the temperance people, but the latter are unkind enough to say that he has said a good deal more than he has done. A large temperance convention is called for June 22, and it is just possible that it may attempt to force the premier's hand in the direction of another referendum, in which case there will be trouble in store for the Conservative party generally.

One other remarkable incident marked the triumph of the Conservatives. The man from Manitoulin, R. R. Gamey, whose charge that he had been paid $3,000 by the then provincial secretary, J. R. Stratton, to turn over to the government, led to an investigation by a royal commission which whitewashed the minister, demanded that the record of his condemnation should be erased from the rolls of the house. He contended that while the judges had found Mr. Stratton innocent the people of the province had found him guilty. The house sustained by a large majority.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Great Excitement at Rapid River Over Discovery of Oil.

Escanaba—Great excitement prevails at Rapid River, Delta county, over the discovery of oil within a mile of that place. A steady flow of pure oil is found at a depth of two feet and all indications point to large deposits. The oil was discovered by laborers working on the road adjoining.

Property values have taken a big jump in twenty-four hours. The new well is four miles from the property of the Cream City Developing company of Milwaukee, which recently went into the hands of receivers.

Pickford—Death from a cave-in was the fate of William O'Neil while at work in a well west of Pickford, Chippewa county. He was fifty years of age and resided with his sister, Mrs. Harrison. As near as can be learned O'Neil was thirty feet underground when the accident occurred. He had warning enough to leap into the bucket to be pulled to the top, but the earth came down just as the slack had been taken out of the rope.

Iron River—At the Baltic mine at Iron River, George and August Parakuovitz, aged 20 and 25 years, respectively, lost their lives by a fall of ground in the same stope in which John Farley, Jr., was killed several weeks ago. The men were employed as partners. They were probably in a stooping position when the edge of the slab struck them. They were struck on their heads and evidently were killed instantly.

Ironwood—Henry Velter fell against a circular saw in Clark's mill at Kimball, his right arm being so badly lacerated that it had to be amputated near the elbow. The injured man was brought to Ironwood on an ore train, Dr. George Moore performing the operation at the Union hospital.

Joseph Sautter, 15-year-old son of Mrs. Paul Sautter, West Ayer street, Ironwood, while attempting to alight from a Wisconsin Central ore train in Hurley fell under the cars, the wheels passing over his right leg and necessitating its amputation midway between knee and ankle.

George MacFarrell, an Ironwood boy, 9 years of age, had a narrow escape from being killed by a street car. The youngster was riding on the rear of the street sprinkler and jumped off and started to cross the car tracks, just as a car came along. The car was so close that there was no time to stop it, and the boy was knocked down. He was dragged about thirty feet, but fortunately was caught by the fender and sustained no injury, other than a severe shaking up and some slight bruises. Had it not been for the fender it is considered certain he would surely have been killed.

Crystal Falls—While three little girls, daughters of Elmer Nolenberg, were passing the vacant lot near the hospital at Crystal Falls, they were attacked by a vicious cow. The oldest of the girls was twelve years and the youngest seven. The cow made its attack upon the 7-year-old girl. The little one was tossed on the animals horns and would probably have been killed but for the courage of the oldest girl. She grabbed the child and dragged her along the ground not being able to carry her, the cow charging upon the child all the time. Two men, who happened to be passing in a wagon came to the assistance of the children and chased the cow away.

STRANGE FACTS.

It seems strange that sometimes your stomach or bowels won't digest your food, no matter what you eat.

It may be the weather, or it may be just the state of your general health, but in any case, there is only one certain, safe and positive method of cure, and that is the proper use of that universal remedy for all forms of dyspeptic trouble or digestive weakness, whether in stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels—Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Strange, it is, that in such little tablets, to be taken a few times a day, may lie such wondrous potential possibilities, that by their use the course of a man's whole life—yes, of the world—may be changed

Yet, who would not appreciate the fact that if Napoleon had not been suffering from Cancer of the Stomach he would have won instead of lost—at Waterloo?

And Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets would have cured his Stomach Trouble had they then been invented, as they have cured thousands of others in the past ten years, who have suffered just as Napoleon did.

So you can readily appreciate that today, by curing all these people, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is helping to get the world's work better done, by people who would do worse work if they were sick, so they must be having a great influence, in a quiet way, on the world's progress.

They may, therefore, be classed as one of the triumphs of science, amongst other discoveries in medicine, mechanics, transportation, etc.

Let this, then, remain in your memory, a fact upon which to act when occasion requires:—

When any organ in your vast digestive machinery gets out of order, you have at your command one of the great inventions of the age, in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, to put your machinery in order again.

By so doing you will save much useless friction, add to the energy and working possibilities of your bodily machine, and relieve yourself from suffering, disease, weakness, premature old age and death.

All this is strictly in accordance with the most modern teachings of the best scientific schools of health, hygiene and medicine, and it will be to your advantage to lay these facts to heart.

Don't hesitate. Try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets today.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

An Early Romance of Soldier Is Brought to Light.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—A romance of early soldier life on the frontier is disclosed in the investigations of Ignatius Court, Indian interpreter. According to Court's story, there was a gallant captain named A. A. Harbach in 1869 at the army post, where Fort Totten is now located. He wooed and won the beautiful daughter of one of the leading Indian chiefs, and for a time their life was ideally happy, but the Indian bride died in childbirth and left a baby girl, which was cared for by its grandmother. When Harbach was transferred to another post he made every effort to secure the babe, finally reaching an agreement with the grandmother to pay $100 for it. This agreement was later repudiated by the aged woman, who had become attached to the child, and Harbach left the babe when he was sent to another fort. The child grew into a pretty girl and was educated at the Indian school. Her early efforts to locate her father were not successful, and when she married Court fifteen years ago, one of the pledges he made was to assist her in finding her father. Efforts to secure the address of the soldier father through the war department were unsuccessful, and private investigations met with little encouragement. Mr. and Mrs. Court concluded her father must be dead, but in 1898 Court went to Washington on official business and made a personal investigation, which showed the man he sought was with the regular army in Cuba. Lack of means prevented his going to the island, and letters addressed to the officer failed to secure a response. Recently Court was informed that the father of his wife is residing at Rochester, N. Y., as a retired brigadier general, and letters have just been sent him there. If no responses are received, Mr. and Mrs. Court will make an Eastern trip to find him. It is said the marriage of Capt. Harbach and the daughter of the Indian chief was in due form, and the wife of Court has no reason to blush over her birth. Court is a full-blooded Sioux and a leader among his fellows at Fort Totten. He has held several official positions, is well educated and a good business man.

The "jag wagon" industry in Fargo is threatened. The two drivers recently arrested on a charge of violating the North Dakota prohibition law had a preliminary hearing and were held to the district court. The cases were identical. Orders were telephoned to Moorhead saloons for beer. Delivery was made to this side and the money collected. Then new orders for whisky were given on this side. Later the whisky was delivered and collections made. The court decided that the delivery of telephone orders was not a violation of the law, but soliciting and taking orders on this side, filling them and making the collections—all in North Dakota—were held to be violations, and the men will be tried in the district court. If found to have violated the law, it will prevent the Moorhead saloonkeepers from collecting on this side and necessitate two trips in sending the money over and then having the order filled, as the saloon men will not care to send many orders to irresponsible persons on this side. It is contended that under the law whisky and beer bills cannot be collected on this side, no matter how the order was given.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Lead—Ore assaying $1,000 a ton has been found by the Homestake company in a vein of considerable size on one of the lower levels. There has been a rumor for several days past that a remarkable strike had been made by this company, and it has now been confirmed. The exact size of the ore body has not been made known, but it is stated that it extends from the lower levels to the surface. Some remarkable fine specimens of gold ore have been brought to the surface by miners and by the company's officials. The Homestake mine has frequently found stringers of high-grade, but it is stated that this strike is the largest ever made. It proves the theory of many old miners that the ore in the Homestake will become richer as depth is attained.

Huron—Gust Allen, aged 23 and single, was run over in the Chicago & North-Western railway yards last night. Both legs were crushed, necessitating the amputation of one above and the other below the knee. He will probably die.

Aberdeen—The home of John Henley, four miles southwest of Claremont, was destroyed by fire while the family was absent attending Memorial day services. The building and contents and about 1,000 bushels of oats were destroyed. Loss, $1,000.

Milbank—A double wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Vandervort. Ralph Amsden and Miss Alice Vandervort and Lynn Hawes and Miss Lulu Vandervort were united in marriage. They have all grown up from children in this city.

Ortonville—The outing season has opened on Big Stone lake and the prospects are good for a large increase in summer visitors. The Milwaukee will run excursion trains to Ortonvile next Sunday from the Twin Cities, Fargo and Aberdeen. One of the features of the day will be a game of baseball between the Renville team and Theis team of Minneapolis.

The retail merchants of this section will hold a convention here on June 14.

Aberdeen—The First National bank has purchased for $11,000 the building and lot owned by the John Gund Brewing company at Main street and Second avenue, adjoining the present location of the bank, giving it a site 80x142 feet. The possession of the Gun property will not be given until July 1, 1906, at which time work will be commenced on a permanent home for the institution.

The house of W. L. Wellman was entered during the absence from town of the family and completely ransacked. Nothing has been missed and it is believed the robbers were in search of money only.

Casper Hatz of Yankton has modified his plans and instead of building a five-story building on his lots will erect a two-story structure instead, the dimensions being 100x142 feet. The building will cost $40,000.

At the United States land office at Aberdeen in May there were twenty-two homestead entries, comprising 3,110 acres; ten final proofs, comprising 1,640 acres; 631 acres of isolated land were sold and two declaratory statements filed.

The home of John Hanley four miles southwest of Claremont, was destroyed by fire. Loss $1,000.

INSULAR NEW YORKERS.

A man who never told a lie outside of business hours was giving a friend instances of the insularity of New Yorkers, says the New York Sun.

"I know a woman," the truthful one said, "who has lived in New York fifty years and never saw a cow, except in pictures." The friend swallowed the cow without much straining. Then came another big mouthful:

"More than that, I know a business man who has worked in his office here for twenty years, and he never has gone downtown far enough to see the Brooklyn bridge!" The friend is still trying to swallow that.

THE BOMBAY DUCK.

When it was found that even the seventh and youngest of the sleepers of Ephesus slept a placid and dreamless sleep after a supper of plentiful Welsh rarebit, so runs the Arabic legend, it was decided as a final resort to try a Bombay duck. And, according to the veracious chronicle of Abd'ul Faragee, the seven thereafter were known as the seven insomniacs, and the demand for it in turn outran the supply.

It is not so much the Bombay duck itself. This is a patient little fish of a past decade, as is abundantly testified by its smell. But it is the fixings that do the business. This is the way to fix a Bombay duck, and when it is thus fixed you sit up and take notice, and you keep on noticing many picturesque incidents until cockcrow or later.

On the bottom of a soup plate you drop carefully four wee drops of asafetida, well scattered and with the back of a spoon spread each drop as far as it will go. On this base you put a mound of curry powder and make it red with cayenne, squeeze on it enough lime juice to make a stiff paste and rub it all down smooth with the spoon. Next add a thin slice of cheese—Stilton or Cheddar as preferred—and rub it to pieces with a little olive oil, for the ghee of the Far East is not to be had in New York shops. Add cheese slice by slice and work it down until there is enough for the supply of duck. Then dilute with arrack to the consistency of cream, put in a chafing dish and bring to a sputtering bubble and pour over the Bombay duck, which should have been lightly toasted. At intervals during the night after one's first Bombay duck appropriate incidental music may be found in the hymn, "Through the long night watches."

WOMEN'S WEAR.

Some of the Things For Summer Use.

It looks as though everybody under the sun were going to wear chemisettes. Shirtwaist suits and dresses alike are designed for them, some of them showing the deep lingerie cuff to match, although the separate cuffs haven't anything like the following that chemisettes have, says an exchange.

There is a tendency toward rather severe suits; and, by way of contrast, to very muc htrimmed ones; no matter how they are made, they never lose the little air that stamps them as shirtwaist suits.

Plain skirts are a long way the best for washable stuffs; for tucks don't do up overly well, and shirring is a good deal worse, except in the softest, sheerest materials—the kinds that belong to blouses and chemisettes.

Silk shirtwaist suits have changed a good deal since last year, and half of them have the chemisette in one form or other; the little round and square necks are most popular, although surplice styles make V-shapes of the tuckers.

Circular flounces have come in again, after circular skirts, and prove an attractive way of getting a graceful little extra fullness about the skirt from the knees down, without accentuating fullness further up on the skirt. The same skirts often show tucks running up and down—just on each side of the front and of the back, giving a sort of panel effect that is very good.

With this skirt the shirtwaist should be tucked front and back, like the skirt, carrying out the panel effect. Leave the shoulders plain, and put stitched bands of the material in a broken line to define a deep yoke and about the tiny square neck. The yoke and cuffs may be made separate or attached.

A good way if you have trouble in keeping the separate tucker from riding up, yet want it separate, so that it can be washed often, is to baste it in exactly right, or it will pull into uglier lines than ever. If you get it in the right position, though, it will set perfectly.

A shirtwaist, with a tiny vest showing below the yoke, is an innovation. The shirtwaist is tucked down the back and the puff of the sleeves and trimmed with straight bands down each side of the front and a shaped one around the yoke. Cuffs and yoke may be made of lace or embroidery insertion, or both—the newest way of making cuffs being of rows of narrow valenciennes insertion, finished at the hand with a row of batiste insertion, as sheer as possible and in as open a design.

The skirt shows a panel effect in front and is trimmed with three bias bands, starting from the panel. The back is pleated into the belt.

All shirtwaist suits are cut walking length—a little shorter than just touching.

Men Are the Cooks.

That women are a failure as cooks, and that men are qualified by nature to engage successfully in the culinary art, is the firm conviction of Dr. R. E. Thompson of Philadelphia, says What to Eat.

"Women have no natural gift for cooking," said Dr. Thompson. "They have been forced by the men to engage in the culinary pursuit just as if it were as simple as washing a handkerchief or blanket. They cook what we like instead of what is good for us, and their lack of knowledge of our requirements makes them directly responsible for the suffering thousands endure because of dyspepsia and other ills traceable to bad cooking."

The plan proposed by Dr. Thompson as a relief from existing ills is to have edibles cooked at central points by competent culinary artists, and to supply families from these kitchens. In this manner, he says, much waste may be avoided and economy practiced with profit. The doctor says:

"In the house of the future cooking, washing and heating are the three problems which must be done away with. When this comes to pass the home will be emancipated. A hundred years ago the women made all the clothing of the men in the family. Such a thing is unheard of today, and the emancipation of women in this respect has been of tremendous advantage to womankind. In other respects must the homes of our land be gradually emancipated. It is bound to come."

A PIECE OF DRIFTWOOD

By J. C. Plummer.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Our bark had crept up the bay before a half hearted wind that died away at twilight and we dropped anchor off an inlet. There was a small village at its mouth and when the darkness grew, lights gleamed from the houses. The bark of a dog came over the water, a wondrous homelike sound to men who, for three months, had heard nothing but the voices of the sea; its wind talk when the gale flattened the waves and roared in its rage; the shriek of the spendrift as it flew over the decks and the eternal monotonous moan of the wind in the rigging when these two voices were silent.

"I've a bloomin' fine bull terrier at 'ome," said a grim visaged sailor, looking towards the village. The dog's bark had carried his thoughts back to his home on the Humber where the bull terrier and some other things that were dear to him, lived."

The night thickened with a mist and the lights looked bleared. The water lapped the ship's side mournfully.

"Ship, ahoy!" came out of the darkness.

"Ay, ay," called the mate from the poop, peering over the rail.

"Is there a doctor, or anybody who knows somethin' about doctorin' aboard?" said the voice.

"Only the skipper," replied the mate, "and," looking around to be sure that officer was not on deck, "Gawd help anyone he doctors."

There was a choke in the voice as it answered.

"My leetle gal's done swallowed a bullot and she's suffecatin' to death. Our doctor's gone to the city and there's ne'er one in forty mile."

The mate called down through the skylight and Captain Moody came on deck.

"Hi'm afraid Hi can't do much for you me lad," said he, "Hi'm no doctor, but you're welcome to what's in the medicine chist." When anything went wrong the skipper could blaspheme in a way that would make your hair stand, but he had a blooming good heart.

"Scraggy," exclaimed the mate.

"Ay, ay," replied the skipper, "Scraggy's a doctor, let 'im go."

Two of our crew had deserted at Buenos Ayres and we had shipped two of the best men obtainable in the emergency in their place. One of them was a fair enough sailor, but the other, Scraggy, was the worst specimen of a good-for-nothing beach comber an officer ever ordered to swab decks. He was so drunk when he was pitched aboard that he did not sober up until we were out of the La Plate and then we had a mind to wish he had died in his drunken fit. He obeyed an order in a shufflingway that would have made a saint, with a halo like a cartwheel around his head, swear like a Gravesend boatman. He was impertinent, too, and the mate had knocked him down two or three times, but it did no good. For all that, this dirty, worthless man before the mast had been, somewhere back in his misspent life a doctor. It came out this way. One of the best men in the crew lost his footing and fell from the rail, jabbing a knife he held in his hand into his arm. The blood spouted up and to save ourselves we couldn't stop it spouting. The poor fellow was getting as limp as a tgallant sail when the wind drops and there was nothing for us but to watch him bleed to death. Scraggy came up out of the fo'castle just then and in a minute was beside the man. He whipped off his neck an old dirty handkerchief and rigging a knot around the man's arm just above the cut, he twisted this knot tight, using a marline spike for a lever, until the bleeding stopped. Then he ordered—mind, I say he ordered—the skipper to bring up his medicine chest, and fished in the cut with something like a pair of tweezers until he gets the vein tied up taut and wraps the arm all shipshape.

"Go ashore with this porc man, Scraggy," said the skipper, "and help his leetle gal. Hi think you know more about doctorin' nor I do, don't you?"

"Yes," said Scraggy. "I do and so does the windlass."

That was a blooming nice way to talk to a skipper, but he was blamed saucy, was Scraggy.

We got in the boat and the man pulled fiercely for the inlet. "She had the bullet in her mouth unbeknowinst to us all," said he, "and she done swallowed it. We did all we could. He helt her up by her feet, but it wouldn't come out."

The cabin bore every mark of shiftlessness and poverty. A kerosene lamp gave a dim light from the table, but the fire blazing on the hearth gave as much. A little scrawny girl, held in the arms of a slattern woman, was trying her best to get enough breath out of her gasps to live. Her face was strained and the veins stood out with her efforts.

"How is she?" I asked the man anxiously as we entered.

"Wuss," replied the woman, and burst into tears.

Scraggy went right at his job. He took the girl out of the woman's lap and placing her on the bed in a sitting posture motioned me to one side of her. Following his directions I placed one hand beside his on her back and with the other grasped her arm. Then we began bending her down until her face almost touched her knees. The motion began slowly, but ended with a sharp jerk. Up and down we bent the thin little body, and Scraggy's face grew anxious.

"There are no instruments to be had," he muttered, "this is the only chance in God's world."

Up and down we swayed the little girl until it minded me of a spell at the pumps and then of a sudden Scraggy gave a yell.

The bullet had rolled out of the girl's mouth and had fallen on the floor. She drew a long breath and began to cry.

"Mister," said the man, looking into Scraggy's face, "you've saved my darter's life, and Lawd knows I haven't nawthin' to give you for doin' of it."

"Shut up," snapped Scraggy, "we belong to the same order, we two, the order of the good-for-nothings. If you were worth a curse you wouldn't be living in this shanty, and if I was I wouldn't be in a ship's forecastle. Good-bye brother."

The happy father accompanied us down to the beach.

"I'd pawn my soul for a drink," remarked Scraggy, looking wistfully at the houses, but I never let go my grip on his arm until he was on board ship.

He left us at Baltimore and the next day I saw three policemen dragging him, fighting drunk, to the watch house. I've never seen him since, but some day the tide'll bring that piece of driftwood into a port where I'm lying, I hope.

AN ACTOR'S JOKE.

Henry Monnier is a well-known actor in Paris, France, fast becoming famous as a practical joker, says the Detroit News.

In Paris the janitor always answers the door at apartment houses.

Recently Monnier selected a big, fat, testy old janitor, stopped at his door one day and asked:

"Is Mr. Monnier here?"

"No, sir," politely answered the concierge. "He does not live here, nor does he visit here."

"Oh, yes he does," cried the actor, "for I am Henry Monnier," and, after laughing fit to crack his sides, he went away.

He returned the next day, looking like another man.

"Can I see Henry Monnier?" he asked the concierge.

"No, sr," answered that personage, annoyed, but completely deceived. "You cannot see him because no gentleman of that name ever calls here."

"Part right and part wrong," retorted Monnier. "I cannot see him because I am Henry Monnier," and once more he went away laughing immoderately.

The third day there returned to the concierge an entirely different-looking man who asked the exasperating question.

"If you ever dare to come here again and ask for Henry Monnier," shouted the old fellow, "I'll break every bone in your giggling body as sure as I stand here."

Monnier, shouting with laughter, departed.

The concierge, choking with perplexed rage, fell into his chair.

Monnier went home, wrote and sent notes to half a dozen friends, reading:

"Dear Comrade: I have changed my rooms. I now live at such and such a street, such and such a number(giving the name of the street and the home at which he had so sorely tried the concierge). Will you come this evening and help me in a little housewarming jollification? We will have supper and a real good evening."

Evening came and one so cordially invited confronted the concierge:

"Is Henry Monnier in?"

At the repetition of the hated name the infuriated concierge seized his stick and unmercifully belabored the scared and mystified visitor.

All six arrived in turn. The concierge, growing more and more furious, if possible, exhausted himself in playing a tattoo over their shoulders.

Meantime Monnier sat at home, delightedly hugging himself, weeping in excess of mirth.

THEIR ANSWERS.

Civil Service Commissioner Talley is saving up samples of the answers he gets in the examinations, says the New York Sun. Here are two. An applicant for appointment on the police was asked: What is the distance from the Flatiron building to Coney Island?

"I don't know," he wrote. "But if that's the kind of beats you have I don't want the job."

A would-be fireman was asked to name "three city departments other than the one in which you desire appointment." He promptly wrote down: "Wanamaker's, Macy's and Siegel-Cooper's."

SUBJECT FOR CHIROPODY.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles relates the story of a cowboy guide who put up one night at a tavern that was, by reason of some festivity in the little town in which it was located, taxed to its capacity, says a writer in Success. The guide found himself placed in a room with a stranger, but the tavernkeeper assured him that the arrangement would prove satisfactory for the reason that his bedfellow was a mild-mannered man from the East. Somewhat tired, the guide retired early. Determined to have at least his half of the bed, he strapped his spurs to his ankles. Apparently the Eastern man, when he eventually went to bed, was seriously inconvenienced, for during the night he awoke the guide and said:

"Pardon me, sir, but if you're a gentleman, you will trim your toenails."

DECIDE ON PASTOR

Bethany Lutheran Congregation to Meet on Monday Night.

Rev. J. A. Nyvall Preaches There Sunday—May Be Called.

It is likely that the congregation of Bethany Lutheran church will decide on Monday evening whom it will call to the pastorate of the congregation. On that evening a meeting of the whole congregation will be held to act upon the matter.

Next Sunday Rev. J. A. Nyvall of Moorhead will preach morning and evening, and as he has already been recommended by the council of the church for the pastorate, it is very likely that Monday night's meeting will result in his being called, although there are some in the congregation who favor another man. It is believed, however, that the vast majority desire Mr. Nyvall. He is considered a very able speaker and hard worker, and is said to possess considerable tact and has the knowledge and experience necessary to keep a congregation well cemented.

June 25, which is the last Sunday of the month, will be the last day upon which Rev. A. F. Elmquist will be heard here as pastor of Bethany church. That day's services ends his connection with the congregation, and after that he will become pastor of St. John's English Lutheran church of Minneapolis. Previous to going to his new charge, after his release here, Mr. Elmquist will go to Racine, Wis., to attend the Lutheran synodical meeting, which takes place there the last week in June. The opening of his pastorate at St. John's in Minneapolis will be on the second Sunday in July.

TRIBUTE TO ORGANIST.

Swedish Baptists Bid Mrs. Loydgren God-Speed.

The First Swedish Baptist church congregation, at its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening of this week, paid a high tribute to its retiring organist, Mrs. Amanda Loydgren, who in a few days will leave Duluth for Portland, Or., to join her husband Leonard Loydgren.

MRS. AMANDA LOYDGREN, Retiring Organist First Swedish Baptist Church.

The members of the congregation met in large numbers, and after the business of the congregation had been disposed of, Rev. A. Edstrom, in well chosen words, expressed the thanks of the church for the many years that Mrs. Loydgren had served as organist, and expressed regret that the congregation felt at losing such efficient musical talent. A. Thoren made a few remarks in behalf of the Sunday school, where Mrs. Loydgren has been organist for fourteen years, the same length of time she has served the church. She also served as secretary of the Sunday school from 1893 to 1897. After the addresses refreshments were served and the evening was spent in an informal way.

Many tendered their best wishes to Mrs. Loydgren for the future, and hoped that her sojourn in Portland would be pleasant and happy.

Pleasure Parties.

A great many parties of young, middle aged and old West end people took advantage of the beautiful weather which prevailed on Memorial day to enjoy outings at different points of interest. A good many went to Fond du Lac, of course, it being the rendezvous of hundreds of pleasure seekers at all times, but a great many more went to Caribou and Pike lakes. Others went to Bowlder lake, Cloquet river and other points. Many fishing parties were formed and some good catches as well as some large disappointments are reported.

THE DAYLIGHT STORE.

Oak Hall Clothing Co.

331-333-335 West Superior St., Cor. Fourth Avenue West

OPENING A BIG SUCCESS

Large Crowds Visit the Oak Hall Clothing Store.

The formal opening to the public of the new Oak Hall Clothing company store at the corner of Fourth avenue west and Superior street last evening was a great success in every sense of the word. From early in the evening until closing time crowds of curious and interested people thronged the store, listening to the fine program furnished by Muhlbauer's orchestra and enjoying the beautiful interior decorations of the establishment.

The full force of clerks were present, and prominent among those welcoming the visitor were the four Abraham brothers, Al., Henry, Seymour and Isadore. Everyone was put at his ease immediately on entering the store and made to feel that his presence there was an honor to the proprietors. Women were about as much in evidence as men, and all of them were presented with a rose, so that visitors to the store were easily distinguishable on the street during the evening by the roses they wore.

There is lots of room in the building, enough so that the unusually large stock can be displayed to exceptional advantage. A pleasing feature is the excellent light, both day and night. All of the tables were heaped high with a fine assortment of clothes for summer wear, but no attempt was made at selling any goods last night. During the afternoon and evening the Abrahams received many congratulatory telegrams from friends who reside outside of the city, and scores expressed their good feeling in person. Many expressions of delighted surprise were heard at the fine appearance of the interior of the store. Prominent among the guests of the evening were other merchants of Duluth, who were many of them on hand. Numerous people came across from Superior for the express purpose of paying a visit to the store. All were delighted with what they found. With this auspicious opening it is pretty certain that the store will be an unqualified success.

The hospitals were not forgotten by the proprietors, and a large number of beautiful bouquets were distributed between St. Luke's and St. Mary's, giving joy to the inmates.

AGREE ON FREIGHT RATES.

Trunk Line Railway Officials Meet In New York.

New York, June 2.—At the meeting of the committee of trunk line railway executives in this city, a satisfactory understanding has been reached as to the basis for division of railroad freight rates from Atlantic seaboard points to the West, in competition with the Gulf lines. Those attending the conference were Messrs. Thayer of the Pennsylvania lines, Caldwell of the Lackawanna, Chamberlain of the Erie, Miller of the Burlington, Hiland of the St. Paul and Johnson of the Goulds lines. Immediately after adjournment the committee went into conference with representatives of the Gulf line over rates on sugar and coffee. No definite agreement could be reached and another conference will be held two weeks hence.

It was stated that tariff sheets carrying the rate of 3 mills a bushel on ex-lake grain in favor of Philadelphia and Baltimore, as recommended by the interstate commerce commission, have not yet been issued by the trunk line association, but are expected very shortly. Recommendations also will be made regarding the flour differentials from Chicago as the originating point of the traffic.

THROUGH LINE TO COAST.

Believed That Rock Island Will Have One.

Los Angeles, June 2.—The Times says: The intention of the Rock Island to secure a through line to the coast and a terminal at Los Angeles is believed by local railway strategists to be at the bottom of the recent mysterious acquisition of the El Paso & Northeastern and its consolidation with their property, the El Paso & Southwestern by the Phelps-Dodge interests, who are believed simply to be the agents and representatives of the Rock Island in the initiative move on the part of that system to push its way into San Diego and thence to Los Angeles.

NEW TRAINS.

Northern Pacific Getting Ready For Portland Business

St. Paul, June 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—General Manager Harry J. Horn, of the Northern Pacific, stated today, that, in anticipation of a heavy volume of business this year, this road was amplifying its facilities. Three transcontinental trains are to be run daily. Extensive purchases of motive power and rolling stock have been made and improvements are contemplated to increase the development of the country.

"I sometimes think," said Mr. Horn, "that until Mr. Roosevelt became president, there were thousands of people east of the great lakes, who gave no thought to the West. Mr. Roosevelt's great personal popularity and the fact that, although an Eastern man, he was for years a Westerner of the most progressive type attracted attention to the country West of the Mississippi. Very many people who never thought about it began to realize that the Northwest was an empire in itself.

"The Lewis and Clark exposition at Portland promises to bring visitors from all parts of the United States who will tour the country, see for themselves its progress and return home with accurate information. The West needs the hearty co-operation of the East. We need its experienced farmers to develop thousands of acres of fertile lands, its skilled mechanics to work in our factories, its men of money, energy and brains, to embrace the new opportunities and develop our natural wealth. The openings for such men are many.

"It is essential that the people of the East understand what the West is. They must be shown the commercial and industrial opportunities, the West offers. The growth of the Northwest has just begun."

DULUTH-CHICAGO LINE.

Work on Bridges and Roadbed Being Pushed.

By tomorrow it is expected that the two bridges at Ladysmith, Wis., which are being built for the Owen & Northern railway, will be completed, except for the iron work. One of the bridges is nearly eighty feet above the water.

The Owen & Northern line is a continuation of the Lake Superior & Southeastern, which will be built by the Wisconsin Central, and which will run direct from Duluth to Chicago. It is now reported that an unused roadbed, built twenty-five years ago from Watertown, is to be utilized by the new road. The work of putting the old roadbed in shape is now under way.

The civil engineers have succeeded in reducing the grades to such an extent, it is said, that the heaviest grade will be twenty-two feet to the mile.

Souvenir Booklet.

SNORING IN CHURCH

Held By Judge a Breach of Peace.

Memphis, June 2.—Judge Floyd Estill of Hamilton county has declared that snoring in church is a breach of the peace, and has assessed a fine of $20 against Charles Shubert, a well-known young man, on a charge of disturbing public worship. Shubert is alleged to have fallen asleep while a service was in progress in a leading church, and his snoring was such as to disturb the congregation. He was arrested on the complaint of the pastor, and although the young man protested that his actions were without malice, Judge Estill declared that the worship had been disturbed, and assessed the fine. The case may be fought out in the supreme court.

No Knife Needed

Piles can be cured by internal treatment. To get at the cause—that is the secret, and that is why Dr. Perrin's Pile Specific is so universally successful in its results. It increases the flow of digestive juices in the stomach—accelerates the action of the liver. With congestion of the liver removed and constipation relieved, the two chief and distinct causes of piles are reached and conquered.

Dr. Perrin's Pile Specific

The Internal Remedy

For dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, biliousness, catarrh of the stomach and kindred ailments it is the greatest remedy that has ever yet benefited mankind.

Certain in its results, this remedy will cure the most obstinate case of Piles.

GIRL KILLS SEVEN BEARS

California Diana Whose Record Equals That of President.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 2.—Miss Abbie Taggart, who is the guest of Miss Pearl Duke at 1602 Ingraham street, may well be termed one of the most remarkable girls of the West.

Miss Taggart is an outdoor girl. Ever since she was 3 years of age, when her father strapped her to the back of a pony which he let loose in the home yard, giving it a slap to make it run, she has developed a love of daring and risk that has inspired her to many wild adventures.

Miss Taggart recently returned from the Lake Tahoe district, where alone she shot and killed seven bears and a mountain lion, not to mention small game.

This locality, thirty-five miles from the town of Sonora, is rugged. The forester's camp at Cow creek, on the old Mono and Sonora toll road, over which millions of dollars' worth of gold ore was packed in the early days. But now only wild animals pass that way. Twenty-five miles away, in the deepest and loneliest of Sierran grandeur, is Kennedy's Lake, a place especially favored by Miss Taggart, who has often made the trip unaccompanied on her spirited horse, with hunting knife and ammunition at her belt and rifle loaded for big game. Perhaps she would not return to camp for two or three days, but her parents never worried, for they knew her self-reliant and independent nature.

"Getting the first bear was a cinch," said Miss Taggart. "I was riding along when suddenly my horse gave a snort and jumped about ten feet. Right ahead, among the pines, I discovered a black bear. I had been wishing for just this thing to happen. I determined to kill that bear, but my horse was pirouetting about most dreadfully. It was his first bear as well as mine and he didn't like it. After he'd turned several somersaults and tried to climb a tree I jumped off and let him go. My, how he did run!

"Then I faced Mr. Bear, who was backing away and looking rather indignant, as if to say, 'Madame, you're intruding.' He eyed me savagely, but backed against a log, stopped and glared at me. This incident was a verification of the saying that 'He who hesitates is lost.' I took careful aim, fired, and Mr. Bear with one final despairing grunt, toppled over.

"I tell you what, though, my next bear gave me a fight. He was a rouser, weighed almost 800 pounds, and was as fierce as fifty devils. This time, also, I was on Megaphone—that's what I call my horse and I caught a simultaneous glance of a huge baldface black bear. The habits and characteristics of this species are like those of the grizzly. They are ferocious fighters. Well, that old fellow walked leisurely toward us wagging his head from side to side and regarding us with a murderous eye. When within about thirty feet of us he stood on his haunches and blew—whoof, whoof, whoof, whoof! My, but he was mad. I shouted at him, shrieked, yelled, made all the hideous noises I could think of just to see if he would shoo, but he wouldn't.

"Megaphone was snorting and plunging frightfully and I had all I could do to keep the saddle. Using my gun under such conditions was impossible, so I leaped to the ground and blazed away at the monster. The bullet didn't strike right and he jumped toward me madly, with teeth and claws all set for business. Quickly I fired again, this time successfully, for the ball went straight through his head. Yes, I did have a narrow escape, probably, but it was all so exciting and exhilarating I didn't think of danger once. The next day I shot a mountain lion. No, I've never shot a deer and I've seen lots of them, too. They're too pretty to kill. Rattle snakes and bear are my long suit. I've absolutely no use for either one."

BIGELOW GETS

Fine House at an Exclusive Resort In Wisconsin.

Still Honored By Leading Business Men of Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 2.—Milwaukeeans learned a few days ago that Frank G. Bigelow, defaulter for $1,500,000, would probably spend the summer in a luxurious country home in the fashionable colony where dwell Milwaukee and Chicago millionaires—patrons of golf links and fox chasin—at Oconomowoc, Wis. Old neighbors of his have placed their cottage at his disposal.

This amazing report caused little surprise. The city has almost ceased to be surprised at the extraordinary liberty enjoyed by the man who set a new mark for embezzlers by his jugglery of the funds entrusted to his care as president of the First National bank and trustee of various estates.

Astonishment was expressed when, after his confession of enormous thefts, he was released on $25,000 bail—one-sixtieth of the amount he stole—and began to make daily founds of the places that knew him when he was one of the city's wealthiest men and president of the bank he robbed.

He was received cordially by his old friends, however. It is even said he has made frequent visits to the First National bank to help adjust tangles in the books, though the bank officials refuse to admit this. But at any rate in other circles the thief of millions is accorded the old respect formerly shown the possessor of millions.

And the announcement that Dr. and Mrs Nelson P. Hulst had invited Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow, their former neighbors, to spend part of the summer as tenants of the beautiful Hulst summer home in Oconomowoc was made by Bigelow's friends as an item of society news.

Milwaukee is a confiding city. It has had a grievous experience with defaulters. The record of this experience was pointed to by those not under the spell of Bigelow's personality, which seems to have lost little influence by his betrayal of confidence to the extent of $1,500,000.

The visitor to Milwaukee who is curious to see this prince of defaulters, whose notoriety has become as widespread as the fame of the city's breweries, need only go to the lobby of the Hotel Pfister, where Charles Pfister, owner of the hotel and of a large part of Milwaukee, and the man who befriended Bigelow in his unusually succesful struggle to rise in the world, sits most of the day.

Here the business men of the city rendezvous. It is a favorite place to keep appointments. A stern-faced, elderly man, wearing a slight gray fedora hat and a light checked sack suit of fashionable cut, walks into the lobby almost every morning. He is cordially greeted by Mr. Pfister, they chat a little, and then the visitor usually walks over to some man who is waiting to see him. The two discuss their business in the lobby, or go to the office of Charles C. Spooner, Bigelow's attorney, in the Sentinel building, or, perhaps, to the brokerage office of Arthur M. McGeogh, Bigelow's son-in-law, who is on his father-in-law's bond.

The man in the light fedora hat is Bigelow, who stole $1,500,000. The stranger would take him for a leading business man, judging from his apparent cheerfulness, the number of well-dressed friends that greet him.

Bigelow's style of life now is but little different from what it was before he confessed himself one of the world's greatest defaulters.

Here is his daily program: Leaves for down town at 9 o'clock; at Hotel Pfister greeting friends at 10 o'clock; to lawyer's or son-in-law's office at 11 o'clock; home for lunch. Special business appointments in the afternoon or exercise—walking or motoring.

His son, Gordon, whose guest he is, is noted for lavish living. Servants are plentiful in his Prospect avenue apartments. His father walks down town in the morning, as has always been his custom. The way leads him through the fashionable part of Milwaukee, past the beautiful homes of his friends, who greet him as though nothing had happened.

Almost as great is the liberty enjoyed by the man who aided him in his thefets—the former assistant cashier of the First National bank, H. G. Goll. Goll is under a $10,000 bail, half cash and half furnished by his father. He lives with his two daughters, his father, brother and sister at 2301 Chestnut street. He walks about the town unattended by "shadows." Once he and Bigelow met on the street. "Good morning, Goll," said Bigelow. "How are you?" "Good morning, Mr. Bigelow," answered Goll cheerfully. "I am very well, thank you," and Goll and Bigelow shook hands and passed on. No one would have known they were confederates in the defalcation that has broken all records.

PRESIDENT OF NEW REPUBLIC

Warns Brazil to Get In Line While She May.

New York, June 2.—A London cable to the World says: The president of the Free State of Kunani, in South America, and "head center" of the alleged plot to overthrow the Brazilian republic and restore the old monarchy, was interviewed in London by a World correspondent.

The minister-plenipotentiary of Kunani in Spain, Sarrion de Herrera, has just been arrested in Madrid at the request of the Brazilian government, and several cartloads of compromising documents" relating to the supposed revolutionary plot have been found at his house.

It is asserted in Spain that the Kunani agents have been enlisting a small army of Europeans to go out to South America and assist in the onslaught on Brazil, and that a detachment of conspirators has come over to England to procure warships, guns and ammunition.

The president proved to be M. Le Duc de Brezet of the old nobility of France, who explained, with a strong French accent, that he is more American than French.

He was re-elected president in 1903, and has been in Europe on state business about twelve months.

The Free State of Kunani, the president explained, is about twice the size of England. It is bounded on the north by British, French and Dutch Guiana and by Venezuela, on the west and south by Brazil and on the east by the South Atlantic ocean. It has two ports, Kunani and Macapa (on the Amazon), and a bay near Kunani city big enough to hold the largest warships in the world.

The president laughed merrily when asked if that was where he was going to keep his new warships, and said:

"Ah, yes—when I get them; but first we need ships of commerce much more.

"We don't wish to be mixed up with such foolish suggestions as warships and revolutions and things of that sort. We have no such ideas. We don't want anything to do with Brazil, and everything will be quiet—so long as Brazil leaves us alone."

The president explained that since 1874 Kuanani has actually been a free republic, and has had ten presidents, of whom he is the tenth. There are 20,500 civilized inhabitants and about 15,000,000 Indians, and the chief products are rubber, mahogany and timber generally.

"Both France and Brazil claimed our territory," said the president, "and they referred the question to arbitration by Switzerland, irrespective of our views. In 1900 the Swiss Tribunal decided that the country did not belong to France, but it did not say that it belonged to Brazil. Brazil then made a raid on Kunani, which was repulsed with a loss of 500 men.

"The suggestion of our enlisting an army with which to fight Brazil is ridiculous," he continued. "A number of Spaniards are anxious to come and get their living in our country, and are only awaiting the opportunity. We have also had inquiries from Boers.

"My object in being in Europe is to procure the recognition of our independence by Europe, and although Britain may not be the first to acknowledge us, I believe she will be the second. We have the good will of every country except Brazil, which wishes to throttle our trade.

"Brazil would be well advised," the president concluded, benevolently, "to agree with us while we are willing. For Brazil's sake it is to be hoped she will not again attempt to interfere with us."

A FROG FEAST.

Toledo Man Host at a Unique Banquet.

Toledo, Ohio, June 2.—As the result of numerous taunts about living in "Frog Town," J. J. Mooney was the host at the most unique banquet ever given in Toledo.

Detroit men had been having considerable fun at Mr. Mooney's expense concerning frogs, so he gave them a dinner in which every possible use was made of the amphibians.

In the center of the table was built a six-foot square frog pond, decorated with moss, logs and reeds from the marsh, and stocked with live frogs. While the guests ate the frogs made merry in the pool, splashing and croaking.

Rubber frogs were used as place cards, and the ice cream was molded to represent green frogs on toadstools.

ROCKEFELLER'S AGED COUSIN

Dies In Want, After Vain Appeals For Pittance.

Peekskill, N. Y., June 2.—In a newly made grave in the old Peekskill cemetery, Christiana Wiand has been laid to rest. She died with the hope unfulfilled that John D. Rockefeller would reply to her appeals for assistance and contribute a tithe of his millions to make her last days free from the pinch of poverty.

Mrs. Wiands expected this because of her blood-relationship to the Standard Oil king. She was a second cousin to John D. and William Rockefeller, according to the records preserved in the old family Bible. Her mother, Katherine Rockefeller, was a first cousin of John D. Rockefeller's father.

"You'll see some day," Christiana Wiand had answered to the villagers who visited her in the fisherman's shanty, where she had lived for several years. "My relatives, the Rockefellers, will see that I die in comfort. I have written to cousin John D. and he will answer."

It was this hope which sustained the old lady to the end. She was stricken with grip a month ago. Complications set in, and as she lay dying, she fell into a sleep, from which she never awakened. She was 81 years old, and is survived by two daughters and several grandchildren.

During the years when Mrs. Wiand had health and strength, neither she nor her family troubled the Rockefellers of New York. But with the advance of age Mrs. Wiand determined to take the initiative.

With much painstaking, she penned a letter to John D. Rockefeller, recalling the relationship in such detail that its veracity would be evident, and telling of the needs of her family. She waited in vain for an answer. She consoled herself with the belief that the letter had gone astray, and wrote another. It fared no better than the first. Mrs. Wiand never had a fear that her appeals would be denied. More letters followed, but none brought a reply. The old lady was nonplussed.

"Some one is preventing him from getting my letters," she told her children. "If he only knew our needs he would help us. I will go and see him myself."

The expenses of a trip to New York was a formidable item. She insisted on going alone, in spite of her 81 years. Her mind was unclouded and her courage unlimited. She was told that Mr. Rockefeller lived at No. 689 Fifth avenue, and she was directed how to reach the house. The old lady put her best foot forward, chuckling a goodby to the family, set out.

That afternoon all watched for her return. Not a question was asked until grandma's bonnet had been removed, and she was seated in the rocker. "I have just come from Mr. Rockefeller's house," she began slowly. "I've been sitting in his parlor, too. Sakes alive, children, our relatives live handsome. I was tired, and I did have a good rest, but they didn't even give me no tea. Mr. Rockefeller's family weren't at home, they told me. I guess I'll have to go again."

Mrs. Wiand would never so much as hint at the defeat, but she never again took the journey to New York.

AS EFFECTIVE AS IRRIGATION

Is the New Way of Reclaiming Waste Arid Lands.

Omaha, Neb., June 2.—The "short grass" country of Western Nebraska and Wyoming together with Northern Colorado, is thoroughly aroused over "dry farming" and is seeing visions of a time to come when the "short grass" country will disappear and in place of its hundreds of thousands of acres of land upon which cattle now graze there will be great crops of wheat, corn, alfalfa and sugar beet.

Then the great irrigation projects now fathered by the government and private capital will be useless because no water will be needed to produce the crops—"dry farming" will have taken the place of the water.

The Cheyenne Board of Trade and business men of that city have just appropriated $10,000 to experiment along the line of the new system in Wyoming; the Union Pacific railroad has organized a department of "dry farming" to work under the direction of the industrial department of the Harriman system; the Burlington road is conducting experiments of its own on a farm of 500 acres in Western Nebraska; one Colorado farm has employed an expert to make investigations on its big cattle ranch of 70,000 acres; North Platte (Neb.) business men have subscribed several thousand dollars toward experimenting in that section, and 100 different farmers and ranchman in Laramie county, Wyoming, have signed a pledge agreeing to cultivate at least five acres each according to directions issued from a central body and to report the results to that body.

By "dry farming" is meant the cultivation of land without irrigation in any form whatever. The lands affected are those millions of acres of semi-arid tracts in the great West which are now turned over to the cattlemen, the prairie dogs, the rattlesnakes and the owls. A small portion of these lands have been placed under "ditches" and are being irrigated, producing heavy returns on all crops. But if the efforts of those interested in "dry farming" prove successful, there will be added to the cultivated areas hundreds of millions of acres of lands now considered valuable only for grazing purposes.

The system used in dry farming is ridiculously simple. Late in the summer the soil is plowed very deep. It is then laid over in loose furrows, and when the meager rainfall comes the lose soil retains the moisture, where it would not even remain damp in hard ground. To prevent evaporation the soil is loosely snatched. The following spring the crop is put in and cultivated in the same manner as in other states. Crops are raised only every other year, however, under this system, the ground being permitted to rest each alternating year.

Already several small farmers in Eastern Wyoming have succeeded in securing a yield of thirty-five bushels an acre of first-class wheat, where formerly no wheat whatever was grown, except under the irrigating ditch. Equally as large crops of corn, alfalfa and sugar beets are promised to those who follow the same course of cultivation.

Those who have been experimenting with the system for several years declare their lands increase in power to hold water from year to year, and state that with five years of dry farming they will produce crops equal to those produced in Illinois and Iowa under the most favorable conditions, if not larger.

FEARS WIFE'S SURGERY.

Doctor-Wife Threatens to Operate on Him.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 2.—William Griffin, who alleges he was afraid his wife, Anna Lemon Griffin, would chloroform him and perform a surgical operations, brought suit for divorce from her.

The wife was formerly a practicing physician at Muncie. At that time Griffin says she well understood the use of chloroform and surgical instruments, and that she threatened to operate on him. He declares he lived in constant fear that she would carry out the threat. He also says she has threatened to kill him by use of chloroform or poison. Frequently, with her fists or a club, he says, Mrs. Griffin struck him, causing black marks to appear.

It is also charged that she cursed him both alone and in the presence of other persons. He says she abandoned him in 1903.

SCROFULA A Disease We Inherit

The tainted blood of ancestors lays upon the shoulders of innocent offspring untold suffering by transmitting to them, through the blood, that blighting disease, Scrofula; for in nearly every instance the disease can be traced to some family blood trouble, or blood-kin marriage which is contrary to the laws of nature. Swelling, ulcerating glands of the neck, catarrh, weak eyes, sores, abscesses, skin eruptions, white swelling, hip disease and other deformities, with a wasting of the natural strength and vitality, are some of the ways this miserable disease manifests itself. The poison transmitted through the blood pollutes and weakens that health-sustaining fluid and in place of its nutritive qualities fills the circulation with scrofulous matter and tubercular deposits, often resulting in consumption. A disease which has been in the family blood for generations, perhaps, or at least since the birth of the sufferer, requires constitutional treatment. S. S. S. is the remedy best fitted for this. It cleanses the blood of all scrofulous and tuberculous poisons, makes it rich and pure and under the tonic effects of this great blood medicine the general health improves, the symptoms all pass away, there is a sure return to health, the disease is cured permanently while posterity is protected. Book on the blood and any advice wished, furnished by our physicians, without charge.

Scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild when only 18 months old, and spread rapidly over her body. The disease next attacked the eyes and we feared she would lose her sight. It was then that we decided to try S. S. S. That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. She is now a young lady, and has never had a sign of the disease to return.

FAREWELL APPEARANCE

Rose Ettinger and Sam Lando Receive Their Sentences.

Rose Ettinger, the young Yeddo woman convicted of grand larceny in the first degree, and Samuel Lando, the diminutive and talkative peddler who was found guilty of a similar offense during the present term of court, made their farewell appearances on the boards at district court, this morning when Judge Ensign gave them their sentences.

The Ettinger woman was found guilty on two counts, one for stealing over $200 from the proprietor of a Lake avenue restaurant and boarding house, where she spent a night in April, and the other for appropriating to her own use nearly $200 worth of jewelry belonging to another person in the same establishment. The court gave her a penitentiary sentence of eight months for the first offense and of four months for the second, making a total of a year in Stillwater state prison.

Rose tearfuly and volubly protested her innocence and reasserted her reputation as an honest and hardworking girl with the same heartfelt expressions that she used when first arraigned. She declared that the lawyers were no good and that all they were after was money. She talked as long as she could when the opportunity was offered and then talked when the opportunity was not offered.

Lando, when asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed on him, began an oration in which his ideas were expressed with a fluency and rapidity of words that gave the court stenographer writer's cramp in the attempt to keep up with him.

Lando was also sentenced to spend the next eight months as the guest of the authorities at the state penitentiary.

Lando was accused and was convicted of stealing a watch from a fellow roomer at a Bowery rooming house some weeks ago.

CORBETT REMAINS FAVORITE AT 10 TO 8.

San Francisco, June 2.—Corbett today still remains a favorite at odds of 10 to 8 for the fight with Hanlon. The fighters will step on the scales at 6 o'clock, and from all indications will be at weight. Corbett weighed a few ounces over 130 pounds when he retired last night, and had to do some light work today to reduce. Hanlon was practically at weight last night, and his exercise today consisted of only a short walk and a drive.

ASSESSMENT WAS TOO HIGH

Court Vacates Levy For Nineteenth Avenue Sanitary Sewer.

Judge Dibell has filed his decision in one of the appeal cases from the assessment by the board of public works for the construction of a sanitary sewer in the right-of-way between London road and South street, from Nineteenth avenue east to Twenty-second avenue east, in which the court holds that the assessment was not made in proportion to the benefits resulting, and orders that it be vacated, and that a new assessment be made for the property that will conform more nearly to the resulting benefits.

The appeal action was the one brought against the city by the Vencedot Investment company, C. H. Graves and J. D. Ensign, and the property affected is described as lots 1, 4, 5 and 7, block 25, Endion.

The appellants were represented at the hearing by Victor Stearns, and the respondent city was represented by City Attorney Bert Fessler.

There still remain some thirty-five or forty other similar appeal cases to be disposed of by the court.

JUNIATA HERE

New Anchor Line Steamer Arrives on First Trip.

Floating Palace With Large Passenger and Freight Capacity.

The new Anchor line passenger and freight steamer, Juniata, arrived here this morning at 7:30 o'clock on her first trip to the Head of the Lakes. She was finished at the yards of the American Shipbuilding company in Cleveland only April 10 last and has just gone into commission.

Edward Martin, commodore of the Anchor line fleet is her master. Last year he sailed the Tionesta of which the Juniata is a twin. The Juniata is a floating palace. She is 368 feet long and has a capacity for carrying 368 passengers and 3,500 tons of freight. She carries a crew of 125.

On entering this morning the Juniata was greeted with a general salute from all the vessels in the harbor.

WHEAT RATE DROPS.

Charters Made at Quarter of Cent Decline.

As predicted yesterday the vessel rate on wheat has dropped from 1¾ cents to 1½ cents. Charters were made at that figure late yesterday afternoon and this morning and, for the time being at least, the rate is fixed there.

Some wheat is being sold to go East and the outlook is that the next few weeks will see the stocks at Duluth reduced to almost nothing.

The rate on oats has been holding at ½c under wheat, but the decline that has taken place will not affect shippers of oats to any great extent for the stock of oats now here is nearly all contracted for at the 1¼ cents rate.

The Most Wonderful Stove Invention of the Age

Saves Its Cost In Fuel the First Year

WE CONNECT THIS RANGE FREE!

The man who says you can bake perfectly on an old-style Gas Range is talking through his hat. It is constructed wrong. You burn gas from 10 to 20 minutes before such a Gas Range is hot enough for baking. In a DIRECT ACTION Gas Range the oven is hot as soon as the burner is lighted. It saves gas. There is nothing mysterious in either the construction or the operation of the DIRECT ACTION; from both a theoretical and practical standpoint they are founded on common sense lines. A purchaser often loses sight of the most important feature of any Range, viz:

ECONOMY IN THE CONSUMPTION OF GAS!

Your Gas bill continues as long as you use the Range. It is easier and cheaper to investigate the merits of a Range before you purchase than to try to cut down the gas bill afterward. Moral: Don't purchase an old-style, out-of-date gas range.

For this SPECIAL SALE we will make the gas connection free and give to every purchaser of a DIRECT ACTION Gas Range a

FORESTERS COMING

High Court of Independent Order to Meet Here.

Dates Are June 14 and 15—Program For Convention.

The high court of the Independent Order of Foresters for Northern Minnesota, will meet in Duluth on June 14 and 15, or just preceding the monster convention of the Eagles, which will be held on June 15, 16, 17 and 18.

The northern jurisdiction includes all of the state north of a line running through St. Cloud, and about seventy-five accredited delegates will be in attendance. The low rates offered for the big convention of Eagles will also doubtless attract many other Foresters to the city.

The conventoin will open on the evening of June 14 with the initiation of a large class in the Armory, conducted by the ladies of Companion corps, Pride of Duluth. This will be followed by an address by John A. McGilvray, the supreme secretary, from Toronto.

After the regular program a dance will be given.

On Thursday morning the convention will conclude its work, and in the afternoon the delegates will be taken for a boat ride on the lake.

The officers of the high court are as follows: High chief ranger, H. W. Cheadle; high vice chief ranger, R. C. MacKenzie of Northcote; high secretary, Isaiah Ridge of Duluth; high treasurer, J. D. MacPhail; high physician, H. E. Webster; high councillor, Frank Crassweller.

HOMESTEADER SUICIDES

Body of Lone Settler Found Near Culver Station.

The body of John J. Johnson a homesteader living near the station of Culver on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, was found last evening by some of his neighbors. It is believed that Johnson committed suicide.

The man was unmarried and had been living alone on his homestead. He is said to have been acting in a melancholy manner during the past few days and he remarked to one of his neighbors that they would need some help up on his farm in a few days.

Coroner McCuen was notified of the case last evening, and he sent a deputy to investigate the circumstances and bring the body to Duluth.

LONG CAREER CLOSED.

Death of Hon. J. V. Brower at St. Cloud.

St. Paul, June 2.—J. V. Brower died yesterday at St. Cloud. He came to Minnesota in 1856 when only 13 years of age, and spent much of his early life in Long Prairie, Todd county. He was a man of literary tastes and spent much of his late life in locating the headwaters of the Mississippi, as well as making explorations for material which he later published in book form. He was an archaeologist in the truest sense of the term, as he spent much of his time and devoted his indefatigable energies in searching for matter that was not generally known. For years Mr. Brower was the archaeologist for the State Historical society. He published in connection with the State Historical society various volumes on the history of this state. His principal works were "History of the Itasca Basin," and "History of Itasca."

Mr. Brower had started on an exploring expedition. He had just been to the region in the vicinity of Big Stone lake, Snake river and the Sunrise, where he was seeking information for material for a work to be published by the State Historical society. He was preparing himself for writing the history of the Sioux Indian tribe, their early history, their traditions and their participation in the warfare and early history of Minnesota. Near Fergus Falls Mr. Brower was seized with a stroke of paralysis, last Friday, from which he never recovered. He was removed to his home in St. Cloud.

Deceased was born at York, Mich., in 1831. He served in the First Minnesota cavalry in 1862-63, and was subsequently in the navy. He was admitted to the bar of the state in 1873, and was for a term in the state legislature. He was register of the land office at St. Cloud from 1871 to 1879.

SUSTAINS BIBLE READING.

Kentucky Court Says Book Is Not Sectarian.

Frankfort, Ky., June 2.—The court of appeals, in an exhaustive opinion by Judge Orear, affirmed the Bracken circuit court in the case of Thomas Hackett against the board of education of the Brooksville graded school. The appellant, who is of the Roman Catholic faith and sent his children to public schools, instituted the proceedings by injunction to prevent the reading of the King James translation of the Bible and the singing of songs and prayer in the opening services of the common school. The court says:

"If, under the guise of public instruction, children should be obliged to attend school where the worship of God was compulsory, it would seem to be within the prohibition of the constitution on religious freedom. Appellant's children were not required to attend those exercises nor were they or others conscientiously opposed, required to participate in them.

"The Bible is not of itself a sectarian book, and when used merely for reading in common schools, without note or comment by teachers, is not sectarian instruction, nor does the use of the Bible make the schoolhouse a house of religious worship."

DECISIONS BY SUPREME COURT

Boards of Works May Judge Benefits By Improvements.

St. Paul, June 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court today upheld the St. Paul board of public works in its contention that it had the right to decide what property is benefited by a local improvement. The court says that the judgment of the board in such cases is final and not reviewable by the courts, except in cases of fraud, or upon demonstrable mistake of fact.

The court reversed the Crow Wing county court, which directed a verdict for the defendant in the personal injury case of Wesley E. Small vs. the Brainerd Lumber company. The supreme court held that the employer's neglect in the case was ignored by the lower court.

The supreme court today confirmed the order of the Hennepin district court, in the case of Hans J. Beck, respondent, vs. the Minneapolis Union Railroad company, appellant. Beck was a hack driver, and was ejected from the company's baggage rooms with more force than he considered necessary under the circumstances. He asked for damages, which a jury gave him.

Because of an improper charge to the jury the supreme court reversed the findings of the Todd county court in the case of the State of Minnesota, respondent, vs. H. A. Shelby, appellant. Shelby was charged with a breach of the peace, in roundly cursing a road supervisor. The whole thing hinged on the fact whether the language used would cause a breach of the peace or not, and the court, in charging the jury, told them to apply the language to themselves and see whether it would make them angry or not. The jury, after applying the test, considered there was a breach of peace, and brought in a verdict of guilty. This was not a proper way to reach a conclusion, the supreme court declares, and accordingly orders a reversal.

A verdict of $5,000, secured against the St. Paul City Railroad company, in the Ramsey county district court, was affirmed by the supreme court today. While alighting from a car during May, 1904, Mrs. Berger was caught by the closing gates and thrown to the pavement. She suffered injuries, which she contended were quite grave, and the jury gav her a vrdict for $5,000.

AUSPICIOUS OPENING.

Fifth Event of Kind at Gray-Tallant Store.

The store occupied by the Gray-Tallant company has been a dry goods store continuously for 22 years—the oldest dry goods location in the city, one in which the people of Duluth have come to feel a sort of proprietory interest. Many anniversaries have been celebrated there since 1883, but none has aroused keener interest than the 5th anniversary sale of the Gray-Tallant company that is now in progress. Some of the offerings were completely exhausted yesterday and today, although the quantity was supposed to be ample for the entire sale. For every one that was sold out, however, two that are fully as profitable, have taken their place, so that the sale starts again tomorrow with added vigor and increased savings for Saturday shoppers.

MAKE BIG ASSESSMENT

Will Hold First Hearing on West Superior Street.

On Monday morning the preliminary hearing on the first assessment for the paving of Mesaba avenue, Piedmont avenue and West Superior street, from Eighth to Twenty-fifth avenue west, will be held in the office of the board of public works.

The first assessment will amount to $89,327.52, which is 89 per cent of the engineer's estimate on tar macadam.

This is the largest assessment that has been levied by the board for five years, or since the new charter went into effect.

The second hearing will be arranged for as soon as possible, and the money will then be due. The contract cannot be let until the greater part of the assessment is collected, on account of the amount of work already charged up against the revolving fund, so that the sooner the assessments are paid the sooner the board of public works can advertise for bids for the job.

SIX THOUSAND ATTEND EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS.

Rome, June 2.—Cardinal Respighi, vicar general of the pope, today, inaugurated the eucharistic congress, which was attended by 6,000 members.

In so doing the cardinal delivered a speech saying that in the basilica of St. John Lateran is preserved the table at which Christ was seated at the last supper which originated the eucharistic sacrament. Continuing, the cardinal said it was proposed to collect money throughout the world to provide funds sufficient to defray the expenses of inclosing the table in a rich setting.

This being the pope's 70th birthday he received greetings from all over the world, but according to his own assertion what he enjoyed the most was a lunch with his sisters, who presented him with some beautiful flowers.

ORCHESTRA LEADER

Fined By Musicians' Union For Importing Players.

New York, June 2.—Walter Damrosch, director of the New York Symphony orchestra, has settled for the present his squabble with the Mutual Musical Protective union of New York, by paying, under protest, a fine of $1,000. It was for putting five imported musicians at work without "advertising sufficiently in this country the fact that there were vacancies in his organization." He is going to appeal from the fine, which was imposed by President Weber, of the American Federation of Musicians.

The five musicians are Frenchmen, of whom Mr. Damrosch heard while on his recent trip to Europe.

Mr. Damrosch did not hire them while he was abroad. They came to New York and applied for membership in the orchestra. The local union refused to admit them because of protests by resident musicians that Mr. Damrosch could have found in this country musicians of equal capacity and experience.

MEETING OF CABINET.

Questions of Appointments the Principal Business.

Washington, June 2.—All members of the cabinet, except Secretary Hay, attended today's meeting, it being the first meeting for many weeks when so large a number of the members was present. Questions of appointments and matters relating to the policy of some of the departments occupied the time of the session. There was no consideration of the subject of peace in the Far East, in fact, it was stated that the matter was not even referred to informally. Secretary Morton announced after the meeting it had been decided the remains of John Paul Jones, which are to be brought here soon from France, would not lie in state in the several cities which have requested that such an arrangement be made, but would be taken directly to Annapolis, Md., and there placed in the crypt as planned. It is expected the remains of the naval hero will arrive in the United States about July 4.

IN ANCIENT ROME

Interesting Lecture Is Given By Rev. Father Moynihan.

Benefit For St. James' Orphans, Home In West End.

An entertainment and illustrated lecture on "Rome" was given last evening in the cathedral school auditorium. It was a benefit for the orphans of St. James' home in the West end and was given under the auspices of the local council of the Knights of Columbus. Both the object of the entertainment and the subject united in drawing a large audience and the home will receive a neat sum as a result.

Preceding the lecture a short musical program was renderd in which Mrs. Jams McAuliffe and George L. Tyler took part, with Miss Theresa Lynn as accompanist.

Rev. Father Moynihan, president of St. Thomas' college, St. Paul, delivered his illustrated lecture on "Rome." The speaker first reviewed ancient Rome. The city is situated principally on the left bank of the Tiber, about sixteen miles from the sea and has become known as the "city of seven hills," the chief and most historic being the Palatine hill. In the early days the streets had no names. Here and there were open places called fora and campi, the former being intended for business and the latter for pleasure. The Forum Romanum, sometimes simply called the Forum, was the most important of the nineteen Roman fora. Here the entire business of the once great empire was entirely transacted. The northwestern part of the ancient city was almost entirley occupied by public buildings, temples and pleasure grounds. The early Romans were great builders and evidences of their marvelous work is even being discovered in the present day. Recently there were discovered in an excavation in the Forum tools that carry history back to 1,300 years before Christ. The Roman aqueducts were the most stupendous works of their kind in the world, they sometimes carrying water for a distance of sixty miles.

The Pantheon, the Circus Maximus, the Coliseum and the Catacombs were each reviewed in turn. The speaker dwelt especially at some length on the Coliseum and the events which occurred in that mighty structure, which seated 85,000 people. The Catacombs were described with their wonderful hallways, chapels and burying places, and with the illustrations given the audience was able to get a clear conception of how the early Christians lived in Pagan Rome. These Catacombs run from one to five stories and a person must be very careful in them for fear of losing his way. One must be accompanied by a guide and carry a lighted candle.

It was a most instructive lecture in general and was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

MINISTER IS BOUND OVER

Large Crowd See Him Tried For Slandering Girl.

Urbana, Ohio, June 2.—When the case of Rev. Warren Wiant of Christiansburg was tried for slander all the church people from Christiansburg came to the city in three special cars on the traction line to attend the trial, and the mayor's office was entirely too small to accommodate the crowd. The city council chambers also proved inadequate for the occasion, so the proceedings took place in the Market Square theater. The trial brought a larger audience than any show that has been here recently.

Rev. Mr. Wiant is pastor of the Methodist church at Christiansburg, and several months ago, in an effort to denounce everything worldly from his pulpit, it is alleged, he declared that women who danced are not virtuous. Thereupon the village was stirred to its very depths. The young ladies took up the matter, and Miss Dora Shepherd, a pretty member of the church, had the pastor arrested for slander. Dr. W. P. Hyde of Christiansburg was the principal witness for the prosecution, as it was in his office that the youthful minister repeated his charge that "women who dance are immoral." The witness related that he took Rev. Mr. Wiant to task for his statement, and again asked him if he meant that his daughter and Miss Shepherd were among the immoral class because they danced. He testified that the pastor replied that he meant just that and nothing else.

On the witness stand the minister declared that dancing was rude, and that he had formed his opinion concerning dancing by reading books and hundreds of testimonials. He said that the denomination, the Methodists, positively prohibited dancing, whereupon Lawyer Johnson, for the prosecution, asked him what the Bible taught, but there was no reply.

It was brought out at the trial that Rev. Mr. Wiant had previously stated that two-thirds of the fallen women had received their first temptation by dancing. Other witnesses who testified were Miss Harriet Moore, Anna Wilgus, Dora Shepherd, Rebecca Ross, John Downey, Nellie Shinn and Ezra Jenkins.

Miss Jenkins seemed to prove to the court's satisfaction that dancing was no vice, and Mayor Johnson bound the minister over to the grand jury for further investigation upon his own recognizance.

BABY SWALLOWS TOY

And Doctor Necessary to Stop the Music.

New York, June 2.—Mrs. Charlotte Kammerer of Jamaica, L. I., spent half an hour wondering how her 8-months-old daughter, in the next room, could blow a whistle so long without stopping. Finally she succumbed to her curiosity and picked up Lottie, the baby.

The reason was obvious enough then. Lottie had swallowed the whistle, and it had stuck in her throat. Mrs. Kammerer tried several home methods for extracting whistles without any result. Dr. Hicks of Jamaica was summoned by a neighbor, and after some difficulty removed the whistle without an operation.

"OFF WITH WHISKERS."

Cry Is Making an Iowa Doctor Famous.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 2.—Dr. J. S. Kennedy's modest statement that physicans should be smooth shaven to avoid a possibility of carrying germs in their beards seems destined to bring this about.

His suggestion was eagerly taken up by the press of the country and has evidently won a place in poular favor. There is much to indicate that the doctor who continues to wear a beard will find his practice going to a smooth shaven brotner, especially in times of epidemic.

In Des Moines there is a majority of physicians with beards over those smooth shaven. Especially is this true among the younger cult, since their youthful faces look more mature and their wisdom seems more profound if a full growth of manly whiskers covers most of the face. It is being freely predicted, however, that much as they dislike to come to it, the doctors with whiskers will have to lose their hirsute adornment for the public has now a well-founded idea that whiskers mean germs and there will be a fear on their part of many of the doctors with a beard.

When the reform once strikes any city or community good and hard, the public will demand it because of the notoriety given the theory by the public press. Up to the present time there has been no falling in line on the part of the Des Moines, doctors, but such may be expected.

The secretary of the board of health can well make this statement for he is smooth shaven. He states that in Europe there are organizations and rules which compel the physicians to remain smooth shaven.

TROUSSEAU

Was Paid For By Sale of Slaves.

Atlanta, Ga., June 2.—When president Roosevelt visits Georgia to view his mother's birthplace and meet the people of the state, he will be given by Col. George H. Jones of Cobb county, where the president's mother was born and raised, two receipts and bills of sale for four negro slaves which his maternal grandmother sold to obtain money to purchase the trousseau of her daughter, Martha Bullock, to Theodore Roosevelt of New York, the president's father.

Aside from the interest attaching to the documents from their connection with the Roosevelt family, they will be of concern to the present generation, as giving a good idea of the way in which negroes were dealt with before the a bolition of slavery. One of them reads:

"Received, Dec. 27, 1853, from Mr. John F. Martin, eight hundred dollars, said sum being in full payment for one negro woman namcd Bess and her child John.

(Signed) MARTHA BULLOCK.
Roswell, Dec. 27, 1853."

Another document shows that Mrs. Bullock warranted the negroes' health. Thus, after receiving money sufficient to defray the expenses of her daughter's wedding with Theodore Roosevelt, even at that time a wealthy New Yorker, Mrs. Bullock drew up and signed the documents.

FINGER-PRINT SYSTEM

Results In Conviction of Two English Murderers.

London, June 2.—The enormous possibilities of the finger-print system are dealt with in an interesting article in the Lancet.

The conviction of the two brothers Stratton in the mask murder case, by the aid of the Scotland Yard finger-print system, has shown it to be of the highest importance.

"The task of determining the identity or nonidentity of a set of finger prints," the Lancet says, "is rendered more easy by the fact that if the patterns of any two corresponding digits be not very apparent there are nine other pairs which are available for comparison.

"On the average each digit gives about thirty-five points of comparison, so that the mass of evidence afforded to the ten digits is very great, and the factor of personal error is reduced to a minimum.

"The state of the law on the subject of proving previous convictions against a prisoner is so highly unsatisfactory and dangerous that to get the unchecked testimony as to identity derived from the impressions of several fingers as a backing to mere memory is a decided advance, but too much stress must not be laid upon the backing. Identification by finger-prints is very valuable, but the identification should be made by properly expert persons."

JANE TOPPAN,

The Famous Woman Criminal, Recovering Reason.

Taunton, Mass., June 2.—Jane Toppan, the most famous woman criminal of this state, in confinement at the Taunton Insane hospital, is rapidly recovering her normal physical and mental condition.

The self-confessed slayer and poisoner of thirty-one men and women has recovered her mental equipoise to the extent that she no longer believes that the attendants are trying to poison her. She eats with evident relish, the use of the rubber tube through which food was formerly forced into her stomach, having been discarded. The change physically and mentally has been most marked the past two weeks and the prisoner has gained several pounds in weight.

During prolonged illness the prisoner repeatedly tried to kill herself by self-inflicted tortures and refusing to retain either food or drink, and the physicians were compelled to inject medicine hyperdermically. She even refused to see her best friend and legal guardian, Lawyer James S. Murphy of Lowell, who was assistant counsel when she was tried on the charge of murder at Barnstable. This sullen mood and her strange actions have ceased and she now talks rationally with her attendants.

SECRETARY TAFT

Needs Horse on Ground Plan of Dachshund

Washington, June 2.—After sitting on the "lid" for more than a month and being acting president of the United States during the absence of President Roosevelt, Secretary of War Taft is now going for "exercise."

Secretary Taft weighs nearly 400 pounds.

"What I want is a horse," the secretary told one of the military men of his departmentdepartment.

"Draft or buggy?" asked the military man.

"Riding horse," the secretary answered. "What kind of a horse would you advise?"

"Well, Mr. Secretary, you are a pretty big man," the military man said. "I would suggest that, if possible, you get a horse built on the ground plan of a dachshund."

JAPANESE CELEBRATE

Residents of New York Rejoice Over the Victory of Togo.

New York, June 2.—Two hundred prominent Japanese residents of New York last night celebrated the victory of Admiral Togo with a reception at the Nippon club. Baron Kaneko, special envoy of Japan to the United States, was one of the guests, and in a speech he referred to the change that has taken place in the last thirty years in the attitude of the nations toward Japan.

"When I was a student at Harvard," said the baron, "the Japanese were regarded very much as were Chinese coolies. Now they find universal respect."

He congratulated his countrymen upon the strong bond of friendship that has been welded between Japan and the United States.

Reference was made to the fact that all the outside financial aid Japan had needed had been secured in England and the United States. This was regarded as a cause for congratulation, as further cementing the friendship of the three nations.

The following cablegram was sent to Admiral Togo:

"We rejoice over your overwhelming victory, for which we hold you in highest esteem and thank you most sincerely on behalf of our empire."

MICHIGAN FARMER

Growing Rich By Exhibiting Two-Headed Calf.

Muskegon, Mich., June 2.—Farmers of Muskegon county will form a stock company to put a traveling aggregation of freaks on the road if nature continues to shower the community with uncouth curiosities in animal and vegetable life.

A two-headed calf is the latest freak of nature developed in the county. It is declared to be the most perfect example of a two-headed calf in existence.

It is alive and shows every indication of continuing in that state at least until sufficient other freaks have been gathered to make it the center of a show.

Already the farmer who is the possessor of the freak has seen its financial possibilities and has established a ticket office at the enrance to the barn where the calf came into the world. If the calf lives long enough and the interest of the countryside continues the farmer who owns it declares he will be able to retire.

HUGE TASK.

It was a huge task to undertake the cure of such a bad case of kidney disease, as that of C. F. Collier of Cherokee, Ia., but Electric Bitters did it. He writes: "My kidneys were so far gone, I could not sit on a chair without a cushion; and suffered from dreadful backache, headache and depression. In Electric Bitters, however, I found a cure, and by them was restored to perfect health. I recommend this great tonic medicine to all with weak kidneys, liver or stomach." Guaranteed by all druggists. Price 50c.

MATRIMONIAL RECORD

Of Grandniece of the Late Joseph Jefferson.

New York, June 2.—April 16, 1901.—Married at 15 to Robert Clinton Montgomery, vaudeville singer.

Sept. 19, 1901.—Divorced from Montgomery.

May 9, 1904.—Maried at 18 to Frederick Jackson Swentzel.

Such is is the matrimonial record of Claudia Evelyn Rogers, grandniece of the late Joseph Jefferson, now the bride of a son of the Rev. Henry C. Swentzel, rector of St. Luke's Protestant Episcopal church, Brooklyn.

California has been her stage, both in her own romance and in her dramatic career, for Claudia is a dashing chorus girl.

She was married to a young man Mr. Swentzel in Trinity church, San Jose, Cal., by the Rev. J. Wilmer Gresham. The father of the young man seems to know very little about the marriage.

"I can only tell you that it was a church wedding, and a very quiet one," is all he says.

Young Mr. Swentzel is connected with an automobile firm on the Pacific coast, where he has been for several years.

Claudia Rogers is possesesd of great beauty. Her former husband now in New York, even says that her beauty, and the attention it brought her, was the cause of their unhappiness.

And so Mr. Montgomery raised no serious objection when his pretty girl wife sued for divorce, though she accused him of not providing for her and averred that he did not give her a wedding ring.

Now for Miss Rogers' record on the stage:

An actress at 6; a buck and wing dancer at 10; a singer at 12; known as the "girl with the baritone voice," and a chorus girl at 14.

STATE OF VIRGINIA

May Collect Costs of Convicting a Murderer.

Charlottesville, Va., June 2.—It is probable that the commonwealth will try to subject the estate of the late J. Samuel McCue, who in February last was executed for the murder of his wife, to the payment of the costs. Indeed, there has been entered upon the judgment document a memorandum of the fees and costs, amounting to $3,097.42, made up of the following items: Jurors, $1,847.52; board of jury, $230; guards, $426; Sergt. C. W. Rogers' expenses in getting a jury, $52.85; witnesses, $498.55; commonwealth's attorney $10; clerk, $2.50.

Under section 4,087 of Pollard's Virginia code the clerk of the court in every criminal case is required to make up a statement of the expenses incident to the prosecution, and his statement has all the force of a judgment in such court in favor of the commonwealth against the convicted felon. The costs and expenses for which the convict's estate is thus made liable are jail fees, charges for food, guards and transportation accruing before conviction, compensation to witnesses and jurors, fees to constables for arresting the accused man, and summoning witnesses. The attorneys for the estate, it is understood, will resist making the estate liable, even to the point of taking it to the highest court.

The two notes on which, it is alleged, McCue forged his wife's endorsement—one for $8,000, held by the Jefferson National bank, and another for $4,000, held by the People's National bank—have been paid in full by McCue's estate.

RE-ENTERS UNIVERSITY

After a Vacation of Half a Century.

Columbia, Mo., June 2.—After a vacation of more than half a century, C. H. Allison of Boonville, Mo., has re-entered Missouri University to resume his studies. Mr. Allison is now 70 years old, hale and hearty, and as lively as any of his classmates. He has announced his intention of imbibing fully the prevailing college spirit and taking part in all student enterprises, though he has declared positively that he will not be a candidate for a place on the football team.

Mr. Allison studied surveying at Missouri University in 1854. He has a good memory, and tells interesting stories of the State University before the war, when it was but a struggling institution with only a few students. Most of his classmates and the members of the faculty of that period are dead, the old main building has been burned and has been replaced by a modern structure, and yet he declares that it is in many ways the same old school.

Mr. Allison has re-entered for the purpose of taking a special course in engineering during the summer term. In an interview, he said:

"To give all my reasons would require too much space. I will, therefore, simply say that I wish to profit by the improved methods of instruction. I have always been a student, have taught school for forty years—both common and high-grade schools—and have been county surveyor of Copper county for many years, as well as city engineer of the town of Boonville. I am now anxious to learn by modern and scientific methods the means of calculating the latitude and longitude, the declination of the magnetic needle by means of the surveyor's transit, and other points with which I did not become familiar during my previous studies.

"I shall also review the whole of my collegiate course, embracing Latin, Greek, French and German, and all the higher branches of mathematics."

MUSIC HALL ARTIST

Sells Daughter to Turkish Pasha For $4,000.

Vienna, June 2.—A conjurer and music hall artist, named Albert Sauer, has been arrested here, at the request of the German consul-general in Constantinople, on a charge of having sold his 16-year-old daughter Margareta to a pasha.

It is alleged that when Sauer, his wife and daughter were performing in various Constantinople music halls this spring the extraordinary beauty of the girl attracted the notice of the pasha. Eventually Margareta was received into the pasha's harem, and Sauer was paid £1,000.

A week later, however, the girl was returned to her parents as they were about to take a train for Vienna.

Sauer's story is that the pasha was so infatuated with Margareta that he insisted on marying her. The wedding took place according to Manhometan rites in the middle of April, and Margareta was subsequently treated with great distinction in the harem of the pasha.

Sauer admits that he received £1,000, but asserts that this was merely an advance on a pension promised him by the pasha on condition that he gave up his profession as a music hall artist, which the pasha did not consider in accordance with the position of a pasha's father-in-law.

BURGLAR

Wraps Child In a Comforter In Cellar.

New York, June 2.—Captain Halpin and detectives are searching Washington Heights for a burglar who robbed the home of Thomas J. Meehan, a lawyer, Saturday night. The thief found Helen, the 4-year-old daughter, asleep in a room adjoining that of her parents. He wrapped her in a comforter and locked her in the cellar, where, if she awoke and cried, she would not arouse the household. He took his time and carried off everything.

Meehan awoke at 3 o'clock in the morning. Hearing a faint cry he went to find his daughter. She was not in her bed. Her muffled cries led him downstairs, where he found her so frightened she was hardly able to speak.

THE CITY'S CASH

Monthly Report of Treasurer Shows Big Cash Balance.

City Has More Than $400,000 Deposited In Banks.

A total cash balance of more than $400,000 is shown by the monthly report of the city treasurer, which has just been completed and filed with the city clerk.

The increase in the cash balance is largely due to the big receipts in the water and light plant fund.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON

Given Enthusiastic Reception At New Ulm.

New Ulm, June 1.—Governor Johnson arrived in this city yesterday morning on his way to Winthrop from Dunnell, where he took part in the dedication of a Swedish Lutheran church. He was met at the train by a large delegation of citizens and escorted to German park, where he delivered an address in appreciation of the welcome that the city had given him.

The procession that formed the governor's escort was composed of the Second regiment band in full uniform, Mayor Silverson and other city officials, General Bobletter and staff in uniform and a large number of citizens in carriages. Though the hour was early there were several hundred citizens in the park and the greeting to the governor, which was an entire surprise to him, appeared to please him greatly. He was introduced by Mayor Silverson, who was proud to refer to him as a poor boy who had worked his way to the position he now occupies.

The governor's address was confined to a eulogy of the city and an appeal for good citizenship. He was the guest of his brother, F. W. Johnson, part of the day, leaving in the afternoon for Winthrop to deliver an address before a gra duating class.

Kanawa, the Japanese government was informed that Rojestvensky intended to try to pass through the straits of Korea. When the steamer was about to sail from Yokohama, on May 18, the directors of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha line are said to have been informed that there was no danger of encountering Russian vessels in the Pacific, and the steamer proceeded to America. The steamer Iyo was at the same time ordered by cable to proceed from this side and cable advices were received today by local agents of her safe arrival.

JAPANESE LOSSES.

Revised List of the Result of Battle.

Tokio, June 2.—The Japanese losses in the battle of the sea of Japan were—113 officers and men killed and 424 officers and men wounded. The completion of the revised list shows that the losses were under the original estimates. The flagship Mikasa was the heaviest loser, losing sixty-three killed and wounded. The losses were distributed among the fleet as follows: Mikasa, 63; Adzuma, 39; Shikishima, 37; Asashi, 31; Fuji, 28; Idzuma, 26; Nisshin, 27; Otowa, 26; Kasaga, 26; Tsushima, 19; Asama, 15; Naniwa, 17; Tokiwa, 15; Yakumo, 11; Chitoue, 6; Idzumi, 10; Kasuga, 9; Hashidate, 5; Nitaka, 4.

The casualties among the destroyers and torpedo boats were eighty-seven. Commander Togo was wounded on the Adzuma.

UNTIL MONDAY MORNING

Great Battle Raged In Straits of Korea.

London, June 2.—The Daily Telegraph this morning publishes a continuation of the description of the naval battle from a correspondent with the Japanese fleet forwarded by its Tokio correspondent and published yesterday morning. The story proceeds as follows:

"The tremendous cannonade had not ceased from 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon until 2 o'clock Sunday morning, when the formation of the Japanese fleet remained unaltered, but the battle was not finished until Monday morning.

"The Russians made straight for the waters of Tsu channel without any attempt at reconnaissance, convincing the Japanese that they were afflicted with excessive confidence.

"The facts have proved that the Russians were completely ignorant of the exact whereabouts of the Japanese fleet, which lay concealed in places kept strictly secret. There was no fog, but the movements of the fleet were hampered by great waves.

"Almost every Japanese shell told and told well. The Russians made repeated but unavailing efforts to break the ring of steel and at night they concentrated a fearful fire on the Japanese torpedo flotillas. Togo estimated that he thus compelled them to use an enormous quantity of ammunition.

"The most severe cannonade occurred bewteen 4 and 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, when four of the Russian warships were sent to the bottom and the enemy, thrown into confusion, began its northward flight, Togo having closed the gate to the southward.

"It was a short race. Togo's superior speed soon enabled him to place a crescent-formed barrier in front of Rojestvensky, whose plight then became miserable and hopeless. The Russian ships scattered. They were beyond control or floundered in the heavy sea, offering a feeble resistance.

"The Japanese navy, without loss, gained one of the greatest victories ever won. It was not altogether strategy nor altogether gallantry, but the battle was won by a splendid combination of both."

FURIOUS BATTLE

Described By Japanese Officer Arriving at Sasebo.

Tokio, June 2.—A Japanese officer, who has returned to Sasebo, gives the following account of the sea fight off the Tsu Islands:

"At 5:30 Saturday morning a wireless message reading: 'The enemy's squadron is sighted,' was reported to the naval base. This message was transmitted to all our ships by the flagship, with instructions to get ready for action. Our squadron left their rendezvous and headed for the eastern channel, off Tsushima. Our men seemed to be filled with new inspiration, and were eager for the long-delayed fight to begin.

"When Tsushima was sighted to the southwest, the sea was rough and the torpedo boats were forced to run for the shelter of the island.

"Our third fighting squadron, with the Takashiho to port, reconnoitered the Russian course, and at 11:30 a. m. informed the main squadron by wireless telegraph that the Russian ships were passing into the east channel, whereupon our main squadron, changing its course somewhat to the southward, came in sight of Okinshima at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. The third division arrived later and joined the main squadron. The first and second divisions, accompanied by the destroyer flotilla, changed to a westerly course, while the third division and the fourth destroyer flotilla headed slightly eastward. During the maneuver the Russian flagship appeared to the southward at 1:45 o'clock. The Russians steamed up in double column. The fleet was numerous, but no living being was visible. The Russian ships seemed to be in good order. Our ships hoisted the flag of action, the Mikasa signalling:

"'The destiny of our empire depends upon this action. Your are all expected to do your utmost.' Our men seemed silently to weigh the significance of this signal.

"Our first and second divisions turned to the Russian's starboard, while the third division kept in close touch with the preceding two divisions. With the Japanese ships proceeding in this order, it was 2:13 o'clock when the Russians opened fire. The first two shots fell short of our line, and it was some minutes later before we commenced firing. Then the battle was on, with firing from both sides.

"Our destroyers kept on the port side of the main squadron, and in this formation we pressed the Russians against the coast of Kiushu, and they were obliged to change their course to the east. We also maneuvered our ships so as to have their bows paralleled to the north side of the Russian line. So the Mikasa, of our first division, which had been leading, changed to the rear of the line, while the Kasuga headed the line. The engagement now became very fierce. The Borodina was seen to be on fire. A little later the Russians headed west, and we changed our course accordingly. Five ships of our second division concentrated their fire on the Borodino.

"Our first division now began firing vigorously, proceeding parallel with the Russian line, and as we began to press against the head of the Russian line our third division veered to the Russian rear, thus enveloping their ships. The engagement proceeded hotly. Our second division followed a course parallel with the northern side of the Russians and this movement completed the envelopment.

"The Russian ships were seen trying to break through and our destroyer flotilla intercepted the new course. This state of envelopment continued until the following day, with the ships at varying distances. Thus enclosed on all sides, the Russians were helpless and powerless to escape the circle.

"Previous instructions had been given the destroyers and torpedo boats to attack the Russian ships. Following the instructions, the fifth destroyer flotilla advanced against a Russian ship, upon which the second division had been concentrating its fire, signaling: 'We are going to give the last thrust at them.'

"The Russian ship continued to fight and seeing the approaching torpedo boats, directed its fire on them. Undaunted, our destroyers pressed forward, the Chitose meantime continuing its fire. The torpedo flotilla arrived within 200 meters of the Russian ship and the Shiranus fired the first shot. Two Russian torpedo boats fired on each. The Shiranus received two shells, but the other boats were not damaged. The Russian ship was completely sunk.

"Sundown saw the battle raging furiously. Our shells were evidently telling on the Russians, who showed signs of confusion. Our fifth torpedo flotilla, after destroying the Borodino, followed in the wake of our second division, the signal reading: 'Something like the Russian submarines have been sighted. Attack them,' was displayed.

"The flotilla followed and located the object which proved to be a sinking ship with its overturned bottom showing. Thirty survivors clung to the wreck, crying for assistance. Firing ceased with the approach of darkness.

"According to orders previously given for a torpedo attack after dark, all the destroyer flotilla, dividing into two squadrons, proceeded to attack the Russians during the whole night. The Russians frustrated the first and second attackes with searchlights.

"A third attempt was carefully made and the Yugiri sank a ship of the Borodino type and also hit others. During the night the Russians continued to move and we preserved our enveloping movement some distance from the Russian position. The Russian ships moved northeast after dayberak, hoping to reach Vladivostok. Our officers and men were determined that not a ship should escape, and resolved not to relax their efforts until thy had succeeded in either sinking or capturing every Russian ship.

"Our ships always kept ahead of the Russians. The battle was resumed at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, twelve miles east of Chiyupon bay and lasted all day. Here the Russians suffered their heaviest losses. They seemed unprepared to repel night attacks. During our first night attack the Russians showed nine searchlights and frustrated the attacks, but clearly gave us the location of the fleet, which brought success later."

WHY HALT

Between Hope and Fear?

WOMEN grow up, marry, hope for the blessing that THE STORK brings, yet dread its coming.

WHY?

Because they are not well in the special sense that only women can fully understand.

BUT WHY should a woman in this condition ask some other woman who may be secretly suffering in the same way to explain it to her and advise her what to do?

WHY NOT ASK

A DOCTOR who has made the subject his life study and has cured thousands of sufferers of chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to "the sex"?

DR. PIERCE is such a man

Why Not Ask Him?

He will receive your inquiry either in person or by letter, in the strictest confidence and answer you by mail in a securely sealed envelope, giving you an honest opinion and RELIABLE MEDICAL ADVICE, such as can be given only by a medical man of education and experience.

DOCTOR PIERCE'S SUCCESS IS REAL and there is a steadily increasing demand for his "FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION," which is a vegetable tonic and restorative, an almost infallible remedy for nervousness, dragging-down pains and drains, constantly recurring aches, soreness, ulceration, ill temper, pale face, "miserable" digestion and as many other symptoms as there are days in the month.

Over a third of century ago Dr. R. V. Pierce used this "Prescription" in his private practice and found it so effective, curing nine-tenths or more of the cases in which he used it, that he came to call it "HIS FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION," and then he decided to put it within the reach of the large number whom he could not reach as a private practitioner.

The preparation of this famous "Prescription" is now carried on with the greatest care and exactness, each ingredient being accurately weighed or measured and every process continued with the strictest precision and cleanliness.

THE COMPOSITION OF "FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION" has been closely guarded all these years though offers aggregating thousands of dollars have been made for the formula.

Now,—to answer the published misstatements made by unprincipled persons for reasons and purposes of their own and as an evidence of GOOD FAITH ON THE PART OF DOCTOR PIERCE, the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, have decided to GIVE THE INGREDIENTS TO THE WORLD, and thus prove that there is neither alcohol, opium, digitalis or other harmful element or drug in its composition.

Hereafter every bottle of "FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION" WILL HAVE THE INGREDIENTS ON THE WRAPPER THUS:

Lady's Slipper (Cypripedium Pubescens).
Black Cohosh (Cimicifuga Racemosa).
Unicorn root (Chamælirium Luteum).
Blue Cohosh (Caulophyllum Thalictroides).
Golden Seal (Hydrastis Canadensis).

The Dispensary where this famous remedy is put up is likewise freely thrown open to inspection under competent and courteous guidance every working day in the year.

The makers and publishers of misstatements concerning the composition of the remedies made in the World's Dispensary will be prosecuted and punished to the fullest extent of the law.

For valuable medical advice address Doctor Pierce, Medical Director of Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I wish to write a few words to thank you from the depths of a sick woman's heart for blessing and benefit I have received from your remedies," writes Mrs. L. A. Pugh, of De Soto, Wis. "Three months ago I was a nervous wreck and my trouble had been for years and years coming on me. In April I became almost bedfast with nervousness — mostly at spinal nerve and centering at the base of the brain. I have taken six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' and although I am not well yet, am so much improved that I feel safe in saying it is the only medicine a woman can take and be sure of it doing her permanent good. I feel sure that it is going to give me a new lease on life. May every sick, weak and miserable woman find how beneficial a medicine it is for them. My first advice to my suffering friends, is, take Dr. Pierce's remedies at once."

"I was sick for nearly two years troubled with female weakness, so I could hardly drag around," writes Mrs. M. L. Hall, of Battlecreek, So. Car. "Had a burning in my head, pain around heart, circulation was very poor, feet and hands cold, and I was very irritable. Could get but little sleep. Suffered also from indigestion. I took four bottles of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, two of his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and also one vial of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. The result was, a bright baby boy. His weight at two months old was thirteen and a half pounds. At this writing baby is two months and a half old, and I am doing my own cooking and work (including the milking), for my family of six.

"I hope that this may induce some other invalid to try your most wonderful medicines."

WEAVER'S AIM

Is to Make Philadelphia Best City In the World.

Wins Complete Victory In Contest With Gas Lease Grabbers.

Philadelphia, June 2.—Without a dissenting vote both branches of the city council yesterday withdrew the ordinance authorizing the extension of the city gas works to the United Gas Improvement company for a period of seventy-five years, for which privilege the company was to pay the city $25,000,000. The select council also unanimously confirmed the appointments of Col. Sheldon Potter as director of public safety and A. Lincoln Acker as director of public works. The galleries of the council chamber were packed to suffocation with spectators, but there was no disturbance and the action of the municipal legislators was received in silence.

An unusual feature of the meeting of the councils was the presence of Mayor Weaver, accompanied by his attorney, in a room adjoining the upper branch during the vote on his appointments. He was prepared to appear before the body if necessary, but was not called upon to do so.

Another important move was made in common council when Alexander Depaven, chairman of the finance committee, introduced a resolution fixing the tax rate for next year at $1.50 on $100, the present rate. The Republican organization leaders who advocated the gas lease extension claimed that money was needed immediately to meet expenses, and asserted that if the ordinance was defeated it would be necessary to increase the tax rate. Mayor Weaver, on the other hand, contended that the existing rate was sufficient.

Almost the first act of the common council after convening yesterday afternoon was the adoption of a resolution recalling from the mayor's hands the ordinance extending the lease of the gas works. The resolution was transmitted to the select branch and was at once adopted. This action by the legislative bodies rendered unnecessary the veto message which Mayor Weaver had prepared to present to the meetings.

Following the recall of the gas lease resolutions, the mayor's secretary appeared on the floor of the select chamber and presented the mayor's communication referring to the removal of Director of Public Safety David J. Smyth and Director of Public Works Peter E. Costello and the appointment of their successors, Col. Sheldon Potter and A. Lincoln Acker. The mayor gave as his reason for rtmoving Directors Smyth and Costello "the good of the public service and the promotion of a more efficient administration of the departments."

The roll call on the confirmation of the appointments showed forty-two affirmative votes, the entire membership of the upper branch.

The mayor also transmitted to councils vetoes of four ordinances authorizing certain improvements on the ground that the increased expense to the city would be illegal unless the question is first submitted to the vote of the people.

A delegation of business men visited the mayor yesterday. The mayor received them after councils had confirmed his appointments, and, addressing the delegation he said:

"I have just returned from the fourth floor of the city hall, where select and common councils have recalled from our hands the gas lease ordinance. This ordinance has been sent to that death from which there is no resurrection. Since I have occupied the office of mayor of Philadelphia my desire has been to make it the best municipality in the world. With your help and the help of God we will raise Philadelphia until it stands as the first municipality in the wide world."

Late yesterday Mayor Weaver sent a letter to City Controller John M. Walton asking to be supplied with copies of the yearly statements of the United Gas Improvement company and the amounts "alleged" to have been spent by the company for improvements. He asks also the amounts due with interest at the end of the year 1907, for the properties belonging to the company. His purpose he states, is to secure as near as possible a statement from which an estimate can be made of the amounts that will be due and owing from the city to the United Gas Improvement company should the option to re-take the gas works be exercised by the city.

"I am also desirious, before any further time should elapse," the letter continues, "to have a complete investigation made as to the correctness and lawfulness of the amounts alleged by the United Gas Improvement company in its statements to have been expended, and for which it will seek to charge the city should the latter exercise its option to retake the gas works."

which it wil seek to charge the city should the latter exercise its option to re-take the gas works."

SOMETHING OF HIGH ROLLER

Why President's Cousin Was Sent Back to Regiment.

Washington, June 2.—A paragraph in the army orders recently issued by the war department was of considerable interest to Washington society. It read as follows:

"First Lieut. Granville R. Fortesque, Tenth cavalry, is relieved from duty in the office of the superintendent of public buildings and grounds, in this city, to take effect on or about Sept. 1, 1905, and will then proceed to join his regiment. The travel enjoined is necessary for the public service."

Official red tape has such a cold, formal way of throwing a fellow out of a soft berth and sending him "back to the mines," and this is a sample of it. Lieut. Fortesque is a cousin of President Roosevelt, and though officially assigned to a duty in the office of the superintendent of public buildings and grounds, his sole duty has consisted for several months of being in attendance upon White House social functions, enjoying himself in society and having a good time generally. As one of the president's aides he accompanied the presidential party on the recent trip through the West.

Lieut. Fortesque served under his distinguished cousin as a member of the Rough Riders in the Spanish war, and the president and his family like the young fellow immensely. But there seemed to be good reasons why the special detail should be terminated and the young officer should join his regiment at one of the Western army posts.

It is rumored that the president reached the conclusion that there were too many relatives attached to the White House. Mrs. Roosevel's cousin, Lieut. Dan Moore, is assigned as one of the president's aides, and he puts in his time during the social season at looking pretty at the pink teas and the musicales given by the mistress of the White House.

Then Capt. Cowles, the president's brother-in-law, now on duty as commander of the battleship Missouri, is about the White House a good deal, as is his family.

But the more likely reason for the detachment of Lieut. Fostesque is that he was rather indiscreet to hold such close relations with the presidential family. A few months ago he returned from Manchuria, where he had been sent to observe the military operations of the Russians and Japanese.

Upon landing in San Francisco he celebrated his return home with a good dinner and wound it up by smashing a cabman in the eye, for which frivolity he was arrested. He got out of this scrape with a good "roasting" from the president, but a short time ago he became involved in an army divorce case, which was embarrassing, to say the least. During the recent race meeting at Bennings he was returning from the track with Miss Alice Roosevelt in his automobile, when he was arrested for speeding beyond the limit. It was such little affairs as these that no doubt convinced President Roosevelt that Lieut. Fortescue was a trifle too swift for his duty and that it were better for him to resume the discipline of army life. As a salve to his feelings, he has been given a three months' leave of absence, which he will spend in Europe.

It has been the custom for the lieutenant to accompany Miss Roosevelt to the races and to such other places that required the services of a male escort. A favorite diversion for them was to attend the performances at the Academy of Music here, a theater where the most thrilling class of melodrama is produced. They enjoyed the blood-curdlings and often took a party of friends with them.

Rheumatism, gout, backache, acid poison, are results of kidney trouble. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea goes directly to the seat of the disease and cures when all else fails. 35 cents. Ask your druggist.

EXTENSIVE PLANS MADE

Seventy-Foot Camera to Photograph Eclipse of Sun.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 2.—Extensive preparations are being made by astronomers all over the world to observe the total eclipse of the sun, which occurs Aug. 30. This is the most important eclipse that will take place in a period of fifty years, being extra long in duration and being visible at so many places accessible to astronomers for observing stations. More than forty expeditions will be sent to Spain, Egypt, Arabia and Labrador, at all of which places the time of totality will be from two to four minutes.

One of the most important of the American expeditions will be that sent out from the university of Indiana to Spain under the direction of Dr. John A. Miller, head of the department of astronomy. Assistant Professor Wilbur Cogshall and three students, Earl Slipher, Vinton Crull and Clarence Bulleit, will accompany Dr. Miller as assistants. The three latter will sail for Europe June 17, and Dr. Miller and Prof. Cogshall June 22.

For the past two or three months almost the entire time of the department has been spent in testing the various lenses that will be used in photographing the sun and its surroundings during the time of the eclipse. One of these lenses will be used in a camera seventy feet long, the longest camera, with one exception, ever used in photographing eclipse phenomena. Dr. Miller expects results from this instrument of the highest scientific importance.

The work of testing the lenses, though not completed, has been discontinued because of the short time remaining in which to make other necessary preparations. The lenses and the other parts of the instruments are being packed and will be shipped to Barcelona, Spain, within a few days.

Dr. Miller has not yet selected his eclipse station, and will not do so until he gets to Spain and makes a personal investigation of transportation facilities and weather conditions. The question of weather is an extremely important one, as even light clouds will render the observations almost useless and heavy clouds will make them impossible. Dr. Miller will look out for a place, which, according to weather reports of previous years, has a minimum number of cloudy days in the month of August.

WILL SOON BE A FREE MAN

Condemned American Escapes Through Graciousness of Diaz.

Houston, Tex., June 2.—When the ironbound doors of the Mexican prison at Chihuahua, capital of the state of Chihuahua, Mexico, swing open for Mac Stewart June 3, it will be the last chapter in a case of human interest and human suffering, only exceeded by the case of Dreyfus.

Stewart will be the first man who has even been condemned to death in the Southern republic and confined in the death cell of a fortress, to go forth except to his execution.

When the prisoner looks for the first time upon a horizon unbroken by the stone walls of his confinement he will be greeted by a man who has gained no less of fame. Dr. R. B. Lignoski of Houston, Tex., the Confederate veteran, who has spent seven and one-half years of endeavor to save the life and secure the freedom of the prisoner, simply because the two were comrades in the Civil war, will grasp Mac Stewart's hand. With Dr. Lignoski will be a delegation from the Texas state legislature, there by vote of their comrades and at the expense of the commonwealth.

Because an American, the steward of a ship sailing from New Orleans to the port of Vera Cruz, once saved the life of Porferio Diaz, now president of the republic of Mexico, Mac Stewart has been saved. Diaz never had an opportunity to reward the American who years ago came to his rescue in the hour of his greatest pecessity, and now he is paying that debt of gratitude by extending a helping hand to another American.

Mac Stewart in self-defense killed a man the nephew of Gen. Torres of the state of Sonora, Mexico. Young Torres was a policeman. Mac Stewart was condemned to be shot.

Fortunately the "tomorrow" habit, so prevalent in Mexico, saved his life. Delay followed delay. By some means Stewart heard of the efforts of Dr. Lignoski in securing the passage of a law in Texas granting pensions to Confederate veterans. In the darkness of his dungeon Stewart scrawled his appeal for help, using paper and pencil that had been smuggled to him by a guard.

Dr. Lignoski began a fight for the man's life.

Mr. Clayton, the minister from the United States, accompanied Dr. Lignoski to the palace, where he presented a petition and for an hour and a quarter President Diaz listened to his pleading. He looked over the papers, then attached his signature. That decree prevented execution.

Since that time Mac Stewart has remained in the Chihuahua prison. Under the laws of Mexico nothing could be done for ten years, and now the period has expired. After that time it is discretionary with the authorities to expel a foreign prisoner from the country, and the papers to secure that end have only to be ratified. When Diaz has for the last time acted, Mac Stewart will be free and will come to Houston.

MARYLAND WOMAN

Does Not Propose to Be Easily Divorced.

Hagerstown, Md., June 2.—Mrs. Charles W. Alexander is a "lady." At present she is involved in some divorce proceedings which her husband instituted, but as she has announced her determination to spank her husband's lawyer, the divorce proceedings may be discontinued. In any event there are likely to be lively times in the family.

The husband says he was drunk at the time he was married or he would not have done it. His wife indignantly denies the statement.

"Alexander was perfectly sober when he married me," she says. "He was smiling and happy as if it was his first wedding, and he gets no divorce. I do not deny I am fond of him, although there is nothing admirable about him, and I don't propose to lose him, but, as for his treatment of me, it is both cruel, unjust and uncalled for.

"Thrice he took me away to get married, once in Martinsburg and once in Harrisburg, and both times he got loaded and the money ran out, and he gave excuses about not having time, etc. That is the man I married.

"His lawyer did not forget to call and inquire about his red pocketbook full of important legal papers. What did I say? I said it went under the washboiler to keep up the fire that keeps me and this family. What is his is mine, isn't it?

"As for the lawyer, if he calls I am going to bat him with a chair. He takes his life in his hands when he shows up.

"If by some crook of the law he should get a divorce and marry again I will cut the throat of the bride just as sure as I live. Trust me for that.

"Charlie had better come home and quit fooling with me."

BIBLE AGENT FINDS

Dagges, Not Bibles, Are Wanted In Honduras.

New Orleans, La., June 2.—"Bible agent"——

That's all. It appeared behind the name on the passenger list, and it told a plain, pathetic story. Told how a religiously inclined individual, believing in the furtherance of the work of God, went to Spanish Honduras to sell Bibles and found a better market for pistols and shotguns.

Bibles, it was evident, were not much wanted in that quarter. However, that is the way the country appealed to the "Bible agent," and he is back after an unsatisfactory trip.

It was a sad trip and unsatisfactory in more particulars than one. Bibles were not in demand, and shotguns and daggers, with which the "Bible agent" was not supplied, were. The agent tried to sell a Bible to a country native. The native said he'd buy it if it had a sharp point. When he saw the little square book he renegged. That wasn't what he wanted. He was very anxious to secure something with which to stick his friends—for the drinks or otherwise.

Honduras is not the place for Bibles. The natives are kept so busy deciding who shall lead the next revolution that they don't have time to read.

The "Bible agent" came back on the United States Fruit company's weekly mail boat Olympia. He looked sad.

He has given up Honduras as a bad job, and threatens to pay Gretna a visit. Either that or he will return to Honduras with a shipload of daggers.

At any rate he has had enough of trying to dispose of Bibles to Bonilla's ballwick.

GRADUATING EXERCISES

Of the Crookston High School—Twenty-Seven Graduates.

Crookston, Minn., June 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The graduating exercises of the Crookston high school were held Wednesday evening in the Opera house, which was filled to its utmost capacity to witness the presentation to the members of the '05 class of the sheepskins for which they have been laboring. The class consisted of twenty-seven members, nineteen girls and eight boys, the largest class ever graduated by the Crookston high. The address of the evening was delivered by President Weld of the Moorhead normal, who took as his subject, "Cultivation of Self," and it was pronounced one of the finest efforts of the kind ever heard by those present.

The normal department of the Crookston high school has been in operation but one year, consequently there were no graduates from that department. However, that department has proven one of the most successful if the school, and next year the normal students promise to be more than double the present class of fourteen. Superintendent McIntire has devoted much of his attention to the normal work and is very enthusiastic over the signal success of the experiment here.

The presentation of the diplomas was made by Judge R. J. Montague, president of the school board, whose remarks were very brief but of a most happy nature.

NEW POLICE FORCE

For New Orleans, as Result of Scandal.

New Orleans, June 2.—The police scandal that has reached a crisis with the suspension of Inspector John Journee following his refusal to resign on Mayor Behrman's demand, is likely to result in a complete reorganization of the force.

A police captain and a corporal of police have been indicted by the grand jury for corrupt actions; a police commissioner has resigned because of the conditions in the department, and the suspension of Superintendent Journee, as the latest development, places the department in a condition of demoralization.

Those best posted say that under the Journee administration organized gangs of thieves have been brought here, practically to operate under the direction of the police, being unmolested so long as the spoils were divided with the police.

The grand jury, in its report, recommend the absolute reorganization of the force, and it is probable that within the next few days the entire force will be discharged and a new one appointed.

Pending the suspension and trial of Journee, Mayor Behrman has appointed Capt. John P. Boyle in charge of the police force.

Inspector Journee, when asked if he had anything to say in regard to the charges, answered that he couldn't talk for publication at this time. He admitted that the charges against him were for incompetency, but he had not consulted any of his friends or counsel in the matter, and therefore would say nothing at present.

"It was almost a miracle. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me of a terrible breaking out all over the body. I am very grateful." Miss Julia Filbridge, West Cornwell, Conn.

ONLY ONE

Is Now Left In the Elopement Club.

Waterbury, Conn., June 2.—The fourth in the series of weddings by members of the Waterbury Elopement club was announced when Clifford D. Sandland, an official in the Waterbury Lumber and Coal company, and Miss Gertrude Fields, daughter of a local manufacturer, blushingly confessed that they had been married in New York on Good Friday.

The parents of both parties received the news with smiles and gave their blessings. There now remains only one surviving bachelor of the original elopement club of five.

The club was organized nearly two years ago by Frank Morsehead, Philip Morsehead, Mortimer Kelley, Frank Slavin and Sandland. They declared that weddings were becoming too prosaic and proposed to restore something of the spirit of romance.

Frank Morsehead led the procession, eighteen months ago, and stole away to the metropolis with Miss Eva Chatfield. They returned man and wife, and the club gave them a handsome silver service. Philip Morshead came next, eloping to Brewsters with Miss Etta Lewin. They did not announce their wedding for a month afterward, but got a silver service just the same.

As soon as the marriage of Sandland and Miss Fields was announced the club gave a reception to the couple, with Slavin, the sole survivor, as master of ceremonies.

Painful Eruptions from Knees to Feet Seemed Incurable.

CUTICURA ENDS MISERY

Another of those remarkable cures by Cuticura, after doctors and all else had failed, is testified to by Mr. M. C. Moss of Gainesville, Texas, in the following letter: "For over thirty years I suffered from painful ulcers and an eruption from my knees to feet, and could find neither doctors nor medicine to help me, until I used Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills, which cured me in six months. They helped me the very first time I used them, and I am glad to write this so that others suffering as I did may be saved from misery."

TALK OVER PLANS

Railroad and Warehouse Commission Meets With Railroad Men.

Two Local Tracks Are Needed For State Hay Inspection.

The state railroad and warehouse commission members, Judge Ira B. Mills, Charles E. Staples and Willam E. Young, who are now in the city to determine upon some plan whereby the new state law providing for hay inspection in the distributing markets may become operative, and who held a meeting yesterday with local commission men and dealers in hay in regard to the matter, this morning held a second conference on the same proposition in the Board of Trade building with E. C. Blanchard, superintendent of the Northern Pacific, D. M. Philbin, assistant general superintendent of the Great Northern, T. W. Kennedy of Eau Claire, superintendent of the Wisconsin division of the Omaha road, and S. G. Strickland, general superintendent of the Omaha.

The discussion at today's meeting related particularly to the question of providing special inspection tracks, and it was practically settled that it would be necessary to have two such tracks in Duluth to better carry out the hay inspection law, as passed by the recent legislature. It will be necessary for the tracks to be located at points where scales may be put in for weighing the cars. One will be maintained by the Omaha, which has its own terminals at the Head of the Lakes, while the other will be on the Northern Pacific, and will be used by the Northern Pacific, Great Northern, Duluth, Missabe & Northern and the Milwaukee roads.

One of the problems most difficult of solution in connection with this state inspection is the proper weighing of the hay. The weighing is an important part of the inspection, and it is absolutely essential that the exact weight be correctly given. This fact would not present so serious a problem to those who are now trying to decide upon the best system of inspection, were it not for the fact that the stenciled numbering on the cars, supposed to give the exact weight of each car, are in almost every instance, incorrect. An investigation by the board has shown that these weights, as given, are rarely ever correct. And now the great question is: How is the correct weight of the cars to be obtained without first unloading the hay, an operation entailing considerable time and expense?

Another serious problem which confronts the board is how hay that is consigned to Duluth and then reconsigned to outside points, without being taken from the car at all, is to be inspected, in accordance with the terms of the law. It has been practically decided that a door inspection would have to suffice in this case, and that in the event of complaints concerning the accuracy of the inspection, when the hay is delievered at its final destination, appeal should be made and a re-inspection asked. Such complaints will be made to the department and another inspection ordered. For cars that are consigned to some outside point, and that pass through Duluth without the necessity of being reconsigned, there will be no local inspection. When a car is shipped here, however, to a local firm, which later sends it on, to one of the range towns, for example, without first unloading the hay, there will be the door inspection, that is the quality of the hay will be decided on what is found near the door when it is opened. Thus it will not be necessary to take out the entire lot of hay and then reload it.

The state railroad and warehouse commissioners are determined to do everything they possibly can to get a practical working system for the hay inspection, but they are meeting with difficulties all along the line, and the farther they get into it the more difficult it appears to establish such a system. It will be given as thorough a demonstration as is possible, and if the board finds it an impossibility, it will simply have to quit.

FIREMEN ON SHOW

Annual Inspection of Duluth Department In Progress.

Good Time Is Made By Men at Headquarters.

The annual inspection of the Duluth fire department is taking place this afternoon.

Mayor Cullum, the members of the city council, the members of the board of fire commissioners, and the different city officials are in attendance, and eight or ten automobiles have been loaned by the owners to take the officials on the tour from station to station.

The headquarters station on West First street was the first one visited. One or two of the men were nervous on the start, and in the day hitch did not make as good time as last year. The chemical got away in seven seconds, the hook and ladder cart in eight, the salvage in nine, the engine in eight, and the hose wagon in about fourteen. A new horse delayed the hose wagon several seconds.

On the night hitch, the men were on their mettle and they made splendid time. After the men had all retired to their beds, Aderman McEwen and Health Commissioner Murray were detailed to see that all was fairly done. The alarm was then rung and the men came tumbling down the poles putting on their clothes as they came. Meanwhile the automatic alarm had opened the doors of the stables and turned on the lights and the hitch was made.

The time consumed from the moment the alarm was turned in until everything was ready to start the run, was as follows: Chemical, fourteen seconds; hook and ladder, ten seconds; salvage, fourteen seconds; engine, fourteen seconds; hose wagon, eleven seconds.

The work on the pompier ladders was well done. Five men went up the five stories carrying the ladders with them in one minute and thirty-four seconds.

Fireman Bain then made the trip alone, carrying his ladder with him. He mounted the six stories to the roof of the fire hall in fifty-six seconds.

Fireman Kelley dropped from the roof on a rope in thirteen seconds.

The men were than taken down to Michigan street to test the length of time necessary to get the water to the nozzle of a hose.

From headquarters the officers and aldermen will go to lakeside, and returning inspect the East end and No. 3 companies, going from there to the West end and West Duluth.

FAKE MADE GOOD.

Result of a Reporter's Freak Weather Forecast.

One of the Chicago correspondents observed to the Washington Star: "I never read an unusual weather story such as the newspapers printed during the recent unseasonable cold snap, that I'm not reminded of a phenomenal fake forecast that made its appearance in one of the New York yellows a few years ago, when 'Farmer' Dunn was New York's weather prognosticator.

"It was a Chicago man who, on the first day he went to work on the New York saffron sheet a few summers ago, sifted some of the thickness out of 'Farmer' Dunn's plentiful locks and caused him to be berated over the telephone as he had never been berated before.

"The Chicago newspaper man had some unique ideas on the subject of overwork, and when, on the first morning of his employment on the afternoon paper, his city editor told him to 'go down and get the weather story from Dunn,' and he ascertained that 'Farmer' Dunn's prognosticating eyrie was about a mile distant, he mentally bucked.

"'I wonder if that assignment maker thinks I'm going to hike it for all that distance just to fix up a weather yarn?' mused the newspaper man just out of Chicago. 'Not on his natural. Nay. Nix. Similarly, not none.'

"So he repaired across the way to the high ball chemistry of O. Lipton, Esq., hung the recently decease Only William up for three of the same, retired within the shade of a cool alcove, produced a bunch of mussed-up copy paper, and indited the day's weather story.

"It was a rara avis of a weather story when he got through with it.

"While he was writing it the skies were of sapphire, the summer sun shone resplendently and there wasn't even a symptom of a haze to portend the arrival of different meteorological conditions. It was, in brief, a perfect summer's day.

"But the reckless young man from out Chicago way wrote a forecast that predicted the star headliner of an electrical storm of the season, and the prediction announced that the same was going to happen early on that same afternoon.

"He went into the details of the forecast elaborately, and stated that New York scientists interested in the photographing of electrical displays had their cameras all ready and pointed for the celestial pyrotechnics that were going to blaze out on schedule time along toward 2 o'clock that afternoon.

"The young man from Chicago sent the copy over to his paper by a messenger, and then he leaned back in the alcove and continued the absorption of the products of the Only William's facile fingers.

"About an hour later he purchased the first editions of the other afternoon papers to find out if his weather story was anywhere near being in line.

"It wasn't.

"The genuine Dunn forecast, as set forth in all the rest of the afternoon papers, including the chief rival of the yellow for which he worked, was that the beauteous weather was to continue indefinitely.

"Which is a good enough tip for me to remain away from the office, unless I want to experience the mortification of being dumped, ditched, fired and mangled at the extreme bottom of the elevator shaft,' mused the newspaper man fresh from Chicago.

"Then he fared forth, to reflect, in the open air, upon ways and means whereby he could obtain employment on some other newspaper that would permit him to take an occasional chance with a long shot.

"It was then 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and the big black clouds had begun to roll over Brooklyn.

"At exactly 1:50 the opening gun of the electrical orgy was fired, and for a solid hour it thundered and lightened so hard over Manhattan Island that it made people's teeth ache.

"It was a continuous performance of heavenly artillery for a straight sixty minutes or more, and the blue purple, green and pink lightning caused superstitious persons to imagine that the world had about arrived at its finish.

"It was about as tremendous an electrical disturbance as New York has ever been through, and the photographic sharps did take hundreds of views of the lightning ribbons ripping the heavens from zenith to horizon.

"That, probably, was the meanest afternoon of 'Farmer' Dunn's official prognosticating life. The city editors of all the other afternoon papers streaked for their telephones as soon as they saw the yellow's exclusive weather prediction in the act of being perfectly verified and vindicated, and they completed the sizzling of the wires that the Chicago man's electrical storm had begun.

"'I pass,' was all Dunn could say over the 'phone to the storming city editors. 'Not guilty. Both hands up. That paper has scooped me as well as all the rest of you fellows.'

"Along toward 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when the storm was subsiding, the Chicago newspaper man strolled into the yellow's city room and flopped wearily into a chair.

"When he was recognized the whole office rose at him. The city editor gathered him into his embrace, and two strong men from the business office brought him up a bag of glittering gold.

"'How d'je do it?' inquired the city editor, hoarse with emotion and admiration.

"'Oh, I've always been a kind of natural born weather sharp,' calmly replied the new man from Chicago, and then the city editor handed him his old gold watch and chain and all hands shook hands with him again."

OLD TIMES' REMEDIES.

In the village of Greenwich, England, in a quaint old street where the buildings are so thick that they tangle themselves together in a knot, says Medical Talk, there is a queer little shop with a sign over the door that reads, "An Herb For Every Pain."

On the shelves of this shop are to be found hundreds of different kinds of herbs for the cure of all bodily ailments. There can be found all the old-time herbs that our grandmothers used to have hanging around the walls of the kitchen and stored away in the attic, ready to be made into teas and syrups in case of sickness.

People who still have old-fashioned ideas about health and sickness go there for bugleweed, sumach, wintergreen, sassafras, camomile, horehound, yellow dock, catnip, cherry bark, mullein, extract of oats, lobelia and so on. All these herbs have the reputation of being good for some one or more ailments. Catnip for nervousness, sassafras for the blood, horehound and boneset for colds, sumach for sore throat, wintergreen for rheumatism, lobelia as an emetic in case of poisoning, mullein for consumption, etc.

Nearly all of these herbs are made into teas. Sassafras tea, boneset tea and catnip tea are brewed and served either cold or hot. Among the many hundreds of herbs that are sold in this little shop are some that are deadly poisons, and they are labelled and sold under the same restrictions as other poisons.

The good old remedies that our grandfathers hunted and dug in the woods, those that our grandmothers planted and tended in the garden, have given way to harmful remedies, to drugs that leave the patient in a worse condition than when he began their use. We believe it has been a mistake to give up the old remedies.

PAYING A DEBT.

In Penang recently a borrower wriggled out of his financial liabilities by overpowering the native usurer and clapping a padlock through the holes in his ear, says the Malay Times.

The Malay money lender could not return to his brethren with an ear desecrated and sullied by infidel hands, and so was forced to tear up the promissory note in exchange for the key to the lock.

CLOCK STILL TICKED.

When the disastrous fire which broke out at Messrs. W. and C. Pantin's premises in Upper Thames street on Monday night was extinguished the firemen found a clock hanging on the wall and still ticking, says the London Express.

The woodwork of the ceiling and the wall on which it was hanging was burned to cinder. Even the case of the clock had been burned away. The smoke begrimed works, however, never stopped.

YEAR'S COPYRIGHT RECORD.

The total entries for the year 1904 at the copyright office in the library of congress numbered 106,577, an increase of 7,141 over 1903. Of these, musical compositions head the list, 23,740 of them having been entered for copyright in 1904. Single numbers of periodicals come next, their total amounting to 21,041. Under the class headed "books" there were 25,516 entries, 16,691 of which were books and the remainder booklets, leaflets, circulars, cards, newspaper and magazine articles, etc.

THE SCHOOL TEACHER.

Andrew Carnegie's gift of $10,000,000 to form a fund to pension superannuated college professors, which has had more favorable comment than any of his numerous other public gifts, has also caused many expressions of regret that there is not some method by which similar aid could be held out to public school teachers.

The public school education is the foundation upon which all of the colleges and universities have to build. Its importance is therefore at least as great, and when it is considered what an infinitesimal proportion of the population gets any more education than that provided by the public schools, its importance becomes much greater.

It is unfortunate that even though we may admit the importance of the public school, and the holiness and value of the public school teachers' services, we do not pay attractive salaries for that service. Upon the public school teachers rests the burden of giving an overwhelming majority of the people practically all of the education they ever get, and yet the field is not attractive enough to call the very best minds into its service. Thousands, for mere love of the work and because they see in it a means of making their lives of value to humanity, enter it even though they sacrifice opportunities that promise much greater financial results.

But the remuneration is not tempting. Only in a few cases does public school work become profitable from a financial viewpoint. Many teachers find it difficult to keep up a suitable standard of living upon their salaries, and the opportunities for making preparations for the disabilities of age by saving money are few.

It would put more heart into the work, and induce many to enter it even for lower salaries than they could get elsewhere, if there were some means of securing the public school teacher against an age-limit retirement into poverty. Mr. Carnegie's $10,000,000 would be insufficient, of course, while it is ample for the purpose to which he dedicated it, but it is to be hoped that in time a similar provision will be made for the public school teachers.

GOOD FAITH LACKING.

The hearings on the railroad rate question by the senate committee on interstate commerce, recently ended, were attended by several significant things.

The attitude of the press and public toward the hearing was especially significant of the feeling of both toward the senate and its interstate commerce committee. The proceedings of the committee were regarded by the public with apathy, showing that the result was discounted in advance, and that no good effect was expected from the hearings. If that committee offers anything tangible or valuable, it will be simply because the pressure of public sentiment forces it out, not because the committee wants to yield anything.

The detailed reports of the proceedings were nothing like what will appear in the report of the committee. Many remarks by witnesses that would have harmed the cause of the railroads were stricken out at the direction of members. The testimony was carefully weeded down to make the kind of showing railroads and railroad senators want.

The questions put to witnesses by members of the committee were significant, too. Like the questions put to a witness by an attorney, they were often designed to produce a particular reply, rather than to bring out the truth. The questions put by several of the leading senators showed a desire to bring out the information that the demand for government regulation of freight rates does not come from these most interested, but from sources entirely foreign to the shipper. In almost every instance where an answer was of such a character as the senatorial questions would call for, that answer was an argument against government regulation.

Therefore, it will not be surprising to anybody when the majority of the committee reports against government regulation, accompanying their findings by ingeniously-arranged extracts from ingeniously-produced testimony. The hope of the people is in the minority that may present a report that is fair and unbiased.

While the hearing has been a ludicrous farce so far as actual results are concerned, and especially so when it is remembered that the committee is supposed to be made up of duly-elected representatives of a sovereign people, it is exceedingly enlightening as to the attitude of many senators, and as to the yawning chasm that separates them from the people and their wishes and needs.

FREAK PROFESSORS.

Unless there has been wholesale misrepresentation of the facts, certain Chicago educational institutions are producing some college professors that are pretty good examples of what college professors ought not to be. Undoubtedly everybody who has read of the freak opinions that have gone forth from Chicago professors from time to time have wondered what the game was, and they may be excused for wondering.

Some of them have criticised the works of nature very severely, like the one that said he could have made a better continent than North America is if he had had the chance, and that he would, for one thing, have run the Rocky mountains from east to west instead of from north to south. Others have contented themselves with merely criticising human work, which is more in order, but their criticisms have often been characterized by a peculiarly nauseating brand of asininity.

The University of Chicago has been one of the principal producers of freak opinion, and one of its instructors, a fellow named Maxim Ingres, recently gave this to his class in French literature:

"The Police Gazette is the typical American newspaper; it caters to the sensational, and the public of America demands the sensational. All American newspapers are conducted on the same plan. This is not so in France, where such a publication as the one I have mentioned would not be permitted."

Of course the statement is too foolish and childish to need refutation. As there are black sheep in every family, as there are workers of evil in literature, so there are journals in the newspaper field that pander to evil tastes, like the weekly thing that Prof. Ingres takes as his model, and a very few dailies. But the public that creates the demand the daily press supplies needs not to be told that they are not the rule, any more than Laura Jean Libbey is typical of American letters, or than Bertha M. Clay and Marie Corelli represent the highest ideals of literature.

The incident seems only to show that among a certain class of professors, which it would be unfair to class as typical, the aim is to create a sensation and attract attention, by any means, however desperate.

WHOLESALE PRICES.

When a man finds that the price of something he is in the habit of buying has gone up, his natural impulse is to object, and to do his complaining to and of the man he buys from—the retailer—because he is nearest. Sometimes the retailer is all to blame; sometimes he is only partly to blame; sometimes, mayhap, he is not to blame at all. At any rate, the retailer will find comfort in the bulletin of the federal bureau of labor, just put out, on the course of wholesale prices during recent years. Here is a table with some of its facts boiled down, showing that of 249 articles of all sorts, the prices of 187 for 1904, compared with the average for 1890 to 1899, have increased, while the prices of only 60 have decreased.

	No. of Articles.	Increased.	Decreased.
Farm products	16	15	1
Food, etc.	52	38	14
Cloths and clothing	70	53	17
Fuel and lighting	13	11	2
Metals and implements	36	24	10
Lumber and building materials	29	19	7
Drugs and chemicals	9	6	3
House furnishing goods	14	11	3
Miscellaneous	13	10	3
Total	249	187	99

A study of the items making up these classes leads to the depressing conclusion that the increases have been largely on things we cannot get along without, while the decreases have been on such a character of articles that they would make little difference in the average household expense. For instance, it appears that while thirty-eight articles of food have increased in price, only fourteen have decreased. The fourteen include such things as raisins, extra creamery butter in certain localities, tea, corn starch, soda crackers, vinegar, rice, dried apples, Rio coffee, prunes and nutmegs. Everything else, including such items as bread, meat, flour, vegetables, milk, lard, beans, etc., is higher.

Three out of fourteen items in household furnishings are cheaper, but these are common glass pitchers and tumblers and carving knives. All other essentials to housekeeping have gone up, and the showing is not encouraging for the young folks who would set up a home for themselves.

Fuel and lighting—here is encouragement, to be sure, for coke and matches are the two items that are cheaper, while the other eleven, including coal increased all the way from 16 to 34 per cent, according to quality, and petroleum gone up 27 per cent, have increased to a marked degree.

Of the 187 items that have increased, 52 increased less than 10 per cent over the average for 1890 to 1899, 73 increased from 10 to 25 per cent, 47 increased from 25 to 50 per cent, and 15 jumped from 50 to 100 per cent.

THE MAN IN THE CAB.

Every now and then a locomotive engineer goes to his death in his cab, and the public realizes something of his immense responsibilities. When you sleep in your berth as the train thunders on through the night, it is upon his clear eye, steady nerve and tranquil brain that your safety depends. Behind him many are sleeping as carelessly as they would in their beds at home, in complete reliance upon his steadfastness to duty. The man chosen to perform the work of a locomotive engineer is one tried in the service of the road, and his mental and physical equipment has been tested thoroughly. His position is one of great responsibility, both to his employers and to the humanity that rides behind him through the night.

And yet, while he is a conspicuous example, he is but one of a thousand cogs in the great machine of modern life, many of which we never hear of, most of which we never see, but to their integrity we trust our lives and property daily. We put our money in the bank, relying upon the honesty and business sagacity of the banker to keep it safely and return us the interest upon it. We trust our lives to trains, street cars and passenger elevators, heedless of the fact that one man's inattention to duty, one man's dishonesty in a simple detail of the work, may plunge us into eternity.

We never notice the faithful servants, yet when an engineer releases his tension for a moment, and a horrible accident results, we look upon him with horror. When our banker proves false to his trust we cry out against him, and hold him up to the rack of punishment.

But we seldom stop to think, when exclaiming with horror at the conduct of those who fail, of the steadfast courage and persistence of the thousands that do their work properly, and in whose care our lives and property are always safe.

Hotel Gossip.

"They used to conduct the postal business different from the way they do now," said Charles G. Seifert of Spencer, S. D., at the McKay, producing an old-looking envelope, yellow with age, from an inside pocket. "I have here an old letter of which I am rather choice. It was written by my grand-aunt at St. Francisville, La., July 21, 1813, as you can see from the date line, and was addressed to my grandfather, at York, Penn.

"The letter is a purely personal one and throws no light on matters of the day, but the letter itself is interesting as showing the improvements which have been made in the postal system since that time. The letter, you see, is so folded as to make its own envelope, this being before the days of envelope making. The postage was collected in cash from the person to whom the letter was addressed and in this case was twenty-five cents, as is indicated in the upper corner, in ink, the postage being rated to the distance. The letter, though well on toward 100 years old, is in a good state of preservation and the ink is still clear."

But the letter is not the only ancient article that Mr. Seifert can produce for the entertainment of the curious. He carries with him a rare collection of old coins, which he has been twenty years in getting together. There are 180 pieces in the lot, and represent sixty-two different countries. Very few modern pieces are in the lot. The collection is valued at anywhere from $1,000 to $1,500.

The rarest coin in the lot is one which was made in the reign of Crassus, ninety-four years before Christ. So far as can be ascertained, it is the only one of its kind in existence, although Mr. Seifert is of the opinion that possibly a very few of them may be in existence in some parts of Europe and Asia. There is no doubt as to the genuineness of his, which was given a neighbor of his by an old Armenian. It is a fact, however, that in no collection of coins in the United States is there a counterpart of the one in the possession of the Dakota collector. Even the noted government collection in the mint at Philadelphia was carefully gone over, and a similar coin could not be found.

"I do not know the real value of the piece of money," said Mr. Seifert, "but I would not part with it for several hundred dollars. A Dakota lady, a neighbor of mine, to whom I was one day showing my collection, remarked that she had an old coin about the house somewhere which she would gladly give to me. After an extended search it was found in the sewing basket and was transferred to my collection. She told me that an old Armenian had stayed at the house over night one time, and that on his departure next morning he left the coin. I later sent it to Prof. Henderson in New York, to find what it was, and thus I learned its origin. Later, when in Philadelphia, I took it to the mint, where it made quite an impression on the government employes, and where it could not be duplicated. They told me there that it was half copper and half gold."

The appearance of the coin seems to stamp this analysis as the correct one. The piece is reddish as to color and is very heavy for the size. It is somewhat smaller than a five-cent piece, but is much thicker. Its shape is irregular, and on one side is stamped a rude head, while on the other there is a figure of a man on the back of some animal.

Another interesting coin in the collection is a RAussian three kopeck piece of 1835. It is of copper, is about the size of a dollar, and is quite thick. Its total weight is two ounces, so that it would take four pounds and two ounces of this money to make an American dollar, if values were the same now as formerly. The present three kopeck piece is about the size of an American quarter.

"I think it will be a matter of only a few years before farms devoted to the raising of small fruits will be the common thing through this Northern country," said Charles S. Snow, a Minneapolis traveling man, at the St. Louis. "The soil and climate of Northern Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin appears to be well adapted to small fruit culture. I notice that down at Gordon, Wis., a new farm for raising strawberries is just being started, and there is little doubt as to the future success of the venture. They tell me of a man farther down the line who takes about $1,200 annually off a twenty-acre plot of ground, and almost his entire attention is given to strawberry culture."

"A lot of people have gone into the Southwest, particularly into Texas, during the past year," said G. S. Long of St. Louis, at the Spalding. "Up to the present time the majority of people who have been going into the state have been from Indiana, Illinois and Ohio, of the farming classes, at least. Land is high in those states, and they have found that they can sell at a profit, get a good or better land for less money and have a much more delightful climate. But the people who go into that region the coming fall with the intention of settling down there will many of them be from Michigan, Wisconsin and Nebraska. If present indications count for anything. Last winter in those states was more than usually severe, and you will find a lot of people anxious to find a warmer climate. This is a strong attraction about Texas. As a matter of fact it would probably be unpleasantly warm down there for residents of Northern Minnesota, especially for residents of Duluth, who are used to the cool lake breezes in the summer time."

A North Dakota View.

Fargo Forum: Duluth has voted to make No. 2 Northern the contract grade in wheat. This is a sad whack at the wheat raisers of the Northwest. Every farmer will recall how soon No. 1 hard disappeared through the manipulation of No. 1 northern, and now with No. 2 as contract grade the percentage of better grades will rapidly decline. It is possible that the Superior market may assist in securing the grade the grain is entitled to, but with trading general in the lower class of wheat, it is doubtful if the Wisconsin market will aid in any great measure—to relieve the farmers.

The Weather.

The sultry weather gave place last evening to a grateful coolness, when the wind switched toward the north, as the weather man said it would. This morning it was still cool, and the wind had yielded to the fatal attraction of the northeast, which it often does when it gets anywhere in that quarter. Still, the sun is growing stronger every day, and today it was strong enough to do battle with the northeast wind and come out victor. The result was a delightful day, compounded of the northeast wind and the sun's warmth, which produced an agreeable, bracing, pleasant coolness which was yet warm enugh for comfort.

During the past two or three days the apple buds in many a yard of the city have burst into their fullest blossoms, each flower spreading wide its white corolla, until the trees are banks of white, with pink flushes, a charming travesty of the snowbanks that have faded away.

The weather man does not say so, but the prospects of a bright Sunday, judged by previous weather history, are not of the best. He predicts fresh northeasterly winds, partly cloudy tonight and Saturday, with possibly showers. These clouds and showers out of the northeast we all know from experience, and they have a tendency to spoil Sundays and holidays. But the sun is coming into its summer strength, and maybe it will be powerful enough to coax that wind back out of the northeast in time for Sunday.

There were showers yesterday from South Dakota to Texas and during the whole the lake country, except this end of Lake Superior. While it is cooler here, it is warmer in the far West and Northwest. The barometer is low over the St. Lawrence Valley, Saskatchewan, Nevada and Utah.

The Burden-Bearers.

Say, growler, with the loaded hod,
You think you carry weight
Enough to crush you to the earth;
And curse the cruel fate
That puts the heavy load on you
Of all the burdens that you bear—
As far as you can see.

You think because a man is rich
And does not lug a hod,
That he has nothing else to do
But live and loaf and nod,
And wear fine clothes and eat fine food,
And whoop it up for fair—
Well, you don't know a little bit
About a rich man's care.

Look at the wrinkles in his face,
And note those tired eyes,
And see him turn away from food
That you would think a prize;
And see the marks of age on youth,
The gray hair on his head—
You lay your burden down at night,
He carries his to bed.

Say, growler, would you like to sleep
With that hard hod of yours,
And have it scrape you down the back
And spoil your soothing snores?
And give you dreams to make the night
A wretchedness that brought
You to your morning work again,
An old man overwrought?

Your load is heavy, none denies;
Your days are hard and long,
And labor in excess, no doubt,
Seems little short of wrong;
But wealth is not a cure for that,
Whatever it may do—
Thank God you do not have to take
Your hod to bed with you.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A man of 50 thinks he can fascinate a girl of 20, and she makes him think it.

There is an awful good time to be had in letting other people have the ambitions.

It takes a lot of money not to care whether people think you have it or not.

When a woman doesn't have to get a new cook more than once a week she begins to think she is becoming a successful housekeeper.

Liked His Conversation.

Everybody's: In a biography of Sir Herbert Oakley is told an anecdote showing Rubinstein's disinclination to talk. The incident happened in the smoking room of a Glasgow hotel in 1877, when the great pianist was making a Scottish tour. After waiting vainly for half an hour for the great man to direct the conversation, Rubinstein's companion asked:

"Do you like Wagner?"

"He is not goot," responded the pianist succinctly.

Abashed, the other waited another half hour before daring to break the silence.

"How about Beethoven?"

"He is goot!"

Nearly an hour dragged along after this venturesome inquiry, and then the Scotchman, in desperation, said:

"I must be going to bed now!"

"Ton't go," said Bubinstein with evident sincerity, "I have so much enjoyed your conversation!"

A Paying Institution.

Syracuse Post-Standard: Jokes at the expense of the weather forecaster are among the commonest forms of American wit. Some years ago an insurance company afflicted with the prevalent skepticism determined to investigate the amount of property saved in one year by the warnings of the weather bureau. A writer in The Century says that these conservative investigators found that on the average the people of the United States saved every year $30,000,000 by the weather service. As the people contribute $1,500,000 every year to its support this means that they get annually a dividend of 2,000 per cent on the investment. This, it must be admitted, is a fair return.

The Old Story.

We've a neat suburban cottage
With a pleasant little view
And 'twas there that Ann McLaurie
Gave to us her promise true.
Gave her promise true, did Annie,
That a month at least she'd stay.
But, alas, for truth and honor,
Annie only stayed a day.

Bids for the superstructure of the Norris & McDougall building are called for. The work of blasting out a cellar for this building is nearly done.

The gold excitement has subsided considerably this week, and owners of lands in that section have very sensibly determined to find out for themselves what there is in the country.

A meeting of the fire department was held Wednesday evening, and the fire boys seemed to be of the opinion that Chief Mannheim should receive a salary. He probably will before long.

In a few days the Duluth Lumber company's mill will shut down for want of logs, unless heavy rains raise the St. Louis sufficiently for good driving. The company has only been running half of its mill this season.

A. R. Dalrymple, superintendent of the famous Grandin farm near Hague, Dakota, has been in the city this week.

Miss Addie Robb, teacher of the Park Point school, left for her home early this week.

I. Bondy has been in Minneapolis this week in attendance on the session of the grand lodge of Odd Fellows.

The water company has a large force of men at work opening the mains on Fourth avenue East and East Third street. A main is being run to the courthouse to supply that building and the jail with water. The jail has been supplied by a private pipe put in some years ago connecting it with Brewery creek. As this pipe froze solid on Feb. 10 last and is not liable to open for a month yet, it was thought best to rely on city water.

Contractors begin next week on the superstructure of the Board of Trade building.

SAID IN FUN.

Cleveland Leader: "And is she very pretty?"

"No, I should say not!"

"Why, John told me she was as pretty as a picture."

"Well, he probably meant an amateur photograph."

Washington Star: "Sometimes," said Uncle Eben, "it 'pears to me dat some o' dese yere politicians thinks dar's gwine to be general revolution every time dey gits ready to turn a somersault."

Philadelphia Press: Ranter—I thought this paper was friendly to me.

Editor—So it is. What's the matter now?

Ranter—I made a speech at the banquet last night and you didn't print a line of it.

Editor—Well? What further proof did you want of our friendship?

Cleveland Leader: Mr. Slopoke (apologetically)—Well, I suppose I am a perfect bear, and all that, you know.

Miss Adeham (meaningly)—No, I can't say that you display all the characteristics of a bear!

And he didn't see it then. Some men are hopeless.

Philadelphia Ledger: "But surely," protested the reformer, "you don't believe a man should sell his vote for paltry gold?"

"Sure not," replied the ward heeler. "He'd oughter be satisfied with a few drinks."

Chicago Tribune: "I don't suppose you know what it is to be exposed to temptation every moment of your working day, as I am."

"I'm not so sure about that. What's your occupation?"

"I am a bank cashier."

"Shake! I'm a berry picker."

Chicago Tribune: By some mistake the caller in search of information had been referred to the sporting editor.

"I want to find somebody," she said, approaching his desk timidly, "who can tell me how to get up a pink tea."

"You've got me guessing, miss," he replied. "The only drink of that kind I know anything about is black coffee."

THE BOY'S VACATION TIME.

Hail that long awaited day
When, the school books laid away,
All the thoughts of merry youngsters turn from pages back to play!
Done with lesson and with rule,
Done with teacher and with school,
Stray the vagrant hearts of childhood to the tempting wood and pool!

Who will tell in time and rhyme
Of the glory and the grime,
In the dusty lanes and byways of a boy's vacation time?
Hark, the whistle and the cry
That is piping shrill and high
From the chorus of glad youngsters trooping riotously by!

Say, did sun e'er brightly shine
As when, with his rod and line,
Tramps the barefoot lad a-fishing, and the water clear and fine!
Sweet the murmur of the trees,
And what glory now he sees
In the chatter of the wild birds and the buzz of bumble bees!

Hear the green woods cry and call
Through the summer to the fall,
"We are waiting, waiting, waiting with a welcome for you all!"
Hear the lads take up the cry,
With an echo, shrill and high,
"We are coming, coming, coming, for vacation time is nigh!"

How the skies are blue and fair,
How the clover scents the air
With a witchery of fragrance that is delicate and rare!
How the blossoms bud and blow,
And the great waves flood and flow
In the ocean of boy-happiness, like billows to and fro!

Ah, my heart goes back and sighs
When the piping calls and cries
From the hearts of merry youngsters like a song of triumph rise!
And I would that time and rhyme
Might be splendid and sublime
In my heart to tell the story of a boy's vacation time!
—J. W. FOLEY in New York Times.

He Saved Jefferson's Life.

Lippincott's: Joseph Jefferson, the actor, and Gen. Sherman were great friends. Upon a certain occasion Jefferson called upon the general. After a pleasant chat Jefferson rose to go, and Gen. Sherman caught sight of a sheet of paper under the chair where the actor had been sitting.

"Jefferson," he called, picking up the paper and carrying it to the door, "you dropped this, I think."

Jefferson took the sheet with an effusion of thanks that was astonishing.

"My dear general," he exclaimed, "you have saved my life!"

"It seems to me you're rather careless to carry such valuable papers around so loosely," replied the general in surprise.

Jefferson laughed, and unfolding the paper, revealed its contents. It was the manuscript of the opening pages of the great actor's autobiography.

A Clerical Tipster.

Pittsburg Dispatch: Senator Deboe of Kentucky tells this story concerning a school teacher in this state, who was also a preacher. He loved horses and dogs, and he was the owner of a trotter with a good record for speed. One Friday afternoon before dismissing the school he addressed the boys thus:

"Now, boys, I suppose you all know that there will be some horse racing tomorrow. Now, don't you go to the races. The race track is no place for boys. But, boys, if you do go to the races, don't you do any betting. It is not right to wager money on horses. But, boys, if you do go and if you do bet, mind what I tell you—bet on Deacon Abernathy's mare. This is a straight tip."

And the mare won, too. She was the old preacher-school teacher's thoroughbred under another name.

The Limit in Chicago.

Chicago Chronicle: If it be true that functionaries of the board of education have decided to send no more non-union coal to the schoolhouses "unless absolutely necessary" the circumstance indicates that we are getting pretty close to the limit in this town. There may be some excuse—no matter how attenuated—for surrendering to adult strikers and rioters, but when public officers meekly bow down before impudence in knee breeches and pinafores the time for putting up the shutters and going out of business is close at hand.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Mankato Free Press: It is unity of purpose that builds up a town.

Aitkin Age: "The Duke of Duluth" is a new theatrical one to come out in New York next season. It is not learned whether A. J. Whiteman or Charley Towne will star in the piece.

Wadena Tribune: Thomas Lawson keeps right on telling truths about the Standard Oil gang of millionaire robbers, and as yet he has not been sued for libel. There must be some good reason for this unseemly meekness on the part of the millionaires.

Aitkin Age: The Anti-Profanity league of America has begun a crusade in the Northwest against the swearing habit, and will soon establish its Minnesota headquarters in St. Paul. It's a good move and should be encouraged. There's no sense in swearing—outside of a print shop on press day.

Wadena Tribune: Editor Satterlee of the Annandale Post defies the party lash, and declares that he will act independently henceforth. Still the Republican party, of which Mr. Satterlee was a shining light, seems to be undisturbed.

Fairmont Sentinel: A whole lot of sensible people think that the social tomfoolery and expense incident to high school graduation is carried to excess and tends to destroy the principle of the simple life of the public schools.

Albert Lea Standard: Ray Jones, with a record, nevertheless lieutenant governor, still has his nerve with him and thinks he is inclined to become a candidate for governor. If the Republicans would only nominate him!

Anoka Union: Should Minnesota show a population of 2,000,000 by the present census, demands for a reapportionment will certainly appear. The northern part of the state will undoubtedly show a magnificent increase and its representation should be accordingly larger.

Anoka Union: The way both the Collins and Dunn factions are acting looks as if neither desired the election of a Republican governor, as long as they can chew the rag.

Practical Road Improvement.

St. Joseph, Mo., Gazette: The Duluth Herald tells of a community in its state where the people, wanting good roads, adopted a very practical method of securing them. The location was in one of the new settlements in the northern portion of Minnesota and the occasion was of a Sunday afternoon. The settlers for miles around had been invited to gather at the homestead of one of their number at the appointed hour, and there the question of how to build good roads was taken up. The final outcome of the meeting was that every man present, with one or two exceptions, subscribed two weeks of his time, or an equivalent in money, to work upon the roads in his locality. Many others, who were unable to attend the meeting, did likewise, so that in the end a large amount of work was secured and the roads throughout the neighborhood put in first-class shape, without expense to the county or state.

It may be argued that it is the duty of the state or county to look after the roads, that we pay taxes for that purpose, but in spite of this provision of the law, it will be admitted that in most portions of the country we have mighty poor roads. The incident here mentioned is published as showing the spirit required to overcome all obstacles in road building, the laxity of the law's enforcement along with the rest. It is a pretty safe proposition to say that when the farmers of this country want good roads they will have them, and not before. And they will want them when they come to understand just what benefits are to be derived therefrom.

In many Missouri communities such a meeting as was held in the far away Minnesota village would have been turned into an indignation gathering, where the afternoon would have been spent in crying out against the imbecility of the county officials, instead of turning in and remedying the evil with which the people were afflicted. The same kind of public spirit displayed in the other affairs of that community will eventually make it one of the foremost in the United States. A few hours spent at the proper time would keep the roads leading by one's farm in shipshape, and the owner would be amply repaid for his labor and expense. The trouble with too many of us is that we spend the bulk of our time waiting for someone else to do those things we had better do ourselves, with the result that they are never done. The result is bad roads, unkept hedges, and a general dilapidated appearance about the farm.

Among the Birds.

The robin is merrily singing;
The whippoorwill sobs in the night;
The catbird its call is repeating,
And the oriole trills in delight.
But there's one who is seeking the silence
Who craves the repose of its nest,
The good old American Eagle.
Is getting a much-needed rest.

No more with long, resonant phrases
Is the congressman testing his throat;
No more, in rhetorical pauses
Does he pose in his Prince Albert coat.
The platitude now has subsided;
And we feel it is all for the best,
That the good old American Eagle
Is taking a much-needed rest.

GAMES TODAY.

Winnipeg at Duluth.
Grand Forks at Crookston.
Fargo at Brainerd.

There was nothing in the shape of a "regret to report" affair, about yesterday's game, which opened the league season in Duluth.

The White Stockings performed like real champions. The mayor made a happy little speech, and knew when to quit. The fans turned out in goodly numbers, and the shekels flowed in freely. It was a welcome home that was wortay of the team that won last year's pennant, and has a double riveted cinch on the bunting this year.

The ceremonies started in front of the city hall, where the two teams assembled. Headed by Flaaten's band playing "See the Conquering Heroes Come," and the city officials and city dads in carriages the two teams marched to Fifth avenue west, where a chartered car took them aboard and the outfit headed for Athletic park.

At the ball grounds Alderman Lyle and about 1,500 fans were awaiting them. Alderman Lyle took the two teams in charge, acting as official master of ceremonies. Clad in a panama hat, a black cigar and a pleasant smile, the alderman from the Fourth carried the affair through to his entire satisfaction, leading the two teams across the field to the flagpole, where, after posing in front of a camera for a few minutes, Captains O'Dea and Claytor raised the silk pennant, won by the Duluth team last year.

The alderman then led the players back to the grand stand, where Mayor Cullum and Alderman McElwen were waiting for them.

"Billy" was plainly nervous, and speaking at such occasions was clearly out of his line, so he contented himself with introducing Mayor Cullum.

If the mayor isn't careful he will get a reputation as a speaker. He has never yet claimed any abilities in this direction, but yesterday's effort was a happy one. He started with the statement that war had been declared between Canada and the United States and that the preliminary skirmish was about to be pulled off. The other things he said were doubtless good, for the few fortunate fans in the front of the grand stand appeared to enjoy them hugely, but the wind and the open air pantorium were evidently too much for the mayor's voice. He appeared to realize this, and cut his speech short.

As a pitcher the "genial doctor" proved himself an unqualified success. Billy Howells essayed to touch up his delivery, and the best he could do was a little pop fly, which McShane nabbed.

Then the band struck up again, Alderman Lyle and the rest of the participants in the ceremonies returned to the grand stand, and Mr. Anderson, the "umps" announced the batteries as Potts and McAleese and Maloney and Rogers.

The big side-wheeler was slow in getting started, and Howells managed to draw four bad ones. Piper, the diminutive right fielder, sacrificed him to second, and then Tucker slammed out a safe single, allowing the center fielder to score. Potts settled down to business and the next two men were easy outs.

"Si" Bennett managed to get in front of one of Maloney's slants and walked down to first. It didn't take Weller, the little short stop, long to show what he is drawing his salary for. The first ball Maloney pitched looked good to him, and he slammed it on the nose for two sacks, scoring "Si." Sam Menelce hit a long fly to left field, and the ball was returned to the diamond poorly. Weller made third on the throw, and attempted to come home, but the first baseman managed to nab him at the plate. O'Dea singled out, but Neighbors was an easy out.

Matters progressed peacefully in the second, and the Peggers gave no trouble in the third.

Weller didn't want to leave any doubt in the minds of the fans as to his ability to play short, however, and he hit out another two-bagger, stealing third a moment later while the visitors were engaging in a chewing match over who should have caught a pop fly by Menelce. O'Dea singled again and Weller trotted home.

Both sides went out one-two-three in the fourth. The Peggers got a score in the fifth without a hit. With two men down, Potts passed Howell to first. The Canuck was totally lacking in appreciation of the courtesy shown, and stole second. Then he tried to add insult to injury by purloining third. McAleese heaved the ball out to Si Bennett in left field, and Howell continued on his way to the plate.

When "Sammy" Menelce used to play around Duluth in short trousers, nobody ever thought he was destined to get the first home run on the Duluthh grounds for the season of 1905. But it was the case of the prophet in his own country, again. Sam stepped up to the bat in the last half of the fifth, after two men were out, and dropped one of Maloney's shoots over the left field fence as easily as if he had been accustomed to doing such stunts from boyhood.

Capt. Artie seemed to think he was expected to get a hit every time he came to bat, so he rapped out his third single. Neighbors hit a long fly to Piper.

After Tucker had been retired in the sixth, Johnson hit a nasty bounder down to McShane. The third baseman went after it like a bass at a fly, but booted it. He recovered himself beautifully, but threw a little wild and Johnson was safe. But the error only gave Capt. Artie and Weller a chance to show what they could do. O'Dea had been taking everything that came his way with machine like regularity, and when Gatewood hit a hot grounder in his direction he had the ball in Weller's mitts before the batter could get a fair start. Weller completed the double with a pretty throw to first.

"Butch" Kennelley rapped out one of his old-time hits in the sixth, going to second on McShane's bunt, and coming home on a long single by Potts.

This ended the scoring. The visitors attempted a ninth inning rally with two down. Tripp drew a base on balls and Rogers got his third single, but Greene, who went in to bat for Maloney, struck out, and it was all over.

CROOKSTON WINS.

Tigers Are Defeated By Ninth Inning Rally.

Crookston, June 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grand Forks' inability to win a game of ball on a Crookston field was emphasized in yesterday afternoon's game. With things all their own way right up to the ninth inning, Spike Anderson's bunch at the last moment fell down and Crookston fans went wild over the last two runs scored by the home team which made the game their own. In the first inning Grand Forks hit off pretty well and pounded Born, Crookston's star twirler pretty thoroughly. Only one run resulted however and from the first until the fourth there was practically nothing doing save a pitchers' battle between Dorn and Spanton with the former a trifle in the lead on strike outs. In the fourth Crookston's men found Spanton and three scores resulted. The local fans began reviving their hopes of the team. The stunning defeat, 14 to 0, at the Forks yesterda had put the hopes down to about zero mark and the team needed some sort of tonic to revive interest. The hopes of the Crookston bleachers had hardly arisen however, before they were shot down again. In the next inning Spike Anderson for the Forks found one of Dorn's out twists and smashed the ball clear to the fence. Spike's worthy followers followed his lead with the stick. The following ten minutes, local fans would rather have a matter of history, not to be repeated. The Forkers went around the diamond like a merry go round and not a stop was made in their progress until six scores had been piled up, putting Crookston again in the rear. It was simply one long procession of hits, errors, stolen bases and scores.

Crookston in the next inning evened things up by scoring three times on errors and the excitement became intense as the seventh was played out and neither side scored with the score 7 to 8 in favor of the Forks. Vigorous rooting and unstinted loyalty to the home boys by the bleachers rattled Spanton and in the ninth Schlatter landed a pretty single to left field bringing in two men and winning the game. SLUGGING MATCH.

Orphans Win Heavy Hitting Game From Fargo.

Brainerd, June 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—St. Cloud-Brainerd took a slugging match from the Fargo team here yesterday by the score of 11 to 9. The Twins won the game in the seventh inning, when they hammered out eight runs, putting two pitchers to the bad. Berrigan started in to pitch, but he could not stand the terrible slaughter in the seventh and was replaced by Hanson, who managed to stem the tide after the game was lost. The game was witnessed by a good crowd of fans, who roared themselves hoarse over the sensational finish.

INTERESTING POINT RAISED

Suit Brought to Test Validity of a By-Law.

To test the validity of a by-law of the Union Mutual Insurance company, William Kaiser, a local real estate dealer, has brought suit against the concern in district court.

Mr. Kaiser demands damages in the amount of $120, and costs, on the ground of a disability extending over a period of six weeks for which he claims he is entitled to $20 a week under the provisions of a benefit policy which he carried with the company.

The by-law which will be tested is that compelling the members to report claims for benefit within ten days of the date of the claim. Mr. Kaiser alleges that on account of his disability and at the advice of his physician he resided for six weeks on his farm in Ohio, that he afterward returned to Duluth and put in his claim; but it was rejected on the ground that the limit for filing had expired.

Mr. Kaiser claims that when he took out a policy he was paying for protection against a disability, not for red tape. He maintains that the by-law is an unjust one and void, and that the directors of the company could have modified it.

F. H. Lounsberry is president of the Union Mutual Insurance company, which was incorporated in 1896. It has been in the accident insurance business collecting $1 per month from its members in premiums. The company has complied with the insurance laws of the state and during the last year, according to the report of the state insurance commissioner, 1,226 members joined while 1,210 policies lapsed. The benefit claims paid during the year exceeded the income by $611.25.

I. Grettum is attorney for Mr. Kaiser, and John Jenswold, Jr., has been retained by the insurance company.

Water and Light Commissioners Provide For Large Reservoir.

Chemical Analysis Shows Duluth Heights Well Water Wholesome.

By purchasing blocks 17, 18, 24 and 25 in Lloyd's addition to Duluth, the board of water and light commissioners has provided area for the construction of a shallow reservoir with a 10,000,000 gallon capacity without going to the extra expense of $10,000 in blasting rock for a deeper reservoir of lesser area. The four blocks have been purchased for $1,000. These, with the consent of the owners to vacate Huntington street and Sixty-fourth avenue west, will give a ground space of 461 by 551 feet.

The plans originally called for a 5,000,000 gallon reservoir at West Duluth, but in view of the fact that the cutting off of the water supply from the Lakewood pumping station might bring about a water famine, if prolonged for some days, the board decided to double the capacity of the proposed reserve reservoir.

The purchase of the four blocks was ordered by the board at a meeting held yesterday afternoon.

Bids were opened for the laying of 13,725 feet of gas mains in West Duluth under the guarantee of a six per cent income, made by the Zenith Furnace company. The contract was awarded to Pastoret & Lenz on a bid of 31 cents for 4-inch, and 35 cents for 6-inch mains. Other bids submitted ran from 44 to 50 cents.

Manager Case reported the Park Point guaranty for water and gas extension completed and the petitions approved by the city's legal department. The work of laying the mains across the government parks will begin within a week.

The board ordered water and gas mains in Eighth avenue east, from First to Second streets, subject to the approval of the city council.

Petitions were received by the board for a water and gas extension from Garfield avenue to the Imperial mill property and the mains were ordered, subject to the approval of the city council.

H. L. Russell, director of the Hygienic laboratory at Madison, Wis., to whom was submitted samples of the water taken from the wells on Duluth Heights, has sent a communication to the board in which he states that the water is satisfactory and wholesome and if kept free from surface contaminations will be adaptable for drinking purposes.

Manager Case was directed to re-lay the main in Railroad street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues west. The main froze and burst last winter.

INSANITY INCREASING

In Minnesota, According to Board of Control.

St. Paul, June 2.—Insanity is increasing rapidly in Minnesota, according to figures compiled by the state board of control. While the population of the state has increased 27 per cent in the last ten years, the number of inmates in the state hospital and insane asylums has increased 49 per cent.

No particular reason is assigned for this condition. It is thought, however, that immigration from European nations, the increase in industrial competition, and the fact that the older a state grows, the greater the mortality and the more susceptible the people become to disease of all kinds may have something to do with it.

In 1895 when the poulation of the state was 1,574,619, there were 2,781 in the state institutions for the insane. This meant that there was an insane person for every 566 persons in the state. There are now 4,000 inmates in the institutions for the insane and estimating that the population of the state is 2,000,000, it is found that there is one insane person for every 500 people.

MEDICAL EXAMINERS

Do Not Enforce Laws Against Quack Doctors.

St. Paul, June 2.—Gross negligence in not enforcing the laws against quack doctors was charged against the state board of medical examiners by Dr. Arthur Sweeney of St. Paul at the meeting of the state medical association yesterday.

Dr. Sweeney charged that the examiners make no attempt to prosecute fakir physicians. All the prosecutions that had been made, he said, had been made by the police or health boards.

The charges caused a sensation at the meeting and precipitated an animated discussion. Several physicians took issue with Dr. Sweeney's statements.

INSANITY WILL BE PLEA

Of Defense In Marshall County Murder Trial.

Crookston, Minn., June 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles C. Reeves of Bornson, Marshall county, accused of the murder of Nels Swanson upon his claim in Eastern Marshall county, will plead insanity as a defense at his trial which comes on in the June term of court at Warren.

Congressman Steenerson of this city, who has been engaged by Reeves to defend him from the charge of deliberately shooting a fellow farmer over a cattle dispute, has departed for Clarinda, Iowa, and other places where Reeves was known. At Clarinda Reeves was incarcerated in 1899 for insanity and after spending several months under treatment was released. Since coming north to live upon his homestead it is alleged that he has had several streaks of insanity and Mr. Steenerson hopes to prove at the trial of the case that he was not in his right mind on the day of the fatal shooting.

FARMER'S SKULL CRUSHED.

Hans Hanson Killed In a Runaway Accident.

McIntosh, Minn., June 2.—Hans Hanson, a farmer and auctioneer, vey well known in Polk county, living about two miles from McIntosh, was hauling a load of wood on his place on Wednesday afternoon when something became disarranged about the harness on the horses, and he walked out on the pole. One of the horses became frightened and pushed him off. When he went down the horses kicked him and ran away. The wagon passed over his head, crushing his skull. Hanson's hired man, who was a few rods away, hastened to his assistance, but found him dead.

DANAHER A FIGHTER.

County Commissioner of Beltrami Assaults a Man.

Bemidji, Minn., June 2.—Andy Danaher, chairman of the board of county commissioners of Beltrami county, and proprietor of a saloon at Tenstrike, yesterday assaulted J. F. Essler, agent of the Minneapolis Brewing company at Tenstrike. Essler was twice knocked down and was kicked in the ribs and badly used up.

Danaher disputed Essler's statement in regard to some beer cases, and struck him while he stood with his hands in his pockets. A warrant is out for Danaher's arrest.

This is the second assault committed by Danaher in two months, the first being upon another member of the board of county commissioners.

JOHN DIETZ STILL HOLDS THE DAM.

Ladysmith, Wis., June 2.—Drivers who were hired to bring down the logs held up by John Dietz at Cameron Dam arrived from the dam yesterday, having been discharged by the logging company. Apparently the effort to capture Dietz or get the logs down has been abandoned, as the drivers say all the officers have left the vicinity of the dam.

IS AGAIN HIGHER

Wheat Has Another Bulge With Northwest Again Leading.

Bullish Missouri Report, Higher Cables and Good Cash Demand.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 2.—Wheat again advanced today and it was the Northwest which led in the rise. A report of the Missouri crop condition lowering the condition given May 1 at 91 to 81 on June 1, was one of the strong bullish influences of the morning. The foreign markets were higher, too, Liverpool being up ⅜d, London ½d, Berlin and Budapest ½c higher, and Antwerp unchanged.

The cash demand is also strong. Duluth shippers today sold in the neighborhood of 250,000 bus. Of this, 225,000 bus was wheat of low grade, mostly No. 3. Higher grades were not taken very well, buyers seeming to think that they were held at too stiff prices. Owners of the wheat, however, are firm in the belief that the wheat will be needed soon and that buyers will have to come to their prices.

The July option in Duluth gained 1¼c, in Minneapolis 1½c, in Chicago ⅞-1c, in New York, ⅝-¾c and in St. Louis and Kansas City ⅜c. The September option in Duluth gained 1¼c, in Minneapolis 1⅛-1¼c, in Chicago ½c, in New York ⅝c, in St. Louis ⅝-⅞c and in Kansas City ¼-⅜c. In Winnipeg July gained 1⅛c and October was unchanged.

The Modern Miller said of winter wheat crop conditions:

"More unfavorable weather conditions including less moisture and more warmth has been a beneficial effect on the winter wheat crop in sections where the growth of the plant had been backward on account of the low temperatures which had prevailed for some time. No serious damage indicated where rust has been prevalent and there is little evidence of it. The harmful effects of unfavorable weather only are more evident in localities where deterioration has been previously reported. The general condition of the crop was materially reduced during May in Texas, the territories, and in the soft winter wheat sections of Kansas and in Missouri and Tennessee. Harvest has commenced in the Southern states and is advancing rapidly northward."

Car receipts in Duluth were 4 against 4 last year, and at Minneapolis 157 against 195 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 161 against 199 last year. Chicago received 3 against 7 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 260,048 bus, last year 368,256 bus. Shipments 151,547 bus, last year 662,797 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 54,000 bus.

Argentine shipments of wheat this week amount to 2,736,000 bus, against 1,288,000 bus last week and 1,592,000 bus last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¾d higher. In the Chicago market July corn closed ⅛c higher. July oats closed ⅛c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 540,232 bus, last year 596,280 bus. Shipments 404,153 bus, last year 455,300 bus. Clearances of corn were 11,609 bus. Argentine shipments of corn this week aggregate 2,424,000 bus, against 1,490,000 bus last week and 2,066,000 bus last year.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was very dull, the only thing doing at all being in the old September option. The July option opened ¾c higher at $1.13½ bid and advanced to $1.14¼ at 10:10 and after holding there until almost the close when it sold at $1.14½. The close was at $1.14, an advance of 1¼c.

The active dealing of the day was in the old September option. It opened ⅝c higher at 85½c, and advanced to 86¼c, closing there, a gain for the day of 1⅝c. The new September opened ½c higher at 81¾c and advanced to 82c, closing there, a gain of 1¼c.

Flax was very dull. The September option was up 1c to $1.31 and closed at $.30½. The October closed at its high point $1.29, a gain of ¾c for the day. The July option advanced 1c. Argentine shipments of flax this week were 992,000 bus., against 326,000 bus. last week and 680,000 bus. last year.

Oats declined ¼c.

Following are the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Low Crop Report From Missouri Strengthens Wheat.

Chicago, June 2.—Falling off of 10 points in the condition of the wheat crop of Missouri during the month of May, as shown by the state report, had a strengthening effect on wheat here today. A further advance at Minneapolis gave additional strength. Commission houses were fairly active bidders for both July and September, but offerings were not large. July opened a shade to ¼@⅜c higher at 88⅝ to 88¾. After advancing to 89⅛c, the price reacted to 88¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 164 cars against 229 cars last week and 206 cars a year ago.

Later the market became quite nervous, with considerable tendency shown towards profit-taking. July sold off to 88⅜c and then rallied again to 89⅜c. The market closed firm, with july up ¾@⅞c at 89c.

Sentiment in corn was inclined to bullishness. The main factors were higher cables and smaller receipts. Shorts were good buyers. July opened unchanged to ¼c up at 50⅝c to 50¾c and sold up to 50⅞c. Realizing sales caused a reaction to 50⅛@50⅜c. Local receipts were 159 cars, with 70 of contract grade.

After touching 50¾c, July then advanced again, reports of excessive rains having a bullish effect. The market closed firm, with July up ¼c at 50⅝c.

In sympathy with other grains, the tone of the oats market was steady. July opened ⅛c higher at 30⅜c, and for a time held around 30⅝c. Local receipts were 115 cars.

Provisions were firm owing to a 5c advance in the price of live hogs. July pork was up 5c at $12.62½. Lard was up 2½c at $7.35. Ribs were 2½@5c higher at $7.35.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—This has been an extremely nervous market, but withal a very strong one. A bearish construction was put on the Modern Miller and Snow's report, gave courage to the bear element but it was very noticeable that no one seemed over anxious to get very far from shore. Trade has been quite brisk and on the whole speculative conditions seem unchanged. The Northwest markets while strong were not nearly as sensational as yesterday. Southwest markets continue to run along in a conservative manner, showing but little change. The market acts well, showing considerable snap and rallies easily from each little depression. We feel would still buy wheat on the setbacks.

Corn—This market opened strong and for a time the short interest were active buyers. The subsequent easing off seemed due to profit taking. The weather while not being all that could be desired shows some improvement. Crop experts figure that more replanting will be necessary than generally expected by the trade. Sentiment in this market is all bullish, shorts are timid and inclined to cover on every little recession. This naturally creates a demand giving to the market a very strong appearance. We doubt if the legitimate situation at the moment warrants present prices.

Oats—Very little change can be noted in this market. The little shipping demand helped sentiment somewhat but traders corn pits. On pronounced strength we as a rule are attracted to the wheat and would favor selling the futures for a moderate turn.

Edwards, Wood & Co.: Wheat—Snow's report makes conditions of winter wheat 2.3 less than on May 1, with the decrease confined to the Southwest states. A loss is noted of 12 points for Texas, Missouri, Oklahoma 7, and Kansas 5. The decrease is less than usual for the month of May and April yields is indicated. The Missouri state crop report estimates the yield 36,000,000, which is 9,000,000 more than in 1904 and 22,000,000 more than in 1903. Wheat cutting has been started in some sections of Texas and Tennessee, and will soon be under way in other states as well, including California. It is also well to keep in mind that June is the harvest month for a large part of the world. Pending the result of the harvest good scalping market changes can be expected.

* * *

Chicago Inter Ocean: Instead of the shipping demand for corn, falling off as some expected after the May deal was over, a good inquiry existed yesterday and it developed that eastern exporters were short to the other side and were anxious to buy. In the sample market prices were advanced 1 to 2 cents on an unexpected demand from the East and from local industries and a material falling off in the offerings here and in the country.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Ragged Opening Was Followed By Strength and Activity.

Heavy Buying of Reading Was the Principal Feature.

New York, June 2.—The dropping tendency of foreign markets today helped to make the weak opening in the stock market here. Selling was general throughout the list and losses ran to a point or more in St. Paul, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, New York Central, O. & W., United States Steel preferred, Smelting and Colorado Fuel.

Supporting orders were effectual only in steadying the list for a time, the increasing offerings eventually sweeping away all opposition to a decline. As on yesterday, the weakness was most manifest in the Northwestern grain carriers. St. Paul, Northern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred and American Smelting declined 2@2¾ and Union Pacific 1¾. Fully two dozen other leading stocks comprising the groups lost from 1 to 1½. United States Steel preferred sold at 91.

The market rallied with vigor and there was a large absorption of some special stocks. Union Pacific recovered 1¾ and St. Paul, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Reading, Amalgamated Copper, Smelting, Brooklyn Transit and Metropolitan Street Railway a point. The recoveries were not fully held. Illinois Central declined 2⅛. Bonds were irregular at noon.

A comparison of the prices ruling at 1 o'clock with those of the previous close showed little variation. The energetic selling of the early hours having been entirely counterbalanced by the latter demand. Reading and Copper were quoted at ⅝ and ¾ respectively over last night. Great Northern preferred 3 and Lackawanna 4½.

Reading increased its gain to 2 points and Union Pacific, Copper and Metropolitan to 1¾ and the general list averaged a small fraction over yesterday's closing. Business was much smaller in volume than during the selling movement. Delaware & Hudson made a good rally after losing 2¾.

The falling off in demand at the higher level allowed prices to slip back, and St. Paul, Union Pacific and Copper reacted nearly a point. Reading was then marked up again to above 95, with steadying effect on the list. Atlantic Coast Line gained 1. The closing was dull and unsteady.

Quotations furnished by Edwards-Wood Co., room A, Torrey building.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The opening was very ragged and for a time the market withstood heavy selling. The recovery was brought about altogether through short covering induced by the government cotton report and better crop prospects. The general stock market conditions seem unchanged. The advance today was a drive against the shorts, and advantage was taken of the advance and some reaction was scored, but the close was strong.

* * *

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was very irregular, but in the afternoon became strong and active. There was bidding up by traders and shorts were ftrced to cover. All the active list was advanced and the heavy buying of Reading was the feature. The close was steady and at nearly the best.

* * *

Gates & Co. to Baker: It is reported from Pittsburg that the steel billet pool will be dissolved and this is accompanied by a re port that consumers are offering to place orders at prices something under the pool level.

* * *

McIntyre to Paine, Webber & Co.: The situation and outlook for the stock market is in favor of lower prices from the bad effect on general sentiment of the unsavory disclosures in connection with the affairs of the Equitabe Life company and the developments of renewed weakness in the foreign markets. We would advise a more conservative attitude and think purchases can be made to better advantage next week. In the meantime we would not be surprised to see a slump of severa points in the general list.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 2.—The cotton market opened weak at a decline of 8 to 23 points under active selling for both accounts promoted by good weather in the South, lower cables and continued expectations of a less bullish monthly crop report by the government at midday than had been expected. There was heavy covering at the decline and the market rallied to a net loss of about 10 to 14 points, following which it ruled very nervous and irregular.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 25 points lower. Middling up lands, 8.50; do. gulf, 8.75. Sales 1,350 bales. Futures closed steady; June, 7.91; July, 8.01; August, 8.04; September, 8.05; October, 8.12; November, 8.16; December, 8.22; January, 8.25; February, 8.28; March, 8.33.

COTTON ACREAGE DECREASED.

Washington, June 2.—A cotton crop bulletin issued by the department of agriculture today shows that the acreage for the entire belt has decreased 11.4 per cent. The average condition is given as 77.2.

MAY SQUEEZE NOT CORNER

Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce Renders Important Decision.

Minneapolis, June 2.—A committee of the Minneapolis chamber of commerce today, after hearing evidence, decided that the squeeze in May wheat was not a corner, and that the three Milwaukee firms that had defaulted on payment, appealing to the anti-corner rule of the chamber, would have to settle at the closing price of $1.27¼. The firms have acquiesced.

This is a matter of much interest to Duluth grain men. The May deal went out in this market with some contracts still unsettled and in default. No appeal to the anti-corner rule has been made as yet, and it is not likely that any will be made, now that Minneapolis has decided this way, for if there was no corner in Minneapolis at $1.27¼, it could hardly be claimed that there was one in Duluth at $1.25, which was the closing price here.

NEGRO MURDERER HANGED.

Albany, Ga., June 2.—Peter Thomas, the negro murderer of Marshal John Manire of Pretoria, a small town near here, was hanged today.

HEAD OF NEW ORLEANS POLICE IS DISMISSED.

New Orleans, June 2.—Inspector John Journee, head of the police department, was today dismissed from the service as a result of an investigation of charges filed against him. At the trial, Ike Slumsky testified to the existence of a club, supported by tederloin interests, which paid $200 a month to the police for protection.

At the conclusion of the testimony the board declared Journee guilty of incompetency, and dismissed him from the force. Former Recorder E. S. Whitaker will be elected in his place.

BALLMEN ENJOINED.

Court Will Hear Case of Manager McGraw.

Boston, June 2.—A bill in equity against President Harry C. Pulliam and the various umpires of the National League of Baseball Teams, was filed in the superior court here today, by John J. McGraw, playing manager of the New York team of the National league, in which the latter seeks to have defendenats enjoined from imposing a fine on him for alleged misconduct and preventing him from acting as manager of his team on the field. Justice Sheldon issued an order of notice returnable on Monday and a hearing will be held.

DIVORCE SUIT

In Joplin, Missouri, In Which the Word "Damn" Figured.

Martin Luther Quoted as Having Used the Expletive.

Joplin, Mo., June 2.—In a burst of righteous indignation Martin Luther once referred to a contentious preacher as a damned heretic. The forcible expression as used by the great reformer is conceded to be not a profane expletive but rather an honest expression of the reformer's honest opinion in a special case. The preacher really believed that the other preacher was what he said he was, a damned heretic, that he was condemned because of his religious beliefs.

Testimony which was introduced in a divorce proceeding in Judge Dabbs' division of the circuit court led to an animated discussion on the part of the lawyers with "Profanity" as a theme. It was during the taking of testimony in the case of John L. Porter against Laura L. Porter that the defendant, Laura Porter, admitted having made use of the objectionable expression in the presence of her husband.

Mrs. Porter, the defendant, in the divorce proceeding, filed a cross-bill in which she avers that she is the innocent and aggrieved party and prays that the divorce be granted on her cross-bill rather than on the husband's petition. She is a woman of culture and refinement, exceedingly frail in physical strength. After the husband a carpenter, who lives in the city, had detailed on the witness stand the circumstances of their married life, and had led the court to the consideration of a case in which he had been reviled and sworn at and had been a target for dishes and other household utensils; had been shot at and attacked with a "billy," the gentle-voiced woman went upon the witness stand. Her story was different from that told by the plaintiff in almost every particular. She admitted having shot to frighten her husband at a time when he was disturbing her in a home which she said he had abandoned. She denied, however, that she had shot with the intention of hitting her husband, and that if she had intended to hit him she could have done so.

John L. Porter as a witness, in his own behalf had exhibited a rent in his coat which he represented had been made by a bullet fired by Mrs. Porter when she was angry. The transactions complained of all occurred in St. Louis, where Mrs. Porter yet lives.

Mrs. Porter recited an incident which she said, occurred in the World's fair city, when her husband tantalized her for two hours and then expressed a wish that she could be as fresh as an actress he had met at the fair. At that time the woman admitted having said that her husband made her so damned mad that she couldn't help saying the word.

This expression on the part of the woman made desperate by reason of her outraged feelings and affections led to the animated discussion on the part of the lawyers. It generally was conceded that if Mrs. Porter made use of the language in the same sense as did Martin Luther it became classical and that otherwise it constituted profanity of a mild order under great provocation. The fact that Mrs. Porter was preparing to attend church on a Sunday morning when the language was used was a mitigating circumstance in her favor and lent weight to the suggestion that she may have used the term in its classical sense.

At the conclusion of the introduction of testimony Judge Dabbs refused to grant a decree either on the petition of the plaintiff or on the cross-bill of the wife, holding, in effect, that both had been guilty of conduct unbecoming a husband or wife, and that neither had been free from blame in the tempestuous life they led together. The court proceeded to give the vindictive couple some very good advice, suggesting that they forget and forgive and endeavor again to live together in harmony.

Mrs. Porter expressed a willingness to do this if she could be assured that her husband could love her only, or even if he could care more for her than for anyone else. It was evident that she had been haunted by a fear that his affections had gone from her, and the monster of jealousy had preyed upon her at the knowledge of a correspondence which, she said, her husband had carried on with a woman many years younger than he. The contestants are aboue 40 years old. In speaking of her willingness to again live with her husband, she said: "Yes, he was the father of the babe that died, and it seems to me that the right way for us to live would be to live together, if it could be so."

The husband remained defiant and refused to condone the past offenses of the wife. Nevertheless, Judge Dabbs left the unhappy couple married, suggesting that if they desired a legal separation they should return to St. Louis, which had been their home during all the years they lived together and continue the proceedings there, where the husband formerly had commenced a proceeding for divorce which was abandoned on the appearance of the wife as a contestant of the action in the courts.

BANKER BEATEN

Because He Refused to Sign Certain Papers.

Pittsburg, June 2.—A New York banker was badly beaten in a room in the Hotel Griswold here Wednesday night. He was arrested with his assistants, but was quickly bailed out by President John Harper of the Bank of Pittsburg. The name given the police by the New York banker is "George Smith."

The banker is well known to President Harper, who said plainly the name given was not the proper name of the New York man.

"Smith came to the hotel by appointment with R. L. Brown, a mining engineer of New York; F. J. Saunders of Alaska, and J. H. Ralelgh of Pittsburg," said Mr. Harper. "They were discussing some mining proposition, when, according to the New York banker, Brown and Saunders demanded of him that he sign certain papers, which he refused to do, and they at once pounced on him and beat him."

EQUITABLE OFFICERS TO FORGET ALL DIFFERENCES

President Alexander and Vice President Hyde Get Together.

Agree to Attend to Life Insurance and Let Wall Street Alone.

Report of Frick Committee Censures Society's Managers.

New York, June 3.—James W. Alexander and James H. Hyde, president and first vice president of the Equitable Life Assurance society met today and it is understood decided to forget their differences and to act together hereafter in Equitable affairs. The basis of their agreement is said to have been that they would now attend to life insurance alone and keep Wall street out of the affairs of the society. The two men were in conference with certain of their friends and advisers for over two hours.

After the Hyde-Alexander conference, it was reported that they had agreed upon Robert T. Lincoln, as the man best fitted to assume the chairmanship of the board of directors. Confirmation of this report was not obtainable.

New York, June 3.—Not since the great Northern Pacific corner of four years ago has there been so much excitement in financial circles as exists today as a result of yesterday's developments in the Equitable Life Assurance society's affairs. A stirring contest for control had been expected, but the vehement debate in the directors' meeting, the bitter character of the defense made by James H. Hyde and the resignations of Messrs. Frick, Harriman and Bliss from the society's directorate have created a sensation wholly unforeseen and indicating a new alignment of the forces in high finance astonishing the general public.

According to the Herald, Mr. Frick, in handing in his resignation said he never again would sit as director in any corporation of which Mr. Hyde was also a director. The charge made by Mr. Hyde that an effort had been made by Mr. Harriman to take control of the society away from him was pointed to in connection with reports circulated last night that one reason for attacking Mr. Hyde was that he was friendly with George J. Gould and that other interests desired to prevent Mr. Gould from obtaining any assistance from Equitable funds in extending his railroard lines westward to the Pacific coast and eastward to the Atantic. According to these reports the Union Pacific and Pennsylvania railroad interests and Mr. Frick joined together to oppose Gould. Mr. Gould was one who attended the conference in Mr. Hyde's office yesterday and considerable surprise was expressed when it was found that Mr. Harriman, who up to that time had been counted upon as a Hyde supporter was not present at the conference. A semi-official statement was made today that Mr. Gould expects to have his lines finished to San Francisco bay before June 1, 1907.

What Wall street and the general public discussed with most interest today, was the question as to what is to be the next step taken. The selection of the new chairman of the board of directors, who is to be named by a committee within the next few days, is awaited with great interest. The premise has been made that he is to be a man of national reputation for business ability and probity and to him is to be entrusted the task of enforcing economies and making such other changes as may be deemed necessary to correct the present business methods of the society. It is expected that the chairman will be elected by the board at its meeting next Wednesday. Another point of absorbing interest was the plan to be purssued to take over Mr. Hyde's majority holding of stock, through which

THREE RUSSIAN CRUISERS LIMP INTO MANILA HARBOR

THE AURORA, OLEG AND THE JEMTCHUG

Were Escorted to Port By the United States Asiatic Fleet.

Ships Badly Damaged and There Were Many Wounded Aboard.

Can Only Remain Twenty-Four Hours If They Are Seaworthy.

Manila, June 3.—Rear Admiral Enquist, who was commander of the heavy cruiser squadron of the Russian fleet, arrived in the bay at 9 o'clock this evening on board his flagship, the protected cruiser Aurora, accompanied by the protected cruisers Oleg and Jemtchug. All the vessels were more or less damaged, and there were many wounded men on board. Rear Admiral Train, on board his flagship, the battleship Ohio, with the Wisconsin, Oregon, Raleigh and Cincinnati, was outside Corregidor Island maneuvering, when the Aurora saluted with thirteen guns, and the Ohio answered.

Washington, June 3.—The navy department today received a cablegram from Vice Admiral Train, dated Manila, stating that while cruising off Lingayen gulf, this morning, he sighted three Russian vessels, the Aurora, Oleg and Jemtchug, close in shore. He said he found many wounded on board, and escorted the vessels to Manila. The admiral added that he will send further particulars later. This cablegram was received at the navy department shortly after the Associated Press dispatch from Manila, and was transmitted by Admiral Converse, chief of the bureau of navigation, to Secretary Morton at his home.

Earlier in the day Admiral Train had cabled the navy department that several warships, supposed to be Russians, had been seen maneuvering off the coast of Luzon. He further reported that he had started at once with some of the vessels of his fleet for the port of Sual, about 120 miles to the northward of Manila, on the gulf of Lingayen, to investigate.

Admiral Train's dispatch was sent to the White House by Secretary Morton, where it was discussed by the president and Secretary Taft. It is said that the Russian vessels will be treated precisely as were those which arrived in the Chinese ports during the earlier stages of the war, namely, they will be allowed to remain twenty-four hours, if undamaged and seaworthy. Otherwise, they may make absolutely necessary repairs, or lastly, they may be interned until the end of the war. It is expected here that the latter course will be followed. Instructions will be cabled Admiral Train this afternoon.

EXECUTION OF ADMIRAL

Threatened In Case of Danger of Recapture.

Tokio June 3.—Torpedo boat destroyers which have returned to Sasebo furnish details of the capture of Vice Admiral Rojestvensky. The destroyers Kasumi, Usugumo, Sazanami and Kagerou were ordered to attack the Russian warships the night of May 27 and were steaming ahead when they suddenly encountered a number of Russian ships. The Kasumi narrowly avoided a collision with a Russian cruiser, the closeness of which seems to have saved the destroyers from being damaged by the heavy fire which the Russians directed to them. During the Russian attack the vessels forming the destroyer flotilla divided. The Sazanami and Kagerou continued the search for Russian ships throughout the night and in the morning discovered two torpedo boat destroyers. One of them steamed away, but the other was unable to do so. On approaching the latter the Japanese discerned a white flag flying from the foremast and the Red ross flag astern. She proved to be the Bedovi with Admiral Rojestvensky and his staff on board. The Bedovi signalled that her engines were damaged and that she was short of coal and water. An armed guard was sent on board the Bedovi to receive her surrender. The Russians requested the Japanese not to remove Admiral Rojestvensky and the other officers on account of their wounds and the Japanese complied, with the understanding that the guard would execute Rojestvensky in the event of the delay leading to a meeting with Russian ships thus running the danger of his recapture. The Sazanami ran a line to the Bedovi and began towing her. The line parted twice. In the morning the Sazanami met the Japanese cruiser Akashi which convoyed the two destroyers

THE FUTURE EMPRESS OF GERMANY IS AT BERLIN

Duchess Cecilia Arrives For Her Marriage to Crown Prince.

Eighteen-Year-Old Girl Welcomed In Most Elaborate Manner.

Grand Procession Witnessed By Representatives of World Rulers.

Berlin, June 3.—The business of the government paused and a million or so of persons took a half holiday today to welcome an 18-year-old girl who sometime, most probably, will be the German empress. Her way was rose strewn, choirs of children sang her a greeting, the old guilds with the emblems of their trades lined the route, artillery sounded dully in an immensity of cheering while at the end of her progress through the people the imperial family and all the great personages of state joined with the emperor and the Crown Prince Frederick William, in receiving her at the palace. The day was brilliant and the whole spectacle was effectively staged.

The Duchess Cecilia of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who in her full title is also Princess of the Wends arrived from Schwerin at noon with her mother, the Grand Duchess Anastasia, her brother, Frederick Francis, the reigning grand duke of a Mechlenburg-Schwerin, his wife and a numerous folowing.

The emperor, empress and crown prince, the latter's five brothers and the little Princess Victoria met the party at the railroad station and breakfasted with them in the Chateau Bellevue situated in the garden about two miles from the imperial palace. There the Duchess Cecilia rested with the empress while the others went to the palace.

The procession began forming between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon on the wide space fronting the chateau and then moved through the Tiergarten to the Brandenburger gate, the boundary of the old city.

Forty mounted postmen in accord with old custom rode in advance followed by one hundred mounted master butchers in evening suits and opera hats. Most of them were men of ample figure. The master butchers hold a patent from 1666 guaranteeing them this privilege.

Twenty mounted trumpeters, preceded by a squadron of the first dragoons of the guard, in light blue tunics and wearing black helmets and three six-horse court equipages followed. These vehicles were driven by postillions and were occupied by the gentlemen-in-waiting of the empress and the future crown princess. They were separated by half a squadron of the Garde Du corps from an eight horse state carriage containing the Duchess Cecilia sitting on the right of the empress. The duchess' mistress of the robes, the Baroness Von Tiele-Winekler, was seated opposite them.

The young duchess wore an evening dress of pink silk muslin cut decollete and trimmed with lace. The skirt which was embroidered with loose roses had a deep flounce of point d'angletere lace. The duchess' shoulders were covered with a light pink mantle of voile silk beneath which as it fell apart in front a flash of jewels could be seen. She wore a tiara of diamonds in her hair. The richly gilded carriage, in which the duchess sat composedly although flushed with the emotions of the hour, was an odd looking piece of workmanship new in the year 1793 when the future queen Louise of Prussia, then a girl of 17, made her state entry into the city through the same gate.

In advance of the equipage walked two tall grooms in blue and gold and beside each of the eight black horses was a groom in scarlet livery. The harness was of silver and fastened to the horses' heads were plumes of black and white ostrich feathers. Altogether the observers of the royal luxury and display were satisfied. On the right of the duchess' carriage rode the master of the horse, Count Von Wedel, and on the left the governor of Berlin, Gen. Von Sahnke.

PHILADELPHIA STOCKS MAKE A BAD BREAK

Rapid Declines on the Exchange Due to Political Conditions.

Philadelphia, June 3.—As a result of the changed political conditions in this city, and the fear of unfriendly moves against the local street railway and gas companies, there has been a bad break in stock of these concerns on the Philadelphia exchange. Today United Gas improvement, which two weeks ago was quoted around 118, and which had previously sold up to 125⅝, dropped from 95¼, yesterday's close, to 92. The advance to 125⅜ was on buying by investors and speculators, who believed the stock would be much more valuable after the new lease of the city gas works had been consummated. The failure of this deal caused heavy selling, culminating in a decline of nearly $10 a share yesterday and today. Other stocks which suffered were Philadelphia Rapid Transit and Union Traction, the companies which own the street railway lines. The former dropped to 26 today, a decline of 6 points within a week, and the latter to 58½, as against 62¾ last Saturday. There were especial declines in both stocks today, due probably to an announcement by a reform councilman that he will introduce, at the next meeting of the council, an ordinance calling for 3-cent fares, and the placing of trolley wires underground. Coupled with this announcement is the declaration that Mayor Weaver favors such legislation. Another local utility company stock to decline is that of the Philadelphia Electric company, which sold at $8 a share today, compared with $12 recently. This company has a monopoly of the electric lighting privileges, and there has recently been talk of depriving it of its valuable contracts for city street lighting.

PROPOSE NEW PLAN TO SETTLE STRIKE

Teamsters Appoint a Committee to Confer With Merchants.

Chicago, June 3.—Negotiations along new lines for settlement of the teamsters' strike were under way today. A committee of five appointed by the teamsters' joint council with full power to effect a peace compact with the department stores awaited the appointment of a similar committee to act for the merchants. Edward Hillman a State street merchant, undertook to secure the appointment of the employers' committee. The representatives of the teamsters were Edward Mullen, business agent of the lumber drivers, John Smyth, president of the coal teamsters; Peter Reilly of the department store delivery drivers; Jeremiah McCarthy, business agent of the truck drivers, and L. McArthur of the railway express drivers. The teamsters committee was appointed after the proposition had been fully considered by the joint council. The committee planned to ignore the express companies, if the Employers' association will agree to entertain such arrangements. The committees were to get together this afternoon if possible. President Shea of the Teamsters' union, denied any knowledge of the new plan of settlement.

Teamsters of the Parmlee Transfer company, who had threatened to strike because they had been refused an increased scale of wages have decided not to strike. Out of 400 drivers fewer than fifty were in favor of a strike.

The Associated Building trades, at a meeting, has refused to rescind its action of a week ago in refusing to give moral or financial aid to the striking teamsters. It has been paying $1,000 a week.

Team owners are hesitating about forcing deliveries to strike-bound houses, pending action on the matter by the Truck Drivers' union, to whom the question has been referred by the teamsters' joint council, following a conference between team owners and teamsters in Mayor Dunn's office. A special meeting of the Truck Drivers' union to vote on the question will be held Tuesday night, and until that time the matter will stand as it is now.

UNCLE SAM—Now, let me see how far you have advanced in the multiplication table.

RUSSIANS MANIFEST MUCH SATISFACTION

Over the Expressions of the President Concerning Peace.

St. Petersburg, June 3, 3 p. m.—The cabled reports of President Roosevelt's conversation with Ambassador Cassini at Washington yesterday, implying that the president had practically tendered his good offices to Russia, created quite a sensation in diplomatic circles here. While the idea that the president has taken such a step aroused surprise in some quarters, it was received with unconcealed satisfaction in the belief tht it would hasten the decision of Emperor Nicholas, the European powers being, it is pointed out, no matter how ardently they desire the conclusion of peace, more or less embarrassed. There is good reason to believe, however, that the reports did not correctly state the president's attitude. He had already made known to the emperor in a personal message conveyed to him by Ambassador Meyer at his presentation audience his willingness and desire to promote the cause of peace and his conversation with Count Cassini yesterday is believed to have been in the nature, perhaps, of a stronger reiteration of his receptive attitude without in any sense being a formal tender of his good offices which might subject him to a rebuff. Count Cassini's report of the conversation has been cabled to Foreign Minister Lamsdorff, by whom it will be laid before the emperor.

Practically the message has the moral support of all the great European powers, headed by Russia's ally, France, which have conveyed in the most delicate manner possible, an intimation of their convictions of the futility of a further continuance of the struggle. Emperor William is understood to have conveyed such information through Grand Duke Michael who arrived in Berlin yesterday and Foreign Secretary Landsdowne in behalf of King Edward is reported to have conveyed Great Britain's views through Ambassador Benkendorff. Emperor Nicholas' ministers, as previously stated in these dispatches, with two exceptions, are earnestly in favor of peace but the emperor himself has not yet bowed his head.

The cabled statement that Ambassador Meyer has received fresh instructions embodying President Roosevelt's views along the line of the reported conversation with Count Cassini for presentation to Foreign Minister Lamsdorff is incorrect.

LITTLE GIRL BURNED TO DEATH

Hibbing, Minn., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Kelley Lake, near here, adds another to the large number of children of tender years burned to death through playing with fire. Edna, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Savage of that place, is the victim. Yesterday afternoon she got hold of some matches, went out into the dry grass, near the house, and set fire to it. It blazed up quickly, and her clothing took fire. Instantly the child was enveloped in flames from head to foot, and her shrieks brought help, but almost before she could be reached she was dead, evidently having inhaled flames. Savage is a car repairer, in the employ of the Great Northern railroad.

Longest Passenger and Freight Steamer on Fresh Water.

The new passenger steamer Juniata, of the Anchor line, which is in port for the first time, is a sister ship to the Tionesta another steamer of the same palatial class. The Juniata is 368 feet in length, which is 28 feet longer than the Tionesta, but otherwise her dimensions are the same, being 45 feet beam and 28 feet in depth. From her keel to her sun deck she is 85 feet deep. She is 10 feet longer than the North West or North Land of the Northern Steamship company's line, one foot wider and five feet deeper.

The Juniata has six more parlor state rooms than the Tionesta and has a better kitchen and equipment. She is right down-to-the-second in type and is one of the most beautiful craft afloat on the lakes. She was built by the American Shipbuilding company of Cleveland and was finished April 10 of this year. She has made one or two trips in Lake Erie between Buffalo and Cleveland, but this is her first inter-lake trip. She is fitted with eight life boats made of steel, each having a capacity of thirty people and besides this and her life preservers, has two life rafts of large capacity.

Both she and the Tionesta are equipped with rolling fins on the bottom of the hull which prevent rolling. They are the only steamers on fresh water having such protection. The ocean greyhounds have these fins which have proven very successful.

The boat has 2,650 horse-power engines, has freight carrying capacity of 3,500 tons and can accommodate 2,500 passengers. Her crew numbers 125 persons.

The master of the boat, Capt. Edward Martin, is commodore of the Anchor line fleet, and sailed the Tionesta last year. He is well known here and is a mariner of long experience and well known courtesy.

The Juniata has probably the most magnificent decorations of any craft afloat. The ceilings of the first-class state rooms and the panels of the saloons are all hand painted and the work is so perfectly done that one can almost smell the flowers. In the lobby of the dining room are two magnificent paintings representing evening and morning. The interior of the Juniata, otherwise, is much the same as that of the Tionesta, the saloon deck being finished in mahogany and the lower deck with quartered oak.

CORN MOVING FREELY.

Chicago, June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Vesselmen who had boats to charter for grain, had no trouble placing them today at a cent a bushel on corn. The firm owning most of the corn in Chicago elevators as the result of the late cold, is moving it freely, and a big business is anticipated for the coming week. About 500,000 bushels of vessel-room was taken today. This start in grain trade comes in handy, while vesselmen are fighting with shippers at Cleveland over coal rates, and materially strengthens the transportation.

Court Commissioner Busy.

C. E. Adams, who was recently appointed court commissioner for St. Louis county, has already performed several official acts. The first was to commit an insane man to the state asylum, in the absence of the probate judge, and the second was performed this morning when he tied a first-class matrimonial knot in the case of Edward C. Preston and Miss Agnes McDermott, both the bride and the groom hailing from across the bay. This marriage is claimed to be the only one made by a court commissioner in St. Louis county, within the recollection of any attaches of the district clerk's office, where all the marriage returns are made.

Gets Big Timbers.

The Duluth Lumber company received from the West coast, today, by rail some big fir timbers that are considerable of a curosity to people residing in this part of the country. There are 12 sticks of timber 52 and 60 feet long and 28 inches square on each end. The timber figured out into lumber would make 25,000 feet. The big timbers were ordered by the local lumber company for the Manitowoc Dry Dock company and will continue their all rail journey to that place next week.

Tennis Club Elects Harry Lanners President and Organizes.

Blast Furnace Will Resume Operations In Two Weeks.

The item in the News Tribune this morning concerning the meeting of the West Duluth Tennis club was erroneous in regard to the officers elected. Instead of L. A. Barnes being elected, Harry W. Lanners was chosen for president and Mason Forbes was elected secretary-treasurer instead of H. Forbes.

About twenty prospective members of the club gathered at Mr. Barnes' office and organized for the season. A committee consisting of Rev. Arthur J. Hoag, Rev. W. J. Lowrie and Mr. Sopher, was appointed to look up grounds, the cost of fixing the same and other details and arrangements. This committee will report at a meeting to be held Monday night at which time definite plans for the season will be made and the work proceed.

It is planned at this time to secure the site formerly occupied by the old rink at Fifty-first and Ramsey and if this is done three clay courts will be put in and one grass court for ladies. There is great enthusiasm among the tennis adherents in West Duluth and a number of tournaments will be held this summer if the affair pans out.

REPAIRING RAPIDLY.

Blast Furnace Being Relined Ready For Work.

The work of relining the blast furnace with brick is proceeding rapidly at this time and it is expected that the work of the furnace will be resumed in about two weeks. It will be remembered that it burned out a week ago tonight. It was simply a case, the officers of the furnace say, that the furnace was about played out and its time for burning out had come. The new lining will vastly improve the furnace and facilitate the work to be done there.

The work on the tar paper plant is progressing rapidly also. The walls are about finished and the roof will be put on next week.

ALMOST FATAL.

Girl Falls Seven Feet, Striking Her Head.

The 12-year-old daughter of C. A. Stoller of Grand avenue and Fifty-fourth had a narrow escape from death yesterday noon. When coming out of the Longfellow school she slipped in some way and fell from the steps to the ground, a distance of about seven feet. She alighted on her head and it is considered nothing short of miraculous that she did not break her neck.

The fall rendered her unconscious and in spite of medical efforts she remained so from about 11 o'clock in the morning until after 4 o'clock in the afternoon. This morning she is feeling fairly well, however and suffers only from soreness of the muscles.

DEPEW TALKS OF MEETING

Says That the Frick Report Could Not Be Adopted.

New York, June 3.—Senator Chauncey M. Depew made an extended statement today regarding yesterday's meeting of the Equitable Life Assurance society. He said:

"The adoption of the report of the Frick investigating committee would have meant that every member who voted for it subscribed to everything that was in it. Its adoption was impossible, in view of its attacking the deferred dividend system, under which 90 per cent of the society's local policies, aggregating $1,500,000,000, have been written. After the answers of the officers of the society had been made I don't think anyone in the meeting agreed to that."

"What caused the resignations of Messrs. Frick, Harriman and Bliss?"

"Those resignations were the result of many other things than the failure to adopt the report."

"Will there be other resignations?"

"I don't think so."

"Was the report a just one?"

"I won't criticise the committee. It was a hard job they had in hand."

"Will the resignations have a bad effect on the society?"

"That you never can tell. There are a great many distinguished men left."

The statement that Mr. Hyde will relinquish his stock meant, Mr. Depew said, either a sale or a trusteeship of the stock. It was on the lines of the society passing into the hands of the policy holders he explained. "Of course," remarked Mr. Depew, "under the circumstances Mr. Hyde's stock is a valuable asset."

Mr. Depew went on to tell something about the meeting. He said: "When the officers made their defense, the impression was that while they might have been guilty of indiscretion, the society had lost no money, but on the contrary, it had made a great deal of money. In other words, it had gained more in the five years that the report covered than it had made during the previous ten years. It had added in this time $50,000,000 in outstanding insurance, while it had taken forty years previously to get $1,000,000,000.

"It has increased its assets in those five years about $120,000,000 and had increased its surplus between $16,000,000 and $20,000,000. The directors knew that these results were evidences of extraordinary abilities on the part of officers who were attacked. To punish men who accomplished such results by dismissing them, would be too harsh, and to replace such men by new men would prove disastrous to the company."

DISEASED COW KILLED

Animal Too Sick to Walk, Is Slaughtered For Food.

The Duluth health department is investigating a case in which a cow, which was too sick to stand alone, was killed for food.

The animal was owned by a family living on the hillside, and was kept for its milk. Early this week it was taken ill, and yesterday the members of the family feared it was going to die. The cow was too weak to be taken to a slaughter house, so it was led out behind the barn and disposed of by the owner, who is planning to eat part of the meat and dispose of the remainder.

The police department has been requested to look into the matter by the health commissioner, and an arrest will probably follow. The owner will be prosecuted on the charge of killing cattle within the city limits without a license. It cannot be proven that he attempted to dispose of the meat, so the technical charge is all that can be preferred against him.

READY BY JUNE 15

Cutter Fern Will Leave Norfolk for Duluth Soon.

Will Be Met At Montreal By Eaton and Howard.

Lieut. Commander Guy A. Eeaton of the Minnesota naval reserves received a telegram from Washington today to the effect that the cutter Fern will be ready to start for Duluth on June 15. Commander Eaton will go to Washington in time to see the vessel start for this port, but will not board here there unless it becomes necessary. In case he does not take the full trip with her, he will meet her at Montreal, where he and B. F. Howard, who will be chief navigator of the Fern, will board her and take her from there to Duluth.

Leonard McNamara, who was chief engineer of the Thomas W. Palmer when she sank off Stannard rock a short time ago, has been appointed chief machinist of the Minnesota naval reserve, and will go to Norfolk, W. Va., in a few days to take charge of his part of the cutter which is coming here. He will make the full trip with her, and will operate her machinery at this point.

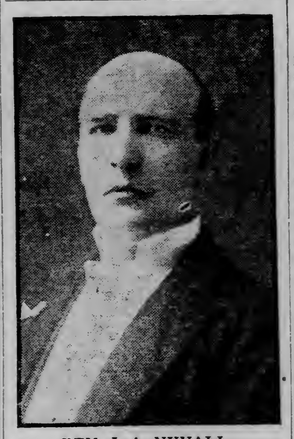
The full naval reserve crew from Duluth will meet the Fern at Detroit or the Sault, and will come up from there with her. The Fern will be delivered to as far as Montreal by contract, and there this state will assume control of her.

The Fern is 161 feet long, and it is believed will make a good enough craft for this harbor, and as a training ship for the naval reserves here.

WILL FILL THE PULPIT

Prospective Pastor of Bethany Church to Preach Sunday.

Rev. J. A. Nyvall of Moorhead arrived in the city this morning, and tomorrow morning and evening will fill the pulpit and preach to the people of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church at the West end, who are considering the extension of a call to the pulpit to him. Rev. Nyvall is one of the foremost Swedish Lutheran clergymen of the country. He is the editor of a Swedish religious paper whose place of publication is Chicago and which has a wide circulation. Although he fills pastoral duties at Moorhead, he also keeps up the editorial end of the paper. It is considered more than likely that the congregation wil decide to call him.



REV. J. A. NYVALL.

Rev. A. F. Elmquist, present pastor of the church, left this afternoon for Alborn on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, to conduct Swedish Lutheran services at that place tomorrow. He will also confirm a large class, and will return home Monday morning. Rev. Elmquist has always taken much interest in the Alborn congregation, and, like the Bethany congregation, it greatly regrets his determination to remove to Minneapolis.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR DULUTH

Foundry to Manufacture Steel Castings Will Be Erected.

Plans are now being prepared by the Northwestern Engineering company for a new twenty-ton steel foundry, which will be constructed either in Duluth or in Superior.

A company with a capital stock of $250,000 has been organized by Milwaukee, St. Paul and Duluth capitalists, and a plant will be erected at the Head of the Lakes, which will employ from 150 to 200 men. The foundry will be for the purpose of manufacturing steel castings.

New buildings will be erected, and the plans for these are now being drawn up. Ground for the buildings will be broken within ninety days, and the company should be ready to commence operations by the first of next year.

The promoters do not care to make known their names as yet, until the site has been determined on. Three or four sites are under consideration in both Duluth and Superior, and one of them will be chosen within the next two or three weeks.

OLD DAMAGE CASE SETTLED

The Action of McDonald Against Bayha Dismissed By Stipulation.

The damage action of M. W. McDonald against Bayha & Company, an action which has cost the parties concerned a considerable amount of litigation in the past three years, has been finally settled and dismissed, a stipulation for such dismissal having been filed with the clerk of ditrict court this morning. The stipulation states that the dismissal is agreed to as a compromise both as to the damages and the costs. Judge Ensign has made an order releasing and discharging the garnishment made against the bank containing deposits of Bayha & Company.

The action, which was started some time ago, concerned some furniture which it was alleged that Mr. Bayha purchased on commission for Mr. McDonald, at wholesale prices, the latter to pay all the expenses of the trip and a 10 per cent commission for the buying, the bill of goods costing several thousand dollars. Owing to a dispute that arose Mr. Bayha stopped the delivery of the goods and Mr. McDonald sued for damages.

RECEIVER REPORTS

Recommends Stockholders of Defunct Corporation Be Held Liable.

Stockholders of the National Home Investment Company.

Clarence B. Miller, who was appointed by the district court as receiver for the National Home Investment company to take charge of the company's assets pending the action brought against it by Joseph Schober, has filed his inventory and report with the clerk of district court.

In this report Receiver Miller recommends that, on the showing made, the extent of the liabilities of the defunct company be ascertained in accordance with the statute made and provided for in such cases, and that the liability of the stockholders be enforced either for the unpaid subscriptions made by them, or on account of their double statutory liability, or both, if necessary, to such an extent as may be deemed sufficient to pay in full the claims of such creditors whose claims may hereafter be approved and allowed, also the costs and disbursements of this action.

The action which brought about the receivership was instituted by Mr. Schober to recover several hundred dollars which he put into the National Home Investment company for one of its home building contracts, which contract the company afterward turned over to the United States Installment Realty company which the latter concern bought out its business.

In its answer to the complaint, the National Home Investment company, which was comprised of Duluth stockholders, claimed that it had no assets, following which answer the court appointed a receiver.

Receiver Miller reports that the only property turned over to him were several of the stock books of the company and a quantity of correspondence extending over the period from the establishment of the concern until it passed into the hands of the United States Installment Realty company.

Mr. Miller says that the records show the transfer claimed, also that the office furniture, fixtures and the money on hand were included in the terms of sale. He further claims that from the nature of the correspondence prior to the transfer it would appear that the National Home Investment company had the desire and expectation that the United States Installment Realty company would assume and pay all the claims and liabilities of every name, nature and description, and that the latter company, through its officers negotiating the deal, expressed a willingness to do so. Mr. Miller holds that it is doubtful, however, under the contract that was really entered into, whether any liability can be enforced against non-consenting stockholders or contract holders.

From the books of the company Receiver Miller finds that the following stock was issued at the first meeting, the total being 10,000 shares at $10 each: George E. Lynott, 1,000; D. P. McInnis, 999; H. E. McCollum, 999; M. L. Derrig, 1,000; M. H. McMahon, 999; Michael Norris, 300; Henry Folz, 5; Mrs. Pearl Folz, 295; G. E. Rolph, 300; W. G. Taylor, 300; Abbie E. Powers, 1; L. C. Orbell, 1; W. E. McCollum, 1; treasury stock, 2,500; Mrs. A. Ericson, 295; C. W. Ericson, 5.

GIRL TRIES TO END HER LIFE

Chicago, June 3.—Leaving a letter addressed to Nan Patterson, Miss Rose Shoman of Milwaukee was found in Lincoln park today unconscious and apparently dying from choloroform, but was saved.

In the young woman's chatelaine bag there was also a letter addressed to her father, George Shoman, 1906 Thirty-third street, Milwaukee. In the letter he girl had written that she was ill and despondent because of inability to obtain employment. She also made reference to a supposed threat to have her placed in some institution.

Miss Shoman had taken the drug while sitting in the park. Policemen found her just as she lost consciousness, and summoned an ambulance. Fearing it would not arrive until too late, they appealed to the chauffeur of a passing automobile. The girl was driven to a hospital and after several hours was out of danger.

BRODIE DUKE ASKS DIVORCE

Formal Papers Are Served on Mrs. Alice Webb Duke.

New York, June 3.—Papers in an action for absolute divorce brought by Brodie L. Duke were served today on Mrs. Alice Webb Duke, whose marriage to Mr. Duke in December last was the beginning of sensational litigation. At the same time it became known that proceedings pending against Duke in this county, the object of which were to have him declared incompetent to manage his affairs, have been abandoned by a member of his family at whose instigation the suit was begun. His property, however, is now held by trustees.

Mrs. Alice Webb was married to Brodie L. Duke in this city on Dec. 19, 1904. As soon as the family heard of the marriage ,they secured an order from the supreme court in this county by which Brodie L. Duke was committed, pending an inquiry as to his sanity. He was confined in a sanitarium several days without being in communication with anyone. When Duke was arrested the story came out and furnished one of the sensations of the year. Duke finally was released from the sanitarium by direction of the court. The suit for divorce brought by Duke is based upon statutory grounds.

KING VIEWS FRENCH ARMY

Alfonso Watches Movements of Twenty-Five Thousand Men.

Paris, June 3.—King Alfonso mounted, and wearing the uniform of a Spanish captain-general, was the central figure of a brilliant military review at Vincennes today in which an enormous crowd took part. President Loubet, the cabinet ministers and the diplomatic corps were present. The evolutions of the troops who numbered 25,000 were closed with a stirring cavalry charge. The king galloped about the field and later watched the march pass from the tribune.

The king was greeted with continued popular enthusiasm going to and coming from the review. Later he lunched with the high military officers at the Elysee palace. The king paid a glowing tribute to the French army adding: "I cannot forget that your president and I together, escaped a peril which nowadays menaces all chiefs of state and that it was in the midst of your brave cuirassiers that we received our baptism of fire."

SMASHER BACK

The Human Shuttlecock Pays Duluth a Brief Visit.

Has Been Passed Back and Forth For Five Years.

"The Window Smasher" is in the city for a brief visit today.

She showed up this morning at the office of Mrs. D. S. Forgy, the assistant humane agent, and later at police headquarters, having in tow her little girl, and carrying a small square box, containing a black rabbit.

The woman is one of the best known characters in the Northwest, and there is not a police department in the three states of Minnesota, Wisconsin and North Dakota that is not familiar with her by reputation at least.

She is said to have formerly been a laudanum fiend, and when under the influence of the drug would smash all the window glass in sight, from which peculiarity she derived ner name.

Her life for the last five or ten years has been spent in traveling from one city to another, being passed on by the city or county authorities, in the hope of making some other city take charge of her. The police would turn her over to the county authorities, and the county authorities to the poor board, and the poor board to the charitable societies, and the charitable societies back to the police again, and finally some organization would buy her a ticket to another city, and she would continue on her journeys.

The police state that she was at one time confined in the Fergus Falls asylum, but that she was released as cured. She is not a dangerous character, and the police have no cause to arrest her. The poor boards are unwilling to assume the burden, and the result has been that she has been kept moving from city to city for years.

She landed in Duluth yesterday, coming from Bemidji, and applied to Mrs. Forgy. She stated that she had quit using laudanum, having broken herself of the habit.

Mrs. Forgy directed her to the police, and if the usual course of proceedings is followed, she will be given car fare to Superior and advised to cross over into Wisconsin and try her luck there. Then it is up to the Superior police to give her car fare back to Duluth, and a little game of battledore and shuttlecock will be kept up until some person gets her transportation to another city.

She stated to Mrs. Forgy that she had acquired the laudanum habit while traveling about the country. She was generally given a small sum of money, in addition to her fare, and this went for drugs.

COULDN'T MISS IT.

A young sprig of British nobility was over in America recently, accompanied by the inevitable "Jeems," says the Kansas City Journal.

They saw the seaboard cities, tarried for a time in Pittsburg, in Chicago, in St. Louis and in Kansas City, and then struck out into the great West. Somewhere near the edge of Colorado the train was delayed at a small station, and the passengers got out to stretch their legs, among them his lordship and Jeems, who seemed in a brown study.

"What is it?" asked his master.

"I was just thinkin', me lud," said Jeems, "that Columbus didn't do such a mighty big thing when 'e discovered this 'ere country. 'Ow could 'e 'elp it?"

PETS ARE PYTHONS.

Hagenbeck, the menagerie man, has a winter residence in Ceylon, says the Kansas City Journal. According to a newspaper of that country, he has there a "huge python which has hatched 125 eggs, after two and a half months' sitting. It is shut up in a wooden box, covered over with wire netting and looks very quiet. The little pythons, which measure about a foot and a half in length, are only a few days old, but give the impression of being much older. Mr. Hagenbeck is greatly taken up with these pythons."

CITY DWELLERS' EYES.

One of the chief causes of nervous fatigue is said by an optician to be due to the fact that, in city life, men's eyes are always fixed on near objects, says the Kansas City Journal. When at rest, the eyes move apart until they are parallel, as if they were looking at the horizon. All the time, therefore, that a person is looking at objects close to him the little muscles of the eye are doing tiring work. That is why the eyes feel rested by an extensive view in open country.

AN EXPENSIVE COMMA.

An interesting story is told of an inserted comma which cost the United States government $2,000,000, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. When the United States congress was drafting the tariff bill it enumerated in one section the articles to be admitted on the free list. Among these were "all foreign fruit-plants." The copying clerk, in his superior wisdom, omitted the hyphen and inserted a comma after "fruit," so that the clause read, "all foreign fruit, plants, etc." The mistake could not be rectified for about a year, and during this time all oranges, lemons, bananas, grapes and other foreign fruits were admitted free of duty, with a loss to the government of at least $2,000,000 for that year.

LOYAL TO WIGS.

The abolition of judicial wigs in British Columbia may be the beginning of the end; but our home bench and bar will cling for some time yet to this relic of the seventeenth century, says a London writer. Professional men were loyal to the wig long after it became generally unfashionable. It was about 1765 that men of fashion began to wear their own hair again, doing it up, however, in wiglike form. But the scarcity of flour in the Napoleonic wars and Pitt's powder tax struck a blow at powdered hair and wigs alike; and young men became "Bedford Crops," after the example of the duke of Bedford and his friends at Woburn Abbey, who solemnly renounced powder, and had their heads washed and cropped on the spot. Doctors, however, and clergymen dropped their wigs reluctantly. Blomfield, who became bishop of Chester in 1824, was the first prelate to wear natural hair; and Archbishop Sumner wore a wig at the princess royal's wedding in 1858.

SPOKE DIFFERENT TONGUES.

At the recent state banquet in Naples the king of Italy, in toasting the kaiser, spoke in Italian, while the emperor replied in German, says the Kansas City Journal. There is an etiquette in the use of a language on such occasions, which Bismarck may be said to have introduced after the French war—an etiquette which always guides the foreign office at Berlin in its correspondence with members of diplomatic corps. Had the king used French, a neutral tongue, the kaiser would also have responded in the same language; but as the king spoke in his native speech the emperor had to stand upon his dignity and do the same. The kaiser's Italian, even for so versatile a monarch, is not so good as the king's German, but there were probably few, if any, of his Italian majesty's suite who at the time understood a single word the emperor said. German must be a dreadful trial to an Italian ear and tongue.

IN ORDERLY CONDITION

Monthly Police Report Shows No Serious Crime Charged.

May was a quiet month in police circles, according to the monthly report of the police department, which has just been prepared by Secretary Lahti.

The city was very orderly during the month, and no arrests for more serious crimes than grand larceny were made. Two prisoners were held to the grand jury on this charge.

Out of a total of 234 arrests for the month, ninety prisoners were arrested for drunkenness. Seventeen were thrown in for vagrancy, and nineteen for disorderly conduct.

The arrests for keeping unlicensed dogs helped swell the total by over a dozen.

There were four arrests for petty larceny, and the majority of the other arrests were for violating city ordinances in the matter of begging on the streets, peddling without a license, posting bills without a license, neglecting to hitch horses left standing, and other such minor offenses.

Two boys were also arrested for incorrigibility, and several fugitives from justice were captured, to be turned over to other cities.

The more serious crimes, such as murder, arson, assault in the first degree, forgery, and such felonies, are missing from the list.

Street Railway Sued For Heavy Personal Damages.

William Tavast, a subject of the czar of Russia, has begun suit in United States circuit court against the Duluth Street Railway company for $15,156 personal damages. He claims that on Feb. 28 last, while he was crossing the street railway tracks on East Superior street, he was run down by one of the defendant's street cars.

Tavast claims to have been severely injured about the body and more particularly in his head, arm, leg and ankle, and believes himself to be permanently injured and incapacitated. He avers that the motorman did not signal him to get off the track, nor did he slacken speed, but ran the car in a reckless manner.

FIGHT IN A CHURCH.

Male Members Use Their Fists In Debate.

Phiadelphia, Jne 3.—Jeers, threats and fist fights between the men of the congregation, during which women screamed and left the room in hysterics, marked the annual meeting of the fashionable West Park Presbyterian church Thursday night, when the matter of the resignation of the pastor, the Rev. G. Grant Hopper, was brought up. Hopper is a graduate of Princeton.

Dissatisfaction having arisen among the elders of the church over the pastor's alleged actions nearly a year ago, he was asked to resign by members of the session, after having refused to consent to an investigation. This also he declined to do, and at a meeting of the men of the church, which he called, declared upon his knees that he was innocent of the charges brought against him. These charges were improper and immoral conduct.

Partisan feeling on both sides ran strong when members met Thursday afternoon.

"I am innocent before God and you have voted your confidence in me," said the Rev. Mr. Hopper soon after the meeting began.

"If you are Christians keep quiet," came a woman's protest from the center of the room.

Meanwhile fist fights had started near the doors. Women fainting brought the men to their senses and the church finally was cleared. The resignation is still in abeyance.

NEW LAND RULES

Two Important Circulars Issued By Interior Department.

Restriction Placed on Acreage—As to Contest Publications.

The local land office has received an important circular from the department of the interior instructing the local officials that hereafter all persons seeking title to any of the non-mineral public lands of the United States must file an affidavit with their applications to enter, purchase or locate, to the effect that since Aug. 30, 1900, they have not acquired title to, nor are at the time of entry, claiming under any of the agricultural public land laws, an amount of land, which together with the land being applied for, will exceed in the aggregate 320 acres.

All persons now having applications pending are to be notified of this new ruling and unless they file such affidavit within thirty days their applications will be rejected without further notice.

This ruling will affect a great many cases, particularly in the matter of soldiers' scrip.

Another circular of importance has also been received. It contains a ruling that all affidavits filed as the basis of an order for publication of notice in contest cases, except where the entryman is a nonresident of the state, must contain the averment that affiant has within fifteen days next preceding the filing of such affidavit, endeavored to ascertain the whereabouts of the defendant by diligent inquiry by making search and inquiry, with a view to obtaining personal service of the notice of contest.

WILL REVOKE THEIR CHARTER

Wisconsin Proposes Such Action With General Paper Company.

Milwaukee, June 3.—"I shall probably begin action to revoke the charter of the General Paper company as soon as the legislature is over," said Attorney General Sturdevant, who is in Milwaukee today on business.

"I am convinced that there is a great deal that is wrong about this concern. I believe that this company, with the one in the West and the other in the East, control the entire fiber paper business of the country. They can lower and raise prices at will. In Oregon only recently a company refused to go into the Western end of this trust and its business was ruined.

"I have been furnished with a copy of the evidence obtained in the federal examination thus far.

"The great amount of evidence that has been hidden by the refusal of witnesses to testify must come out. We shall see if there is not a way to do it. I believe when an action is started in the name of the state to revoke their charter they will answer all right.

"The fact that a federal investigation is being made and a federal suit commenced does not bar us. The company is a Wisconsin corporation and comes within our jurisdiction. They will have to come into court and defend their charter."

United States Judge Seaman has issued an order citing the officers of the General Paper company, to show cause on Tuesday next why they should not answer specifically the questions put to them by the federal officials who are investigating the company.

OVER FIVE HUNDRED HINDOOS LOSE LIVES.

FORTS SANK BATTLESHIPS

Russians Were Driven Under Fortifications of Tsu Islands.

Nagasaki, June 3.—Survivors statements show that the Japanese manœuvers drove a portion of the Russian fleet under the fire of the forts on the Tsu islands, which sunk the battleship Oslabia. On Saturday night, owing to the frequent torpedo attacks, and the fact that the Russian vessels did not carry any lights, the fleet was much separated and became incapable of acting in combination. The only orders weer to reach Vladivostok. The Russians weer short of ammunition, and their marksmanship was indifferent.

REPORT FROM TOGO.

Tokio, June 3.—Admiral Togo reports that the Russian special service steamers and transports sunk by the Japanese, May 27, were the auxiliary steamer Ural, the transport Kamtchatka and Irtessim, and one towing vessel used to assist in coaling at sea, and believed to have been named The Russ.

"The Russian vessels present in the recent battle which were not sunk or captured and which are unaccounted for," Togo's report adds, "are the protected cruiser Oleg, Aurora, Izumrud and Alamaz, three transports, two torpedo boat destroyers, and one tow boat. During the battle the Oleg and Aurora were within range of our third and fourth fleets and were on fire. They may have escaped, but is will take time to restore their fighting power."

According to dispatches from St. Petersburg, the Irumrud was blown up by her commander after having run on a reef in Vladimir bay. The Almaz reached Vladivostok early in the week, and the Oleg, Aurora and Jemtchug arrived at Manila today.

ALL LEFT TO TRAIN.

Washington, June 3.—The enforcement of neutrality will be left in the hands of Admiral Train. Ordinarily this duty would be left to Governor Wright, but the conclusion has been reached that the instructions to be sent to the admiral will cover all the contingencies that may arise in the enforcement of neutrality by this government.

Regarding the disposition of the vessels, it is expected that the Russian admiral, as soon as he can communicate with his government, will ask permission to interne his vessels at Manila. This undoubtedly will be granted. But in the meantime they can, under the rules, be given the freedom of the port for a limited period. The department has every faith in the ability of Admiral Train to see that every detail of international law will be observed. However, it is expected that the Russian government will communicate its wishes through Washington and these will be promptly forwarded to Admiral Train.

CENSUS TAKING.

Work Is Moving Along In Satisfactory Manner.

This is the third day on which census enumerators have been working on the state census in Duluth, and so far everything has gone along in a highly satisfactory manner. The men, with one exception, have met with no very serious difficulties in collecting the names. The one exception was yesterday, when one of the enumerators was as good as kicked out of the house by an Italian, without getting the desired information. The family could not speak English. The Italian's name has been put on record and he will later be visited by an interpreter.

If everybody knew that the enumerator had to take oath not to divulge any information given him, except to his superior officers, they might not be so averse to answering his questions. The enumerator's oath is as follows:

"I, (name) an enumerator for taking the fifth decennial census of Minnesota, do solemnly swear that I will make a true and exact enumeration of all the inhabitants within the district assigned me, as provided for in the act for taking the fifth decennial census, and in conformity with all lawful instructions which I may receive, and will make true and correct returns therefore as required by said act, and will not disclose any information contained in schedules, or statements obtained by me to any person or persons, except to my superior officers."

Supervisor R. D. Haven suggests that those who leave town this month, and who have not been visited by enumerators before leaving, write out the family names and ages, with place of residence, on a slip of paper and mail it to headquarters in the Manhattan building, the better to facilitate the census taking.

CHICAGO IS CONFIDENT

Of Winning First Honors In Intercollegiate Meet.

Chicago, June 3.—With thirteen colleges and universities represented the intercollegiate conference meet was held on Marshall field today. Rival "rooters" thronged the grand stand and bleachers, the weather being an ideal compromise between the brands desirable respectively for spectators and contestants.

Chicago was confident of winning first honors; Michigan prophets appropriated second place without dissent from other quarters, while for third place, Purdue, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa were expected to put up an interesting contest.

440-yard run won by Walter, Wisconsin; Groman, Chicago, second; Quigley, Chicago, third. Time, :50.

100-yard final won by Blair, Chicago; Ferguson, Chicago, second; Lanning, Michigan, third. Time, :10.

Discus throw won by J. C. Garrels, Michigan, 140 feet 2⅞ inches; Parry, Chicago, second, 128 feet 6¼ inches; Sage, Purdue, third, 122 feet 8 inches. This breaks the world's record.

CAFE PRICES HIGH.

A Frenchman complained the other day about the high prices at American restaurants, says the Louisville Courier-Journal.

"You cater to the pleasures of only the rich man here," he said. "Don't you draw the average man out of his shell? Why don't you make an offer for his custom?

"In Paris—in fact, all over France—you can get a good dinner for 3 francs or 60 cents; a dinner served in a beautiful restaurant, to the music of a good orchestra, among welldressed and refined people. This dinner comprises a hors d'oeuvre, soup, fish, a roast meat, a course of vegetables, chicken and salad, dessert, a pint of good red or white wine.

"There is in America an idea that a man never leaves home for pleasure without an enormous roll of bank notes and a perfect indifference to expense. To dine at a good restaurant with his wife and to go to the theater afterward costs an American—for dinner, $5; for a carriage to and from the play, $3; for seats, $4—or $12 in all. This is too much.

"Such an evening in London would cost—for the dinner, $2.50; for a carriage, 50 cents; for seats, $4—that is to say $7, or a saving of $5 over America. And the dinner in London would be a table d'hote at the Carlton or the Savoy, with everybody in evening dress, and dukes and earls and countesses on all sides—a spectacle of splendor such as you couldn't obtain with your dinner in America under a cost of $8 a plate.

"In Paris the same evening would only cost $5.

"In Europe and in England the average man is catered to. He can take a cab, he can eat a good dinner, he can drink a glass of good wine, without first mortgaging his house."

AN OLD SCHOONER.

Vessel Once a Privateer, Is a Century Old.

A century old and sound as a nut is the proud distinction of the schooner Polly, once an American privateer, and long famous in the New England coasting trade, says a Bangor, Me., dispatch in the Brooklyn Eagle. The Polly was built in Amesbury, Mass., in 1805, having been launched in the spring of that year, but today she looks as young and is fully as serviceable as many vessels ninety years her junior.

Although a very small and stubby little craft, it is a fact that the Polly was once a man-o'-war. In the war of 1812 she was a privateer and captured several British merchantmen. Once she was herself captured, but the Britons who did the job were slow and sleepy people, and when they slept one night the Polly's people, who always slept with one eye and both ears open, went softly on deck, and, locking their prize crew in the cabin, sailed away to a New England port and turned them over as prisoners of war. Thus did the Polly, by running away with her captors, live to fight another day, and also to lug lumber from Bangor in peaceful times.

As a coaster, the Polly is well enough, so far as she goes—forty-five tons, short and stubby—but as a man-o'-war nowadays she would be a joke. They must have used good, hard oak when she was built, for although she has been tinkered and repaired many times since the day she slid from the ways at Amesbury, many of her original timbers remain in her, as sound as when they were cut. Barring accidents, the Polly should continue to sail the seas for twenty years yet.

The Down-East coasting fleet is rich in old timbers. Many of the schooners that are now actively engaged nine months in the year freighting lumber and other heavy cargoes between Maine ports and Boston were built in the early half of the nineteenth century. Since the youngest of these old timers was built thousands of much larger and finer vessels have gone to the bottom or been wrecked along this rocky coast, and other fleets as large and as fine will come and go, probably, before we shall see the last of vessels that were put together when, as the old shipbuilders say, "oak was oak, and work was done on honor."

VERY SUSPICIOUS.

New York Tribune: "Russell Sage has a perspicuous mind," said a New York broker. "He can see through nearly everything. I doubt if he was ever duped on an investment yet.

"They say that two promoters once called on Mr. Sage to try and interest him in a certain scheme of theirs. They talked to the great financier about an hour. Then they took their leave, having been told that Mr. Sage's decision would be mailed to them in a few days.

"'I believe we've got him,' said the first promoter hopefully, on the way uptown.

"'I don't know,' rejoined the other. 'He seemed very suspicious.'

"'Suspicious?' said the first. 'What makes you think he was suspicious?'

"'Didn't you notice,' was the reply, 'how he counted his fingers after I had shaken hands with him?'"

HOUSE OF PAUL REVERE.

Prominent residents of Massachusetts, including Governor Douglas and Patrick A. Collins, mayor of Boston, are taking steps to preserve the house of Paul Revere in North square, near the old North church, in Boston, from which he started on his night ride to arouse the countryside way up to Concord and Lexington, April 19, 1775, says the Kansas City Journal. The place was about to be torn down, but a number of citizens have undertaken the task of raising $17,000 to buy the property. It will be put in good condition, restored to its colonial dignity and preserved as a Revolutionary relic.

AMMUNITION EXHAUSTED.

The Reason Why Admiral Nebogatoff Surrendered.

St. Petersburg, June 3.—The statement that the ammunition on board Rear Admiral Nebogatoff's ships was exhausted when he surrendered was received with some relief, this being one of the conditions under which, according to the Russian naval regulations, a commander is allowed to surrender, the other condition being when the crew of a vessel is so depleted as to be unable to manage her and work her guns, and when the ship is burned to the water's edge and about to sink. Nevertheless most of the naval men continue to be of the opinion that the seacocks should have been opened and the ship sunk. Stories of mutiny on board the Russian vessels continue to circulate in the clubs and cafes, but the admiralty will not admit that it has received any information tending to substantiate them. The officials admit, however, that some sailors mutinied off the coast of Madagascar, and that a number of them were shot by Admiral Rojestvensky's orders.

CAUSES OF DEFEAT

Of Rojestvensky's Fleet Is Analyzed By Jap Experts.

Tokio, June 3.—The cardinal causes of Rojestvensky's defeat have been the subject of discussion here. One Japanese expert gives the folowing analysis:

First—An imperfect reconnossance and incomplete, faulty and misleading intelligence.

Second—An imperfect battle formation, which indicated that Rojestvensky did not expect to meet Togo off Tsushima.

Third—The weather, the direction of the wind and the sunlight were unfavorable to the Russians, Togo having the sun behind and firing with the wind.

Fourth—The Russians wasted their ammunition and eventually ran short. It is believed that the surrender of Nebogatoff was made necessary because his ammunition had been expended.

Fifth—The marked inferiority of the Russian gunnery.

Some experts criticise Rojestvensky for essaying Tsushima channel. Others uphold him, saying that his only chance lay in going through that channel. The impression prevails that Rojestvensky was totally unaware of the presence of Togo's entire fleet off Tsushima. Many believe that it was necessary for Togo to take a station at a pivotal point from which it would be possible to intercept the Russians entering either Tsushima, Tsuguru or Soya channels. Calculations placed this pivotal point on the west coast near the western entrance of Tsuguru channel. Leaving aside the questions of preparedness and superior conditions, the superiority of the Japanese personnel, fresh from fifteen months' successful campaigning under all possible conditions must be taken into consideration. Many ascribe the victory entirely to the superior marksmanship of the Japanese. Togo, realizing that it would probably be necessary to fight in the open sea, gave his crews long training in firing during rough weather with a heavy wind blowing and the ships rolling. The sinking of battleships and armored cruisers by shell fire testified to the deadly accuracy of the Japanese gunners and destroys the theory that it is impossible to sink such ships by shell fire.

The attitude of Japanese naval men toward victory is curious. Togo's message to the emperor saying that victory was the result of the emperor's superhuman influence strikes the keynote of the navy's attitude. The officers openly say that the marvelous result obtained was impossible by mere human achievement alone.

TO RELEASE CRUISER

To Proceed to Japan as a Hospital Ship.

New York, June 3.—A special dispatch received here from San Francisco says the officials at Mare island navy yard have received from Washington formal instructions to permit the Russian auxiliary cruiser Lena, now interned at the yard, to proceed to Asiatic waters for use as a hospital ship. She will put to sea within a month, and it is expected her first destination will be a Japanese port, where wounded Russians can be taken aboard.

The guns and munitions of war, removed from the Lena when she arrived in San Francisco, will not be replaced.

ADMIRAL WILL RECOVER.

Tokio, June 3, 10:45 a. m.—Rear Admiral Rojestvensky is resting well, with no dangerous symptoms, and his speedy recovery seems certain. The officers of the Russian battleship Orel have declined to accept parole. They have been given an additional day to further consider the question.

HONOLULU JAPS CELEBRATE.

Honolulu, June 3.—The Japanese celebrated the victory of the naval battle of the sea of Japan last night by a big torchlight and Japanese lantern procession. Four thousand Japanese turned out in the parade.

SCHOONER GOES ASHORE.

Pasque Island, Mass., June 3.—The three-masted schooner Rebecca J. Moulton, bound from Savannah for Boston, went ashore during last night on this island. The place where she grounded is known as the Graveyard, and it is feared she is in a dangerous position. The Moulton, which registers 521 tons net, left Savannah, May 21, under command of Capt. Wright.

FORMER DETROIT BELLE

Seeks Separation From Titled Austrian Husband.

Detroit, Mich., June 3.—Countess Louise May Hecker de Szilassy, daughter of Col. Frank J. Hecker of Detroit, ex-member of the Panama canal commission, has begun a suppressed suit for divorce from Count Gunla Hope Joseph de Szilassy of Vienna, Austria.

Count de Szilassy was for many years secretary of the Austro-Hungarian legislature at Washington, and it was while on a visit at the capital that Miss Hecker met the count. They were married in 1898. The count took his bride to Austria, where she remained a year, later coming to Detroit.

Tales of cruelty, never published, were heard on all sides, but the countess, after a short stay in Detroit, resolved to go back to the count. She soon returned to Detroit, however, and has lived here ever since. Countess Szilassy charges only non-support in her bill. She has one child.

CANNOT DO THE WORK

Government Will Deepen No Waterways to Outside Docks.

It Long Ago Abandoned All Outside Harbor Improvement.

If any dredging is ever done to deepen the waterway to the Northern Pacific Railway company's outside dock, the expense must be borne by private enterprise.

Such is the situation as regards the complaint recently made by vesselmen who have occasion to send boats to the outside harbor dock. It is contended that an application to the government to go to any expense in deepening the waterway to the outside dock will be futile, as the government long ago, when it abandoned the old berakwater project between Fourth and Fifth avenues east and extending into the lake parallel to Minnesota Point, practically abandoned all further interest in an outside harbor. For that reason it will and has refused to take up the matter of dredging outside the canal.

About two years ago, in order to establish the limits for any dock building that might be undertaken along the shore of the point north of the canal, the government established a dock line paralleling St. Croix avenue and 300 feet distant from the shore. This dock line, however, does not begin to reach to the course pursued by the boats and tugs which go to and from the Northern Pacific outside dock, so that the waterway would, in no sense of the word, come within the province of the government to make any improvement for the reason there is no obstruction to navigation, the waterway to the dock being used only by certain boats running to a private dock.

The complaint made by the vesselmen who have reason to send tugs or boats to the out side dock is that in low water there is not more than 12 to 13½ feet of water for a distance of 200 to 300 feet out from the dock and that the boats must load lightly even in smooth water and when the lake is choppy they must pull right out or run the risk of being grounded.

Some of the harbor tugs draw almost as much water as the depth in and about the outside dock and it is with the greatest reluctance that the tug owners will consent to send any tug to the dock to get a lumber-laden boat when there is a northeaster blowing and the sea is rough.

The cost of dredging a waterway deep enough for the boats from the canal entrance to the outside dock of the railroad company is estimated at several thousand dollars, and it is not generally believed that at the present time the railway company or the vessel interests would care to go to the expense and have the improvement done through private enterprise.

Another half squadron of garde du corps in white cloth tunics, golden cuirasses and golden helmets topped with eagles, followed.

In two other six-horse carriages were the ladies-in-waiting of the empress and the duchess.

A squadron of Uhlans with a mounted band fell in at the rear and closed the pageant.

The course of the procession lay for a mile through the Tiergarten. Where the roads crossed there were 400 children, who sang "God Greet Them." Their voices sounded sweetly in the woods.

Along each side of the way veterans were lined up, while here and there stands were erected under the shade of the trees.

When inside the Brandenburger gate, the duchess came in view of one of the broadest avenues in the world, Unter der Linden, set from end to end with four rows of Venetian masts. Swinging from mast to mast were ropes of evergreens and roses, while the lime trees also were hung with garlands of roses. Thousands of flags fluttered on each side of the avenue, Mecklenburg-Schwerin yellow and blue predominating. The perspective from the arched gate to the palace at the other end was most beautiful. The duchess, however, probably saw little of the scene for she was bowing regularly to the right and left acknowledging the cheering of the crowds.

The procession stopped inside the gate and 100 maids of honor in white voile costumes courtsied. Each maid was crowned with roses and carried wreaths of roses. Fraulein Kirchner, daughter of the chief burgomaster of Berlin, presented a bouquet of roses to the duchess, who received it with a smile and a bow.

Then the chief burgomaster, in a purple robe trimmed with fur and wearing the heavy gold chain insignia of his office stepped forward and read a brief address of welcome. It was brief by the emperor's request, so as to spare the duchess the ordeal of a long wait under may eyes. She thanked the burgomaster in a few simple words and the procession began to move again, the artillery at the other end of Unter der Linden firing twenty-four guns.

Fifty little girls threw fresh roses under the horses' feet as the duchess went on her way down the alley of limes, which were hung with roses, the masses of people covering even roofs, waving tiny flags and handkerchiefs and cheering. The members of the trades and crafts' guilds and their apprentices were ranked on either side, the fish dealers with nets and tridents, the chimney sweeps with brooms and the basketmakers with gilded baskets.

The sidewalks, stands and windows overlooking Unter den Linden had been occupied for hours, and some hundreds of luncheon parties were given in rooms fronting on Unter den Linden. M. Bihourd, the French ambassador, invited his colleagues and their families to see the spectacle from the French embassy, near the Brandenburger gate. The American ambassador, Mr. Tower, and Mrs. Tower; the British ambassador, Sir Frank C. Laschelles, and Gen. De Lacroix and the other members of the French embassy extraordinary, were in the party. M. Bihourd had provided bridge whist tables for the amusement of his visitors during the long wait, and there was also an excellent buffet lunch.

Large parties of Americans occupied points of vantage on either side of the Brandenburger gate, while the American embassy staff were at the embassy offices, on Unter den Linden.

The Grand Duke Michael, brother of Emperor Nicholas, with a glittering entourage, including the Russian ambassador, Count von Osten-Sacken, saw the procession from the balcony of the Russian embassy, while on the balcony of the Hotel Bristol, next door, were Prince and Princess Arisugawa of Japan, representing the Japanese emperor and empress, attended by thirty or forty of their compatriots.

The pageant started at 5 o'clock, and had disappeared at 5:45 p. m. through one of the arched doorways of the palace. On the other, in the inner court yard, the emperor, the crown prince, Prince Henry of Prussia, and other members of the imperial family, attended by ministers of state and a number of generals and admirals, received the duchess. She went with members of the imperial family to the room of the electors, so-called, and with the crown prince signed the marriage contract. Afterwards the members of the two families dined together.

Ambassador Tower, who was accredited by cable as special ambassador of the United States at the wedding, was received by the emperor at 10 o'clock this morning. Mr. Tower presented the congratulations of the president and people of the United States on the marriage of the crown prince.

The special representatives of other countries were also received in audience by the emperor during the forenoon. The Chinese minister brought the emperor the felicitations of the Chinese government emblazoned on parchment, tied with yellow silk.

FARM BOY KILLED.

Head Nearly Severed By Disc Cultivator.

Mankato, Minn., June 3.—Charles, the 9-year-old son of Deforest Carpenter, living four and a half miles from Vernon Center, was instantly killed Thursday afternoon. His father had gone to the house for a drink, leaving the boy holding a team hitched to a disc cultivator. The team ran away, and the boy's head was nearly severed.

STABBING

At Missoula, Mont., May End In Death.

Missoula, Mont., June 3.—Chess Thomas, a well-known citizen of Missoula, was stabbed here on the Higgins avenue bridge by J. H. Cooley, his brother-in-law, and is not expected to live.

According to reports Cooley ordered the water shut off on premises controlled by Thomas. Learning of the order, Thomas became somewhat angered and, meeting Cooley on the bridge, got off his wheel and started to strike him, when the latter took out his pocketknife and stabbed Thomas in several places, inflicting serious wounds in the arm and stomach.

Both are well-known residents of Missoula, having lived here for years.

EARTHQUAKE KILLS SIX, WOUNDS SEVENTY-NINE.

Tokio, June 3, 7:30 p. m.—The governor of Hiroshima province telegraphs that the earthquake which took place on June 2, killed six people, wounded seventy-nine, and destroyed thirty-three houses in Hiroshima and Ujina. The reports from other affected districts are incomplete, but it is believed that the loss of life and the destruction of property has been comparatively slight. The first shocks of the earthquake destroyed the telegraph system, which, besides making it impossible to communicate with the earthquake district, cut off Tokio from Western Japan and the rest of the world, which created an impression that some great disaster had taken place.

NO LIVES LOST

In Wrecking of the Steamer Carter.

New Orleans, June 3.—It was ascertained today that no lives were lost in the wrecking of the steamer Carter, at Alexandra, La., last night. The steamer struck a pier of a railroad bridge and quickly began to sink. She was headed for shore, where the passengers and crew were landed safely. Mrs. Carter, wife of Capt. Carter, trying to save some valuables, was forced to jump overboard when the boat began to turn on her side. She was rescued by men in skiffs.

ALLEGED ASSASSIN IS OF EXCELLENT FAMILY.

New York, June 3.—Charles Malato, who is accused by the French police of organizing a plot to assassinate King Alfonso of Spain, and who has been arrested on this charge, is well known in political and literary circles, cables the Times correspondent at Paris.

The prisoner belongs to an ancient and noble Neapolitan family. His grandfather, Count Malato, was commander-in-chief of the army of the last king of Naples. He had the rank of field marshal, and suppressed the popular insurrection against the dynasty with rigor.

EQUITABLE OFFICERS TO FORGET ALL DIFFERENCES.

he has the power, at present, to elect all the directors of the society. Mr. Hyde acquiesced in the resolution that he be requested to divest himself of the control of his stock within three months on terms satisfactory to himself and the society. Attention was drawn today to the fact that Mr. Hyde in agreeing to this resolution declined to give any pledge as to his action in the matter.

Wall street discussed also the action of Jacob H. Schiff, the head of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., in defending Second Vice President Tarbell. Mr. Schiff's firm has acted for years in close relations with Mr. Harriman.

New York, June 3.—Liberal extracts are published today of the report made to the Equitable Life Assurance society directors by the Frick investigating committee. The report consists of thirty-eight printed pages. Its principal points follow closely the outline forecasted several days ago and in closing the committee declared:

"Excessive salaries, excessive commissions, excessive expenses and superfluous offices should not be tolerated.

"Investments should be carefully made and all the useful formal precautions employed to insure the location of the moral responsibility of the officers who are charged with the duty of making them.

"The committee, having pursued its investigation of the present management of the society sufficiently far to convince it that the personnel of the management should be radically changed and the methods of conducting the business of the society brought back to sound legal and ethical lines, begs to be relieved from further duty."

In mentioning the particular executives whom the committeemen believed should be retired, the report says:

"The short comings in interior executive officers are largely due to the methods which the principal officers have encouraged or permitted, and so far as correction of these irregularities calls for further removals of officials that matter should be dealt with and largely controlled by the judgment of the reorganized management."

Among other features is a letter from President Alexander sent to the committee in response to a request for specific data under eleven heads. The letter is largely devoted, however, to a reiteration of the charges against Mr. Hyde, among them being one to the effect that large quantities of stock belonging to the society stand in his name, enabling the vice president to become a director in many corporations. "If there is any need," the president wrote, "for the society to be represented upon the boards of the company's whose securities the society holds, that representation should not be centered in one person, who can not, by any possibility, give proper attention to the duties of so many positions."

The report also contains a long letter from Mr. Hyde concerning syndicate transactions, heretofore made public. Commenting on these deals, the report says:

"In one case in which the syndicate profit was $30,210, the society now holds the securities purchased, which at present quotations show a loss of about $60,000.

"In all other cases the society has either made a profit or could make a profit by selling the securities at the present market.

"The net result to the society of the purchase of these syndicate securities has been a very considerable profit? If the society had acquired the securities by taking allotments in the original underwritings, the profits would have been greater by $186,109."

While the society was gainer by the transactions, the report declares that the officials in the syndicate were guilty of a breach of propriety and a breach of trust in this course of dealing with a corporation they were serving.

The report declares that if Mr. Hyde were guilty of the things charged by President Alexander, the latter was "culpably negligent in acquiescing in them for so long a period and in not bringing them to the attention of the board of directors at such time and in such a way as to enable the directors to consider them in connection with the exercise of their responsible duty of electing the officers of the society."

After quoting a letter alleged to have been addressed to Vice President Hyde by Mr. Alexander last November, regarding the duties of the fiscal committee and detailing the manner in which two new members were to be handled, the report continues:

"The committee finds that so far as Mr. Alexander's charge against Mr. Hyde is true, namely, 'that he has displayed a strong personal ambition and an inordinate and unsafe love of prominence, a great responsiveness to flattery, a pliancy in the hands of persons whose interests are not necessarily parallel to those of the policyholders of the society,' that Mr. Alexander is largely responsible."

Details of the society's operative machinery, financial methods, salaries, etc., are gone over in great detail, with recommendations for changes wherever the investigators saw ground for criticism and the report concludes with a plea for recognition of the great responsibility toward policyholders in the society and in all similar organizations.

New York, June 3.—Disputed claims of victory by the conflicting factions in the Equitable Life Assurance society, and an apparent readjustment of interests, marked the meeting of the directors of the society, held yesterday for the purpose of passing on the report of the committee of seven, of which H. C. Frick is the chairman. The only positive results of the meeting of which official announcement was made, was the resignation of Mr. Frick, Mr. Bliss and Mr. Harriman from the board of directors and the passage of the resolution embodied in the following statement given out by the board of directors after the final adjustment:

"The board after full consideration and after replies on their own behalf to the committee by President Alexander, Vice President Hyde and Vice President Tarbell, on motion of Mr. Schiff, adopted the following resolutions:

"1. That a chairman of the board be created with plenary powers over all departments and affairs of the society.

"2. That a nominating committee, consisting of D. O. Mills, John A. Stewart, A. J. Cassatt, T. Jefferson Coolidge, Augustus Belmont, J. B. Forgan and Robert T. Lincoln, be requested to report at a meeting of the board to be called on Wednesday next, a candidate for chairman.

"3. That at that meeting the executive board be reorganized and that appropriate amendments to the bylaws should be prepared for submission to that meeting for the purpose of carrying out these resolutions.

"4. That James Hazen Hyde be requested within three months to divest himself of the control of the stock of the society on such terms and conditions as shall be satisfactory to him and the board."

After the final adjournment late in the afternoon it was learned that the question of the adoption of the Frick report had not come before the board. Mr. Frick, perceiving that he unquestionably would be outvoted on a resolution that the report be adopted, made no comment, and after tendering his resignation, left the room. It is understood that Mr. Bliss and Mr. Harriman, both of whom tendered their resignations, followed him immediately.

Messrs. Frick and Harriman were the prime agents in formulating the report. Mr. Bliss being a less suggestive supporter of the report, but being of the same kind as his colleagues, followed their examples.

The Frick report, it has been ascertained, recommended the removal of President Alexander, Vice President Hyde and Second Vice President Tarbel.

The first speaker at the forenoon session was President Alexander, who in the course of an extended address defended the management of the Equitable society and presented data to prove that the business of the institution had been successfully carried on. The management of the agency insurance department was highly commended by President Alexander, who dwelt on the growth of the society in the last quarter of a century. He also laid stress on the economy with which the society's business had been conducted.

Mr. Hyde's speech, which E. H. Harriman had several times interrupted with replies to direct references of the speaker to him, precipitated an excited and bitter debate. One of the directors said that although as far as he knew the report of the Frick committee represented only a sincere effort to do a real service to the society and the policy holders, yet he thought it a suspicious circumstance that the report contained no suggestion looking to the elimination of one-man control. He regretted the fact that Mr. Harriman or any other financial interests of Wall street were working for the perpetuation of such control and he believed that the attacks on the Frick committee were unjust and unfair.

Gage E. Tarbell, the second vice president, also addressed the meeting, devoting his remarks to the management of the domestic agencies, of which he has direct charge. He referred to the fact that the Frick report had censured that management, especially in regard to the advices made to agents. Four cases were specifically cited in the report, he continued, but the facts concerning none of these accounts had been accurately stated. The committee had also complained indirectly of the excessive traveling expenses, but had not brought out the fact that in the five years covered by the report the traveling expenses of the second vice president, including the expenses of from one to four or five subordinate officials, had aggregated only a little more than $17,000, for every dollar of which vouchers and itemized statements had been filed.

Mr. Hyde opened his defense before the directors by saying that he recognized this to be the crisis of his life. From the beginning of this unfortunate controversy he had endeavored to bear his troubles patiently and with a dignity befitting the high office which he held, but even patience had its limits, and the welfare of the society, which was nearer his heart than any other interest involved in the controversy, required him now to speak out in no uncertain tones, for its good name which had been assailed and dragged in the dust by its enemies, whose policy had been one of rule or ruin.

Mr. Hyde referred to this great monument of prosperity that had been erected by his father, and said that he would be false to his duty, to the memory of his father and to himself and his family if he failed to defend his good name against the innumerable plots and counter-plots that had been concocted to capture the great trust fund that was being held for the policyholders. He then proceeded to take up in detail the charges of the report, which he said were four in number, and stated that if any honest man could find in anything contained in the evidence before the committee a single word or fact that could be construed into wrongdoing, he would surrender his stock and retire to the oblivion which he would justly deserve. He would admit that he was young, and had been still younger when he assumed office in the company, but that was a crime which time would cure; he admitted having been trustful of those who had professed to be his friends, but he had already been sufficiently punished for placing too much trust in them. He admitted also that he had perhaps at times, in the exuberance of youth, been rather arbitrary and had made enemies that would perhaps have been better not made. Mr. Hyde characterized the charges as frivolous and ridiculous in the extreme, and as having been overwhelmingly disproved. He insisted that there was not a single act throughout his entire career with the society which was the subject of so much as just criticism on the part of a fair-minded man, with the possible exception of the Cambon dinner, and that was a matter of honest difference of opinion as to business methods. In that connection he said that while he had deposited the amount of this expenditure with the cashier, he felt he ought to receive it back. Mr. Alexander, he said, was aware before the giving of the dinner that, while it was given in his (Hyde's) name, it was a business project to help the society. Among other falsehoods which Mr. Hyde said had been circulated about him was one to the effect that he had given this dinner with the idea of getting the order of the Legion of Honor from the French government. This decoration had, in fact, been conferred upon him two years before.

Mr. Hyde said of this function that fully one-quarter of the guests had been invited by other people connected with the society and were men of prominence in the community with whom he was unacquainted. It had been purely a business project, discussed between th officers in advance. He referred to the fact that shortly after the dinner Mr. Alexander had come to him with a form of letter to be written to M. Cambon, referring to various matters in France in which the society was interested.

As to his participation in syndicates, Mr. Hyde said he had been in many syndicates, always with Mr. Alexander, in which the Equitable had no concern whatever, and in many of them had lost money. Mr. Hyde said that every man present knew that if the fact of being an officer of a financial institution was to debar a man from investing his own money in syndicates or other operations, nobody of any financial stability could ever be got to take a position with a financial institution. The idea that he had gone into any syndicate with the thought that the Equitable would buy any of the bonds must appear to men acquainted with affairs of that kind as too ridiculous for discussion. The figures, he added, would show how absurd that was. The eight syndicates amounted to about $140,000,000 of which his average interest was one-fifty-seventh. Everybody knows, he added, that those syndicates were largely successful and heavily oversubscribed. The Equitable at one time or another bought in all about $10,000,000 of the $140,000,000.

Mr. Hyde declared the society had made large profits on the $10,000,000 of bonds bought from the bankers as compared with which, he said, his trifling commission on the underwriting amounted to nothing. Mr. Hyde went on to say that he proposed to insist on his rights to these commissions. After a full analysis of the various transactions he referred to the great prosperity of the society, saying that the enormous increase in its surplus was due to the wisdom and conservatism of its management and to its many successful subsidiary companies and the way in which they had been managed. He concluded by demanding the utter rejection and repudiation of any report that criticised his administration and said he would force an opportunity to let the public know what was behind these attacks.

Mr. Schiff, in his address to the board, declared that no evidence had been produced of any guilt or wrong-doing on the part of the officers named in the Frick report. Mr. Hyde was also warmly defended by Alvin W. Krech.

Concerning the reported reorganization of the executive committee of the society, it is believed that in addition to the vacancies to be filled there will be several more resignations from the committee which probably will be filled from men who are identified with the society in executive capacity. It is understood any director of the society may nominate a candidate for the chairmanship of the board, that in other words this power does not rest solely with the nominating committee.

After the final adjournment, Mr. Ingalls said on leaving the board room:

"It's all gone Hyde's way."

When Mr. Frick came out he said:

"Our report has been practically rejected by the board and I have resigned in disgust. I shall have nothing further to do with Equitable affairs."

Mr. Hyde appeared to be satisfied and Mr. Tarbell seemed pleased. He said that after having been exonerated in the meeting of all blame by such a man as Mr. Schiff, he felt he had reason to be proud. He added that he doubted whether the Frick report would ever be made public.

A WEALTHY CITY.

It is hardly necessary to tell the loyal Duluthian that Duluth is all right, but just the same it helps a lot to be able to tell him something that proves it. It does not add to his confidence in his home town, but it gives him something to tell his friends in less fortunate cities that will convince them.

This week The Herald has been publishing a notable exhibit along this line in the statements of the various banks of the city. The banks of a community are the foundation of its industrial and business fabric. If they are solid and prosperous, it argues conclusively the solidity and prosperity of the city. And Duluth is particularly fortunate in this respect. Its banks are of such a character as to be a credit not only to this city, but to the state, and there are many cities of greater population that might envy Duluth's banking system.

The total deposits of the four banks whose statements were published by The Herald were $14,347,688. Estimating Duluth's population at 75,000, this amounts to over $191 for every man, woman and child in the city. What this means is made clear by the fact that the last statistical abstract published by the department of commerce and labor shows that the money in the United States last year amounted to only $34.29 per capita, against this $191 in Duluth today, according to these bank statements.

Duluth's wealth is out of proportion to her population, therefore, and as a matter of fact this city is fast becoming one of the wealthiest among the smaller cities of the country. Figures for comparison are not available, but there are many cities of larger population that could not make such a showing, and very few in the entire country that can show per capita bank deposits of this size.

Taken at the beginning of the liveliest summer in Duluth's history, these figures, showing that the city is financially in a class far ahead of her population, are exceedingly encouraging.

THE WATER POWER.

Duluthians have thrilled over the news that the power scheme had been financed, and again at the news that work had been started upon its construction. The Herald takes pleasure today in presenting visible evidence of these things in the shape of photographs of the work. Next to taking a trip out to see it, the photographs are valuable to prove what nobody doubted but what everybody is glad to have proved—that work is actually in progress.

More than 1,000 men are engaged in this most important labor, scattered along its seven miles of length, and work is progressing rapidly and with satisfactory smoothness. It all means so much for Duluth that every detail of the work is fraught with the deepest interest for everybody, and its progress will be watched closely by everybody.

For the benefit of those who cannot make the interesting and instructive trip out to look at the actual work, The Herald is offering the next best thing—photographs showing what has been done and what is being done. While the immense sums spent in labor in these preparatory operations are helpful the greatest importance to the city comes, of course, through the development of the water power and its influence in making a manufacturing city out of Duluth.

THEY DON'T HAVE TIME.

You who fill your hours with useful labor and recreation, doesn't it weary your soul to hear people talk about what they would do if they had time?

They would do lots of things if they only had time. There are books that they ought to read, and have been intending to read for many a day, that they are going to read if they ever get time. There are many deeds of charity, of kindness and of public good that they are going to do when they get time. They would go to church oftener if they could find the time. They know they ought to visit and assist the sick and needy, but they cannot find the time. They would write that long-delayed letter to mother if they had time. They would make calls that should have been made long ago, if they had time. They would clean up the back yard if they could find time. They would mow the lawn, clean out the weeds, fix up the fence, paint the porch, if they had time. There are certain developments of their business that they know are feasible, if they could only find time to plan the campaign and carry it out.

Down in their hearts these shiftless squanderers of time know that it is but a pitiful excuse they offer, and that the real reasons are much less creditable to them. It sounds better to put it that way than to admit they are lazy. Pin one of them down to the details of how he uses his time, and he will never make such a statement as that again.

Men that do things always have time. Perhaps they lay out their time on a schedule, with a fixed hour for everything; perhaps they just start in each morning and do; do what their hands find to do and do it with their might. Perhaps as soon as one thing is done they take up another, whether it be work or the recreation that is just as essential. But they do things, and the petty things the trifler is going to do when he has time they turn off daily without thinking about it. The average person who talks about not having time to do certain things wastes over half of the time he does have, and if he put it to systematic use would accomplish twice as much as he does now.

Perhaps it is too much to ask a person to make up a schedule of his hours and follow it to the minute. That might mold one into the deadness of routine, and routine is one of the most insidious and deadly of the little evils that do great harm. But anybody can develop the habit of doing something all of the time, and doing it as if he meant it. Whether it is sleeping, playing, working, planning, it should receive your whole attention, should be begun and ended sharply, should be followed up vigorously and earnestly.

If you are in the habit of putting things off because you haven't time, just for an experiment keep a record of what you do with your hours during one day. You'll find you have been literally throwing away that most precious of all commodities, time, and that you have available, if you want to use it properly, twice as much time as you thought you had.

Do.

GREAT IS MINNESOTA.

While the series of articles by state officers The Herald is running is intended primarily to attract the attention of outsiders to this state, there is matter in all of them that will surprise even old residents of Minnesota. It will do much good, therefore, if they will read them carefully, and then see that they get to somebody outside of the state that ought to know what advantages Minnesota has to offer to those who may make it their home.

For instance, Thursday evening The Herald published an article by Dean W. M. Liggett of the Minnesota School of Agriculture on farming in Minnesota. Dean Liggett reviewed the accomplishments of the state along agricultural lines, showing that Minnesota's wheat and flour have become standards in the world's markets, while within the past few years her butter has taken equal rank with her wheat. The live-stock interests are growing, and the article calls attention to the unexcelled advantages Minnesota offers for those who would go into stock-raising. Then the article shows that owing to the great diversity of soils in the state, and the large areas of vacant public lands, belonging to the state and to the nation, there are opportunities now that are just as good as the state offered in its pioneer days.

"The home-seeker now has all the advantages of good neighbors," says Dean Liggett, "excellent schools, the best of transportation facilities, good markets and established churches. Lawlessness has never been rampant, taxes are low, there is no large state debt for posterity to pay nor repudiated bonds to bar the state's credit. The opportunities for the small farmer to make a comfortable home in Minnesota, engage in diversified farming and receive a fair recompense for his labors are unsurpassed."

These are attractions that few states can offer, and every word of it is true. Minnesota residents who see these articles should read them, that a better knowledge of their own state will breed a greater love for it, and then see that their copy gets to somebody outside of the state whom it may induce to locate here.

If you can be instrumental in bringing one honest, hard-working and progressive settler into the state you have been a valuable factor in its growth.

VALUE OF APPRECIATION.

This world would be much pleasanter as a place of residence, and the lot of humanity would be softer and easier, if everybody was not so terribly afraid of yielding up praise where it is due.

It is not necessary to go into the biographies of the many geniuses that have gone into their graves with starved, broken hearts, lacking the soothing, grateful influence of the recognition that came to them after their death in unmeasured profusion. One word of commendation and appreciation to a live man is worth a whole cemetery full of monuments, a universal chorus of admiration of departed genius, or libraries full of overflowing praise. In these days of omnivorous reading there is less of that failure to recognize genius than there used to be.

But people who are not geniuses, who simply do their duty as it is given to them to do, like appreciation just as much as anybody, and if they earn it they ought to have it. If your employe does things the way you want them done, and you profit by his enterprise, his energy and his forethought, it will not hurt you to yield him his meed of praise for it, and it will do him a lot of good. Of course praise unduly swells the self-esteem of some, but those so weak are hardly likely to do anything meriting any great amount of praise, so this danger is not large. Doubtless some withhold praise where they know it is due for fear of a demand for more wages. This is ignoble, of course, and unnecessary. There are some who regulate all things by the rule of hard cash, but most people will sacrifice a little in salary in return for proper appreciation of their endeavors.

It does not tend by any means to the harmony of relations between employer and employe that should exist, to have nothing but blame go from the employer to the employe. Blame should go where blame is due, but just as surely should praise go to the one that earns it. The just master is he who yields praise and blame precisely where praise and blame belong, and such an employer will always have the esteem and good will of those under him.

Don't be afraid to tell your assistants of it when they do as you would have them do. Neither should you forget to tell them about it when they do as they should not do. But it is just as likely to spoil a good servant to give him only blame as it is to give him only praise. Be just to your workmen, and they will be just and fair with you.

CLEAN YOUR CELLAR.

Is your cellar clean, dry and wholesome? If it is not it ought to be, and it will be just as well to have it fixed that way before the inspector gets around. As announced in The Herald's local columns Thursday evening, the inspectors will begin work next week, and will poke into the 3,000 cellars of Duluth, to see if they contain anything prejudicial to health.

Much ill health is due to carelessness and ignorance on such points as this. There are people, sad to say, that do not know they are inviting disease when they permit noisome rubbish to accumulate in the cellars under their houses. Several of the commonest and most deadly diseases owe their origin almost entirely to such conditions. If there were not people who disregarded the dictates of hygiene in such matters as this, there would be no necessity of the visits of the inspectors that are soon to be made.

It is stated that only 200 cellars were inspected last year, and that 3,000 will be looked into this spring. This is most important work, and it is difficult to see why it has not been thoroughly attended to before. It is true that most people keep their cellars clean and dry because it is much pleasanter to have them so, not to speak of the danger of disease. But there are some who do not, and they are a menace to their own health and that of their neighbors. Hence the necessity and value of this inspection.

Clean out your cellars, and then make sure the back yard is as clean and decent as the front yard. In that way you will not only do yourself the favor of improving your surroundings and lessening your chances of acquiring disease, but you will be doing your community a useful service.

APREDICTION.

Experience has a tendency to make discerning people cautious about venturing predictions on the outcome of elections, but The Herald is going to risk one, and it has not much fear of the outcome, either.

The board of education last evening decided to submit to popular vote at the election to be held July 15 the question of whether the money received from the sale of bonds issued at the last election shall be put into a manual training school or into a new grade school in the central portion of the city.

In the opinion of The Herald, nine out of ten citizens will say that if a grade school is needed, there is absolutely no question to be determined, and that the money should go to that use without a second thought. And these people will not be opponents of the manual training idea, either. It is in the grade schools that the essentials of education are taught. Manual training, while valuable, is not by any means an essential. It is a good thing to have if it can be had conveniently, and without the sacrifice of more necessary things. On the other hand the grade school is something that cannot be dispensed with, and that must be had, no matter how many educational trimmings are sacrificed to get it.

The board has acted wisely, since it was in doubt, in referring the matter to the voters. It seems that there is not money enough for both, the Glen Avon school having consumed more than was expected and the bids for the manual training school amounting to more than was hoped for, and one or the other will have to be sacrificed. It appears to The Herald that good judgment and sound common sense will dictate the expenditure of the money in a grade school if the choice is as stated. As The Herald believes that the voice of the mass of the voters is the voice of common sense, it predicts, therefore, that the vote will be for the grade school.

The construction of a new grade school will permit the removal of enough pupils from the high school building to give the manual training work ample quarters there, without giving it a building of its own. On the other hand, if the manual training department were moved to a building of its own, this would provide quarters in the high school building sufficient to meet the demands for grade school space. So the question is not so serious, even, as it would seem at first glance. The people, however, on the ground that grade schools are more important than manual training schools, will undoubtedly vote as indicated above.

Hotel Gossip.

"A good deal of doubt is expressed in Bemidji as to whether the two railroads now building northward, toward the Red Lake country, will both be constructed clear through to the lake," said J. A. George of Bemidji at the St. Louis. "It is a certainty that the one first started, and the one which has the backing of the town, will be built along the lines originally mapped out, but several claim that the Shevlin-Carpenter line, with a survey running parallel to the other, and from only two to six miles away, will not be finished, although Mr. Shevlin asserts that rails will be laid to the lake.

"The Shevlin interests were not at all agreeable to the Bemidji-Red Lake line as first proposed. Mr. Shevlin said there was not enough business to support two roads, and that the one he intended building would suffice for all needs. The people appeared to be of the opinion that there was nothing sure about his proposed line, however, and when the other proposition came up they enthusiastically rallied to its support. The plan was for the town to furnish the right-of-way, with one or two other provisions along this line, while outsiders would stand the expense of construction. The idea worked out all right and the right-of-way was secured without any great difficulty being encountered. Large crews of men have been at work for some little time past, and things are progressing nicely. A trestle work has already been constructed across Lake Irwin. The road, when completed, will measure about forty miles in length. Between Nebish and Red Lake the logging railroad now in use there will be made a part of the new line.

"Work has also been started on the Shevlin-Carpenter road. As both lines cover practically the same territory, the one starting at Bemidji and the other four or five miles west, it seems hardly practical for Mr. Shevlin to persist in pushing his line through. His company controls a large amount of timber in the Red Lake country, however, and there may be enough of it to make the line a paying proposition. A good many logs will be hauled over both roads.

"Bemidji is coming to be quite a railroad center. This makes four lines touching there, the Great Northern and the Minnesota & International being the other two. The Soo line, it is believed, will as good as pass through the town, for, according to common report, it will connect with the Bemidji-Red Lake line a few miles north of Bemidji. It is now regarded as a certainty that the Soo will extend through from Thief River Falls to Duluth as soon as circumstances will permit. A crew of surveyors have been working on the proposed right-of-way for several weeks, and have now gotten this side of Bemidji. All this means the rapid development of one of the finest farming sections in the state, for that matter the country is unsurpassed for agricultural purposes."

"As long as I have been a resident of Northern Minnesota, and interested in the land and timber business, I have never used my homestead right," said A. B. Clair of Grand Rapids, Minn., at the St. Louis. "It is more than likely to be a losing proposition in the end, at least to a man who does not intend taking up his permanent residence on the government land, and farming it, particularly if he is married.

"It is a well established fact that a large per cent of the claims taken in the past have been more for speculative purposes than anything else, and that the people who filed on them, later proving up, never really lived on the land at all, but paid only occasional visits to it, making such small improvements as the law required. The time they took in doing this extended over a period of five years, and all the while they were losing time from their regular business, risking the chance of contest, and expending money in going to and from their homesteads and in making improvements, so that when they finally did gain title to them they had in many instances put more time and money into the proposition than it was worth.

"Nowadays a contest is very likely to be brought against a person who does not actually reside on the homestead on which he has filed, and this means a lot of time and money wasted and a probable loss of the land, unless the fellow who contests is bought off, which generally takes from $100 up, depending upon the value of the land in controversy. In a timber country the only reasonable and safe way is to file on the land under the timber and stone act. At first glance it would seem that this was the most expensive method, but investigation and experience have shown conclusively that in the long run it is the cheapest. Of course it is different where a man really intends to move onto the homestead with his family and start to farming right away. Filing under the homstead law is all right in a case of this kind. It should not be understood that I mean a man should swear falsely in order to make a stone and timber entry. If you will look over the records at the local land office you will see that the big majority of government claims are stone and timber, and probably there were few instances where the filers were not justified in taking the land under this act, for investigation will show that it is at the present time more valuable for the timber on it than for anything else, and in this case it is proper to make a stone and timber entry."

Tribute to Mexican Heroes.

Boston Transcript: It was a thoughtful, generous impulse that moved the United States sailors and marines who escorted the remains of the late Mexican ambassador to the city of Mexico to place a wreath of laurel upon the monument to the Mexican cadets who died in defense of Chapultepec against the Americans in 1847. In the Mexican war the victory was always with us, but did not monopolize all the courage nor all the devotion. Chapultepec is the West Point of Mexico, and the Mexican cadets fought like heroes against the invaders.

The Weather.

The joyous weather of the past week has continued so long, and conditions were so threatening today to the untrained observer, that many have feared that Sunday would bring a northeaster, with its dreaded cold winds and rain. The weather man, however, reads it differently, and predicts warmer weather, though there will be showers tonight and tomorrow. The showers began to show up before noon today, though the conditions were by no means unpleasant this morning.

But there cannot always be sunshine, and it is just as well that it is so, for otherwise folks would be unable to appreciate the blessing of fine weather. Those who have lived in lands of perpetual sunshine, where for long seasons the days brought forth nothing but fine weather, testify that it gets fearfully monotonous, and that they longed at times for a break in it.

Last night and this morning there was a mixture of cloud and smoke that made it difficult to tell just what conditions actually were, but it was cooler, and the winds mostly brought with them the coolness of the lake. It was cool last night, and comfortably cool this morning, and the worst feature was not that conditions were unpleasant, but that they seemed to hint of unpleasanter things to come. For those content to let future unpleasantnesses take care of themselves, and to enjoy the present without borrowing trouble, things were satisfactory up to the first coming of the rain shortly before noon.

The weather man's view of the outlook is that there will be brisk southwesterly winds tonight and tomorrow, with warmer weather and showers.

A low pressure area central over Western Canada caused showers from the Dakotas and Manitoba west to the coast, and a similar depression off the New England coast had a similar effect in the Ohio valley and North Atlantic states. The Northwest continued to have warm weather, and winds in the lake country were generally light and westerly.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Gospel According to June

Here's June, dear June!
Now God be praised for June!

Fundamentally, there is but one gospel, the proclamation of the fact that love and good will are at the heart of the universe. But that gospel has many interpreters. Its highest expression is in human life, for, as the poet, Whittier has so well said:

"The dear Lord's best interpreters
Are hnumble human souls.
The gospel of a life like theirs
Is more than books and scrools."

And there was one life centuries ago in the world which by common consent boded forth most perfectly this gospel of love and good will. And of that perfect expression there were several interpreters. Matthew put upon it a coloring of his own, and so did Mark and Luke and John.

But there are other renderingcs of the gospel, too, apart from books and apart from lives, and as the glory of June days comes upon us, as the sky is like sapphire over our heads, as the long golden sumer days possess the earth and bird and flower and shrub and tree make their special contribution to the one enchanting impression we are worse than the lower animals if we, too, do not feel a thrill of hope such as comes only with June.

June's gospel is one of life. The budding, blossoming world about us makes death and decay seem out of place in this universe. When a branch is alive to its very tips, when the meadows are carpeted with living green, when the birds stretch their little throats to pour forth their melody, we know that the end of all being is life and not death. That is what man was made for, not for winter, not for the grave.

And June's gospel is one of beauty, transient, it is true, but almost supernal while it lasts, with its constant appeal to the eye through the blending of harmonious colors and to the ear through the hum of insects at high noon and the song of the nightingale and the plantive cry of the whippoorwill through the short nights. The old bishop in Victor Hugo's immortal story, "Les Miserables," when remonstrated with for taking so much interest in his beautiful garden, replied, "The beautiful is also useful." And that lesscn we, too, need to learn, that all the rich golden beauty of this finest month of the year is meant to serve the life of man.

June speaks once more of joy. Lowell, in the poem, "The Vision of Sir Launfal," which we all ought to read before this month runs its course, says:

"Joy comes, grief goes, we know not how;
Everything is happy now.
Everything is upward striving;
'Tis as easy now for the heart to be true
As for grass to be green or skies to be blue—
'Tis the natural way of living."

What wonder that June should be the month of weddings, of happy school graduations and reunions? Nature is at the flood-tide of her joyous life. Why should the heart of man be sad?

For a man to live through the thirty days of June and not become a better man is to be gospel-hardened indeed. He need not go far from the scene of his daily labors. He can look up into an Italian sky as he makes his way to office or factory. He can open ears and eyes to the miracles which nature is daily working along his pathway. And if he has tired a little or become indifferent to the gospel according to books of theology, if the ringing of the church bell has no charm for him, let June speak through its quickly passing scenes of loveliness. All that is best within him will be stirred to reverence if he will but listen.

THE PARSON.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: When a girl looks as if she wouldn't flirt it is a sign she is waiting for a chance.

There is no use in being so smart that people suspect your jokes aren't your own.

If a man didn't smoke and drink he could spend twice as much money trying to find some other pleasure to take their place.

Girls are so funny about their looks they won't have their photographs taken unless they are wearing becoming garter ribbons.

It makes a woman awfully sleepy to want to stay awake and catch her husband in a fib the next morning about what time he came home.

Just to Please Cissy.

Boston Herald: Oliver Herford is as obliging as he is clever. Just to please Cissy Loftus he was married offhand the day before Miss Loftus sailed for England. The bride was his editorial mate, Miss Margaret Regan, Ph. D., of Victoria college, and Cissy Loftus' bosom friend and chum at school. She knew they were sweet on each other, and so she set her merry heart on seeing them married before she went off. She arranged all the details of the ceremony by telephone, and was the "fairy godmother-in-law" of the whole affair. Happy Herford!

BAYHA & CO.,

Corner Second Ave. West and First St.

There was nothing doing. The masher stood on the corner and was wondering where all the girls could be keeping themselves. It was a warm spring evening, and according to all the laws of nature the young ladies should have been out in force. But they were not. This fact explains his general air of dejection. He had started out with the expectation of an evening of idle amusement at the hands of a person who had started out with the same intention, but thus far he had met with nothing but disappointment.

The young fellow was not a bad-looking masher, as mashers go. He was of medium height and well built. His general appearance, in fact, might easily lead one to believe that it was not from necessity that he occupied a street corner in walt for congenial company of the opposite sex. His clothes were tailor-made, and there was nothing particularly flashy about them. His hat was in keeping with the rest of his attire, and he had a perfectly adorable mustache, which he twirled automatically at regular intervals.

While many women passed his way, they all appeared to be either too old to suit his purpose, or else they already had escorts. Some of them looked at him in a way that appealed to his personal vanity, however, and this was encouraging. If it had not been for this he might not have held out so long, and would thus have missed the reward which was in store for him. This would have been sad, indeed.

As it was he was very nearly discouraged, and was seriously considering the question of whether he had not better move along, when two promising subjects loomed up on the horizon. More correctly speaking, two trimly dressed and rather attractive young women appeared half a block up the street, and they were walking in his direction. His hopes rose several degrees, and stood about 98 in the shade, until the girls had drawn near enough for him to see their faces clearly, and then the aforesaid hopes began to drop rapidly toward the zero mark again, for his practiced eye was not long in telling his intelligent mind that he stood small chance there. The two possible victims of his gentle wiles were evidently of a higher social level than any with whom he had hoped to come in contact. Their good breeding and evident fitness to move in the better society circles were so very apparent that he quickly decided it would be of no use for him to "butt in." And so he said nothing, and made no overtures when they passed him by, although a sigh of regret, scarcely audible to anyone save himself, did escape from his inner regions.

The two girls turned the corner and started up the hill. It was rather dark up the hill. The eyes of the masher followed them with interest. He was almost tempted to follow them, but his better sense warned him back. Then he smiled with unholy glee as two other young fellows, swinging rapidly down the street, confidently turned the corner and followed along in the wake of the girls. He readily recognized the true state of affairs. They were also mashers. They were twice as many as he was, but he knew their combined judgment was not so good as his. This is why he chuckled a chuckle of satisfaction. He decided he might as well see the fun, for there was nothing else doing, as has been mentioned somewhere else in this literary effort, and, besides, a half-formed idea had already taken up a prominent position in his mind, and was speedily taking on a useful shape. So he swung in behind the two young men who were following the two young ladies.

The procession proceeded up the hillside. The masher chuckled again, and wished that one of his friends was there in the darkness with him, so that he might more truly enjoy the situation, and so that he might have help when the proper time arrived. But there was small chance of the company he desired, and he kept on after the four in front. The distance between the four was lessening at a rapid rate. The possible victims, after a glance of trepidation behind them, had slackened their pace to a noticeable degree. The masher knew they did this because they wanted the two men behind to pass them, and he also knew that the two men thought the slowing up was an intentional sign of encouragemnt. He pitied their ignorance, and their lack of discernment. What chumps they were, to be sure.

But the crisis was fast approaching, and he quickened his pace. Everything would be spoiled if he were not on hand at the critical moment. So he quickened his pace. Because he did this he was only a few short steps behind the two mashers, when they addressed the two girls.

"Beautiful evening, isn't it?" he plainly heard one of the males inquire. Here was his opportunity. He would proffer his services to the fair maids in distress, and they, in their unsuspecting gratitude, would smile upon him with favor, and would naturally allow him to walk home with them, and would probably even invite him into the house and let him enjoy something to eat in their charming presence. He had heard a friend tell of such an experience in another town. In this fashion had the portals of society been opened to the friend in question, and he had lived happily ever after.

The young woman, or one of them murmured an indignant reply, and threw a look of scorn, not unmixed with fear, at the bold mashers. The lone masher did not exactly catch the words of the possible victim, but he knew the reply was indignant, nevertheless, and the rays of the electric light at the next corner were bright enough to disclose the look of scorn and fear. He stepped gallantly and quickly forward.

"I beg your pardon, ladies," he interrupted, "but may I not offer my assistance?" Then he turned to the surprised beings in male attire. "Confound your impudence," he said savagely, "Can't you see you are not wanted here? Can't a decent girl walk the streets of Duluth at night without being insulted?"

One of the men thus addressed laughed derisively. "Well, I'll be damned," he said expressively.

"You will be worse than that if you don't clear out and allow these young ladies to go on their way unmolested," said the lone masher, very determinedly.

The one of the two who had not yet spoken, silently, but eloquently entered the argument at this juncture, by planting his right fist with an unearthly jolt on the jaw of the lone masher, quickly following it up with a left hander over the right eye.

"Clear out yerself, and call around when youse is wanted," he ejaculated. He said this rather loud, so the lone masher, who was lying on his back a considerable distance away, might hear the more easily.

The young women laughed gleefully.

"Kiss me fer a ninny, George, if that weren't the prettiest blow I ever saw struck. Hit 'im ag'in in the same place, just to work up a good appetite fer that supper you promised us."

"What in h— is the matter with you, Bill, why don't you get busy?" interjected the other. "How's a girl of my respectability going to love a man that is afraid to offer his services when she is insulted by a stranger?

Thus admonished, Bill made a rush for the lone masher, who had by this time regained his feet, and landed a short-arm jolt on his ribs. The victim gave back in kind, and might not have fared badly if the girl of respectability had not whacked him severely across the face with her umbrella, blinding him a moment, and giving Bill time to put in two knock-out blows.

The lone masher again assumed an ungraceful posture on the stone sidewalk.

"Good-bye, honey, we must leave you," chorused the four, as they walked away, arm in arm.

But the lone masher did not hear them. He was, for the time being, dead to the world.

There is a young man in Duluth who recently became convinced that there was more to astronomical fortune telling than is generally supposed. He became interested to such an extent that he sent $2.50 to an Eastern individual to find out the course in life the stars had mapped out for him. He says he did not get his money's worth, but expresses the opinion that he ran against a fakir, for, he asserts, there are fakirs in all callings, the truth of which statements will be readily recognized. To show his belief in this contention he has sent a dollar to another individual in the West, for the same purpose, but until the results of the last venture are known he will have to rest content with the following $2.50 worth:

"According to your date of birth the sign Virgo, which Aquarius rules, was rising at the time, and therefore Aquarius is your ruling planet.

"We note that you have many friends and especially one, but at the same time, you are not without an enemy. Be extremely cautious. In fact, let caution be your watchword. Also beware of anything that tends toward public scandal.

"You are a person of much force and push, but are often misguided, and in many things were you to proceed at the right time, when conditions are favorable, as would be pointed out to you in our full life reading, which would indicate the right time and conditions.

"The sun in the house of money denotes power and wealth, which should be your in part if not wholly, were you rightly guided. In the near future there are several transits which will greatly affect your whole life. There will be changes for you and in many ways. Some whom you have not trusted you will learn to rely on and others you will discard. There will be changes in business, health and maybe surroundings.

"Life has in store much for which you should be most thankful, and the ensuing year should be one of the luckies in your whole life, bringing success, wealth, happiness and general satisfaction, greater, perhaps, than you can now imagine.

"In conclusion, this reading does not and could not include the minute and more important details of your life, as contained in the $25 life reading, hence the vacant squares on the horoscope page. These require separate calculations. This delineation is only the beginning of your life's story, and the most interesting and important points to you are yet to come.

"Later: Your $25 life reading indicates many wonderful things. A great surprise is indicated. You need advice on money matters. Saturn indicates that you have enemies near you. Jupiter indicates that you have a friend who will save you. Mercury denotes a change of affairs or residence or visit from one at a distance or sickness or death of a friend. This will all be explained in the $25 life reading, which will also include needed advice on money matters. All this will be sent immediately on receipt of the price. You should write at once, as an important crisis in your life that we can give with the help of the planets, is fast approaching."

He was a little fellow, not more than 8 or 9 years old. His general appearance and manner stamped him as a newsboy. He had to stand on tiptoe to bring his eyes on a level with the top of the counter which shuts The Herald business force from the out outside world. His face wore an anxious, eager expression when he entered the office on the morning of Memorial day, and he seemed intent upon getting a piece of information when he approached the subscription window.

"Please, mister," he said, with a seriousness of manner that dispelled all doubt of his sincerity of purpose, can't you get out the paper early today so I can go fishin'?"

The man to whom this rather startling query was addressed was pleased to inform the little merchant that The Herald would come off the press at noon, allowing him plenty of time to go fishing, and he departed on his way with a happy smile which pronounced him on good terms with the world in general and The Herald force in particular.

GREATEST BOON TO MANKIND

REV. H. STEUBENVOLL, D. D.

Rev. H. Steubenvoll, D. D., of Allison, Iowa, Considers Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey Should be Reckoned Among the Great Blessings of the Earth.

The Distinguished Clergyman Was the Victim of a Persistent Lung Trouble, Which Defied All Medical Treatment, But Today He Is Well and Strong, Thanks to This Great Medicine.

"I Shall Be Glad to Answer Inquiries That Are Mailed Me In Regard to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey; It Is the Greatest Boon Known to Mankind." He Writes:

"I can say from my own personal experience that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the greatest boon known to mankind. I know of ministers and doctors who use and recommend it, and I have used it personally for lung trouble with signal success; in fact we are never without it in our home. I shall be glad to answer inquiries that are mailed to me in regard to your product, which I consider should be reckoned among the great blessings of the earth."—Rev. H. Steubenvoll, D. D., Allison, Iowa.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is an absolutely pure distillation of malt. It is a tonic stimulant recommended by thousands of hale and hearty old men and women. It arrests the progress of physical decay, strengthens the heart, enriches the blood, nourishes the vital forces and drives out disease. Doctors say it is "a form of food already digested," as it agrees with the most delicate stomach.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey cures coughs, colds, consumption, bronchitis, grip, catarrh, asthma, pneumonia and all diseases of the throat and lungs; indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles; nervousness, malaria and all low fevers. It is prescribed and used by over 7,000 doctors. Used exclusively in over 2,000 hospitals. It is a promoter of good health and long life; makes the old young and the young strong. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey contains no fusel oil and is the only whiskey recognized by the Government as medicine.

CAUTION—When you ask for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey look for the "Old Chemist" trade-mark and be sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Cheap imitations are positively dangerous. Duffy's is sold by all druggists and grocers, or direct, $1.00 a bottle. Medical booklet and doctors' advice free. Address Duffy Pure Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

SULTAN DECLINES THE FRENCH PROPOSITIONS.

firmation is withheld, it is now generally accepted here that the report from Tangier to the effect that the sultan of Morocco had declined the French propositions for the reform of Morocco unless approved by an international conference, was correct. This was widely commented upon as amounting to a check, if not a failure of the French mission sent to Fez as well as a check to the entire French policy in Morocco.

THE PRESIDENT ADVISES PEACE

Tells Count Cassini It Is Time For Russia to Act.

Washington, June 3.—The president, today, struck a blow for peace in the Far East. In a conference at the White House yesterday afternoon, with Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, he expressed the earnest hope that Russia would forthwith conclude peace with Japan.

Prolongation of the war, he believes, will not result in victory for the Russian arms and can only serve to increase Japan's demands and render more difficult the drafting of a treaty of peace, which the czar as well as the mikado can sign.

The president spoke, he said, as the friend of Russia, no less than of Japan and on behalf not only of the Washington government, but in the interest of humanity.

Until his words have reached Tsarkoe Selo and have been communicated to Emperor Nicholas in the friendly spirit in which they were uttered, their effect cannot be estimated.

Soon after reaching his embassy Count Cassini began the preparation of a dispatch to his government. Neither at the White House nor at the Russian embassy could a formal statement regarding the conference be obtained.

Ore Shoot Struck on Jo Dandy Property.

Colorado Springs, Col., June 3.—J. M. Wright, operating the Jo Dandy property on Beacon Hill, has opened up nine feet of ore that is averaging three ounces of gold to the ton. The ore shoot was encountered in the bottom of a winze sunk below the bottom level. Now that the ore shoot has been proven up the operators will push the work of sinking the shaft an additional 100 or 300 feet, in order to obtain stoping ground.

Shipments from the Forest Queen, located on Ironclad Hill, over which there has been so much litigation of late, now amount to about two carloads of ore a day. It is understood that the ore is running around $40 to the ton in gold.

The recent developments in the bottom level of the Cresson property, at a depth of 600 feet, is so encouraging that the management would not be surprised by opening up one of the bonanzas of the camp any day. During the last week the management has taken out a total of five carloads of ore, every bit of which will return values of $30 in gold to the ton. A cage is to be immediately installed, and the shaft from the 300-foot level to the surface is being fixed so that guides can be put in.

Six cars of ore were loaded out from the company workings on the Gold Sovereign yesterday, and two more will go out in the morning. This came from shaft No. 1. The mineral will average $30 a ton. The lessees on shaft No. 2, known as the Whisper shaft, operated by Myers and Haas, is producing about two cars a week. The lessees have opened a good body of ore at the 400-foot level, Lessee Hall of Victor, who is operating on shaft No. 3, has made a fine strike at the 400-foot level of the Lovett vein, and will ship two cars of ore this week that will run between $20 and $30 a ton.

Carpenter and Maxfield, who are working on the Pharmacist, through the Burns shaft, on the Acacia, are shipping a car a week of $100 ore from a two-fold veing of this grade, which they have exposed. They are also sacking a high grade of mineral from the rich core, and kep a guard at the the mine to prevent ore stealing.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It Is In Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much-improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Washington Post: A church is justified in accepting any kind of money, on the theory that it may save the wealth from being used for some disreputable purpose.

Philadelphia North American: Dr. Washington Gladden speaks of financiers who "achieve wealth by unscrupulous methods." It does not necessarily follow, however, that the doctor has been making a study of the Philadelphia gas situation.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: The union of the Baptist church, North and South, just accomplished in St. Louis, is a most gratifying evidence of the growing harmony and co-operation among people of all sections of the country. One people, one destiny, one concentrated effort for what is right and best, is a good platform to stand on.

St. Louis Republic: Rockefeller implied, in a little conversation which he had with a clergyman, that the idea of consolidating the churches is right because, in his opinion, the trust system "is beneficial to civilization." Possibly a better reason for harmonious action by the churches is that such a policy would destroy the trust system's efforts toward civilization.

Pittsburg Chronicle: Bishop Potter's criticism of the Young Men's Christian Association of Pittsburg for refusing to admit an actor to membership may be just, but inasmuch as the bishop made a record for extreme liberality in opening a saloon with a religious service and starting it off with the blessing of the church, so far as he was able to bless, there will naturally arise in many minds the question of whether he is authority worth considering on the point of what the Young Men's Christian association in Pittsburg or elsewhere ought to do. In view of what the bishop has done, many will believe that it is not improbable that he would advocate the establishment of bars in Young Men's Christian association buildings for the dispensation of liquor under Young Men's Christian association auspices, and with this in mind the Young Men's Christian association will probably concern itself less about the good bishop's opinion than about the opinions of many less conspicuous persons. Let us not be misunderstood, however, as endorsing a policy of exclusion of actors from the Young Men's Christian association, for their profession and for no other reason. We don't endorse it.

Interscholastic Field Day Will Take Place Next Saturday and Duluth Is Expected to Make Good Showing—Comparative Records Show Well—Cast For Senior Play.

Next Saturday the local school will send a track team to Ironwood to enter the five-cornered meet that is to be held at that place between the high schools of Ironwood, Bessemer, Ashland, Duluth and Superior.

The men who will go down are, as far as is at present known, together with the events in which they will participate: Robert Smith, 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, 440 yard dash; Nelson, hammer throw, shot put, discus throw, and high jump; Whittle, pole vault; Maginnis, 100 yard dash, high and low hurdles, broad jump; Parks, shot put, discus throw, hammer throw; Bradley, high jump; Boden and Jaques, mile run, half mile run, and 440 yard dash.

The boys think that they have a good chance of winning, basing their conclusions upon the figures that were brought forth in the track meet that was recently held between the schools composing the Upper Peninsula Interscholastic association, in which Ironwood and Bessemer took part. The latter seems to be the formidable of the two, while the others are as yet unknown quantities.

In comparing the records made at this meet and those made at the inter-class meet that was held at the driving park last Saturday afternoon, an idea of Ironwood's and Bessemer's strength may be obtained. In the Upper Peninsula meet Calumet won the 440 yard dash in 59 3-5 seconds, neither Ironwood nor Bessemer securing a place, while Smith of the locals has a record of 59 seconds. Le Roy Zeh of Bessemer won the 220 yard dash in 24 seconds, while Smith made it in 23 3-5 seconds in the class meet. In the 100 yard dash Bessemer took third place, the best time being 11 seconds, which is equalled by Smith's record. In the pole vault the best distance made was 8 feet 3 inches, whereas the second best vault in the local meet equals that. In the broad jump Ironwood made 17 feet 9¾ inches, and Maginnis has 18 feet 6 inches to his credit. In the high jump the best distance was 4 feet 10 inches, Bessemer taking third place, and in this event Bradley cleared 4 feet 8 inches.

In the weight and distance events, however, the locals are rather weak. Hollander of Bessemer has 101 feet 2 inches to his credit in the hammer throw, while the local's best was 99 feet 2 inches by Nelson. In the discus throw the record made was 93 feet, while Parks of the locals won out on 80 feet 7 inches. In the shot put, however, Duluth will undoubtedly take first place, as the record at the Upper Peninsula meet was 38 feet 5 inches, neither Ironwood nor Bessemer securing a place. Parks put the shot two inches further than this last Saturday.

Some difficulty has been met with through the fact that some of those who took firsts and seconds in the inter-class meet are not up in their lessons, and are thus disqualified. If it were not for this a much stronger team could be sent to represent the locals. But in spite of this handicap the boys are confident of carrying away the laurels. They are in constant training and will undoubtedly be able to improve upon the records that they made last Saturday in a large number of cases.

The association embracing the five above named schools was formed about two months ago for the purpose of furthering the interest in track athletics in the various schools. In the local school, at least, it has had a very beneficial effect, as the men have been turning out in larger numbers and paying more attention to their training.

This afternoon the Duluth high school baseball team are playing the Superior aggregation in Superior. The teams have each won one game, Duluth taking the first, and the swamp jumpers the second. They are now playing off the tie, and without doubt the contest will be close and exciting. The line-up follows:

Duluth—	Position.	Superior—
McLean	catcher	Burch
Cook	pitcher	Young
Furni	first base	A. Buchanan
Deetz	second base	H. Buchanan
McDevitt	third base	Hendrickson
Cargill	short stop	Cowdin
Crasweller	left field	McGraw
Harrison	right field	Ross
Bowen	center field	Stack

Last Wednesday afternoon the freshmen defeated the sophomores in a rather slow game of baseball. The contest was one-sided from the start and was void of exciting features.

The line-up was as follows:

Freshmen—	Position.	Sophomores—
Spencer	catcher	Baryett
Cook	pitcher	Maginnis
McFarland	first base	McDavitt
Porter	second base	Cole
Whittle	third base	Clausen
Cargill	short stop	Ashley

THE SENIOR PLAY.

Cast That Will Present It Class Night.

The cast of the senior play that is to be given on class night in place of the history, the prophecy and the last will and testament, has been finally selected. It is as follows:

Miss Lillian Stewart .....Hazel Owens
Miss Kathryn Howard....Kathryn Hoopes
Miss Elizabeth Everett..Elizabeth Sharvy
Miss Alice Howard, alias Aunt Selina Winthrop ..... Agnes Johnson
Guy Richards..... Fred Buck
Charles Brewster ..... Robert Jaques
Roy Vincent ..... Edward Furni
Dr. Imhoff ..... Walter McCarthy

The play that the class will put on is a three-act comedy entitled "Men, Maids and Matchmakers." It is of an exceedingly humorous nature and will without doubt make a big impression. Prof. A. F. Gustance has charge of the program and the music.

Those who will participate have all had previous experience in the senior play that was given early in the spring for the purpose of raising funds with which to publish the Zenith.

School Notes.

Next year will see a great change in the personnel of the faculty of the high school. A large number of the teachers have resigned for various reasons; some to enter into other and more profitable lines of business, some because of the shortening of the school year to nine months, which deprives them of a month's salary, and at least one of the women teachers will enter the holy bonds of matrimony. Among those who are leaving this year are Mr. Towne of the physic department, Mr. Ferguson of the chemistry department, Mr. Church, who teaches freshmen and sophomore mathematics, Miss White, Miss Stearns and Miss Palmer of the lower English department, Mr. Hutchinson of the manual training department, Mr. Campbell, who teaches bookkeeping, commercial arithmetic and commercial law, and Mr. Thomas, who teaches senior English. It is probable that other changes may occur during the summer, as is usually the case.

It is important that all the students in the junior and sophomore years decide as soon as possible whether or not they are going to college and what college or university they expect to attend in order that they may arrange their studies for next year accordingly. In all of the courses there are several elective subjects for the junior and senior years, with the end in view of fitting the students for the various schools of higher education, and it is highly important that the pupil decide this question as soon as possible if he wishes to avoid difficulties in the future. It would be well for all those who expect to go further than the high school to consult Principal Smith about the requirements of the school that they wish to attend.

Next Friday evening the senior class will hold its second spread in the high school building. Extensive preparations are being made for the affair, which, it is expected, will eclipse anything of the kind that has ever been given by any of the classes. The members of the class will gather early in the evening to enjoy the spread and listen to the toasts by their classmates, the faculty, and the various class presidents. The other classes are invited to come at 8 o'clock to join the graduates in the dance that will be given in the lower hall.

Next Saturday the members of the Agassiz club will go up the St. Louis river on their annual outing. Each year the club takes an extensive trip for the purpose of enjoying the beauties of nature as well as to derive pleasure from the outing. The organization was started with a view to giving those who wished to continue their studies of nature an opportunity to do so, and every second Friday its members meet in the biological laboratory to listen to a paper on some animal or tree that is of special interest. The article is generally written by one of the students, and after it has been read the entire club discusses the more interesting phases of the subject.

The school enjoyed a much needed vacation last Tuesday. Of course the weather is warm, and it's hard to study, but then remember there are only four more weeks of school.

INSANE WOMAN ENDS LIFE.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Centerview, Mo., June 3.—W. H. Andrus, a farmer living near here, cut his wife's head off with a hedge knife and then shot his own head off. The man's daughter attempted to prevent him from killing himself by running away with his shotgun, but he overtook her, secured the gun, wrote a note of farewell and then killed himself over his wife's body. His note stated that domestic troubles had caused the tragedy.

REFERS QUESTION TO THE ELECTORS

Voters Will Dispose of Manual Training School Problem.

Seven Candidates Nominated For Positions on School Board.

After struggling for four years to get a satisfactory and yet economical solution of the problem of a manual training building, the board of education last evening decided to put the proposition up to the people at the next school board election to be held on July 15.

The special committee consisting of Directors Codding, Le Tourneau, Stevens, Smith and Moe, which was appointed to investigate what was best to be done, reported that in their opinion the manual training quarters could be maintained in the high school in the present quarters, if some unnecessary material and some partitions were removed. The committee recommended that a new grade school be constructed in place of the manual training building.

Director Washburn moved a substitute motion.

"I am in accordance with the recommendation," he said, "although I do not want to go on record as adopting some of the language of the report. Since the voters voted to construct this manual training building, and since there is an election next month, I would move that the matter be submitted to the people for instruction on the question in the following manner: 'Shall a portion of the bonds be used to construct a grade school in the center of the city instead of a manual training building?'

"This board has been criticised by some people who have a right to do so. It has also been criticised by some who have no right or never will have a right to criticise it for anything it does, however bad.

"To submit this question to the voters means to take away any chance to make mistakes that we have used the money voted for one purpose, for another."

"Mr. Washburn's ideas are along the line of those I have had myself," said Mr. Phelps, "and I now have lying on my desk a form of motion which would lay three alternatives before the people. I am a great believer in the referendum, and the intelligence and good sense of the Duluth people. I have seen that good sense demonstrated time and again, and unlike a certain member of the legislature, I think the voters are entirely capable of deciding what they want. If we can be backed up by the people on this problem which has so puzzled us, it would be the best thing we could do."

"I am fully in accord with what has been said," said Director Moe. "It is the only proper method to pursue."

Mr. Hendricks also expressed himself in favor of the motion, and it carried without opposition.

• • •

Petitions asking that the names of eight candidates for directors on the school board, be placed on the ballots at the approaching election, were received.

The names of the candidates, with the number of signers to the petitions asking for their nomination, are as follows:

Frank Smith	1,920
J. J. Le Tourneau	1,321
B. N. Wheeler	1,272
G. I. Mallory	246
E. R. Cobb	124
L. D. Campbell	81
George H. Hargreaves	59
H. H. Phelps	23

Mr. Phelps had previously announced that he could not possibly be a candidate for re-election on account of the time he is compelled to give to the affairs of the water board. He moved that all names with the exception of his own be placed on the ballot. Mr. Washburn moved an amendment that three blank spaces be also left for the names of any other candidates who might be desired, and the amended motion carried.

A form of ballot in accordance with the motion, was drawn up and adopted.

The resignation of W. J. Ferguson, instructor in the chemistry department, was received and accepted, and the board instructed Superintendent Denfeld and Principal Smith to negotiate for a successor to fill the vacancy caused by his resignation. They were also directed to negotiate for a successor to Mr. Towne, who has not signed a contract to return.

R. S. Butler of Racine was engaged as head of the commercial department at a salary of $1,100 per year, and J. P. Neal of Cambridge, Mass., and Miss Ella Shields of Worcester, O., were engaged to fill the vacancies caused by the resignations of J. W. Thomas and Miss Stella Stearns, at salaries of $900 and $750 respectively.

The contract for the wiring of the new J. L. Washburn school was let to the Duluth Electrical Construction company, which was the lowest of five bidders, in the sum of $1,150.

• • •

The buildings and grounds committee was instructed to adopt some system of satisfying themselves that all loads of coal received for the coming winter's use, are correct. While the members of the board were unwilling to throw any aspersions on the coal companies, they expressed themselves as feeling bound to allow no mistakes to be made where the amount of coal purchased is so large.

GREAT MEN'S LETTERS.

One By President Roosevelt Sold For $16.

The following letter, written nearly twenty-four years ago by President Theodore Roosevelt, just after his election to the legislature, was among the autographs in the collection of Gen. James Grant Wilson sold by the Merwint-Clayton company in this city yesterday afternoon, says the New York Sun.

6 West Fifty-seventh Street.
Nov. 10, '81.

My Dear Sir: Allow me to thank you very sincerely for your kind note and your efforts on my behalf.

I am a very young man to go to the legislature, and I hardly know whether to be most pleased with the confidence my friends have placed in me, or anxious lest I should disappoint them.

In great haste I am yours very truly,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

This sold for $16. A second letter of President Roosevelt to Gen. Wilson fetched $4.50.

An extremely interesting two page letter of Alfred Tennyson, with a stamped envelope addressed to Bulkeley Platt, 149 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn, was also sold. It was written from the Isle of Wight on Jan. 3, 1891, and reads as follows:

Sir: I thank you for your letter and the newspaper extracts which you have been kind enough to send me. I have sometimes held that no one can read "Maud" but myself—giving the lyrical and the dramatic together. But very likely you can do it. Only if you wish to read it to me and if you be not quick enough about it—as I am far advanced in eighty-second year—perhaps I may not live to hear you.

Yours truly, TENNYSON.

This sold for $20.50.

There was also a letter, written in 1882 from St. Louis by Oscar Wilde while on his lecture tour in America to his manager, Col. Morse. It reads:

Go to a good costumer (theatrical) and get him to make (you will not mention my name) two coats to wear at matinees and perhaps in evening. They should be beautiful light velvet doublets with large flowered sleeves and little ruffs of cambric. • • • A sort of Francis I. dress, only knee breeches instead of long hose. Also get me two pair of gray silk stockings to suit gray mouse-colored velvet, the sleeves are to be flounced—if not velvet then plush—stamped with large pattern. They will create a great sensation. • • • They were disappointed at Cincinnati at my not wearing knee breeches.

This brought $25, which is said to be a record price for an Oscar Wilde letter.

A 4to. album, containing the autographs of all the presidents and vice presidents of the United States, except Zachary Taylor, sold for $140.

An album, 8vo size, containing 250 signatures of prominent men in Washington in 1863, including the names of Abraham Lincoln, Hamilin, Chase, Stanton, Sumner, Greeley, U. S. Grant, Garfield and Blaine, fetched $19.

Among the other autographs were:

One page MS. of Washington Irvings' 'History of New York," $13; a one page letter of Edmund Kean, March 19, 1828, $16; a one page letter of Charles Lamb, May 29, 1829, $13.50; a curious letter of Mrs. Mary T. Lincoln to a dressmaker, $9; autograph MS. of Charles Reade'e three act comedy "Shilly Shally," $15; a signature of George Washington to a Mountain Road Lottery, 1768, $11.

A PERILOUS TOWN.

Barney Oldfield, the automobilist, was talking about a trip that he had once made through Manitoba, says the New York Tribune.

"The most dangerous town in Manitoba," he said, "is Brandon. Hargrave is near Brandon, and on the outskirts of Hargrave, in front of the little inn, I dismounted.

"I found in the inn the landlord and another man. They sat side by side on a bench. They were both very old.

"'Excuse me, landlord,' I said, 'but can you tell me how far it is to Brandon?'

"The old man jumped up and hobbled behind the bar.

"'Brandy?' he said, in a thin quaver. 'Yes, indeed, sir, and very fine brandy it is.'

"He put a bottle and a glass before me.

"'I asked you,' I said more loudly, 'how far it is to Brandon.'

"'The best brandy, of course, sir,' he answered. 'I don't keep nothing but the best.'

"In despair I turned from this deaf veteran to the other old man on the bench.

"'Look here,' I said, 'can you tell me how far it is to Brandon?'

"The other old man, with a grateful look, rose and limped hastily up to the bar.

"'Thanks,' he said, 'I don't mind if I do.'"

Why We Recommend Orrine to Cure Drunkenness.

In taking the agency for Orrine, the liquor habit cure, we thoroughly satisfied ourselves that it was an article of genuine merit, and that the company, which is located in Washington, D. C., deals squarely and lives up strictly to the guarantee. "If the cure is not made the money will be refunded."

Since selling Orrine numerous cases have come to our knowledge that have been cured of the horrible liquor habit by this meritorious article, which strengthens the nervous system and destroys the craving for whiskey, beer or other alcoholic stimulants. Orrine is prepared in two forms. No. 1 should be given to cure the patient without his knowledge. It can be put into coffee or food, as it is tasteless, colorless and odorless.

We think that when the excessive drinker is approached properly he will be willing to be cured. If he consents, purchase Orrine No. 2, which is put up in pill form. Either form sells at $1 per package. Step into our store and receive full information regarding Orrine, the remedy that really cures the liquor habit. If you will write to the Orrine Company, Inc., Washington, D. C., they will send you free a book on "Drunkenness," in a plain paper wrapper.

We have great confidence that Orrine cures the drink habit, and highly recommend it to you. F. W. Kugler, 108 West Superior street, Duluth.

THE GRAIN MARKETS

Duluth Only Market to Show Advance In Wheat.

Flax Trading Was Dead and the Prices Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 3.—Duluth was the only market to show an advance in wheat today and the gain here was only in the July option, which advanced 1c. In Minneapolis it was unchanged, in Chicago ⅝@¾c lower, in New York ⅞c lower, in St. Louis 1½c lower and in Kansas City ⅝c lower. The September option in Duluth lost ¼c for the new and ½c for the old, in Minneapolis ¾@⅞c, in Chicago ½c, in New York ⅞c, in St. Louis ⅞c, and in Kansas City ½@⅝c.

The weather and crop reports were generally favorable. The cash demand was not so much in evidence, but it rarely ever is on Saturday, which has a short session. Stocks in Duluth are to decrease to go out next week, the Durum and Western wheat on hand, and the amount of wheat owned by the mills, there is not more than 900,000 bushels of wheat left at Duluth to be sold. That this will all be called for there does not seem to be the slightest doubt. Minneapolis stocks this week show an increase of 47,324 bushels.

The Liverpool market closed ½@¾d lower, Paris ½c higher and Budapest ¼c higher. The world's shipments to be reported Monday are estimated by Broomhall at 10,400,000 bus.

Car receipts at Duluth were 2 against 26 last year, and at Minneapolis 256 against 111 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 258 against 137 last year. Chicago received 1 against 12 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 319,400 bus, last year 202,138 bus. Shipments 222,350 bus, last year 245,581 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 117,172 bus

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¾d lower. In the Chicago market July corn closed ⅛ lower. July oats closed ⅛c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 432,250 bus, last year 908,900 bus. Shipments 555,753 bus, last year 622,515 bus. Clearances were 109,413 bus.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was dull. The July option opened ½c lower at $1.13¾ and then bulged to $1.14⅞ at 10:25. It fell back to $1.14⅛ at 11 o'clock and advanced again to $1.15 at 11:15. It closed at that point, a gain for the day of 1c. The new September option opened unchanged at 83c, fell to 81½c and closed there. The old September held all morning at 86c, and closed there, a loss from yesterday of ¼c.

Durum wheat declined 2c.

Flax was dead. The July option closed 1c lower, September ½c lower and October ¼c lower, and there was not a trade in any one of them. Stocks of flax at the Head of the Lakes are estimated to show a decrease of 290,000 bus this week.

Oats declined ⅛c.

Following were the closing prices on the Duluth board:

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 northern, $1.15; on track, No. 1 northern, $1.15; No. 2 northern, $1.09. Durum, No. 1, 89c; No. 2, 88c; July, $1.15; September, old, 86c; September, new, 83½c. Flax, to arrive, $1.49; on track, $1.49; July, $1.48; September, $1.30; October, $1.28¾. Oats, to arrive, 31¼c; on track, 31¼c. Rye, to arrive, 78c; on track, 78c. Barley—Feed, 39½@41c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 2; last year, 25; oats, 4; flax, 3; last year, 13.

Receipts: Flax, 1,204.

Shipments: Wheat, 41,000; oats, 5,000; barley, 10,417.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Weather Conditions Have Bearish Influence on Wheat.

Chicago, June 3.—Excellent weather conditions throughout the United States had a bearish influence on wheat here today. Another bearish factor was a decline at Liverpool, notwithstanding the upturn here yesterday. Pit traders generally were inclined to the selling side. July opened ¼c to ⅜@½c lower at 88½@⅝ to 88⅞c and sold off to 88¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 250 cars against 329 cars last week and 149 cars a year ago.

Liberal sales by a leading trader caused weakness later in the day, July declining to 88¼c. A gain of 2 points in the condition of wheat of Ohio as shown by the state report, had a derpessing effect. The market closed weak, with July off @⅞c at 88¼@⅜c.

The corn market was decidedly weak. A sharp drop in prices at Liverpool was an influential factor. Another reason for the weak undertone was the improved weather. July opened ¼c to ½c lower at 50⅝c to 50¾c and sold off to 49¾c. Local receipts were 258 cars, with 89 of contract grade.

Later the market became extremely weak. A feature of trading was heavy selling by prominent commission houses. July sold off to 49¼c. The close on July was down precisely 1c at 49⅝c.

Selling by cash houses caused an easier tone in oats. Weakness of other grains had considerable effect. July opened ⅛c lower at 30⅝c and sold off to 30½c. Local receipts were 193 cars.

Provisions were a trifle easier as a result of the weakness of grain markets. Trading was largely in the September deliveries. September pork was off 7½c at $12.85. Lard was a shade lower at $7.35. Ribs were off 5@7½c at $7.50.

Close: Wheat—July, 88¼@⅜c; Sept., 82⅝@¾c; Dec., 81⅝c. Corn—July, 49⅝c; old, 50@50⅛c; Sept., 48¾c; old, 49¼@⅜c; Dec., 46⅛c. Oats—June, 30⅝c; July, 30⅝c; Sept., 25⅝c; Dec., 29⅝c; May, 30⅞c. New York, June 3.—Close: Wheat—July, 93c; September, 89¼c; December, 85¾c. Corn—July, 55½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Lower cables and favorable weather had a tendency to cause an easier feeling in this market. Early in the session Southwest houses were good sellers of wheat which had a depressing effect late in the session. Today's reaction is a perfectly natural one and does not indicate that underlying conditions have at all changed. Stocks are small and the cash demand here and in the Northwest is still urgent. This to our find gives the market a very firm foundation. Considering the glowing crop prospects it would be unreasonable to expect any sensational advance, but on the other hand a scercity of wheat would likely deter any pronounced pressure. It still seems like a trading market, fairly broad. On reactionable breaks we would still buy wheat.

Corn—This market took on an easier feeling right from the start and on every little show of strength was subjected to much profit-taking. As in yesterday's market the leading bull house was the principal seller. The conditions as we view them has had a reasonable decline from top figures. It is still out of line to stimulate the cash demand. Sentiment is a shade less bullish, but the general feeling seems to favor the bull side. On a reasonable setback from present prices we feel the cash demand would again appear.

Oats—This market sympathized with corn and while declines were not as extended as in other markets, they nevertheless seemed to show a disposition to halt. We see nothing in this market on either side.

Provisions—The hog market closed steady. The speculative market eased off on profit-taking and thoroughly sympathized with other markets. Trade is extremely dull and nothing at the moment in sight to warrant a broader market.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: "Not much is being said about the flour trade these days, probably owing to the fact that the wheat market has been so lively that it has attracted at the attention," says a Minneapolis trader. "Demand for flour is still disappointing to millers. Some report a fair business, others poor. There is, however, one very encouraging feature, and that is that flour buyers believe that they will be able to buy flour at lower prices sooner or later and they are holding off. Their stocks nevertheless are being gradually reduced and it is only a question of a short time at most not over thirty days, when they will be forced to buy freely. It therefore looks as if the big flour demand for July and August of 1903 and 1904 would again be a notable feature in 1905. If this proves true there will be a big milling demand for cash wheat in July and August, and very likely in September, so that new wheat may be bought, may go into consumption, and as usual Chicago shorts will have to bid up to fill up their July and September contracts. Chicago is no longer a natural wheat market. The only time that the market gets any actual wheat is when shorts are squeezed. It may, therefore, be well to think twice before selling short too freely either July or September wheat at the present prices in that market."

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Weakness in corn due largely to the selling of Patten, Bartlett following, trade is fairly large with commission houses on both sides of the market. Some of the leading local professionals who have been working on the bull side also disposed to part with their stuff. With the cash situation holding strong we are inclined to the belief that money can be made buying corn on the breaks.

• • •

Chicago Record-Herald: A cargo of 50,000 bushels No. 2 hard winter wheat was loaded yesterday to go to the Washburn-Crosby mills at Buffalo. Rail loadings for the same concern's mills at St. Louis, Louisville and Minneapolis in the last two or three adys aggregated 100,000 bushels, all the remaining stock of No. 2 hard winter here is evidently held pretty tight. Cash wheat brokers yesterday were complaining that they were unable to get offers for the wheat for their customers, although the latter were bidding stiff figures. The stock of No. 3 hard winter wheat here should show a material reduction this week.

• • •

McKinnon, Chicago: New December corn is selling about ¼c discount under May. If there is any merit in the present situation, does it not look like a good spread to sell the May against purchase of December? If the situation warrants present prices for No. 3 corn, the December option should go to quite a premium over May.

AN ACTIVE DEMAND

For Reading Checked the Downward Progress of Stocks.

Market Hardened Toward the Close, Which Was Irregular.

New York, June 3.—With the exception of small gains in Copper and Metropolitan Street Railway, opening prices on the stock market were lower throughout on a limited volume of business. United States Steel preferred declined 1¼ and St. Paul and Union Pacific led the decline in the railroad list, the former losing about a point and the latter a large fraction. Smelting also declined a large fraction.

Progress downward terminated when an active demand arose for Reading. This was supplemented by the large orders for St. Paul, Union Pacific, Copper, the United States Steel stocks and the local traction stocks, and the trading for a while was quite spirited. After the market had been carried well above yesterday's close, the demand became less urgent and prices fell off a fraction. Central of Jersey rose 4¼, Lead 1⅝ and Copper 1½, and Union Pacific, Reading, Smelting preferred, Brooklyn Transit and Metropolitan Street Railway 1 to 1¼. Pressed Steel Car preferred yielded 1¾ and Philadelphia Traction 8 points.

Prices were let back to last night's level and below in anticipation of the poor bank statement. Paper sold at 90 and then at 75 compared with the preceding sale at 93 in April. The decline in Philadelphia Rapid Transit reached 11½ and Northern Pacific and Westinghouse lost 1. Central Railway of Jersey extended its gain to 7¼. Copper was pushed up to 83⅛ and the market hardened slightly in sympathy. The close was dull and rather irregular.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market closed irregular but on the whole firm. A little easier feeling developed after the opening, but short covering brought about a better tone. Amalgamated was easily the leader. Gossip is still persistent that at the annual meeting Monday a favorable statement will be issued and there is a possibility of an increase in dividend. The favorable factors in the situation, such as good crop prospects and splendid railroad earnings, etc., seem at the moment to be overshadowed by the Equitable scandal and all the uncertainties attending this matter. New York advices are that the worst is out and the affair will be but temporary and local. The short interest is large and many of the most favorable features have been pretty well discounted.

Dick Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: Although the Equitable Life snarl was expected to hurt the market, stocks were quite strong in the first hour this morning, running up sharply in the first half hour. Later declined in anticipation of an unfavorable bank statement, which proved quite as bad as expected. After the statement was published the market was firm with noteworthy strength showing in Amalgamated and Brooklyn. The close was generally firm.

• • •

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market at the opening was not very active and inclined to sell off. London came weak. The bank statement, which was not good, had little or no effect. Amalgamated Copper was very strong and the whole list closed steady. We look for a more active market next week, and with any good news the advance should be quite general.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Amalgamated was the strong feature in New York today, although Brooklyn and Reading were close seconds. Boston coppers were dull but rather strong, with the exception of United States Mining, which sold down to 28¾ at the close. This was due to the announcement of an increase of 100,000 shares in the capital stock of the company. Allouez continued to hold its gain of yesterday.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 3.—The cotton market opened easy at an advance of 3 points on July, but generally 3 to 4 points lower under further bear pressure and liquidation promoted by lower cables and good weather. Before the declines we checked prices sold off to a net decline of about 10 points on the active months, when they were steadied toward 11 o'clock by covering and buying for longs.

Cotton futures closed steady; June, 7.88; July, 7.98; Aug., 8.00; Sept., 8.05; Oct., 8.10; Nov., 8.14; Dec., 8.19; Jan., 8.23; Feb., 827; March, 831. Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 8.50; middling gulf, 8.75; sales none.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Two Miners Killed at Iron Mountain By Falling Rock.

Iron Mountain—Two miners were killed at the Walpole mine here Friday by the falling of overhanging ore. Both are still buried and crews are at work digging for them.

The accident happened on the fifth level 600 feet below the surface. One was named Harry Burt and the name of the other, an Italian, is unknown. The mine has been worked nine years and this was the first fatal accident.

The Oliver Iron Mining company has contributed $500 to the fund which Rev. N. A. Nosbisch of Iron Mountain is raising to meet the indebtedness on St. Mary's church. The Oliver company is exceedingly liberal in the matter of contributing money to the support of churches, and has given equally liberal sums to the Presbyterian, Central Methodist, Swedish Lutheran, Holy Rosary, Holy Trinity and other congregations that have been confronted with financial difficulties.

Sault Ste. Marie.—A company is being organized for the purpose of making extensive explorations for coal, gas and oil in Chippewa county. It is known that coal exists in Bruce township, what happens to be an outcropping of the fuel having been discovered this spring, and a systematic test of the field will be made. Drills will be used and arrangemnts to secure them have already been made.

The geological conditions are such as to indicate an oil-bearing formation in the same district, and if coal is not found in profitable deposits or quality, the promoters are hopeful of bringing in wells of petroleum.

Calumet—Falling rock at the sixty-third level of the Red Jacket shaft of the Calumet & Hecla mine killed Francisco Antonio. He was 21 years old, and single.

Munising—A daring feat was performed the other day at Munising by John Trimborn, one of three Chicago men engaged in repairing the 185-foot chimney at the paper mill. The men were taking their scaffolding down. They were within ten feet of the top of the chimney when a hook in a chain got caught on the side opposite to the men. In order to reach the hook, Trimborn walked around the chimney on a ledge not more than two inches wide. All he had to take hold of was a small chain, which he could hold only with the ends of his fingers.

ANOTHER AMERICAN DIES OF YELLOW FEVER.

Washington June 3.—The war department today received a cable from Governor Magoon of the isthmian canal zone, stating that Edward Green, an American, died on the isthmus of malarial fever on May 28. He also reports two new cases of yellow fever occurring on May 28, William O'Brien, an American at Colon, and L. Mannoni, an American machinist, 32 years old, at Cristobal. Col Gorgas says all cases previously reported are convalescing.

STEEL BOXES TO LET.

THE COAL TRADE

Conditions In the West Continue to Be Very Dull.

Complaint By All Leading Factors at Lack of Orders.

Chicago, June 3.—The Black Diamond, official newspaper of the coal trade, reviewing the western trade, says:

Coal trade conditions in the West continue to be extremely dull and there is complaint from all the leading factors in the business—those engaged in the anthracite trade, as well as the bituminous—at the lack of orders. There is an exceedingly light buying demand, which apparently is not affected by prevailing prices. Bituminous coal, and particularly that from Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, is so low in price that business ought to be active, but it is not, and this leads to the inevitable conclusion that prices are not a factor and that there would be almost as large a tonnage of coal moving if they were maint

REAL ESTATE

Look for it here if you want a bargain in investment realty.

A Farm for $10 Down
and $4.00 a Month!

This will give you 40 acres of good fertile land in the big red clover district of Bayfield, Wis.,—as many acres as you like on the same basis for each 40-acre tract at $5 an acre.

Fine Investment for Young Men and Women

Think of the thousands of young people paying over money to the great life insurance companies every month with the expectation that at the end of twenty years or more they may only get their money back and a very small interest. Then think of the development of the United States in the past twenty years, and look on a map at the location of Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin as related to the head of inland navigation and the expanding markets of growing nearby cities. Will any reasonable man say that the land in this region will not be worth from three to ten times its present price within twenty years? Reason it out for yourself.

Worth $200 to $300 an Acre.

J. Sterling Morton, ex-Secretary of Agriculture, recently asserted that all well-located land in the United States would be worth that price within 50 years.

"I believe," he added, "that money invested in farms is the best possible investment one can make; even if purchased at what some may term 'boom prices,' one will soon see his investment doubled."

We Will Build You a Comfortable House

On any sized tract that you want, from forty acres up, upon payment of only one-quarter of the value of the land in cash, and spread the balance over several years. For a man who wants to get on a farm at small initial cost, this is a remarkable opportunity. All this land is surprisingly fertile, and it will pay you to investigate its possibilities. The Omaha railroad alone placed 900 families in Northern Wisconsin last year. We have about 60,000 acres to choose from.

Best Farming Land in Northern Minnesota.

We also have about 40,000 acres of the richest farming land to be found in this section of the state, all lying within a reasonable distance of railroads and midway between Duluth and the Twin Cities. We will give it to you for one-quarter its value in cash and the balance to suit your convenience. Runs from $5 to $15 an acre.

Chance for Investors.

We have some snaps in large tracts that can't be beat. CALL OR WRITE.

PROPERTY BOUGHT FOR IMPROVEMENT

Most of Sales of Realty Being Now to People Who Intend to Build—No Transactions of Large Character Are Reported—Howard T. Abbott Residence on Fourth Avenue East Sold.

Improvement talk overshadows every other feature of the present real estate situation in Duluth. Some sales are being made right along, but for the most part the largest movement has been of unimproved lots to people who are figuring on making an improvement, either in the way of building homes or of building for rental purposes. The May business of the local real estate offices was, on the whole, very satisfactory, and the general feeling is that while the month of June has usually been characterized by a rather slow market, the indications all point to a better condition of affairs this season than has been had for years past. This feeling is well borne out by the steady inquiry that is being made of the brokers.

If there have been any sales of business property this week of any consequence the transactions have been kept pretty quiet. There have been several good deals closed in residence property, some of which is not ready for announcement, and considerable acreage has changed hands. The reports from the range towns shows that the realty transfers in some of the villages will aggregate no inconsiderable amount.

• • •

A. H. W. Eckstein reports the earnest money paid on two lots on Fifth street, and on a house and lot on Seventh street, also on some acreage. He has submitted two good offers to the owners for consideration, and reports an excellent inquiry, with many small sales.

• • •

W. C. Sargent of W. C. Sargent & Co., reports a busy week in realty, with the sale of R. E. Patterson's two houses, at the corner of Seventh avenue west and Second street, to A. Bernard, for $3,000. Mr. Sargent says that the inquiry, both locally and from the outside, is keeping up well for this time of the year, and he looks for a better June business in real estate than has usually been noted in several years past. Associated with W. C. Sargent & Co., beginning this week, is Frank E. Kennedy, a well-known real estate man, who has been actively identified in the past with the office of John A. Stephenson & Co.

• • •

F. E. House, president of the Iron Range road, has purchased from Mary Wood an unimproved 50-foot lot, at the southeast corner of Superior street and Twenty-second avenue east, for $5,000.

• • •

P. J. Long has sold to A. Brown the southerly 34-feet of the three lots on the southeast corner of Twelfth avenue east and Third street, for $2,300. The sale includes two buildings.

• • •

The Stone-Ordean-Wells company has purchased from D. T. Denton, a small unimproved lot adjoining the Iron Range tracks, on Gladstone street, near Forty-ninth avenue east, at Lakeside, for $1,400.

• • •

J. T. Michaud has added to his recent investments with the purchase of a residence property at the southeast corner of First avenue west and Second street, and an unimproved property on Second street, just east of Capt. McDougall's residence, for $7,500.

• • •

The deed transferring the Clark block to D. B. McDonald, for $45,000, was placed on record this week. The property is described as lot 11, West Superior street, Duluth proper, First division, and the deer ran from C. H. Clark, Jr.

• • •

The local branch of the Salvation Army has purchased from H. C. Nelson for $5,000 the property on the northeast corner of Seventeenth avenue west and Superior street. The ground is occupied by a building.

• • •

Probate Judge J. B. Middlecoff has sold a residence property on the lower side of Jefferson street, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth avenues east, to F. W. Rayburn, for $2,750. The property lies partly in Endion division and partly in Banning & Ray's addition.

• • •

C. B. Thomas has sold the Lake Superior & Southeastern Railroad company the undivided third interest in lots 256 and 258, block 20, Duluth proper, second division, for $2,000.

• • •

Palmer & Hunt, architects, have prepared plans and bids have been submitted for three brick houses at Twelfth avenue East and Second street, to be erected for Mrs. W. D. Williams.

• • •

C. E. Nystrom, architect, has plans out for figures for a residence at Hibbing for John E. Meehan; for a large residence for a North Dakota party; a residence at Lakeside; a residence at the West end; a 2-flat building at Twenty-fifth avenue West and Third street; a flat building, double house and 3-apartment house building at Eighth avenue East and Second street, for F. L. Johnson; a 4-flat brick building on Second street a nd Seventh avenue West and a 4-flat frame building on East Fourth street.

The construction work has already started on some of the buildings.

Bids have been submitted and the centract will probably be awarded today for four houses to be erected at the corner of Third street and Seventeenth avenue East, for J. F. Craig. The plans were made by C. E. Nystrom.

• • •

One of the most important residence sales of the week was that of Howard S. Abbott's home at 219 Fourth avenue East to C. L. Twohy, who will occupy it with his family. The consideration was $9,200. The property has a frontage of 70 feet on the avenue and is 150 feet deep. Mr. Abbott and family have taken the Bishop Morrison house at Twenty-second avenue East and Superior street for a few months.

• • •

One of the largest of the recent timber land sales went on record this week. The deed ran from W. H. Cook to Henry Turris and covered lands in 66-19, 67-19, 69-19, 66-20, 67-21, 68-19, 67-20, 68-20. The consideration was $135,000.

• • •

B. F. Smith has purchased from W. H. Yawkey several lots in block 23, Virginia, for $9,000.

• • •

M. A. Fedje of the West end, has purchased from A, Koneczny lot 369, block 112, Duluth proper, second division, for $2,000.

• • •

Berguist Bros. have been awarded the contract for remodeling the double house on East First street belonging to T. F. Cole.

• • •

Otto Johnson has been awarded the contract for the several buildings to be erected at G. G. Hartley's "Island Farm."

RAILROAD NEWS

Another Line Plans Extension to Head of the Lakes.

Wisconsin & Michigan Railway Company Will Push Lines.

It is said that one of the objects of the special meeting of stockholders called by the Wisconsin and Michigan railway company, to be held at Marinette, June 12, is to discuss plans for an extension of the line through to Duluth, as well as plans for other important extensions. Among the objects of the meeting as enumerated is the following:

"To purchase or construct a branch railroad from the main line of said company's railroad at Everett, Mich., to the state line at Miscauno island, in the Menominee river; to lease, purchase or construct a railroad from the state line at or near Miscauno island, northwesterly through the state of Wisconsin, to the city of Superior, Wis., and to the city of Duluth, Minn.; to lease, purchase or construct a railroad from Quinnesec, Mich., to Iron Mountain, Mich., and thence to the state line in the Menominee river westerly from Iron Mountain."

It is also proposed to amend the articles of organization so as to increase the capital stock of the company from $1,500,000 to $5,000,000; to issue mortgage bonds for corporate and legal purposes, and to provide for securing the payment of same by a mortgage or trust deed on the property which the company now owns, or which it may hereafter acquire. A controlling interest in the company is held by a Chicago banker and associates.

A TEST BUREAU.

New Feature Established By Baltimore & Ohio.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has established a test bureau where all work of this character will be concentrated in the future. J. R. Onderdonk has been appointed engineer of tests, in charge of the bureau, with headquarters at Baltimore. This change becomes effective June 1, reporting direct to the general manager. To this bereau will be submitted for analysis, inspection and test all equipment, materials and appliances bought under specification, and all experiments of equipment, material and appliances will be made under the direction of the engineer of tests. The specifications will be prepared by the various departments as before. The management believes that best results can be accomplished by having this important work concentrated in one department, so President Murray authorized the creation of the test bureau. This bureau will start out with plenty of important work, as Mr. Onderdonk will have charge of the inspection of the 250 locomotives and 10,000 freight cars which were recently contracted for. It will not only be his duty to inspect the material used, but to inspect the character of construction of the cars and locomotives. It is fully believed that the work of this bureau will have the effect of reducing to a minimum the possibilities of failures in operation and of accidents due to the use of bad or defective material in the construction of equipment.

The Bureau will have charge of the inspection of all material for the motive power department, maintenance of way department, such as rails, bridge material, cement and concrete, etc., so as to insure that only the very best is being used.

Railroad Notes.

James Maney, newly appointed assistant general passenger agent of the South Shore, will be in the city tomorrow, the guest of Mart Adson, the new general agent. Mr. Maney, who now resides at Marquette, will make his headquarters in Duluth after June 15, when the passenger department of the road will be moved to this city.

A seven-pound daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Wescott this morning. Mr. Wescott is traveling freight agent for the Milwaukee road.

At a meeting last evening the Duluth and Superior Woodmen decided upon the C., St. P., M. & O. road as the official route of the order from the Head of the Lakes to Milwaukee during the biennial meeting of the head camp, which will continue from June 17 to 24.

There is a well-defined rumor to the effect that the Great Northern is contemplating running its trains over the Interstate bridge in the near future, and that steps looking to this end are already being taken.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Horse Plunges Into River, School Teacher Nearly Drowns.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—While attempting to cross the Big Sioux river, which is greatly swollen from recent heavy rains, Miss Callie Yeager had a narrow escape from drowning. Accompanied by a little boy, she was on her way to her school in a buggy, when she had the experience which nearly ended her life. While crossing the river on a driveway near a dam, the horse, wishing to get to the water, became unmanageable and plunged over a bank, which at low water is about ten feet above the river bed. Miss Yeager and the boy, as the horse and buggy toppled over into the stream, by the most desperate sort of efforts, succeeded in getting clear of the vehicle just a second before it would have been too late. They alighted partly in the water, but were able to scramble up the bank to dry land. Both were completely exhausted by their efforts. The horse was drowned.

Miller—The dedication of the Masonic temple here was attended by delegations from Wessington, Faulkton, Huron, Highmore and Pierre. I. W. Goodner, grand master of the latter city, had charge of the ceremonies. A social dance, games, banquet, reception, etc., constituted the evening's entertainment.

The fencing of the street leading north of St. Lawrence by Mr. Hoover, a prominent farmer, causing travel to divert to Miller, is leading to a mild phase of war, for the St. Lawrence people cut the barb wire at night and smashed the posts. Mr. Hoover sets the posts a little deeper and drives the wire staples a little tighter after each assault. Prosecutions and injunctions ar threatened on both sides.

Pierre—C. J. Bach, land commissioner, has just returned from Faulkton, where he secured for the state school fund an issue of $50,000 of courthouse bonds, which have been voted by that county, one-half the money being furnished at the present time, the balance to be supplied as desired. The department received in May as one-fourth of the money of sale of this year and on deferred payments $192,241.50, and placed in the different counties of the state $191,804.08, leaving a balance on hand at the end of the month of $437.42.

In an opinion by Justice Haney, the supreme court granted a new hearing in the contest over the will of Wilson S. Jones of Minnehaha county, who was for years known as "Corn" Jones. The title of the suit is Delin A. Jones and Allen G. Jones vs. Isaac S. Jones and A. W. Suoera, executor of the will of Wilson C. Jones. The case has been in the courts for a long time, and is a fight by the heirs over the property left by Wilson Jones.

Yankton—The special term of circuit court, called to try the cases growing out of condemnation proceedings instituted by the Great Northern railroad, adjourned after a two days' session. The case of the company against Emil Dirks was decided by the jury in favor of the company and the damages fixed at $441. This is the last piece of porperty which was to be purchased by the Great Northern to obtain a right-of-way across the southern side of the city. One or two other deals are not yet closed, but there will be no further litigation.

The annual meeting of the Electric Medical society of South Dakota will be held in Yankton on June 6 and 7. On the evening of June 6 a reception will be held in the parlors of the hotel. A long program of papers and addresses has been prepared.

Mrs. Edith M. Teall of Gettysburg was robbed of her handbag containing a sum of money and a valuable ring by a young woman from Sioux Falls at the Great Northern station yesterday. Chief Hickey located the offender and secured the return of the property intact. Mrs. Teall declined to prosecute.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Bismarck—The supreme court has reversed the holdings of Judge Cowan in the celebrated William Barry murder case, and Barry will be a free man after serving ten years in the state penitentiary, less time given him for good behavior.

Barry killed Andrew Mellem, his hired man, on Jan. 3, 1901, and was arrested the day following. He was arraigned on an information charging murder in the first degree at Langdon, and was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Tracy R. Bangs appealed the case to the supreme court, with the result that Barry was granted a new trial. His second trial was also held at Langdon, before Judge Cowan, and the jury convicted him of murder in the second degree and fixed his punishment at seven years. Judge Cowan declined to accept this verdict, and sent the jury back. The jurors reported that they were unable to agree on any other verdict and they were discharged. That term of court was continued for several months and before its adjournment the state asked for and was granted a change of venue, the case being sent to Walsh county for trial.

At the opening of the third trial at Grafton, Mr. Bangs, again appearing for Barry, objected to the jurisdiction of the court, on the grounds that Barry had been convicted by a court of competent jurisdiction at Langdon, and having been once in jeopardy, could not be tried again. Judge Cowan overruled the objection, and a plea was interposed that Barry had been acquitted on a charge of murder in the first degree by a court of competent jurisdiction, when he was convicted of murder in the second degree at Langdon, and the further plea of former jeopardy was also interposed. Judge Cowan denied all these motions, and Barry was tried and convicted, and again sentenced to life imprisonment.

The case was then appealed to the supreme court from the decisions of Judge Cowan, in overruling the motions made in special pleadings at the opening of the case in the Grafton trial.

Barry has expended a fortune in trying to keep out of the penitentiary, and has been sentenced to prison for life on two occasions, spending most of his time in the penitentiary since the murder, nearly six years ago.

SHOT BY A COW.

Mule Maud Outdone By an Angry Bovine.

Sioux Center, Iowa, June 3.—After being literaly shot by a cow with a crumpled horn, Garrett Postma, a butcher, is in the Samaritan hospital, seeking to recover from a serious rifle shot wound through the loins.

Postma bought the unruly cow from a farmer, who warned him that she was as incorrigible as the mule Maude. But the butcher induced her to go into his slaughter house and then went in to shoot her. He found the cow in a fearful rage, and after a wild chase to elude her made for the door. His rifle was left standing in a corner. Just as the cow passed the gun she kicked at it and discharged it, the load striking Postma. It is believed he will recover.

GIRLS ARE SAVED

Two Minneapolis Runaways Rescued From Life of Shame.

The Police Detain Minor Girls at Request of Parents.

Coming to Duluth with the intention of entering a life of shame, two young Minneapolis girls were arrested at the union depot last evening by Officer Roberg as they stepped from the train.

The girls are Freda Larson, aged 17 years, and Inga Hanson, aged 19 years. They ran away from their homes in Minneapolis yesterday and took the train for Duluth.

Their parents suspected that something was wrong, and on making inquiries found what train the girls had taken. They then notified the Minneapolis police, and Chief Troyer was communicated with by telephone and asked to detain the fugitives until they could be sent for.

A woman who is well known to the police was waiting at the depot to meet the girls when they arrived, but she left when she saw the officer arrest the girls.

The father of one of them will arrive in the city this afternoon to take them back to their homes.

The police are investigating the case, and if sufficient evidence can be secured to warrant an arrest, the woman who is suspected of inducing them to come to Duluth will be prosecuted for the act, which is a serious offense under the state laws.

The girls, however, refuse to give any information about the negotiations they had with the woman.

MUST DIVIDE SURPLUS.

Wisconsin Insurance Commissioner Gains One Point.

Madison, Wis., June 3.—Insurance Commissioner Host will get one result out of his fight with the Equitable Life Assurance society, even if he has failed to force the division of the society's great surplus. Life insurance companies will have to divide their surplus annually, so far as Wisconsin policies are concerned. That is the outlook now, as a result of the Host agitation. The senate committee on finance, banks and insurance reported to the legislature favoring a change in the Wisconsin statute so as to make division imperative annually instead of optional with the company. Chairman Roehr says all reports of opposition to this bill are without foundation, and declares the report of the senate committee was unanimous.

THAT "BULL FIGHT."

Truth About That Scandalous Affair at Cornell.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 3.—A most absurd and unfortunate account of the "bull fight" in spring day festivities at Cornell university has spread over the country. Of course it was a mere burlesque bull fight, but some of the dispatches sent out failed to make this clear, and an impression has gained ground that it was the real article.

The animal consisted of the ferocious-looking head and shoulders of the stuffed hide of a Guernsey cow, mounted on a light truck and propelled by a lusty attendant, who projected the bull about the ring rapidly and made it go through all the performances of a real fighting bull. Two of the matadors were killed—gored to death and run over by the wheels of this terrible animal. This performance was repeated every thirty minutes and the same two matadors were killed frequently with lifelike reality.

IOWA CORONER

Gasped When the "Corpse" Sat Up.

Des Moines, Iow, June 3.—"What can I do for you, coroner?" said Pat Warner, and Polk county's official inquest holder gasped with astonishment as the "corpse," which he had come to examine, propounded the startling query and sat upright upon the cot at the police station.

Warner was picked up in an alley on Thursday night. His face was crushed beyond recognition and there was a long gash on top of his head. The police ambulance corps pronounced him dead.

Detectives were busily engaged in runing down clues of the supposed murderer; when Warner emerged from the sleep which Coroner Beck was about to proclaim officially the sleep of death.

LIGHTNING KILLS

Two Sons of Washington State Minister.

Wentatchee, Wash., June 3.—Charles Cooper, aged 8 years, and Harry Cooper, aged 14, only children of Rev. Fred Cooper, were struck to death by lightning Thursday evening at 4:30 o'clock while working in the orchard of their uncle, Charles Cooper.

The boys were cutting weeds from around small fruit trees and when found, about two hours after the storm, were lying twenty-eight feet apart. The ground was not disturbed, neither did the trees or teh shrubbery show any indications of the deadly bolt which extinguished the two young lives.

BONAPARTE

Likely to Become Attorney General Later.

Washington, June 3.—In administration circles it is generally understood that Charles J. Bonaparte of Baltimore will be transferred from the navy to the head of the department of justice within a year.

Mr. Bonaparte ranks high as a lawyer, and the president wants his services in carrying out a policy of curbing the large trusts and combinations. It is predicted that the advent of Mr. Bonaparte in the office of the attorney general will have a decided influence on the control of trusts by the federal government.

As a result of the investigations now on foot and about to be instituted, the last three years of Mr. Roosevelt's administration in his own right, will be devoted to a definite campaign under the supervision of Mr. Bonaparte, with a view to dealing finally with the evils of industrial and commercial combinations and the abuses of corporations.

PROGRESS OF WORK ON POWER COMPANY'S CONCRETE DAM AT THOMSON

All Work About Dams and Reservoirs Will Be Completed This Season.

Final Designs For the Erection and Equipment of Power House About Completed.

The accompanying photographs are snap shots taken last week on the St. Louis river, at Thomson, showing the progress of the work of construction on the concrete dam at that point for the Great Northern Power company. This dam is now about one-third completed. The west half of the river is shown, with the water diverted to that side by the coffer dam erected on the east side of the river, where the work of construction is now going on. The section of the dam being built is provided with sluiceways, through which the water will pass later during the construction of the western half of the dam. The entire length of the dam, when complete, will be about 800 feet, and the height forty feet. There are also several small retaining dams about the lower side of the proposed reservoir, which are being constructed simultaneously with the main dam. Some 45,000 barrels of cement are being used in this special work, all of which is to be of concrete.

It is contemplated that all work about the dams and reservoirs will be completed the present season, and the reservoir will cover about one square mile, with an average depth of twenty-five feet. All the timber on this area has been carefully cut and piled, to be burned the coming summer, leaving the reservoir free from debris.

The bed of the river from which the water has been diverted, on the east side, shows the natural rock foundations. The timber construction shown in the picture are forms in which the concrete is being laid. All work on the dam and about the reservoir is being done by the National Railway Construction company of Boston, under contract with the Great Northern Power company, and under the supervision of its engineers.

Work on the canal extending from the head gates at the reservoir to the forebay and pipe line, a distance of some two miles, is under contract with Porter Bros., who now have two steam shovels, a number of engines, cars and other necessary equipment, with a large force of men at work. They are moving from 1,000 to 2,000 cubic yards of material per day. Much of their equipment was brought from Spokane, and includes some unusually long and heavy derrick and boom timbers of California redwood, the longest yet seen here.

In addition to the work on the canal and forebay embankment, Porter Bros. have recently taken a contract for excavating trenches for the pipe lines for a distance of about one mile down the grade to the power house site on the lower reaches of the river. As there are three of these pipes, seven feet in diameter each, to be laid below the frost line, the trenching is a matter of considerable importance.

Porter Bros. also have a contract for excavating foundations for the main generating station at the foot of the pipe line, directly on the river bank. This latter work was started last week. The foundations of the power house will be of solid concrete and will form an important part of the building, as they must support the heavy wheels, generators and other equipment. The wheels which have been ordered from the Allis-Chalmers company, will be the largest ever constructed, having a capacity of 13,000 horse power each. The generators ordered from the General Electric company will have a rated capacity of 10,000 horse power each.

Final designs for the erection and equipment of the power house are about completed, and the work of constructing the building will begin shortly.

From the main power house site to Fond du Lac still further down the river a distance of some three miles, a railway connecting with the Northern Pacific road is being built by the power company under contract with Truax & Thomas, and is nearing completion.

Work is progressing rapidly on the entire line of development covering a distance of some seven miles. Comparatively few people in Duluth appreciate the extent and importance of this undertaking, as the construction of the plant is not brought directly under their notice. Large sums of money are being paid out for labor and supplies, but its great value to the community will be come more apparent upon the completion of the work and the transmission and distribution of power throughout the city, turning the wheels of various industries already established, and attracting others to locate here.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON

Discusses Appointments to Grain Appeals Board.

St. Paul, June 3.—In reply to the criticisms of his appointments on the state board of grain appeals, Governor John A. Johnson yesterday afternoon gave out the following statement:

"There is no doubt considerable criticism from Duluth and Minneapolis on my appointments on the board of grain appeals, but when investigated I think that they will be found to be without foundation. I probably would have appointed members from these cities, if they had agreed on a man, but there weer several conflicting applications from both cities, and all efforts to arrive at an agreement failed.

"It is a matter of common knowledge that the old grain board of appeals did not work satisfactorily. I have attempted to remedy this condition of affairs, and my appointments were most with that end in view. Many of the prominent grain men from the large cities stated to me that they did not care where the members of the baord came from as long as they were capable and efficient. The men I appointed were the best I could find, and I trust that they will give satisfaction."

COMING STATE CONVENTION OF THE ELKS OF MINNESOTA

Elks Will Be Numerous In Duluth Next Thurday and Friday.

Next Thursday and Friday the city will be turned over to the Elks of Minnesota, who will flock to the Head of the Lakes from all parts of the state to attend the first annual state convention of the order.

Last January the different lodges of Elks in the state sent delegates to Minneapolis to attend a meeting called for the purpose of organizing a state organization.

The object was effected, and Duluth was named as the place for the first mass meeting of the members of the order.

Delegates will be in attendance at the convention next week from almost every town and city in the state. The railroads have made a special rate of one and a third fare for the return trip to Duluth from any point in the state, and the cheap rates will be a great attraction. From the different lodges scattered throughout the state, reports are being received that a large percentage of the members are counting on making the trip to Duluth.

While it is almost impossible to arrive at any estimate of the number of Elks who will be in the city next week, the total will doubtless run into the thousands.

Many of the visitors are planning to bring their wives and families, and the fair sex will form a goodly proportion of the excursionists.

Elaborate plans are being made by the local Elks for the entertainment of the visitors. The majority of the guests will arrive on the morning trains on Thursday. In the afternoon they will go into executive session, and dispose of the business before the convention. While this business session is in progress, the wives of the members of the local lodge will give a reception for the visiting women.

On Thursday evening there will be a grand ball at the Armory for Elks only.

On Friday morning the local Elks will give the visitors a drive about the boulevard, and in the afternoon an excursion on the lake is planned. In case the weather is unfavorable, the boat will take the trip to Fond du Lac instead of the lake trip.

The convention will be brought to a

DEDICATION OF THE FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH AT ARNOLD

Fifty-three Members and Ten Families Represented.

Cost of the New Church Building Practically Paid.

On Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, the First Lutheran church at Arnold, Minn., will be dedicated. Rev. Carl Solomonson, pastor of the First Swedish Lutheran church of Duluth, is the pastor of the church at Arnold and he preaches there every other Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

This new congregation was organized only last October, although Sunday school and church services have been held among the Lutherans in Arnold for several years. The organization is somewhat remarkable. There are fifty-three members of the new congregation and ten families are represented. But in spite of this small number of families concerned the $1,700 which the new church building cost has been practically paid up, only $300 remaining to be met. The church is therefore a monument to the sincerity and thrift of those who use it and organized it. The building is 28 by 48 feet and has a basement. The work on the church began as soon as the

WHEN FORTUNE CAME

By Frank H. Sweet.

(Copyright 1905 by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Theresa wandered from group to group, to her house and back to the beach, speaking to this one and that, and trying to smile now and then, but with a look into her eyes and a quiver on her lips that made the women gaze at her tenderly and the men turn away with a choking sensation in their throats.

Day after day, and still storm-battered boats labored in; then one morning a small wreck drifted into the harbor, and in it were two men who were nearly dead from cold and exposure. But when they saw the white, eager face of Theresa bending over them they began to speak hurriedly. They had seen Jean but a few hours before, they said, and had spoken with him, but had been too weak to offer assistance. His boat was drifting outside.

Theresa did not wait for them to finish. With a sudden light in her eyes she ran to a boat. But strong men were there before her, and when she sought to enter they put her back gently. It Jean was to be saved, they said, it was their part to do it.

Oh, the long hours that followed! None of the waiting had been like that. Up the beach and down, up and down, her fingers clasping and unclasping, and her face growing sharp and expectant. When the two drew near she did not wait for it to land, but sprang forward with a sudden whitening of her face. Several recumbent forms were there, and one of them was Jean. Motioning the fishermen back with a quick, imperious gesture, she laened over the boat, and, with the icy waves curling about her ankles, lifted the unconscious form in her strong, loving arms. Then up the beach and across the white sands, swiftly, fiercely, as though she feared the black waves would sweep up and complete the work they had almost accomplished; and the fishermen and their wives stood back and gazed at her wonderingly. What miraculous strength the good God gave to his creatures in times like this!

After a while some of the women followed her. Jean was in bed, sleeping at the check and at Theresa as though he were in a dream. But Theresa was peacefully, and on the floor beside him was Theresa, her face buried in the bedclothes and her form shaken by wild passionate sobs—the first since his departure in the spring. The women gazed at her a moment, and then closed the door softly and went away.

When the doctor came he looked grave. "Too much cold and exposure," he said. "Jean might recover, but—well, he must have nourishing food and constant attention."

There was little ahead, and Theresa was lavish in her expenditures for his comfort. First the pigs went, and then the cow and the bees; and after a while articles of furniture from the house. Jean saw, but said nothing. Only his eyes would follow Theresa wistfully, and every day he would make vain endeavors to regain use of his poor, rheumatic limbs, and would talk of the time when he could return to the Shoals.

Then one terrible day a man came with a paper for them to sign, and the paper said that if they did not pay a certain sum of money in a certain time the house would no longer be theirs; but when he went away he left a roll of bills upon the table. Theresa slipped out a moment to choke back the sobs in her throat, so that Jean might not see. But when she came back she found him crying—not as women cry, with low, repressed shudders, but with strong, convulsive sobs that shook his weak frame, and made her move swiftly to his side and throw her arms around his neck and press her cheek against his.

But in spite of it all, she was happy. What mattered anything so long as Jean was growing stronger every day? If necessary she could go out with the lobster-woman and earn enough to keep them from starving. So she laughed and sang at her work, and when the shadows grew thick on Jean's face she kissed them away, an petted and chided him until gladness and courage returned to his dear eyes.

One morning he walked to the door, and the next morning went as far as the gate. After that they took little walks every day, he on his crutches and she by his side, watching every movement, with her arms ready to assist.

By the time the fleet returned in the fall he had exchanged his crutches for a cane. Every afternoon, now, he and Theresa went down to the beach, and watched the fishermen prepare their catch for the market. He knew all the best methods of salting and drying, but so far had always been too busy to make experiments. Now, as he watched them day after day, many possible improvements occurred to him. One afternoon a sudden pleased look came to his face, and he took pencil and paper from his pocket and began to make sketches and figures. At last he called Theresa to his side and made a few eager explanations.

"Why, Jean," she cried, as she grasped his idea. "It is wonderful! It will revolutionize the whole process."

"Yes, it will make a great change," he agreed, "only it is odd no one ever thought of it before." Then he looked at her with a wistful expression in his eyes. "But it will not help us, Theresa. We have no fish and no prospect of getting any. I spoke with the doctor on the beach today, and he said I would never get over being lame—that I could never return to the Shoals."

"Jean!"

"Yes, dear, I know," looking at her with a wan smile. "I am not complaining. Heaven has been very good to us, but the future is not promising." He turned to his paper with a sudden effort. "Well, I will finish this, and tomorrow I will show it to some of the leading men. It will double their season's profit."

Theresa placed her hand upon his arm. "No, you will not show it to them," she said quietly. "It would not be right to give the discovery to them, when you need it so much more yourself."

"But what will I do with it?" curiously.

"That would cost money, and we have none. Besides, what could a poor fisherman hope to obtain by such an ambitious flight?"

Theresa bent forward and kissed him. "You go on with the work," she said, smiling. "I will find the money."

The next day she went out alone. When she returned she placed a roll of bills in his hand.

"For the patent," she said. "I borrowed it, and have engaged to work a year with the lobster-woman."

Jean half rose to his feet; then as he looked into her tranquil face he sank back with a groan.

A few days later he finished the drawings and sent them off. Then he went down to the stalls and obtained a temporary job with the packers. The work was hard—too hard for his strength—and the pay small. But it helped to keep off starvation.

One day a letter came from the lawyer; but in it were only questions, with not one word of encouragement.

So the fall wailed stormily into winter, and at last the winter smiled into spring; and then Jean and Theresa looked into each other's eyes and grew pale. In a few weeks the mortgage would be due.

Then Jean received anothr letter, and he showed it to Theresa, and they looked at each other and laughed, and a sparkle came into their eyes. But after all it was only the patent papers, and it was food and clothing and money they needed.

However, people are quick to adopt improvements, and it was not long before Jean began to receive offers and propositions, one, two, a dozen of them, any one of which he would have accepted but for the wise shake of the head that was bending over his shoulder.

"Wait," she said, "your patent is valuable. You must not be hasty."

One day a keen, gray-haired man stepped briskly from the stage-coach and inquired for Jean Perrete. He did not go away until the next morning, and when he left he was half-owner of all the rights an privileges of the new invention.

But with Jean Perrete he left a check that represented more than a lifetime of industry on the Shoals. And Jean gazed at the check and at Theresa as though he were in a dream. But Theresa was "It is only what I expected," she said, with a luminous light in her eyes. not surprised.

YANKEE COLLEGES

Barter In the Open Market For Athletes.

American universities barter for young athletes is the charge made by Henry Beach Needham, who writes on colleges commercialism in the McClure Magazine for June.

An illustration of this is the case of James T. Hogan, famous captain and right tackle of Yale's champion football eleven.

"Hogan entered Exeter, a poor boy, at the age of 23," Mr. Needham writes. "He had been earning his own living when he set about to complete his education. His ambition was praiseworthy. Exeter gave him the chance to work his way through the school. Hogan took his preliminary examination to enter Harvard. Harvard joined Yale and Princeton in competition for this great 'prep' athlete. Claim is now made at Cambridge that Harvard lost him because no denite promises would be made. As proof of this contention are cited the facts that Hogan pased all of his Harvard entrance examinations satisfactorily, and that he applied for and was assigned a Price Greenfield aid (a scholarship paying about $200 in the freshman year). But Hogan went to Yale.

"The career of this athlete has been one of marked success. Hogan with his roommate, Rockwell, the star quarterback, occupies a suite in Vanderbilt hall, the most luxurious of the Yale dormitories, which is the 'hangout' for seniors. Hogan has forsaken the eating club he formed in his freshman year. He takes his meals at the University club. This is an expensive undergraduate organization similar to any social club. The initiation fee and dues are remitted in special cases, however.

"Hogan receives $100 a year, the income of the John Bennett scholarship. In addition, according to the dean, his entire tuition is remitted. The baseball association gives to Hogan, Rockwell and another athlete the score card privilege. Hogan's income is further augmented by commissions paid him by the American Tobacco company, whose agent he is."

WONDERNUL POOL PLAYER

Champion De Oro Has a Record For Nerve and Skill.

Alfredo De Oro, who recently regained the title of pool champion of the world in a specoal match with Jerome Keogh of Buffalo, in the latter's academy, is out with a challenge unique in the history of baize cloth games.

Champion De Oro throws down the gauntlet to all the champions of the cue, and says that he stands ready and willing to play any man living a combination game of pool and billiards.

De Oro declares that he would prefer to play a combination game, of three-cushion caroms and straight pool, 600 points at pool and 300 at three-cushion, the man having the highest number of buttons on both strings at the end of the game to be declared the winner.

The Cuban's challenge is directed at Jack Schaefer, Cure, Fournil, Vignaux and other masters of the cue, but if any of the pool players care to accept the conditions De Oro is willing to play them.

De Oro's challenge is the result of his position in the pool world. The Cuban is to pool what Jeffries is to the ring. At the present moment De Oro has no opponent, and from the outlook no one will care to tackle him at continuous pool in the near future.

Finding that he has no more opponents at pool, De Oro faces the choice of engaging in billiards or being idle. De Oro is a capable billiard player, but is hardly as strong as Schaefer, Fournil, Cure, Vignaux and several others. At pool, however, he is their master, and he has put upon the idea of a compromise between the two games.

De Oro is willing to play under the conditions named for a side bet of $1,000. He declares that such a game would involve neither the pool nor billiard championships, but would be extremely interesting to lovers of both styles of games.

De Oro's recent victory over Keogh makes him the undisputed champion, and while there are several top-notchers at pool not one of them will take a chance with De Oro.

The Cuban is the most remarkable player of the century. For seventeen years he has been the champion of the world, with the exception of a few occasions when the title slipped from him, by default, owing to illness.

But he has never been beaten in a match, with the exception of a rather unimportant one with Al Powers.

The champion is a high-caste Cuban, and is proud of his ancestry. Born near Manzanillo, Cuba, he was reared on a large plantation and did not know what a pool table was until he visited New York city, intent on becoming a student in one of the big Eastern colleges.

De Oro's father was wealthy and he wanted his son to have an education becoming to his station in life. But De Oro had different plans for the future. De Oro was a wonder from the start. In a few months after he began to play he was champion of the club and in less than a year his name was known in all the high-class billiard halls in New York.

His success decided De Oro's career, and he became a professional pool player.

He met Manning for the championship of the world in 1897, and won it. After that he entered all the tournaments for championship honors, and while he failed to win several tournaments, he always challenged the winner and never failed to beat him.

De Oro's most notable performance was his victory over Keogh at the World's fair tournament, held in St. Louis last fall.

All the best players in the world were in the match, including Grant Eby of New York, Frank Sherman of Washington, Billy Clearwater of Pittsburg, Charley Weston of Denver, "Kid" Hueston of St. Louis, B. H. Brumby of Marietta, Ga., Jerome Keogh of Buffalo, N. Y., and De Oro.

The match resulted in a three-corner tie between Hueston, Keogh and De Oro. In the play off De Oro easily polished off Hueston, but found a stubborn opponent in Keogh.

SENATOR STEWART IS POOR.

William M. Stewart, who served in the United States senate for thirty years, refused a re-election, and his last term expired on March 3 last, says the Kansas City Journal. He was rated as a millionaire, and, in fact, he was the possessor of a considerable fortune. Now, at the age of 78 years, he finds himself impoverished, and has gone to Tonopah, Nev., to establish a law office. He asserts that he is as energetic and hopeful of a fortune as when he went to California in 1849 and with pick and shovel began the accumulation of gold. While depending mainly on the law business, he will do some prospecting for gold or silver.

FAST ONES GOING EAST

Many Big Western Stables Will Be Heard From.

Louisville, June 3.—Several of the important stables which have been racing here left the Downs during the past week for New York. That this Western representation will cut some figure in their Eastern campaign goes without saying, as there are several horses among the lot which are capable of holding their own in any sort of company. In English Lad and Kurtzman Fred Cook has a pair that will be hard to beat when properly placed. English Lad is a much improved horse over last year. He was not hurried along as was the case last season, his trainer being content with giving him a long, slow prep, the idea being to have him ready along toward the middle of the Gravesend meeting. Besides filling out, English Lad has settled down and is much easier placed in a race, as was evidenced in his two starts here. Up to any sort of weight he is a horse that fancies a distance of a mile or over. Nicol understands his every whim and seems able to handle him to much better advantage than Dominick could last year. Kurtzman, too, has improved in looks and has wintered in grand shape. Always a horse of extreme speed he has shown a disposition this season of going on. He is a horse in about the same notch as Ivan the Terrible and will be heard from in the sprints out East. Besides George Bennett, Cook has two or three other two-year-olds that will hold their own.

T. C. McDowell never went East with better prospects than he does this spring. The star of his lot, Allan-a-Dale, is probably better right now than ever before, and that his owner is confident of pulling down some of the rich Eastern plums with him goes without saying. Mr. McDowell's one ambition is to win the suburban with Allan, and if his horse is as good the day the suburban is run as he is just now he will be hard to beat. In the event of Mr. McDowell being unable to secure Lucien Lyne, McLaughlin will have the mount on Allan-a-Dale in the big race. Besides the unbeaten King's Daughter there are a couple of good two-year-olds in this stable in Lady Anne and Gibson. The last named in a bay colt by Batten—Acushla, and has never started. He showed phenomenal speed in his early training this spring and it was he who was selected long ago as the McDowell representative in the nursery stakes, run here a few days ago. This colt took sick about ten days before the race was run and it was this that caused McDowell to start Lady Anne. The intention was to reserve the latter for the Futurity. She was beaten here mainly because she was hurried along in her preparation for the nursery, so betters would do well to remember this when she next starts, as she is sure to be a better filly the next time her owner sends her to the post.

Bad News is a star of the lot which E. R. Bradley is sending on to New York. This horse was rated among the best of them last year and the fact that he was beaten by Allan-a-Dale here should not prejudice one against him. The Bradley stable is rather weak in two-year-olds, none of the lot having shown anything out of the ordinary. There was some talk here last week of Bradley adding Pretension to his string but up to date the transfer has not been made.

NOTING MARTIAN SEASONS.

Recent astronomical observation of the planet Mars from the Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, Alaska, are reported as giving new information about that distant world, says the Kansas City Journal. The astronomists now believe after noting the change in colors of certain sections coincident with changes in the Martian year, that brownish sections of the planet which were before supposed to be seas, were simply stretches of winter-denuded soil, since at other epochs these same sections show a blue-green tint, indicating fresh vegetation. Thus our knowledge of the heavens grows slowly.

WHEN FORTUNE CAME

By Frank H. Sweet.

(Copyright 1905 by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Theresa wandered from group to group, to her house and back to the beach, speaking to this one and that, and trying to smile now and then, but with a look into her eyes and a quiver on her lips that made the women gaze at her tenderly and the men turn away with a choking sensation in their throats.

Day after day, and still storm-battered boats labored in; then one morning a small wreck drifted into the harbor, and in it were two men who were nearly dead from cold and exposure. But when they saw the white, eager face of Theresa bending over them they began to speak hurriedly. They had seen Jean but a few hours before, they said, and had spoken with him, but had been too weak to offer assistance. His boat was drifting outside.

Theresa did not wait for them to finish. With a sudden light in her eyes she ran to a boat. But strong men were there before her, and when she sought to enter they put her back gently. It Jean was to be saved, they said, it was their part to do it.

Oh, the long hours that followed! None of the waiting had been like that. Up the beach and down, up and down, her fingers clasping and unclasping, and her face growing sharp and expectant. When the boat drew near she did not wait for it to land, but sprang forward with a sudden whitening of her face. Several recumbent forms were there, and one of them was Jean. Motioning the fishermen back with a quick, imperious gesture, she laened over the boat, and, with the icy waves curling about her ankles, lifted the unconscious form in her strong, loving arms. Then up the beach and across the white sands, swiftly, fiercely, as though she feared the black waves would sweep up and complete the work they had almost accomplished; and the fishermen and their wives stood back and gazed at her wonderingly. What miraculous strength the good God gave to his creatures in times like this!

After a while some of the women followed her. Jean was in bed, sleeping peacefully, and on the floor beside him was Theresa, her face buried in the bedclothes and her form shaken by wild passionate sobs—the first since his departure in the spring. The women gazed at her a moment, and then closed the door softly and went away.

When the doctor came he looked grave. "Too much cold and exposure," he said. "Jean might recover, but—well, he must have nourishing food and constant attention."

There was little ahead, and Theresa was lavish in her expenditures for his comfort. First the pigs went, and then the cow and the hens, and after a while articles of furniture from the house. Jean saw, but said nothing. Only his eyes would follow Theresa wistfully, and every day he would make vain endeavors to regain use of his poor, rheumatic limbs, and would talk of the time when he could return to the Shoals.

Then one terrible day a man came with a paper for them to sign, and the paper said that if they did not pay a certain sum of money in a certain time the house would no longer be theirs; but when he went away he left a roll of bills upon the table. Theresa slipped out a moment to choke back the sobs in her throat, so that Jean might not see. But when she came back she found him crying—not as women cry, with low, repressed shudders, but with strong, convulsive sobs that shook his weak frame, and made her move swiftly to his side and throw her arms around his neck and press her cheek against his.

But in spite of it all, she was happy. What mattered anything so long as Jean was growing stronger every day? If necessary she could go out with the lobster-woman and earn enough to keep them from starving. So she laughed and sang at her work, and when the shadows grew thick on Jean's face she kissed them away, an petted and chided him until gladness and courage returned to his dear eyes.

One morning he walked to the door, and the next morning went as far as the gate. After that they took little walks every day, he on his crutches and she by his side, watching every movement, with her arms ready to assist.

By the time the fleet returned in the fall he had exchanged his crutches for a cane. Every afternoon, now, he and Theresa went down to the beach, and watched the fishermen prepare their catch for the market. He knew all the best methods of salting and drying, but so far had always been too busy to make experiments. Now, as he watched them day after day, many possible improvements occurred to him. One afternoon a sudden pleased look came to his face, and he took pencil and paper from his pocket and began to make sketches and figures. At last he called Theresa to his side and made a few eager explanations.

"Why, Jean," she cried, as she grasped his idea. "It is wonderful! It will revolutionize the whole process."

"Yes, it will make a great change," he agreed, "only it is odd no one ever thought of it before." Then he looked at her with a wistful expression in his eyes. "But it will not help us, Theresa. We have no fish and no prospect of getting any. I spoke with the doctor on the beach today, and he said I would never get over being lame—that I could never return to the Shoals."

"Jean!"

"Yes, dear, I know," looking at her with a wan smile. "I am not complaining. Heaven has been very good to us, but the future is not promising." He turned to his paper with a sudden effort. "Well, I will finish this, and tomorrow I will show it to some of the leading men. It will double their season's profit."

Theresa placed her hand upon his arm. "No, you will not show it to them," she said quietly. "It would not be right to give the discovery to them, when you need it so much more yourself."

"But what will I do with it?" curiously.

"That would cost money, and we have none. Besides, what could a poor fisherman hope to obtain by such an ambitious flight?"

Theresa bent forward and kissed him. "You go on with the work," she said, smiling. "I will find the money."

The next day she went out alone. When she returned she placed a roll of bills in his hand.

"For the patent," she said. "I borrowed it, and have engaged to work a year with the lobster-woman."

Jean half rose to his feet; then as he looked into her tranquil face he sank back with a groan.

A few days later he finished the drawings and sent them off. Then he went down to the stalls and obtained a temporary job with the packers. The work was hard—too hard for his strength—and the pay small. But it helped to keep off starvation.

One day a letter came from the lawyer; but in it were only questions, with not one word of encouragement.

So the fall wailed stormily into winter, and at last the winter smiled into spring; and then Jean did not know what Theresa would have done without him. However, people are quick to adopt improvements, and it was not long before Jean began to receive offers and propositions, one, two, a dozen of them, any one of which he would have accepted but for the wise shake of the head that was bending over his shoulder.

"Walt," she said, "your patent is valuable. You must not be hasty."

One day a keen, gray-haired man stepped briskly from the stage-coach and inquired for Jean Perrete. He did not go away until the next morning, and when he left he was half-owner of all the rights an privileges of the new invention.

But with Jean Perrete he left a check that represented more than a lifetime of industry on the Shoals. And Jean gazed at the check and at Theresa as though he were in a dream. But Theresa was "It is only what I expected," she said, with a luminous light in her eyes. not surprised.

YANKEE COLLEGES

Barter In the Open Market For Athletes.

American universities barter for young athletes is the charge made by Henry Beach Needham, who writes on colleges commercialism in the McClure Magazine for June.

An illustration of this is the case of James T. Hogan, famous captain and right tackle of Yale's champion football eleven.

"Hogan entered Exeter, a poor boy, at the age of 23," Mr. Needham writes. "He had been earning his own living when he set about to complete his education. His ambition was praiseworthy. Exeter gave him the chance to work his way through the school. Hogan took his preliminary examination to enter Harvard. Harvard joined Yale and Princeton in competition for this great 'prep' athlete. Claim is now made at Cambridge that Harvard lost him because no denite promises would be made. As proof of this contention are cited the facts that Hogan pased all of his Harvard entrance examinations satisfactorily, and that he applied for and was assigned a Price Greenfield aid (a scholarship paying about $200 in the freshman year). But Hogan went to Yale.

"The career of this athlete has been one of marked success. Hogan with his roommate, Rockwell, the star quarterback, occupies a suite in Vanderbilt hall, the most luxurious of the Yale dormitories, which is the 'hangout' for seniors. Hogan has forsaken the eating club he formed in his freshman year. He takes his meals at the University club. This is an expensive undergraduate organization similar to any social club. The initiation fee and dues are remitted in special cases, however.

"Hogan receives $100 a year, the income of the John Bennett scholarship. In addition, according to the dean, his entire tuition is remitted. The baseball association gives to Hogan, Rockwell and another athlete the score card privilege. Hogan's income is further augmented by commissions paid him by the American Tobacco company, whose agent he is."

WONDERNUL POOL PLAYER

Champion De Oro Has a Record For Nerve and Skill.

Alfredo De Oro, who recently regained the title of pool champion of the world in a specoal match with Jerome Keogh of Buffalo, in the latter's academy, is out with a challenge unique in the history of baize cloth games.

Champion De Oro throws down the gauntlet to all the champions of the cue, and says that he stands ready and willing to play any man living a combination game of pool and billiards.

De Oro declares that he would prefer to play a combination game, of three-cushion caroms and straight pool, 600 points at pool and 300 at three-cushion, the man having the highest number of buttons on both strings at the end of the game to be declared the winner.

The Cuban's challenge is directed at Jack Schaefer, Cure, Fournil, Vignaux and other masters of the cue, but if any of the pool players care to accept the conditions De Oro is willing to play them.

De Oro's challenge is the result of his position in the pool world. The Cuban is to pool what Jeffries is to the ring. At the present moment De Oro has no opponent, and from the outlook no one will care to tackle him at continuous pool in the near future.

Finding that he has no more opponents at pool, De Oro faces the choice of engaging in billiards or being idle. De Oro is a capable billiard player, but is hardly as strong as Schaefer, Fournil, Cure, Vignaux and several others. At pool, however, he is their master, and he has hit upon the idea of a compromise between the two games.

De Oro is willing to play under the conditions named for a side bet of $1,000. He declares that such a game would involve neither the pool nor billiard championships, but would be extremely interesting to lovers of both styles of games.

De Oro's recent victory over Keogh makes him the undisputed champion, and while there are several top-notchers at pool not one of them will take a chance with De Oro.

The Cuban is the most remarkable player of the century. For seventeen years he has been the champion of the world, with the exception of a few occasions when the title slipped from him, by default, owing to illness.

But he has never been beaten in a match, with the exception of a rather unimportant one with Al Powers.

The champion is a high-caste Cuban, and is proud of his ancestry. Born near Manzanillo, Cuba, he was reared on a large plantation and did not know what a pool table was until he visited New York city, intent on becoming a student in one of the big Eastern colleges.

De Oro's father was wealthy and he wanted his son to have an education becoming to his station in life. But De Oro had different plans for the future. De Oro was a wonder from the start. In a few months after he began to play he was champion of the club and in less than a year his name was known in all the high-class billiard halls in New York.

His success ended De Oro's career, and he became a professional pool player.

He met Manning for the championship of the world in 1887, and won it. After that he entered all the tournaments for championship honors, and while he failed to win several tournaments, he always challenged the winner and never failed to beat him.

De Oro's most notable performance was his victory over Keogh at the World's fair tournament, held in St. Louis last fall.

All the best players in the world were in the match, including Grant Eby of New York, Frank Sherman of Washington, Billy Clearwater of Pittsburg, Charley Weston of Denver, "Kid" Hueston of St. Louis, B. H. Brumby of Marietta, Ga.; Jerome Keogh of Buffalo, N. Y., and De Oro.

The match resulted in a three-corner tie between Hueston, Keogh and De Oro. In the play off De Oro easily polished off Hueston, but found a stubborn opponent in Keogh.

SENATOR STEWART IS POOR.

William M. Stewart, who served in the United States senate for thirty years, refused a re-election, and his last term expired on March 3 last, says the Kansas City Journal. He was rated as a millionaire, and, in fact, he was the possessor of a considerable fortune. Now, at the age of 78 years, he finds himself impoverished, and has gone to Tonopah, Nev., to establish a law office. He asserts that he is as energetic and hopeful of a fortune as when he went to California in 1849 and with pick and shovel began the accumulation of gold. While depending mainly on the law business, he will do some prospecting for gold or silver.

FAST ONES GOING EAST

Many Big Western Stables Will Be Heard From.

Louisville, June 3.—Several of the important stables which have been racing here left the Downs during the past week for New York. That this Western representation will cut some figure in their Eastern campaign goes without saying, as there are several horses among the lot which are capable of holding their own in any sort of company. In English Lad and Kurtzman Fred Cook has a pair that will be hard to beat when properly placed. English Lad is a much improved horse over last year. He was not hurried along as was the case last season, his trainer being content with giving him a long, slow prep, the idea being to have him ready along toward the middle of the Gravesend meeting. Besides filling out, English Lad has settled down and is much easier placed in a race, as was evidenced in his two starts here. Up to any sort of weight he is a horse that fancies a distance of a mile or over. Nicol understands his every whim and seems able to handle him to much better advantage than Dominick could last year. Kurtzman, too, has improved in looks and has wintered in grand shape. Always a horse of extreme speed he has shown a disposition this season of going on. He is a horse in about the same notch as Ivan the Terrible and will be heard from in the sprints out East. Besides George Bennett, Cook has two or three other two-year-olds that will hold their own.

T. C. McDowell never went East with better prospects than he does this spring. The star of his lot, Allan-a-Dale, is probably better right now than ever before, and that his owner is confident of pulling down some of the rich Eastern plums with him goes without saying. Mr. McDowell's one ambition is to win the suburban with Allan, and if his horse is as good the day the suburban is run as he is just now he will be hard to beat. In the event of Mr. McDowell being unable to secure Lucien Lyne, McLaughlin will have the mount on Allan-a-Dale in the big race. Besides the unbeaten King's Daughter there are a couple of good two-year-olds in this stable in Lady Anne and Gibson. The last named in a bay colt by Batten—Acushia, and has never started. He showed phenomenal speed in his early training this spring and it was he who was selected long ago as the McDowell representative in the nursery stakes, run here a few days ago. This colt took sick about ten days before the race was run and it was this that caused McDowell to start Lady Anne. The intention was to reserve the latter for the Futurity. She was beaten here mainly because she was hurried along in her preparation for the nursery, so betters would do well to remember this when she next starts, as she is sure to be a better filly the next time her owner sends her to the post.

Bad News is a star of the lot which E. R. Bradley is sending on to New York. This horse was rated among the best of them last year and the fact that he was beaten by Allan-a-Dale here should not prejudice one against him. The Bradley stable is rather weak in two-year-olds, none of the lot having shown anything out of the ordinary. There was some talk here last week of Bradley adding Pretension to his string but up to date the transfer has not been made.

NOTING MARTIAN SEASONS.

Recent astronomical observation of the planet Mars from the Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, Alaska, are reported as giving new information about that distant world, says the Kansas City Journal. The astronomists now believe after noting the change in colors of certain sections coincident with changes in the Martian year, that brownish sections of the planet which were before supposed to be seas, were simply stretches of winter-denuded soil, since at other epochs these same sections show a blue-green tint, indicating fresh vegetation. Thus our knowledge of the heavens grows slowly.

Many Modes in Millinery

NEW TREATMENT of the SAILOR SHAPE.

ONE OF THE FLARING DOUBLE SHAPES.

A BENDEL LACE HAT.

OF RIBBON, ROSES AND A SHADED PLUME.

FLOWERS AND FEATHERS—RIBBONS REIGN SUPREME—THE MADE HAT THE THING—ORIGINALITY AND INDIVIDUALITY THE QUEST—WINGS AN ESPECIAL FEATURE OF THE LATER MODES.

After the first shapes and styles that ushered in the spring season have been thoroughly tried out, the later developments of the summer shapes begin to manifest themselves.

Ever and always the dariler modes are really an experiment. Of necessity they are and must be more or less reminiscent of the late winter styles, and in many instances they are made up merely to find profitable use for the ribbons and flowers that have been left over from other days.

The millinery modes for the summer days are delightfully different from those that claimed our attention even a few short weeks ago. That extremely trying and often ridiculous polo turban is seldom, if, indeed, ever seen at the modish milliners' Its vogue, emphatic enough while it lasted, soon burned itself out, and the fact that, unlike all of the other turban shapes, it is utterly unsuited and unadaptable to any but the most youthful face, doubtless helped materially in its speedy downfall.

Shade seems to be the first requisite in the modish summer hat. This is a fashion that will be welcomed by young and elderly alike. Not that the hats are to be at all large in their proportions. It is merely that the very latest styles show a breadth of brim that cannot fail to yield some protection to the eyes from the glare of the summer sun, and prove extremely becoming to any and all types of face at the same time.

It is what is known as the made hat that reigns supreme in all of the summer shapes. This is merely that a wire frame is used as a foundation, to which the straw braids are sewn by hand, and this can then be bent and twisted into the lines that will assuredly prove the most flattering to their wearer.

The quest for originality and individuality in hats is muchly furthered by those made shapes, and there is simply no end or limit to the effects that the clever milliner can thus weave with one and the same hat when she comes to make it up for different customers. One has the back turned up flat over the crown, and the front brim turned into a very slight, almost imperceptible, downward flare. Another will have the very same shape with the back wired into fluted folds and turned up somewhat, while the front looks as though it had received a slap in the face and doubled up on itself, a smart quill being thrust through, apparently to hold it in place.

All of the summer modes are delightfully youthful in effect, and from the milliner's point of view, at any rate, it would appear a crime indeed for any woman to appear old. In fact, the only difference that one can perceive between the hat for the matron of 40 and her debutante daughter who has not yet said good-by to her teens is, or will be, in the wearing. The younger generation have taken to a most fascinating downward tilt to all of their hats in the front, while the more elderly ladies wear theirs after a more sedate fashion. The same shady shape, the same flowers and feathers, the same high, built-up back and even the same shades and colorings are worn by mother and daughter alike. Even those smart little Breton sailors that were once the perquisite of youth alone are now twisted and manipulated so that they do not look at all out of place over even snow-white locks.

Once upon a time, and not so very long ago, either, it was considered very poor taste to wear a beplumed hat in the mornings, with one's woollen tailormade frock. Even the simplest chapeau that was so adorned was not considered suitable for morning wear. But like so many other of our traditions sartorial, this one, too, has been put aside, and the plumed hat is now worn at any time of day and the wearer need not consider herself at all out of the correct mode in so doing.

Wings are a very prominent feature of all of the latest shapes. Their mode and method of application is delightfully various. In most instances, though, they are posed flat, and the tips point to the back, rather than in any other direction. Where those smart wings are employed—and they are used in a multitude of delicate tints—velvet ribbons are accepted as the correct accompaniment, and flowers and ostrich plumes seldom, if ever, appear on the wing-trimmed hat.

The shaded effects, of which we got just a hint last autumn, are to the fore in a most bewitching way. Color combinations are most complicated and the greatest care must be taken in the blending and mixing so that the appearance of "a paint shop out on a spree," as one witty girl characterized an unfortunate selection of colors in a hat the other day, will not be the one presented. In the chapeaux that are fashioned entirely of ribbons this caution cannot be too strongly borne in mind, for Madame La Mode beams bountifully upon the chapeau that displays several shadings and colorings in ribbon for its chief attraction.

QUILLED RIBBON AND A WREATH OF ROSES.

New Treatment of the Sailor Shape

Here a pale lilac sailor in a fine chip straw is trimmed with roses that run the gamut of natural shades, from a pale pink into a rich, deep red Jacqueminot. There is a deep bandeau on the left side that tilts the hat high, and this is covered with a perfect conservatory of the vari-colored roses, with velvet maidenhair fern and some dark green velvet ribbon for relief. The crown is encircled with a sparse rose wreath, some grasses in the odd brown tones that these assume in nature being beautifully reproduced, and just a spray or two of heliotrope tucked in here and there completes the color harmony. Two fluffy ostrich plumes start from the bandeau at the left side, the tip of one curling up over the brim to the crown, and the other wending its curly way to the low coiffure in the back, over which a coiffure hair net has been deftly drawn.

One of the Flaring Double Shapes.

The vogue of the new double shapes is one that must be seen to be appreciated. There is something distinctly smart in the flaring lines, and they do afford a scope for originality that is lacking elsewhere. White mallines and a white horsehair braid are cleverly used in the chapeau illustrated, which is on this double order. The upper section follows the flare of the lower, except that it is turned sharply upward on the right side to display a pink cabbage rose tucked in on the lower brim. The left side is turned up abruptly and faced with billowy folds of mallines and another big pink rose with just a spray or two of foliage is deftly perched here. The back sets close to the shape of the head, and a big splashing bow of white satin ribbon rests flatly on the crown.

Of Ribbon, Roses and a Shaded Plume.

The hat that is fashioned entirely of ribbons is tremendously fashionable. The one illustrated shows a frame covered with a raspberry tinted straw, and on this little crush roses in several shades of the same colored ribbon are sewn, these covering the straw, except for occasional glimpses. The edge of the brim is bound with velvet of a deeper tint, and the under brim faced with framboise chiffon is banded at intervals with velvet folds. The shape is one of the recent successors to the long popular shepherdess, the crown fitting comfortably to the head, and the brim showing a graceful, though slight dip in front. Two long plumes, shading from the faintest pink into the deepest raspberry tone, are posed in the back, the quill ends being thrust through the roses on the crown and then falling flat over the brim to the hair behind.

Quilled Ribbon and a Wreath of Roses.

In this instance a wire frame is covered with quilled pale blue satin ribbon, the quilling done in the center and following a side-pleated effect. The sailor shape is the one chosen, and the under brim is faced with a heavy shirred white chiffon, with a lace edge turned up to the top brim. A wreath of roses, shading from a pale blue to the deep old porcelain shade, and with foliage running from a faint green to the rich copper tone that is observed in hothouse rose foliage, passes carelessly from side to side across the front. A bandeau in front gives the hat that very becoming tilt down over the face, and this is covered with a drapery of lace-edged chiffon disposed after a handkerchief effect.

SMART LITTLE FLAT SHAPE.

Smart Little Flat Shape.

In this chapeau one of the latest and most youthful conceits in millinery is displayed. A flat brim sailor furnishes the motif, this covered with a plisse horsehair braid in a dead tone of white. The crown is shallow and the brim wide. The underfacing is of folds of mousseline loosely tucked to the brim. A deep bandeau is tucked in at the left side of the back, this giving a very odd tilt to the shape, and on this a long plume is wreathed. The crown is simply encircled with a twist of white satin ribbon, with a simple loop knot on the side.

A Bendel Lace Hat.

Black chantilly lace is cleverly combined with embroidered chiffon pear-shaped motifs in the making of this picturesque hat. The lace is ruffled over the crown and the brim, the edge falling in curtain fashion along the brim, but supported at close intervals by the wire frame. The under brim displays the embroidered chiffon motifs—these, too, held by the loops of black silk wire that form the frame. The crown is encircled with a thick wreath, made of black satin ribbon loops, this mounted upon a wire so that it may readily be bent to the desired shape. Under the brim a spray of wisteria in the natural violet tones is posed; and long black satin ribbon strings depend from the back of the hat and are carelessly drawn around to the front, but are not tied under the chin.

The latest things in sunshades have tops as flat as a Chinese paper umbrella. The stick is long and made to fold up so that it may readily be packed into the ordinary trunk, or even into a suit case. Crystal handles, exquisitely cut, are the latest fashionable extravagance in this direction.

Some Dainty Fixings and Furbishings.

There is a wealth of the daintiest things in all of those small fixings and furbishings that go so far toward making a smart appearance.

The knowledge of what's what in these amounts almost to a cult; and scarcely a day passes that some new and fascinating novelty is not presented in these.

The amount of money that one can invest in collar and cuff sets alone would make the uninitiated stare. And, incidentally, the best tailors are making up the plain linen and madras shirtwaists with just a plain band at throat and wrist, to which one buttons on the stiff linen collars and cuffs that are having such an extended vogue in Paris. Over here the smart people who keep in touch with all that is new and novel in fads and fashions are just beginning to wear them.

The collars are but medium high, and the front and back fastenings are about equally favored. The foldover collar is shown with all sorts of dainty stitcheries to mitigate its severity of outline. There are rows of hemstitching, one, two or three of them; there are the daintiest little sprays done in the solid French embroidery; and quite a fad it is to have one's favorite flower so embroidered. And then there are others with petit pois or polka dots heavily embroidered in groups, straight lines, diamonds, and a hit-or-miss pattern that looks like no pattern at all, but rather as though one has just sprinkled them at random over the fine linen.

The cuffs to these sets are far different from the plain and conventional lines that shape the collars. Usually the cuff is a down-turned one; and the more irregular the outline the better the style. Those that turn back from a straight band are in high favor, too, and the edges of these are deeply scalloped and buttonholed.

There is quite a strong demand for colored handkerchiefs of the sheerest linen batiste to match the filmy frocks of the summer time. In all of the rose and the raspberry shades there are charming trifles, with or without a lace edge whipped on by hand. All of the mauve and violet tints, the blues, and some new sulphur and copper shades are all well represented; and even a soft pearl gray with a violet border is meeting with considerable favor.

It is quite evident that the jewelers expect that this will be a collarless summer, for they have prepared the most distractingly lovely things in collars of filigree silver and of wrought gold that are a temptation to look upon. Those in silver follow the classical Maltese and East Indian designs, and are intended to be clasped close around the throat, taking the place of the usual collar of the gown. Sometimes there is a festoon effect of fine chains that center in the front, where a jewel or a section of the collar design acts as a pendant.

In the bead necklaces of various origin the several strands that pass through rhinestone slides are shown in quite a number of new designs. Crystal rondels are often employed to separate the beads, and when these are in turquoise or coral the effect is an extremely pretty one.

Those dainty little metal slides that have a jeweled stud at either end are now to be had at almost any notion counter. They are intended to be thrust through the transparent collars of lace and to hold them in shape during wear. For all of the other collars, though, nothing more generally satisfactory than the featherbone strips has so far been found, and doubtless these will continue to be used indefinitely.

In many of the summer frocks the lingerie petticoat will be expected to do double duty—once as a petticoat and again as a drop skirt as well. When such double service is demanded of it a smart idea is to run some of that featherbone cording—it comes encased in a strong crinoline—into the hem. This withstands all the assaults of the laundry without splitting and cracking, and it will keep the dress skirts from assuming the skimpy lines that even the fullest of the sheer organdies, batistes, nets, dotted Swisses and such will sometimes assume in the summer time, and especially when the humidity is rampant and the thermometer soaring toward the top notch.

Silk is undeniably warm when once the dog days heave in sight, and even those most devoted to silk petticoats and silk linings are fain to find some substitute that will afford all the grace and style of silk, but without its heating qualities. Some of the best dressmakers are fashioning special petticoats of colored linen or of mohair. These are carefully fitted at the top, and a large variety of flounces, some of them exquisitely trimmed, are made to fasten on, so that they can be removed instanter. Either buttons and buttonholes or else the snap fasteners are employed.

Frills of Fashion.

The Greek key design is manipulated in a host of various ways, simple and intricate. In velvet, either ribbon or bias piece strips, it is used, and a tiny tight quilling of either a silk or a gauze ribbon is used to define the pattern.

Swansdown is coming back into fashionable favor after a long period of neglect. Some very smart short boas are shown in this; and there are charming evening capes in henrietta and the like that are edged all around with this white fluffy fur.

Charming little short coats, full and loose, are shown for evening wear at the mountain or seashore resorts. These are of the godet pattern and unlined. In soft cashmeres and henriettas they come in all the delicate tints; and the sleeve is so loose that one can readily thrust even the fluffiest dress sleeve through it without fear of crushing.

The touch of velvet trimming appears on even the linen frocks that are destined to receive their periodic cleansing at the laundress' rather than at the dry cleaner's. The best shops are showing these in separable shape, smart buttons being sewn on the coat and the necessary buttonholes for attachment made in the velvet collar and cuffs.

The latest things in robe frocks show tiny checks in mohair, the soft, silky chiffon finish prevailing, and the border is in a plaid of the same tones. In these the skirt follows the circular mode, the fitting to be accomplished by pleating over the hips; and there is a shawl suggestion in the pattern for the bodice and the sleeves, which is further emphasized in some of them by a rather ragged fringe for a finish at the edge.

Fringes have come to the front in some several and unexpected ways. It is chiefly the very short fringes that are employed; and there are some gowns in embroidered voile that show flounces deeply scalloped and edged with a short bobby fringe. Some in old blue are embroidered in ragged sailors, and the fringe has been dyed to match. In the new Tahiti robes the fringe is either self-color or in ecru, and white fringes are seen on a multitude of colored gowns.

The vogue of the ribbon frock is one that is making a perfect furore for itself. There are some charming ones on a square-meshed white or ecru net almost entirely covered with graduated rows of coral or of turquoise velvet ribbons. Less popular, but vastly becoming to the right girl, are the frocks in sulphur yellow velvet ribbons, and mustard yellow—moutarde anglaise, or English mustard, the Parisiennes term it—is another recent comer. Some pretty ones are shown in which several shades of green are employed, and the rose tones are similarly treated. The lighter tints are at the top, the color deepening from the shoulder to the feet.

Painted or Varnished Floors

May be kept in good condition by wiping with a damp cloth and then rubbing with a dry woolen cloth. This, of course, is for floors that do not get badly soiled. Kitchen or pantry floors may be washed with skim milk; if very dirty, with soap and water. A scrubbing brush should never be used on a painted or varnished floor.

Cocoa Stains on Table Linen

May be removed with oxalic acid when boiling water fails. Spread the stained part on a plate and pour on it a little hot acid. Rub gently with a soft brush. When the stain disappears, rinse the article in plenty of cold water and then in ammonia water to neutralize the acid. A tablespoonful of ammonia to two quarts of water will be the right proportion.

DRAMATICAL

ATTRACTIONS AT THE LYCEUM

Grace Van Studdiford In "The Red Feather" Next Friday and Saturday Nights and Saturday Matinee.

Grace Van Studdiford and her big supporting company will return to this city next Friday for two evenings, and will be seen at the Lyceum theater.

In presenting for the second time this brilliant prima donna in De Koven, Klein and Cook's comic opera, "Red Feather," the management gives music lovers in this city not only another opportunity to hear one of America's greatest singers, but to again witness the best comic opera which has been presented this season. No more true nor satisfying performances has ever been given in this city. As Red Feather, Miss Van Studdiford stands forth a thorough master of her art; she not only sings the music well, but brings out the full dramatic strength of the role. She is surrounded by a clever dramatic company of uniform excellence, and the production in its entirety is a gorgeous affair. The eye is pleased by pretty scenes, beautiful women in fashionable gowns and well-designed costumes and picturesque art, while the numbers in the score will pass into the popular repertoire. There is not one weak feature in the entire production—principals, chorus, orchestra, scenery and costumes, all combine in making a magnificent ensemble. Vocabulary of praise is almost exhausted when speaking of Grace Van Studdiford as an artist and a singer. She is charming in the extreme, brilliant, graceful, her fervent and artistic singing of the role of the Countess Hilda Von Draga places her at the head of all other prima donnas.

The music of this charming opera is after De Koven's best style and is marked by his individuality in a very pleasing way; that peculiar quality which distinguishes the great composer's works from compositions by other musicians is present in a large degree; that distinctive air which dominates all De Koven's selections is present in every number and cannot be mistaken for the inspiration of any other man. The score of "Red Feather" is original and there is never a reminiscent strain to awaken the echoes of previous music to the annoyance of the listener. Many consider it the best this noted composer has yet written, and it is away above that of most comic operas. The book, too, which was written by Charles Klein, has a plot worth the hearing and seeing; and its lyrics, the work of Charles Emerson Cook, are something more than clever versification.

The story of the opera briefly is as follows: Red Feather is a notorious highwayman, who has terrorized the kingdom of Romancia, is in reality the beautiful young Countess Von Draga, with whom the Crown Prince, the captain of the royal guard and three nice old counsellors are all in love. She loves the captain, and when, having been ordered to capture Red Feather on penalty of degradation, the captain learns the truth that Red Feather is the woman of his heart, there is a very pretty situation.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

George Ade's New Comedy For Henry W. Savage Completed--Pollard's Lilliputians Again In This Country--Frank Campeau Was To Have Been Starred By Kirke La Shelle.

New York, June 3.—George Ade completed the scenario of his new comedy for Henry W. Savage during his recent journey to Japan. The piece is in four acts and will be called "The Bad Samaritan." The idea is decidedly novel. A young man of somewhat intemperate habits had his wealthy father confined in a sanitarium, hoping that by the incarceration the son will gain freedom to indulge his tastes. The old man, however, emerges entirely rejuvenated and teaches the son things that the younger man had never dreamed of. An undercurrent of love permeates the story. Mr. Savage is reported as being very much pleased with the first installment, and "The Bad Samaritan" will doubtless be produced at the Garden theater, New York, early in September.

One of the most thorough successes scored in Western America last season was that of Pollard's Lilliputian opera company, which is now again in the United States on a third visit and which will be seen here on Sunday, June 11, at the Grand opera house. All of the little favorites will be again seen in the cast, and the repertoire of operas and musical comedies this year will be exceptionally fine. It will include Augustin Daly's famous musical success, "A Runaway Girl." Then there will be the ever beautiful "Belle of New York," with which the Pollard children have scored such a tremendous success in Australia, China and Japan. They will also present the "Geisha," "A Gaiety Girl," "Pinafore," and many others. Among so many excellent pieces, it is hard to choose one above the other for presentation.

Frank Campeau, who plays the part of Trampas in "The Virginian," was to have been starred next season by Kirke La Shelle, but as Mr. La Shelle is now dead, he will have to continue as the bad man in "The Virginian." The part La Shelle had in view for Campeau was that of a villian who was not only the central character of the play, but who should command the sympathy of the audience. Campeau was asked recently if he preferred the villian role and he promptly said, "No." Continuing he said: "The actors who say they like to impersonate villians are either telling what they do not believe or else they are actors whose personalities are limited to the scope of so-called heavy character." Besides in the character of Trampas, Campeau has been successful as Jenkins in a popular play twelve years ago called "Money Mad," as Tom Driscol in "Pudd'nhead Wilson" and as Tony in "Arizona."

During one of the rehearsals of "Richard III." which Robert B. Mantell presented in Chicago recently, William A. Brady was a witness. He was watching the small army of supers going through their evolutions and saw a mistake, leaping to his feet he shouted: "No, not that way—this way," showing them how. "What's that guy buttin' in ter?" one of the mob was heard to say. "Sh!" said a companion, warningly. "Dat's the guy what wrote the play."

Jane Oaker, who was leading lady for Wilton Lackaye in "The Pit," is now leading woman in the Farnum stock company of Buffalo. She succeeded Miss Percy Haswell, who is now supporting Jacob P. Adler, the Yiddish tragedian.

Belasco has added another star to his side. She is Miss Bertha Galland. She will play the title role in "Sweet Kitty Belairs," the play in which Miss Henrietta Crossman made such a hit last season while under Mr. Belasco's management.

The autograph fever evidently shows no signs of a decline or a decrease in interest. Professional people, who at one time sneered at ordinary folks, who collected autographs are now numbered among the most ardent supporters of this fad, and some of our most prominent players, artists and singers carry autograph albums with them wherever they go. Ethel Levey, who is appearing this season with George M. Cohan in "Little Johnny Jones," frankly calls herself an autograph "fiend." Miss Levey has an autograph album that differs from the ordinary book in that it is not necessary for the writer of the autograph to become the author of the sentiment, as the various sentiments are printed in the book. All that is required is for the person to select a sentiment, and place his or her autograph beneath it. The book was not originally intended for an autograph album, for it is entitled, "A Thousand Flashes of French Wit," "Wisdom and Wickedness," collected and translated by J. De Finod. Miss Levey has been very industrious in securing the autographs of a great many prominent people well known in the field of drama as well as the literary world. A few extracts from Miss Levey's valuable book are printed below:

"To select well among old things is almost equal to inventing new ones."—Nellie Melba.

"What seems only ridiculous is sometimes very serious."—Ellen Terry.

"A burlesque word is often a mighty sermon."—J. Forbes Robertson.

"A delicate thought is a flower of the mind."—Gertrude Elliott.

"A truth that one does not understand becomes an error."—Emma Calve.

"All truths are not to be uttered; still it is always good to hear them."—Franz Von Vescey.

"The most completely lost of all days is the one on which we have not laughed."—Charles H. Hawtrey.

"The most completely lost of all days is the one on which we have not thought."—John Drew.

"Melancholy is the convalescence of sorrow."—Opie Read.

"It is easier to take care of a peck of fleas than one woman."—Will H. Sloan.

"He who is devoted to everybody is devoted to nobody."—Julia Dean.

"Love is a bird that sings in the heart of a woman."—James K. Hackett.

"Everybody exclaims against gratitude. Are there so many benefactors?"—N. C. Goodwin.

"No faith has triumphed without its martyrs."—Olga Nethersole.

"Gratitude is the memory of the heart."—Eleanor Robson.

"Jealousy is the homage that inferiority pays to merit."—Francis Wilson.

"Happy is he who finds a friend; without that second self one lives but half a life."—Christie McDonald Jefferson.

"We are never as happy, or as unhappy as we fancy."—Maxine Elliott.

"In witnessing the satisfaction with which some people depreciate us one would think that their virtues fatten on our vices."—DeWolf Hopper.

"We know the value of a fortune when we have gained it, and that of a friend when we have lost it."—Joe Webber.

"Paradise was made for tender hearts, hell was made for loveless hearts."—Lew Fields.

"Nature has said to women: Be fair if thou canst, be virtuous if thou wilt, but consider thou must be."—Fay Templeton.

"Destiny; sinister burst of laughter."—Truly Shattuck Douglas.

"Do good today, since you still livest."—Lillian Russell.

"A woman forgives the audacity which her beauty has prompted us to be guilty of."—Kyrle Bellew.

"Virtue is the politeness of the soul."—Edna Aug.

Mary Hall, after some months of retirement, will return to her old place as leading woman at the Castle Square theater, Boston. Miss Hall has always been a strong favorite with patrons of the Castle Square and will surely be warmly welcomed back to Boston for the season of twelve weeks, beginning June 10.

The next Charles B. Dillingham star to play in London is Frank Daniels. When George Edwardes was in America last season he witnessed a performance of "The Office Boy" and thought that was the real thing for London, and to that end he contracted with Mr. Dillingham for Daniels' appearance there next May. The contract is not for one season, but for three, so all the Daniels successes will doubtless be seen there. Maxine Elliott, another Dillingham star, has caught on and is playing to the capacity of the Lyric theater at every performance, and it is only a question of securing time and theaters as to how long Miss Elliott can remain in London.

Walter Damrosch, with a fine orchestra, has entered upon a series of "symphony nights." The concerts are given on the glass-inclosed roof of the New York theater.

* * *

Mr. Harrison Grey Fiske is said to have in contemplation an elaborate revival of "Tess of the d'Urbervilles" in New York City, with Mrs. Fiske in the title role, possibly in the coming season. Mr. Fiske believes that the permanent and human interest of "Tess" will warrant great expenditure in staging the revival, and expects that, if so produced, the play will draw crowded houses during a long run. Two years ago, when "Tess" was revived for two weeks only, it proved a tremendous success.

* * *

Nat Goodwin is to have a new play next season written by Haddon Chambers and called "Chope's Swagger Friend: A Comedy of the Outskirts." Goodwin will present it in New York while Arthur Bourcher will play it in London.

* * *

Florence Bindley will appear next season in a musical play called "The Belle of the West," by Harry B. Smith. She made her first appearance as a star early this this season in "The Street Singer."

* * *

Mme. Lillian Blauvelt has signed a contract with F. C. Whitney to appear in comic opera under his management for six years. Her first appearance will be in "The Rose of the Alhambra." The play is Spanish in subject, with scenes laid in Granada and Seville.

Frank Campeau has been out of the cast of "The Virginian" for the past two weeks on account of illness.

The revival of "Romeo and Juliet" by the Sothern-Marlowe combination recalls an effort made some years ago to learn the source of Shakespeare's inspiration in writing the play, and the following facts were learned: Near Stratford-on-Avon, the birthplace of Shakespeare, there is a house called Clopton house, the residence of the late Sir Arthur Hodgson, which has some strange and tragic memories. If tradition may be believed, incidents occurred there in Shakespeare's own time which may have suggested to him the vault scene in "Romeo and Juliet" without going to the novel of Bandello or other Italian sources, and also the drowning of Ophelia. The traditional Warwickshire original of Juliet was Charlotte Clopton, and she was taken ill during an outbreak of the plague in Stratford-on-Avon, and apparently died and was buried in the Clopton family vault. The burial was, however, premature, for when the vault was opened a week later to receive another coffin the bearers saw Charlotte Clopton leaning against the wall in her grave clothes. "And when they looked nearer," says William Howitt, who tells the story in his "Visits to Remarkable Mansions," "she was indeed dead, but not before, in the agonies of despair and hunger, she had bitten a piece of flesh from her white, round arm." Like Ophelia, Margaret Clopton, a sister of Charlotte, fell in love with a man who afterward repudiated her. Her mind became unhinged, and she drowned herself in a pool in the lofty grounds of her home. When Shakespeare was a boy the tales about the tragic ends of Charlotte and Margaret Clopton must have been the theme of common gossip, and were likely to make a profound impression on his mind. They have never been forgotten in Warwickshire, and the ghosts of Charlotte and Margaret have long been supposed to wander through the corridors of Clopton house. Even the genial spirit of the late Sir Arthur Hodgson was not able completely to exercise them. However, the people of Stratford and of Warwickshire are persuaded that Juliet and Ophelia are no other than Charlotte and Margaret Clopton.

Mme. Kalich, the great Russian actress, who made a sensational success recently in the Bowery district of New York, has moved up town and is playing in English. She made her first appearance at the American theater the other night in "Fedora" before an immense audience and received great applause and a stageful of flowers.

George Tyler and Joseph Brookes have started on their 30,000 mile Continental-European motor car tour. They are going to stop at nothing unless it is a stone wall. George Tyler has arranged all his plans with regard to the production of Hall Caine's "The Prodigal Son," which is to be played simultaneously in London and New York on Labor day. "The Prodigal Son" will be on the other side at Drury Lane and in New York at the New Amsterdam theater. It is the biggest dramatical production, as far as cost and scenery go, that has been handed out in years.

"It is a tremendous undertaking to get a new play accepted and produced," said Clyde Fitch. "So many are written and so few ever see the light of day. An English playwright with a gift of humorous exaggeration illustrated this fact once. He told me he had submitted a play to a celebrated actor and how in the course of the conversation the actor remarked:

"'Don't you think this room is rather cold?'

"'It is rather cold,' the young playwright admitted.

"Then the actor rang and a servant appeared.

"'James,' he said, 'put three more manuscripts on the fire.'"

Olive Fremstad, of the Metropolitan Opera company, sailed on the Savole, of the French line, May 18. She will be heard in opera several times in Paris and Berlin this season. Her summer vacation will be spent principally in the Alps, and she will then return to rejoin Mr. Conreid's company. After next season she will be permanently in Paris to sing in grand opera.

In its criticism of Ibsen's play, "The Master Builder," which was given recently at the Madison Square theater in aid of the fund for the proposed memorial window of the late Mrs. G. H. Gilbert, the New York Herald said: "The most commendable feature of the performance was Miss Amy Revard's consistent and graceful embodiment of Tilda Wangel. Her acting in the final scene, indeed, showed some flashes of real power." The New York press was unanimous in its praise of Miss Ricard's acting, though not complimentary to the play.

Augustus Pitou Jr., has been appointed by Henry W. Savage to fill an important position in the New ork office of that theatrical manager. Mr. Pitou will be located permanently in the metropolis, and will assist Col. Edward A. Braden, Mr. Savage's general manager, and will have charge of purchasing and engagement department. In the latter Mr. Pitou will be assisted by H. H. Hamilton, who is egarded as one of the best authorities on singing voices in this country.

Harry Bulger, the comical Blue Jay of "Woodland" company, is now in New York. He met an actor friend just in from the "one nighters" recently, and the following dialogue took place:

"Great sanson, Harry," said the barnstormer. "Made quite a hit in the part of the Mexican greaser. 'Twas a regular scream-out in Painted Dogs."

"Can you play a Mexican?" questioned Bulger, doubtingly.

"Sure," said the other.

"Well, then, suppose you roll me a cigarette," retorted Bulger.

"We used to be very much afraid of George Ade at rehearsals," said Frances Ring, of the "County Chairman" company. "Not that he was ever disagreeable, but he was so distant and quiet. He never took the least notice of the actors. I used to say to the other girls that it was just as well, because he'd probably say something very clever, and we'd never know how to answer him.

"One day, though, I was sitting on a costume basket, when Mr. Ade came and sat down beside me. I was frightened nearly to death. He didn't open his mouth for maybe a minute. Then he turned and said:

"'Which would you rather be— a literary man or a burglar?'

"I gave him the first thing that came into my head:

"'What's the difference?' said I."

"I was a member of a strolling company of players many years ago," said Dan Collyer of "The College Widow" company, "in which one is at the end of the season rich in experience but with little else with which to remember the months just passed. Business had been bad, very bad for a week, and one night in a little Pennsylvania town we were all so demoralized that I suppose the performance was a little bit worse than usual. I was seated in the ramshackle hotel with the manager, discussing the lack of appreciation all over the world of true histrionic art, and the flatheadedness of the people in that particular water tank especially.

"A very pompous young fellow came up to us and said:

"'Is this Mr. Colyer?'

"I admitted the fact and he went on: "'Well,' said he, 'I am the dramatic critic of the Umpville Bugle, and I just wanted to tell you that you must be prepared for a very severe criticism in the morning, for I think your show is very bad, although personally I like you.'

"The manager quick as a flash said, 'Don't let that bother you, yong man. We can walk outside of the Bugle's circulation in ten minutes.'"

"Hans Wagner says in the 'Prince of Pilsen' that there is only one place in the world where a man is born with a title, and that's in Kentucky," remarked Raymon Hitchcock the other day. "Along the same line," continued the player, "I had a rather amusing experience in the above state. You know down there it's 'Colonel' this and 'Colonel' that, until sometimes it gets monotonous. Well, I met a very distinguished old fellow—wide hat, snow white goatee, and a man you would naturally think had marched under the 'stars and bars' to the tune of 'Old Dixie.'

"'Colonel Calhoun,' I asked him, 'were you in the militia?'

"'No suh,' replied he in what I thought was a tone of surprise.

"'Then, I suppose you took part in the late unpleasantness?'

"'Wrong again, suh,' responded the colonel.

"'You must pardon my insistence,' I hastened to add, 'but will you tell me how you became a colonel?'

"'Not at all, suh, not at all,' he answered smilingly. 'The fact, suh, is I married the beauteous widow of the intrepid and lately lamented Cunnel Johnson, suh.'"

The first of the Henry W. Savage attractions to be offered to the public next season will be "The College Widow," which will have its first presentation outside of New York, July 31 in Chicago. The remarkable success which favored this George Ade comedy last season in the metropolis, where it ran for a total of 284 performances, has evidenced such a desire throughout the country for a glimpse of what has been called the "true American play," that Mr. Savage has completed the personnel of two companies to be known as the Eastern and Western. One company will probably inaugurate its season in Boston at a date to be decided upon later.

The opera by John Kendrick Bangs and Manuel Klein, as yet unnamed, will be produced by Mr. Savage on Aug. 14. This is the first original libretto ever written by the humorist, and from advance installments of the book gives every evidence of being a distinct novelty.

Henry W. Savage's Garden theater in New York will once more be the home of a George Ade comedy for early in September the Madison avenue play house will throw open its doors with a new American comedy called "The Bad Samaritan." The absurd contradiction of the title is in itself amusing, and it is said that the Indiana author has evolved a plot quite as novel and interesting as the amusing story of the "College Widow."

So great has been the success of "Little Johnny Jones" the past season that George M. Cohan's manager, Sam H. Harris, has decided to place another company on the road next year. The company headed by Mr. Cohan has been booked exclusively in the largest cities only, while the other company, which will be headed by Bobby Barry, will play the principal cities not touched by Mr. Cohan. Both organizations will have exactly the same equipment in scenery, wardrobe and effects, and each will have the same number of people.

Klaw & Erlanger's agents are busily scouring Europe for novelties to be presented at the New Amsterdam theater, New York, where they bring out the latest Drury Lane pantomime, "The White Cat," next December. The piece offers many opportunities for the introduction of specialties, and Klaw & Erlanger are determined to make this a Simon Pure European production. Of course the cast will be American, but inasmuch as their other spectacular productions for next season, "The Pearl and the Pumpkin," is laid on purely musical comedy and scenic lines, in "The White Cat" they want to avoid all this and make it a ballet and specialty production.

Charles Frohman has signed a contract for a number of years with the best musical comedy comedian on either side of the Atlantic. This is Huntley Wright, who for nine years has been the star of all the productions at Daly's theater, London, and was the creator of all the parts played in America by James T. Powers and William Morris. Huntley Wright has probably got the greatest following in London of anyone on the stage.

"The Maid and the Millionaire" is said to be the title of the new play which George M. Cohan has just completed for Fay Templeton, who will star in it next season under the direction of Klaw & Erlanger. Mr. Cohan has composed all the music for the production, and has written the play inside of two months, in addition to which he has appeared nightly in "Little Johnny Jones," and has found time to play baseball with his own nine three days a week. But then 'tis said Cohan works while others sleep.

CONEY ISLAND SHOWS

Dramatization of the "Eat-Off-Your-Hand" Joke--Acres of Coney Island Occupied By Amusement Concerns, and No Fakes Or Extortions.

New York, June 3.—An old stage joke, the one about a wild beast so thoroughly tamed that "he would eat off your hand," has been dramatized realistically. The first scene is a cage occupying the whole stage of a theater at Coney Island; the time is a summer Saturday night in 1904. The characters are Jacques Boniventa and Baltimore, both big and handsome, the former a tamer of lions and the latter a lion believed to have been tamed. Boniventa enters and bows right and left. A door is opened and twenty male lions troop in. They have high forheads, with manes framing their amiable faces; and they are so lazy and sleepy that on wonders if they have been drugged —all save Baltimore. His eyes are covert, his gait is a sneak and he has the aspect of a stage villain. He sullenly refuses to take his place on a pedestal. Boniventa snaps a whip at him with a pop like a firecracker. The beast leaps upon the man like a demon, prostrates him, claws his shoulder and bites his right hand. Half a dozen attendants rush to the cage and fire blank cartridges into the face of the beast. The man struggles to his feet, bows dazedly to the spectators and backs off the stage. The press agent of the show, on the watch for such incidents to get into print, called up the newspaper offices over the telephone to tell what Baltimore had done to Boniventa, but it was almost 2 o'clock of a Saturday night, the early Sunday forms were being rushed to the presses, there was no time to send reporters to find out the truth and so the public got no assurance that anything serious had happened to the lion tamer.

The second act in this dramatization of the "eat off your hand" joke I saw performed on the same stage at Coney Isand recenty. Jacques Boniventa has the center as before, but not again is the stalwart athlete of a year ago. His face would be pallid but for rouge and his right arm ends in a stump at the wrist. I wouldn't care to warrant that the lion who now appears as Baltimore is really the one that ate off the lion tamer's hand, but a surly, snarling brute is pointed out for him among twenty, and anyway he is quite capable of killing the man, even though attendants are now ready to shoot him with rifles. Boniventa used to carry a sharpened iron bar in his right hand for defense, while he snapped the whip with his left, but he has no right with which to wield a weapon, and he lacks the strength to save himself from an onslaught by agility, for he is so weak from illness that he has to go to bed for a rest after quitting the cage.

"Why do you keep at it?" I asked.

"It's the only trade I know," he replied.

"Why do you let him do it?" I asked Bostwick.

"Would it be kind to take away his job?" he answered.

The spectators don't hope, but they do expect that a lion will eat off more of Boniventa, and when it happens they wish to be there to see. It is a pitiful shame for all concerned, excepting Boniventa, and his fault is idiocy.

Last Saturday's letter described the discovery of the Chinese theater, at the lower end of the Bowery, by auto car tourists from Upper Broadway. Next Monday those same seekers of stage novelty will make aerial trips to roof gardens to find a new lot of summer extravaganzas. They are devoting this week to the theatrical exploration of Coney island, and an amazing place they find it to be. They see, for example, "The Boer War" as it was at the St. Louis fair, only more so, for it is larger; also, they have a choice between "Fighting Fire" and "Fighting Flames," the biggest two indoor shows in America and fighting each other furiously, for one is in Luna park and the other in Dreamland, the rival Pikes of Coney island. Each is equal in extent, in rococo architecture, electro lighted and in diversity of entertainments to one entire side of the famous Pike at the Louisana Purchase exposition. The scenes of the opposition fire plays are New York city squares, spacious enough to look the size of reality, where for an hour street traffic and incidents are incessant. Men, women and children by the hundreds crowd strolling musicians, scrapping newsboys, automobile collisions, thief chases and other exciting turbulences. All manner of vehicles for business and pleasure—handcarts and trolley cars, bicycles and motor racers, hansoms and four-in-hands complete wonderfully true representations of street life in Gotham. A fire breaks out in a tenement house and the process of fighting against the flames and rescuing imperilled persons is illustrated with real flermen and real apparatus. The fire fighters of St. Louis gave a small and crude show by comparison with these.

Twenty or so of the biggest affairs have been brought here from out there intact, but they no more than hold their own with the brand new disclosures. Luna park and Dreamland don't cover a quarter of the area of theatrical structures, from huge vaudeville halls to enormous spectacles, and fakes which formerly abounded—for this season the police prohibit swindles, indecencies and even side show monstrosities. I wonder if the late Mr. Barnum can see Coney island, and what he thinks of it.

A small bunch of good brain sometimes serves as well as a big bunch of good money to set a showman up in business at Coney Island. One case of an original idea being coined into much cash struck me as interesting. Fortune tellers by the hundred have their booths along the streets. The woman inside may be a palmist, hypnotist, card reader, or second-sighter, but almost unvaryingly she is old and ugly. But a genius has made an innovation in the hocus-pocus field. I don't know who he is; he keeps out of sight. The visible persons are abanker, a cashier, and six young Jewesses, selected from the Polish quarter of the town for quick wit, and quite as particularly for beauty of an olive type, which passes for Oriental; and so does their Yiddish accent. Their raiment is Far Eastern; they sit in musky alcoves on divans and—having paid a quarter of a dollar upon the promise that you shall get it back if you are not told, without a question what your name is—you take a seat beside the seress of your choice.

"What is the first letter of your given name?" she asks.

Now, that is a forbidden question to begin with, and it indicates that she isnt' going to tackle your family name at all. But her black eyes are gazing into mine so deeply that I feel the uselessness of complaint or concealment, so I tell her the initial is F. I obey quickly, too, when she bids me take her hand and press it once for each letter in the name.

"The letters will pass from your mind to mine as you speak them to yourself," she says.

Thus, you see, she gets from me the first letter and the number of letters, which are eight. Her training for her job has included the memorizing of a long list of Christian names. With her disengaged hand tapping her forehead and a slight spasm of thought conveyance, she recalls one of the right length.

"Is it Frederic?" she ventures. "No, it is not Frederic. Please press my hand again—once for each letter—as you pronounce it distinctly in your mind. So. Now it is coming to me. Is it Francis or Francois?"

Now I perceive that she has been taught the deaf mute system of lip reading and has caught F-r-a-n correctly. She asks me to press her hand slowly again and fix my thought intently on the letters, one by one. I do that, but am careful not to let my lips stir. She frowns thereat, but runs through here memory again for eight-letter names beginning with F. Suddenly she hits it right with Franklin.

"A neat trick," I remarked, chattily, "and by chance you first tried my father's name, Frederic."

But she won't be tempted to slight her role of seress. "That was because your father's name came into your mind, and misled mine," she said, with a smile of cold superiority.

Acres of Coney Island are occupied by amusement concerns too familiar to describe again, although the chutes are steeper, the loops are doubled, the carousals' beasts of burden cavort more spiritedly, the suspended airships circle more rapidly and the gravity railways have longer routes through new scenes of terror or pleasure. A full money's worth is the rule everywhere in diversions and refreshments. The fakes and extortions of the St. Louis Fike are not here. A Sherry or Delmonico grade of meal may be bought at Sherry-Delmonico prices in one or another of the finely outfitted restaurants, and the cost of a frankfurter and a gob of sauer kraut in a big hunk of bread at the street stands is 5 cents, and all hot. Such side shows as don't amount to much cost so little that they can't be regarded as swindles. For instance, you go into the Cabaret of Death to see a play which the barker calls "The Fatal Wedding," and you expect to see a duplication of the famous Parisian cafe-cavern of mortuary horrors; and you come out after seeing nothing more wonderful than a familiar optical illusion—in fact, the historic Pepper ghost trick—applied to the turning of a honeymooning couple into skeletons, while ghosts serve them with a supper; but it is so cheap at a nickel that you can't feel defrauded.

Of the hundred halls of beer and smoke with stage performances half are run this season with motion pictures, yet not so very cheaply, either. A boy or a woman with a strong voice to sing ballads for illustration, an operator for the projectoscope, a barker outside to tell folks that it costs nothing to get in, and a force of waiters to convince them that they can't stay in without buying drinks, make up the payroll. But the preparation of the pictures has been so careful and costly that the royalties paid for their use amount to as much as a dramatic stock company pays for plays. The scenes have been acted before cameras by skilled pantomimists, usually in real places, employin, dozens of thoroughly rehearsed supernumeraries and telling a story graphically in a long series of views. I saw Will Carlton's "Over the Hills to the Poorhouse" pictured so pathetically, while a lad with a plaintive voice sang the verses, that tears dropped into beer glasses throughout the house. That was in the Brotherhood Family theater, where the audience was composed considerably of fathers, mothers and children, and the beer jugglers were as decorous as church ushers.

* * *

But in the Sherlock Holmes theater I found that instruction in crime was being given to a congenially low-browed assemblage. The melodrama given on the stage by means of animated photographs, without voices, but with frequent noises of gun play, was entitled "A Modern Jack Sheppard," and it depicted the adventures of a gang of robbers. They cracked a safe in a bank, swiped the horses from a stable, burgled a villa, slugged an old man in a groggery, and each exploit was followed by a fight with guardians of the law, crime winning out every time—until the moral minute at the end, when the modern Jack Shepard was shown in convict stripes breaking stone.

Further along the beach at Brighton and Manhattan, vaudeville theaters will be opened in June at the top notch in specialists and admission prices, but of the dozens now operated in the section called Coney Island not one is above the low level of the free music hall and female burlesquery. In some of them the stage show has methods of extravaganza, while in others it is formless song and dance, going on continuously from noon to midnight. Where there is a semblance of a plot, the common set of coarsely comic characters—Irishman, German, Israelite and Yankee—are assumed by fellows born to the dialect, but wigged, bearded and smeared into rude caricature and absolutely devoid of ability as comedians, though they can sing loud and dance long. Most of these repulsive louts have been eliminated this summer, partly because the police superintendent forbids indecent jokes and antics, and most of the companies are composed wholly of women and girls—women whose stage facility has aged unhandsomely and girls who have no other excuse than prettiness. Hour after hour these creatures stay on the stage, sitting in a short skirted row most of the time, but coming forward frequently for choruses and ballets with the soubrette leaders. They like to cut up didoes, but the police censor is prudish as yet, though he may relax his vigilance later.

The manager of a range of peep-show slot machines takes a mean advantage of the brisk demand and no supply of indecorous sight. A placard says, "Persons under 16 not permitted," and that whoops up the business mightily, especially with the boys who are buncoed out of their cents, as none of the pictures would bring a blush to the cheek of purity. That was the only catch-penny show that I came across.

The legitimate drama is not entirely absent from Coney Island. "Camille" and "East Lynne" are performed twice apiece every day in the shed of a theater. The star actress has had a long and arduous career by the looks of her, if she is a real woman. I am not sure that she isn't an automaton, so mechanical are her gestures, with a phonograph inside, so raucous is her voice. But the words do come out of her somehow, and too plenteously to be sent out from cylinders; she doesn't lose her balance in walking, and her face sometimes stirs its painted surface into human expressions; and altogether I suppose I have no good ground to doubt that she is alive, but very, very tired.

In another makeshift theater intense melodrama is offered in "The Heroine of the Jungle," the principle actress whereof goes into a cage with a lion and dances. He is a big, lazy blinking old fellow and he sits indifferent to the woman while she—probably a survivor from the coryphees of Fanny Ellsler's time— circles around him, kicks saucily into his face and finally thrusts her head into his mouth. That is the sensation scene of an-hour-for-a-dime play I don't think the lion will ever eat her foot or her head, as Bonavita's did his hand—not unless he gets very hungry, indeed, for the actress seems tough as leather and the beast's teeth are not what they were a quarter of a century ago.

SLICES OF GHETTO LIFE

Served Fresh In the Swell Yiddish Music Hall -- Grim Moments In East Side Vaudeville.

New York, June 3.—There was never a theater more obviously accidental. New Yorkers have seen churches turned into playhouses, and there is now in Fourteenth street a former chapel in which vaudeville is served steaming twice every day.

The form of these buildings at least adapted them to their new use, whatever the sentimental objection to such a change might be. It is different, however, in the case of the Yiddish music hall.

A stage has been built in one corner of an irregularly shped room. Two open pews, described as boxes, stand at either end of this stage and the orchestra of some ten musicians is placed between them.

The parquet, consisting of several hundred wooden chairs, stretches out in rows back to the door. About two sides of the room runs a narrow balcony.

Such is the Yiddish music hall, as it is called on the English side of the program. On the Yiddish side—Yiddish is the tongue of most of the audience—the title of the foremost music hall of the Ghetto looks much more picturesque.

If you have ever seen any of the Ghetto's temples, whether they be of religion or pleasure, you will have observed that no other quality is so dominant as the cheapness of everything. Flimsy tin, painted in various gaudy colors, cotton hangings without the remotest pretext of consanguinity with silk or wool, and plain wooden chairs are therefore the striking features of the interior of this theater.

Electric light illuminates the room and gives the place a certain brilliancy of aspect it never possessed as a dancing school or a place of meeting for striking cloakmakers or cigarette girls. There is always a crowd there, even though frequent changes of bill are necessary to keep up the interest of the Ghetto in its most elaborate music hall.

"Oh, I've seen this show," protested a red-headed girl with a large pearl necklace about her throat. "Let's go out."

She was persuaded to stay by her escort, who had just paid 30 cents for two orchestra seats and did not propose to lose the money so promptly. No New York girl at a music hall further uptown would have wanted to leave just because she had seen one turn in a program. But Yiddish audiences are intensely emotional, noisily appreciative of what they like, and uneasily intolerant of what bores them.

Possibly this is due in part to the habit of their entertainers, who sing interminable songs and ballads. An American would give his audience three stanzas, or maybe only two when he expected to add an encore. But nothing of that kind satisfies the singers for Yiddish audiences, take no intense pleasure in all of these verses, for they only laugh occasionally, and applaud at the end.

After sitting for a certain length of time under the long drawn-out performance of these singers, it is easy to see why it is necessary to change the program frequently if the same people are expected to come back.

The audience last night was made up principally of men. Young women were scattered through the room and there was nothing in the wholly decorous performance they could not properly see and hear. They were all rather plainly dressed, but were a great many pearls and turquoises.

But it was not their cheap jewelry that attracted most attention. Their hair was wonderful.

Whether red, brown or black, it grew in luxuriant waves over their heads. They were as conscious of its beauty as the outsiders and few of them wore hats.

The men were as remarkable for the luxuriance of their locks, and showed pride in them by the liberal amount of oil rubbed on every young head.

Men smoked, and they could order what they wanted to drink. Beer was the beverage that passed most frequently down the aisles, although comparatively little of that was drunk.

Waiters carrying trays poked them ostentatiously under the noses of the men who had brought girls with them. The trays were piled with dainties rather more attractive to outside taste than the average Ghetto refreshment.

Narrow rolls covered with caraway seeds, translucent sticks of candy, sections of pineapple in soggy looking icing, and boxes of candy were the chief wares. Business was not flourishing. Later the smell of cooking onions came up strong from the restaurant under the theater. The gastric juices began to flow, and the two waiters had to move around very nimbly.

It beenme evident after the orchestra had played an overture and a so-called popourri had introduced all the members of the company that the entertainment was to be strongly racial in character. There were several songs of unmistakably Yiddish origin and then two sisters appeared.

The background against which they did their act was one of two sets of scenery the theater possesses—or at all events displayed that night. It evidently represented the artist's youthful memories of Odessa or some other Russian city. It showed a line of low buildings leading to a mosque at the end of the street. To add verisimilitude to the picture, bits of shiny cloth had been put into the places where the windows were supposed to be.

Lea and Sophie Simons were the two young women dressed in gypsy costume that sung several duets in Yiddish and danced with only moderate virtuosity. They spoke no English beyond the words that form a part of their language.

Lea was dressed as a boy and Sophie was intended to be a seductive gypsy maiden. They were black and bushy-haired and shapely. They might have been beautiful according to the standards of the Ghetto, but their looks would never have made them popular uptown.

A knowing man in the audience observed that they were Rumanians. The audience applauded the two mildly, but the first enthusiasm of the evening went out to the sketch, "The Peddler From Kishineff."

This was unalloyed Yiddish. There were occasional reference to Forty-second street, to Irish policemen and other New York harassments of the peddler. But these were only details in the piece.

When the curtain rose a woman was making Passover bread on a wooden board. She had covered herself with flour and when she brought the dough into close proximity with her nose the audience roared with laughter.

Her husband—the two were announced as Mr. and Mrs. Shapiro—came later on the scene attired in the typical dress of the Russian Hebrew peddler. He had the long coat, the high boots, the striped cloth with the two cords attached to either side that hung down over his chest, and the straggling beard.

The audience roared at his stories of what had happened to him once in New York, where there were Irish policement, negroes and conductors who united to make the peddler's life a burden. He sat in the Passover dough and ruined the matzas, and then became very religious, imitating to the enthusiastic delight of his hearers the old ceremonies of the holiday.

He prayed from a long scroll which he took out of his basket, and rattled a venerable praying machine, which he gave to the woman that she might accompany him.

Four times at the end of this performance the two bumped their way out of the narrow passage at the side of the proscenium arch and bowed. But the audience wanted more. It came in the form of a song and dance.

The two performers crooned a melancholy ditty, which even in the dance at the end when the tempo quickened did not lose its minor haunting note of sadness. All of the typical Yiddish music has this quality, even when it is meant to express a festal mood.

"The Two Orphans" was the ominous title of a one-act play that occupied the middle of the program. It turned out to be another side of life in the Ghetto. Beginning in humor, it soon held the audience spellbound by its crude realism and sordid emotions.

The interior scene of the two sets the evening had divulged was set to represent a sitting room of the kind common in the more prosperous homes of the Ghetto. A few pieces of tawdry, cheap furniture stood about the room and cheap lace curtains were in the windows.

On the wall hung the portrait of a rabbinical looking party, who had died exactly a year before and left a second wife with his two children by his first marriage.

The mother is in love with the lodger. So is the stepdaughter. The widow has inherited $800 from her husband and she is the lodger's favorite.

He is handsome in the style of the Ghetto, high-colored, straight-featured and sporting a pretty mustache. As he comes into their sitting room to adjust his purple tie he shows the widow the empty pockets of his light red waistcoat. He says he was robbed the night before. The widow knows he has been gambling, but gives him $25 to start out.

Her stepson is an idiot. She hates him and keeps a dog whip, with which she disciplines him. She is belaboring him vigorously, when his sister, clad in mourning, enters in time to prevent her from punishing him any further.

"To think that our home should become what it is," she says to her brother, "and we are the children of an honest man who died only a year ago today."

The daughter goes to a desk and as the electric lights in the hall go down and the music begins she touches a match to a candle set in a cup. This is burned in memory of her father, and she accompanies the ceremony with a hyma that lasts more than ten minutes.

The actress who played the part of the daughter was really pretty. So the audience took an interest in her long hymn and even applauded her at the end of it.

Then she goes away in search of a home to which she may send her brother to protect him from her mother and the lodger.

Presently the lodger returns with a party of his friends. They want to play poker. They want beer, too, and the idiot is bullied until he goes out in search of it.

The men see his stepmother whip him, and then lean over the lodger's chair, fondling him and combing his hair with her own white ivory comb, which she takes from her head. Luck goes against him at cards. He is too lucky in love. He loses everything.

"You're a thief, a swindler, a confidence man and a bum," the spokesman of the party says to him, "and we will play with you no more. We are glad you lost. Don't ever speak to us again. We have seen you here tonight living on the money that came from the father of those two children who are beaten and starved."

Great excitement ensues. The breast of the window is filled with conflicting emotions.

"You shall have the last of my money," she says by way of consolation to the lodger. "Here is the last $50 I have left from my $800." He takes it from her.

"And now you will marry me," she pleads.

"Never in the world," he says. "You are the last woman I would ever marry. You are cruel and have robbed your children. Even if it was for me, I will not marry you and never meant to. I am going to leave the house never to come back."

She pleads in vain. He goes to his room. She determines to avenge herself. She leaves the room and returns with a bottle of carbolic acid. She is going to put it into a glass of beer.

While she has left the room to make a final appeal to the lodger the idiot enters the room. He sees the poison and drinks it. The final tableau of this slice of life, shows the stepmother, her daughter and the lodger kneeling over the body of the idiot.

The enthusiasm that followed this act brought up the curtain five times. The actors bowed with pride.

During the ten minutes intermission that followed the orchestra played tunes that were not Yiddish, but lively enough to dispel the impression of this grim tragedy of the gutter. Any melancholy that remained was dispelled by what the program called a "Coupletist," by name Sam Klinezky.

He was dressed like a harlequin and sang no less than seven songs in succession that contained half a dozen stanzas each. The atmosphere of hilarity which Rachel Cohen came to sing more ballads.

Rachel was tall and thin, with a silk hat on top of her abundant locks. She wore a long red overcoat. Like those of her predecessor, her songs were nearly all sung to familiar ragtime tunes, although the text was Yiddish and related to various adventures in the Ghetto.

She grew weary after half a dozen encores and said she would sing only one more song.

"What do you want now?" she asked in Yiddish.

There was no answer.

"Don't you want to hear 'The Poor Old Greenhorn?'"

They answered with a rush that they did. She sang it, and the audience, including the few women, sang the chorus with her. They never missed one of the seven verses.

The odor of beefsteak and onions from the restaurant downstairs gradually grew stronger. It was almost overwhelming to outside nostrils when the song was finished.

There was a comic sketch to follow, although the hour was 11:30 o'clock, when the manager appeared before the curtain. He spoke for a few minutes in Yiddish.

"If the gentleman who bought two tickets last Saturday and paid a ten-dollar bill without taking his change will come down to the box office," he said, "he will get $9.70."

There was no rush. But there was another sketch to come. There had so far been only three hours' show for 15 cents.

ACTORS' FUND IN ENGLAND

American Players Will Establish One To Afford Relief In Cases of Distress — Absurdities of British Play Censorship.

London, June 3.—During the last month a movement has been quietly set on foot in London to establish an American actors' fund. It is estimated that there are now over 2,000 American born actors, actresses, vaudeville performers, and chorus girls in Great Britain, and the number is getting larger every year. In case of illness or poverty these trans-Atlantic players can get no relief whatever from the British actors' fund, which never has been a particularly flourishing institution, and the need of a special fund is urgent.

In cases of bad luck the conditions are harder on the American music hall people than those in the legitimate. When whole companies are brought over, their return to the United States is guaranteed. On the other hand few vaudeville performers have engagements before they leave America, so the actors' fund idea appeals strongly to them. R. G. Knowles and Eugene Stratton, who are the two highest salaried American music hall performers in England, are both interested in the scheme. It is proposed to have the simplest kind of an organization, the control to be in the hands of five trustees, with no membership fee. Each American actor will be given a card which by special arrangement will entitle the holder to enter one of the best hospitals without the usual long-winded red tape operation required in England in case of a sudden illness. One big fund benefit, in the shape of a continuous performance, will be given annually in London and it is being planned to hold the first one next July.

The recent production by the New Stage club of the late Oscar Wilde's poetic tragedy, Salome, has served to call attention to the absurdities and inconsistencies of the censorship over plays exercised by that autocratic functionary, the lord Chamberlain. On the continent Salome has long been acclaimed a theatrical masterpiece. In this country the lord Chamberlain has refused to grant a license for the public performance of the play because it portrays two historical characters who happen to be mentioned in the Bible, Salome and Herod. The new Stage club gets around his prohibition by resorting to the expedient of selling tickets to people who by buying them become subscribers to a society. No money is taken at the door and, therefore, the law regards the performance as a private one, and private acts of desecration don't count. Those who are acquainted with the work in its publish-ed form need not be told that there is nothing in the treatment of the Biblical characters that need shock the most sensitive of pious feelings. But because they do figure in the Bible the lord chamberlain holds that they must not be presented on the stage—so far as lies in his power to stop it. And yet he freely grants a license for Every man in which the Deity is impersonated. Truly the lord chamberlain is a law unto himself and his ways are past understanding. It is something to be thankful for that his authority is of a much later date than Shakespeare's plays. If it were possible for modern authors to write them they would never be permitted to pass the lord chamberlain.

Lucky is the author whose stories dramatize well, and in this respect W. W. Jacobs seems especially favored. Of his Lady of the Barge, Jacobs and Louis N. Parker made a comedy which ran over 200 nights at the Haymarket last year, and which will be done in the United States ere long. The Monkey's Paw in dramatic form has scored in both London and Paris, and The Ghost of Jerry Bundler has been made into an effective one-act play. With Parker's assistance, Jacobs is now adapting another of his novels and he has just granted permission to a French playwright, Jean Bernac, to make a stage version of his short story The Brown Man's Servant for production at the Vaudeville, Paris.

The Elizabethan Stage society which was started something like twelve years ago to give performances of Elizabethan plays in the Elizabethan manner, has brought its career to a close with a novel rendering of Romeo and Juliet. It has often been said that that is the most difficult of Shakespeare's plays to act since the two leading characters demand the appearance of extreme youth, and at the same time a command of dramatic art that comes only from experience. The Elizabethan society tried the experiment of sacrificing art for youth, but the result was not encouraging for a repetition of the attempt. An extremely young actor, Esme Percy, portrayed Montagu's son and a girl actress, Miss Dorothy Minto, enacted Capulet's daughter. Their naivete and artlessness imparted a charm and naturalness to the situations, but there was a distinct loss in that fervor and complete abandonment to feeling seen in the performances of those who have won distinction in the title roles. On the stage at least art is greater than nature. Miss Minto is an actress of no little promise. Ten years hence her Juliet may be something worth seeing. She may not look the part so well, but she will certainly act it better.

After lying on the shelf for over twenty-eight years Donizetti's tuneful opera, "Don Pasquale," was given at Covent Garden last week, with Victor Maurel as Dr. Malatesta and Gilbert as the Don. The occasion drew a crowded house which included the king. The opera is still genuinely entertaining and shows surprisingly few traces of age. The serenade, Come Gentil, and Norina's song in the first act were especially pleasing.

AMERICAN SCULPTORS WORKING OVERTIME

Bela L. Pratt, Sculptor of the John Winthrop Memorial At New London, Says Outlook For Sculptors Is Hopeful--Least Overcrowded of the Artistic Professions -- What Schooling the Sculptor Needs.

Boston, June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The recent announcement that Benjamin Ferguson, a public-spirited citizen, had bequeathed $1,000,000 to Chicago, the income of which is to be used to buy statuary for the parks and squares of the Illinois metropolis, sent a wave of enthusiasm through the world of art. Artists and critics alike agree that the bequest cannot but give an unprecedented stimulus to one of the hitherto neglected branches of the fine arts, and that the outlook for sculpture in America cannot but be considerably brightened. The income of $1,000,000 is sufficient to keep half a dozen artists busy year in and year out. It is also sufficient to encourage more students to take up sculpture, for the number of young sculptors in America at present is relatively small.

That, therefore, the outlook for sculpture in this country is altogether hopeful, and that sculpture offers singularly good opportunities to American art students, and that our schools of sculpture are fully as capable of developing strong artists as the European schools is the opinion of Bela L. Pratt of Boston, whom Augustus St. Gaudens, the greatest sculptor this country has so far produced, regards as the most promising of our younger men.

One of the critics who went to New London, Conn., to witness the recent unveiling of the Winthrop monument, spoke of Mr. Pratt as "an American sculptor par excellence." This pleased Mr. Pratt, not so much because it contained praise, as because it called attention to his freedom from foreign mannerisms. There hangs in his reception room at the St. Botolph Studios annex, in this city, a photograph of his "Orpheus," a work that he modelled for exhibition at the Paris Salon in his student days, and before which Falguiere, the distinguished teacher, used to sit for hour after hour, as his pupil was at work on it, in undisguised admiration. The "Orpheus" was one of the most attractive features at the salon in the year of its exhibition. All artistic Paris talked of it. Yet Mr. Pratt says: "I wish it could be forgotten. It is distinctly French. My ambition is to be known as an American sculptor. To be sure, truth in art, like truth in everything else, is universal; but I impress upon my pupils at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts that there is just as much truth in America as there is in France. What I despise about my Orpheus is its style, which smacks of France. It is a mistake to think that an artist cannot be as well developed here as abroad."

A writer in one of our art journals lately described the social attractiveness of student life in Paris. It was an alluring picture, full of the jollity and the extravagance that characterize the Latin quarter. It was just the sort of picture, in fact, that has attracted hundreds of American students to Paris. But, according to Mr. Pratt, it was to some extent a misleading picture.

"I studied both here and abroad," he says, "and I know from personal experience that the average of our American schools is just as high as that of the foreign schools. Of course some allowance must be made in favor of the artistic atmosphere, which, no doubt, is more impressive in Paris than it yet is in our American cities; but, judging by the work done in the schools and by such opportunities as may be gained in the museums, the American student will do as well at home as abroad. The fact is, the American student must, I think, be disappointed by his experience in the foreign schools and galleries. He sees quite as much poor and indifferent work there, both in studio and in museum, as he is likely to see here, and he learns sooner or later that hard, conscientious work, directed, of course, by a competent teacher, alone will perfect his natural apitude. Perhaps the work of the older students, the 'anciens' as they call them in Paris, is of a higher grade than that done by most of our students in this country; but even this rule has its exceptions, for I can show you work done at the school of the museum of fine arts that has a high artistic value and that in all respects is superior to much of the work seen in public.

"The condition of sculpture in this country today is done by the contract sculptors, who have far more executive than artistic ability, and who are, in fact, little more than names, since the orders they spend so much time in securing are executed by their more gifted assistants. We have also here too much of the sculpture that could as well be done by mechanics as by the so-called artists. However, aside from these regrettable features, sculpture offers ample ground for the display of talent and industry. In the first place, it is the least over-crowded of the artistic professions. For one student of sculpture there are fifteen or twenty students of painting and architecture. Then, too, when the student has made sufficient progress and has unmistakable ability he has the opportunity of becoming an assistant to the successful artist, which is a profitable thing, both as regards experience and money. On he will find plenty of work to do modelling things for architects. He may, if he finds it necessary, go in for purely ornamental work; but this, though it pays, is distasteful to a man of high ideals. Then, too, our sculptors have been well rewarded by their work for the world's fairs that have been held in the country.

"But the main point is that the student with natural gifts who makes up his mind to work hard, and to look upward and not downward, will win success. I have never yet heard of a sculptor of established reputation who had not all the work he could attend to."

"But how about the self-made artist? What are his chances?"

"I do not know any noted self-made sculptor," said Mr. Pratt emphatically. "Rodin, the brilliant Frenchman, scoffs at students, but the fact is that he has never recovered from his disappointment at not winning, when in school, the Prix de Rome. It is possible, of course, for a sculptor to be self-made; but study at school will save years for even the most talented student."

"But, besides attending school, the pupil to become a successful sculptor, must be talented and industrious——"

"And persevering," said Mr. Pratt. 'I always tell my new pupils at the school about the young man who served as assistant to St. Gaudens for several years without making any apparent progress. Finally, St. Gaudens gave the fellow up as a hopeless case and bluntly told him to go, that he was fit only to hammer down the tops of boxes. The young fellow went, but, nevertheless he persevered, and today he is one of the most successful men in his profession."

Mr. Pratt is just putting the finishing touches to a recumbent statue of the famous minister of colonial times, the Rev. John Cotton, the original occupant of the pulpit of the First church of Boston. This statue, which will be done in marble, will have a place in the present First church. Almost ready for casting, too, is a bas-relief monument commemorative of Gen. Stevenson, the Massachusetts hero of the Civil war, which will be placed in Memorial hall, at the state house in Boston. In addition to his studio work, Mr. Pratt teaches the afternoon class in sculptor at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts once and the morning class twice a week. This schol, by the way, won the grand prize at the St. Louis fair—the only American art school to be so honored—and, according to the critics, this notable victory was due in no small measure to the splendid showing made by Mr. Pratt's department. This success, Mr. Pratt argues, supports his view that an American art school can hold its own against the world.

Mr. Pratt speaks of himself as a sculptor in love with his work. This attitude is probably the key to his success, which, with the exception of that achieved by Frederick Macmonnies, who, at 35 had won fame and fortune with his chisel, is unparalleled in the annals of American art.

The woman who never reads store-advertising is about as wise as the merchant who never advertises—but this is too much like "calling names," so we withdraw the comparison, in deference to the woman.

A New Baby.

A New Baby! What magic, what mystery, what charm these words have for us. Yet, how infinitely more they mean to the mother. A new life; short, to be sure, but full of possibilities. Some one must be patient, hopeful, watchful, proud and never discouraged. That "some one" is the mother. She has heard her baby's first cry, and whether it be her first or tenth, the feeling is the same. Her feeble arms are out-stretched; those arms that will never desert it as long as the mother shall live. And that hand which supports the head of the new-born babe, the mother's hand, supports the civilization of the world.

Is it any wonder, we ask you, mothers, that with all these responsibilities resting upon your all too weak shoulders, we urge upon you the necessity of selecting the babe's medicine with utmost care; the necessity of protecting your babe from worthless, unknown and narcotic drugs as you would protect it from the fire?

Bill, who sells Heralds at the corner of Third avenue West and Superior street, wandered into yesterday's game at Athletic Park by way of the fence behind the north bleachers.

After dodging the copper he settled down in the front seat to watch the game in peace.

"Hully Gee," said Bill, at the close of the fourth inning, "what is this, a cricket match?"

Bill has nice taste in baseball, and his ideal of a game is one which runs from ten to fifteen innings without a hit or a run on either side. Consequently, when the Winnipeg bunch on which the White Sox wiped their feet Thursday, showed signs of being able to get up and move about, and began to pile up two or three runs an inning, Bill was disgusted. He walked to the gate and demanded his money back, but the gatekeeper knew Bill of old, and assisted him out of the grounds with a parting kick, which Bill dodged with the celerity born of long practice, and sadly wended his way townward, keeping a wary eye peeled for a car which he could jump for a few blocks.

But Bill's opinion of the game was prejudiced from his blase condition of mind regarding baseball. There was no lack of errors on both sides, but the varying fortunes kept up the interest, and there was a deal more excitement than in the opening contest.

The Winnipeg bunch of Sad Affairs showed signs of rejuvenation in the very first inning, and started to work the hit-and-run game. Miller was in poor condition, and had just left the doctor's hands. He did not want to pitch, but it was his turn on the rubber, and he was forced to go in. Howell, the first man up, was given transportation to first, Piper sacrificed, and Tucker slammed a hot one at "Si." Si was a little nervous and let the ball go through him. Howell came in on the error.

Si led off with a hit in the last half of the inning, went to second on Weller's sacrifice, and stole third, but he stayed there, Menelce and O'Dea being easy outs.

Claytor opened the second round with a two-bagger, went to second on Rogers' sacrifice, and scored on a nice rap for two bases Peterson managed to collect.

Neighbors and Erickson hit safely for Duluth in the last half of the inning, but the next three men died at first.

In the third Piper drew a base on balls, Tucker sacrificed him to second and Johnson hit safe.y, scoring him. Johnson stole second and came home a moment later when Erickson dropped Gatewood's long fly. Gatewood went to second on the error and scored on Claytor's single.

Duluth got into the game in the third, Weller receiving one of Greene's shoots in the ribs after Bennett had been retired at first. Menelce slammed out a long two-bagger, scoring Weller, and came in himself on a single by Neighbors.

The fourth was a hideous nightmare of the national game, which will give the fans the nervous jim-jams for weeks to come. Three Canucks crossed the plate and not a hit did the vistors get during the inning. After Peterson had struck out, Greene slammed a hot one at Weller. The little shortstop dived for it, booted it, kicked it around, then picked is up and juggled it, and then threw wild to first, allowing Greene to go on around to third. Howell was given a base on balls and started to steal second. McAleese threw to catch him, and headed him off by ten feet. The runner turned, and while he was hopping up and down the line Greene trotted home. Weiler threw to the plate to catch him and Howell was safe on second. Piper got a base on balls as usual, Tucker struck out and Mr. Johnson, the "human torpedo," came to bat. Johnson hit to Weiler, and the little shortstop retrieved himself by fielding the ball cleanly and throwing to first. But Capt. Artie let the ball through him, and both base runners scored before it was recovered. Johnson was caught a moment later trying to steal second.

Still another came in the fifth on a single by Gatewood, a sacrifice and a hit by Peterson.

The White Stockings made a determined rally in the sixth. Erickson, the "Terrible Swede," who played in the right garden, has a pleasant little cannon ball method of hitting, which is apt to make him unpopular. The big fellow slams the ball directly at the fielders' heads with a speed of a rifle ball. If the fielder is quick enough in dodging, he will come off unharmed, but otherwise it is apt to fare badly with him. The hit he tore off in the sixth went straight for the pitcher and umpire, and if they hadn't dodged it would have "got 'em." McAleese followed it up with a two-bagger, scoring the big right fielder. McShane was safe on Gatewood's fumble, and Stile second. He went to third on Rogers' error, which let in McAleese and scored on Miller's single.

Johnson dropped one of Miller's shoots over the left field fence in the next inning, but there was nobody on the bases.

Duluth took three more in the eighth after two were out. Miller was hit by Greene, and Bennett was safe on Claytor's error. Weiler singled, scoring Miller, and then Sammy Menelce cleared the bases with the longest three-bagger seen on the grounds this year. The ball traveled out past the flag pole, and Sam came within a few feet of stretching the hit into a home run. He was caught at the plate, however.

The Canucks added one for good measure in the ninth, on a hit by Johnson and a two-bagger by Rogers.

TIGERS WIN AGAIN.

Take a One Sided Game From Crookston.

Crookston, June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a doleful and sad excuse for a ball game, Grand Forks defeated the Crooks yesterday by the score of 9 to 1, and it would have been a shut out had it not been for the punk decision of Umpire Long who called a Crook safe when he was out by a mile, to even up some of his course work earlier in the game. He also presented Grand Forks with three runs and no claim is made that he favored the visitors. His work was of the rawest kind. Crookston lost the game through inability to hit Converse and the dumbest kind of base running. No matter how often men got on bases with nobody out, the base runner would stick his brains in his pocket, and whenever he got a hunch would light out to steal a base—and would invariably get caught.

Mullen pitched only a fair game, and had his support been mediocre the Tigers would have made but five runs. If the locals do not show up better by Sunday there is to be a grand shaking up with four new players in the game. The Crooks played a lifeless game, but the Tigers were full of ginger throughout and gave the fans the full worth of their money. Another game will be played Saturday and another Sunday, after which Crookston goes to St. Cloud and Grand Forks to Duluth.

BLOOD

On account of its frightful hideousness, Blood Poisoning is commonly called the King of All Diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted. Once the system is tainted with it the disease may manifest itself in the form of Scrofula, Eczema, Rheumatic Pains, Stiff or Swollen Joints, Eruptions or Copper Colored Spots on the Face or Body, Ulcers in the Mouth or on the tongue, Sore Throat, Swollen Tonsils, Falling out of the Hair or Eyebrows, and finally a Leprous-like Decay of the Flesh and Bones. If you have any of these or similar symptoms, get BROWN'S BLOOD CURE immediately. This treatment is practically the result of life work. It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicines of any kind. It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity. Soon every sign and symptom disappears, completely and forever. The blood, the tissues, the flesh, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health, and the patient prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life. BROWN'S BLOOD CURE $1.00 a bottle lasts a month. PLAYING TENNIS Courts of Endion Club Are Now In Good Shape.

Arrangements Are Being Made For First Club Tournament.

The courts of the Endion Tennis club are now in excellent shape, and they are being used every evening by the members. The dry weather of the past few days has hardened the ground, which was thoroughly rolled during the wet weather, and the courts are hard and fast.

Preparations are already being made for the opening tournament, which will be held within about two weeks. It will be only a club tournament, for the purpose of classifying the players for the championship tournament, which will be held later in the season. The drawings will probably be made some time next week.

On the results of the first tournament the members will be divided into two classes, and prizes will be given in the championship tournament for the winners in each class.

Later in the season an open tournament will be held. This will probably take place some time during the month of August.

The secretary is now in communication with a number of players from outside towns and cities, and it is hoped to have a score or more of entries from St. Paul, Minneapolis, Two Harbors, Cloquet, the range towns and other cities about the Head of the Lakes.

All of last year's stars, with the possible exception of Kennedy, are expected to be back this year, and with the new material at hand, the club should be able to take care of itself and make a good showing in the tournament against the visitors.

The courts are open to the ladies during the early part of the day, and the officers would be glad to work up enough interest among the members of the gentler sex to warrant introducing an event for them in the torunament, and possibly some sets of mixed doubles. If there are enough ladies turn out, this will be done.

Several of the old members have resigned this year, and the secretary reports vacancies for about half a dozen new members. The membership of the club is limited to fifty, as this is about all the four courts can accommodate.

With the reduction of the annual dues to $5, which was the figure two years ago, there should be no difficulty in securing more than enough applications to fill the vacancies.

The fees were increased last year to $10, but this was for the purpose of getting enough money in the treasury to put in the new shower bath. With no extraordinary expenses in sight this year the old fee will be amply sufficient to keep the club running.

POSTPONE TRIP

Accident Causes Delay In Plans of Automobile Club.

City and County Officials Will Be Given Ride.

The automobile banquet and procession, which was to have been held yesterday, has been postponed indefinitely, owing to the accident to W. J. Stevenson, the secretary and one of the prominent members of the club, who was injured a few days ago by striking a telegraph post on London road.

Mr. Stevenson has been so active in the affairs of the club, that the members did not wish to have the banquet without him, and it has been postponed until he will be able to attend, which will probably be about a week or ten days.

The club will have about twenty-five automobiles in the line of procession. With the idea of convincing the city officials and the county commissioners of the necessity for good roads, and of showing them the automobilists' side of the speed question, all of the members of the city council, the city officials, and the county officials will be invited to take seats in the cars which will be in the procession. The machines will start at Sixth avenue West at 3:30 p. m. and will run east along Superior street and London road to Lester park. Returning they will make the trip around the boulevard and end up at Third avenue West about 5:30 o'clock.

While on the trip some experiments will be made in stopping the machines to show the officials how quickly the speed of an automobile can be checked in case of emergency, and to demonstrate that a speed of ten or twelve miles an hour in an automobile is not so dangerous as a peed of eight miles in a street car or on a bicycle.

The number of automobiles in the city has been greatly augmented this spring, and Duluth is now quite a metropolitan city in this respect. All but one or two of the owners in the city are members of the club, and it is expected that about sixteen or seventeen touring cars and eight or ten runabouts will be in the procession.

Following the trip to Lester park and about the boulevard, a banquet will be given in the Commercial club, commencing shortly after 6 o'clock, when appropriate speeches will be made.

ST. PAUL AUTO CARNIVAL.

Racers At Chicago Meet To Be Present.

St. Paul, June 3.—The St. Paul auto carnival has assumed a distinct national importance since the late race meeting held at the Harlem race track, Chicago. The Automobile club of St. Paul has secured all the important racers who entered in the Chicago events and also a large number of amateur and professional motorists, who did not do so, in addition several of the entrants for Chicago races are preparing more cars and in many instances these will be shipped to St. Paul and used in the races July 6 and 8. Col. E. H. R. Green, the Texas multimillionaire owner of the Grey Wolf and flying motors of the Franklin make, is building four more racing cars to cost more than $20,000 each. Col. Green will be in St. Paul with his whole stable and will run in three or four of the events carded.

Maj. J. A. S. Miller, one of the wealthiest motorists in the country, and owner of the celebrated and undefeated F. I. A. T., an Italian car of wonderful speed; the Renault, a French machine that can go some, and two or three others, will also be here for the meet.

The St. Paul races start July 6, and July 4 Col. Green and Maj. Miller will be racing in New York. In order to get to St. Paul in time for the opening race, Col. Green, Maj. Miller and Web Jay, who defeated Barney Oldfield during the late meeting, will rush their cars aboard a special train at New York after the last race July 4 and by a fast trip will reach St. Paul early Thursday morning. Col. Green's Special cars are fitted with a remarkably complete repair shop and what ever adjustment is necessary to the cars can be made while en route.

Webb Jay has entered his white Screamer, the car that beat Oldfield and Ed. Spooner with the Lightning Bug, John S. Johnson with a new car of which much is expected, Earl Kiser, a leading race driver in the country, Dan Canary the Chicago enthusiast, Henry Ford, Walter Christie, R. W. Harroun, and many others of their type and standing signed contracts to be present and take part in the races.

Chevrolet, the driver for Maj. Miller, and the man who unofficially broke the mile record of Oldfield, will drive the Italian racer of Maj. Miller, B. A. Ledy, secretary of the St. Paul Automobile club and J. Alec. Sloan, racing manager of the club, attended the meeting in Chicago and captured the races for St. Paul.

The success of the St. Paul officers in landing the racers led Ira M. Cobe, president of the Chicago Automobile club, to remark:

"St. Paul's racing card will be a marvel."

The St. Paul officers declare that nothing aproaching the coming meet in size and importance has ever been attempted in America.

Plans are being made to run a special train to St. Paul from New York as the American Automobile association, the governing body of the American Motor clubs, has declared through its officers who attended the Chicago meeting, that hundreds of Gothamites are planning to come to St. Paul during the carnival. These officers expressed themselves as heartily in favor of the St. Paul project. Eight of the officers will attend.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Wanted At Belmont Park Track.

New York, June 3.—The first meet at Belmont Park has gone into history, and Gravesend now holds the center of the racing stage. The Brooklyn Handicap for 1905 has been run, and, all things considered, was a satisfactory race to the great crowd which went down to Gravesend to see it.

According to an apparently well authenticated report there will be many changes made at Belmont Park before the fall meeting takes place. Immediately at the conclusion of the present meeting Superintendent Corman, it is said, will have the different courses over which races are run thoroughly scraped and rolled, making them fit and safe for the best horses. At the same time Architect Leavitt, who built the course, will be called upon to devise a scheme whereby the finish of all races run over the main course and the Belmont course will take place at a point about a sixteenth of a mile above the place where the present finish is located, thus giving the grand stand patrons a much better opportunity of witnessing with a degree of certainty how the horses pass the wire. The latter change, it is said, was decided upon during the first week of the present meeting, as the result of the protest from the thousands who pay their good money to support racing.

The above photograph shows the Vesper boat crew of Philadelphia as it appears ready for a trial spin. CIRCULAR LETTER

Boat Club Members Urged to Practice In Shells.

Committee Working to Get 100 Candidates For Crews.

In an effort to get out more men in the shells to practice for the approaching regatta to be held in July, the rowing committee of the Duluth Boat club has sent out a circular letter to every member of the club who is a likely candidate, urging him to turn out regularly.

The following is a copy of the letter sent out by the president, Julius H. Barnes:

"The rowing committee of the Duluth Boat club desires to see more men at work in the shells. They are especially anxious to increase the number of new oarsmen so that our local regattas this year will be interesting to more of our members. With the system of junior and senior oarsmen, we shall in our local regattas advance the winning crew each time into the senior class so that new oarsmen shall not have to compete against the older oarsmen. The new racing shells will be here early in June. With our cafe running this summer, we hope to hold our regattas at 6 o'clock or later in the evening so that none of the oarsmen shall be prevented from appearing. The rowing committee would like to see you rowing this year, and if you are willing, would advise you as to the time of day at which they would prefer you to help make up a crew. Will you please drop me a line saying whether you are willing to row as the committee might direct for the next six or eight weeks and advise me whether you would prefer to row at 5 o'clock, 6 o'clock or 7 o'clock in the evening? The crews to row in the Winnipeg regatta will be selected finally early in July and every good oarsmen will have a chance to compete for the trophies of those races. The Commercial club will furnish us some very desirable trophies, including individual medals, and the officers of the club are very anxious to retain at least a part of these trophies in Duluth. Please answer at once whether you will agree to row and allow the rowing committee to designate the hour for you to appear for practice. As far as possible this will be set for your convenience."

With the equipment now on hand the club can accommodate as many as 100 oarsmen every evening in the week, and the committee would like to see that many men at work regularly in the shells. In order to make a good showing against the vistors in July, the hardest kind of work will be necessary.

HUNDRED TO ONE SHOT

Wins the Fourth Race at the St. Louis Jockey Club.

St. Louis, June 3.—Sneer, at 100 to 1, won the fourth race at the American Jockey club yesterday, defeating Mansard and Mafalda, equal favorites at 8 to 5. Ike, at 10 to 1, and Limerick Girl, at 15 to 1, also won their respective races. Track fast.

Kenton, in the third, and Mayor Johnson, in the fourth, were the winning favorites of a good six-race card at the fair grounds. Track fast.

New York, June 3.—Aeronaut, 12 to 1, easily won the May Stakes at Gravesend yesterday. He jumped away in front, and making all the pace, won by four lengths.

Louisville, June 3.—With the running off of an excellent card yesterday afternoon, the spring meeting of the New Louisville Jockey club ended. The attendance during the twenty-one days has been of the record-breaking character, the daily average exceeding by fully 25 per cent the best previous meeting. The feature of yesterday's card was the American Turf Association Handicap at one mile. The event was won by Silver Skin, which beat King of Troy by a length after a drive through the stretch. Three favorites and a well-backed second choice won. Weather clear; track fast.

Kansas City, June 3.—Uncle Dudley, the favorite, won the fourth race, the feature at Elm Ridge yesterday, after a mild drive from Pluto. The second race resulted in an exciting finish, St. Dennis beating Marsh Redon in the last jump. Lionel was third, a nose in front of Airship. The first five races went to favorites. Weather clear; track fast.

ATTELL

May Get Chance to Fight Jem Bowker.

New York, June 3.—The star event in pugilistic circles last week was the first appearance in the East of Battling Nelson. His fight with Abe Attell was a corker. While it is true his opponent was a much smaller man, it can be said that there is not a faster in the country today, and he has a punch which hurts, too—that is, it would hurt almost any of the little fellows but this iron-faced, hard-headed Dane. It was the almost universal opinion of those who saw the fight that the Dane is the goods, and that few, if any, at his weight want his game very badly. He is like Terry McGovern was at his best. Nelson has been criticised somewhat for refusing to give weight to Willie Lewis. Such criticism seems to be ill-founded. He is matched with Britt, and if he should be defeated in the meantime it would mean the loss of several thousands dollars at least, and no man who gives Lewis much weight is sure of coming out of the game unbeaten.

Nelson made a distinctly good impression. He is a fighter from the ground up, and men he hits he hurts.

Al Lippe, manager for Abe Attell, is in receipt of a telegram from E. F. Bettison, matchmaker of the National Sporting club in London, asking him to match Joe Bowker against Attell should the former be successful against Pinky Evans in their coming fight.

THE DIAMOND—PUGILISM THE TURF—ATHLETICS

JOHN McGRAW TELLS OF BASEBALL PLAYER'S LIFE

A Chat With the Manager of the Giants at the Polo Grounds, New York.

New York, June 3.—Those who have watched the fortunes of the champion Giants realize that it would be a hard task to equal the work of John J. McGraw, the field leader. Under his tutelage the men have developed a system of team work which is smooth as the running of a well lubricated machine.

New York fans—a word which a woman investigator learned by careful inquiry is short for fanatics—are not satisfied to accept results merely. They are interested in the artistic side of baseball as well and they never get tired of comparing the work afield of Manager McGraw's men with that of other players; because such a comparison gives a certain mental satisfaction, almost as great as that which may come when the crisp bank bill is exchanged for a handclasp at the end of the game.

While waiting to ask Manager McGraw how he accomplished such results, the woman investigator saw the sights at the Polo grounds. She was informed at the start that as the finished production on the stage is the easiest part of the work of producing a great spectacle, so the work of the team, beginning at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, gives little idea of what has preceded it in strenuous endeavor. At the Polo grounds not only do the players rehearse or practice each morning, but a small army of employes are kept busy at their tasks of getting the grounds in readiness for the diamond battles later in the day.

Next she learned that the Polo grounds own a couple of mascots. One is Cherry, a small boy who drifted there from some unknown place, who could answer no questions in regard to parentage or reason for being, but who fitted himself into the life of the club as easily as if that had been the underlying reason for his existence. The other is the famous dog Happy, whose antics are the delight of the team and who can give many a player points about the manner of reaching a base.

Her guide next pointed out the secret door in the grand stand that few of the spectators who visit the field know anything about. The door is situated behind the bench occupied by the Giants. It was put there for the protection of the players from their friends.

It sometimes happens, the woman was told, that after an exciting game the overzealous fans in their desire to do full justice to the occasion really jeopardize the lives of the players by picking them up, carrying them about and in other ways showing their appreciation. Naturally, while the Giants are like the rest of their kind in enjoying applause they draw the line at the point of safety. As a matter of precaution, therefore, the way for their escape was provided, so that they might get away without being trampled upon by thousands of mad Gothamites whose self-control had been scattered by the hot finish in the last inning.

In the club house is one of the most thoroughly equipped baseball libraries in the country. Manager McGraw is a student of the system as well as of muscle.

In another room the visitor saw the shower and plunge baths, which are part of the system for keeping the team in good physical trim. The heating system of the clubhouse is designed to do away with any ill effects that the men might feel after their return in the spring from the annual Southern training.

The gymnasium is equipped with a billiard table and various other games, but does not look as if it was much used, the truth being, as Mr. McGraw afterward said, that he is not a believer in gymnasium work when open-air exercise is available, as better and quicker results may be obtained there.

In the room of the physical trainer there are distinct odors of witch hazel, arnica and anesthetics. Bundles of bandages are in plain view—all designed for use in event of injury to one of the players.

Mr. McGraw came into the office after the building had been closely examined and stood at attention, with the air of one who is better adapted for action than for being interviewed. He admitted at once that this was the case with him, and admitted with unsmiling lips.

"I must have refused," he began, "but when Cherry said that there were ladies, of course—"

Next to being an umpire, it would seem to the uninitiated that managing the muscles of a champion team must require about as much self-control and determination as the average man is capable of. Mr. McGraw's appearance does not contradict this conclusion.

He is little above the medium height, with the stockily built frame that marks the average player on the diamond. He is smooth shaven, with dark hair and eyes deeply set under a brow which, in conjunction with the rigid shape of his lower face, gives him a strongly marked individuality. His sentences are terse enough to telegraph and there is no unheeded "perhaps" or "possibly" in his verbal equipment.

"The reason I stopped playing? I have been out of it for three years. I think it is a good thing for a man to know when to stop.

"If he don't, it's only a question of time when someone will have to tell him, and that is a good deal harder to stand for a man who is fond of the game and has been successful. If you go yourself, you have no regrets.

"I worked my way to the management after I played actively for fifteen years. I commenced when I was 15."

"What is the active life of a professional baseball man?" was asked.

"I see no reason why, if a man takes care of himself, he should not play for twenty or even twenty-five years. Naturally, that depends on the time a man begins. If he starts in while he is still in his teens, he has a better chance of continuing, for his muscles are earlier hardened and his whole form is better than if he waits until he is 23 or 24."

"How does a man know?"

The thin lips tightened a little.

"Well, I tell him—if I have to. As a general thing a man knows when he is giving away; he knows it by the record he makes, and he does not want to be made aware of the fact that others know it as well.

"Most of the men on the teams are engaged in other pursuits. There is a school teacher, a lawyer, dentist, clerks and other professions represented. After the work on the league for the season is over the men go back to their homes and resume their other work for the rest of the year.

"When he gives up the work on the team, if he has no regular trade or profession to fall back on, he is by no means at a loss, for there are always exhibition games where men get good prices. He can coach, and the probability is that he has saved enough money to go into business or learn a trade.

"What system do I employ for the men? Simply what we call team work.

"The individual is a unit merely. His work is subordinated in the general scheme of things to the good of the whole. He has no preferences which are consulted as to his place, no special praise is given him and no particular blame.

"The only way for a company of men to achieve anything, whether it happens to be in baseball or in some other work, is to forget that they have any predilections and remember that the honor of the organization is in their hands. As soon as a man puts personal ambition ahead of anything else, just so soon he spoils the harmony of the entire arrangement."

"What is the attitude of the team when a game is lost through the error of a single player?"

"There is on attitude any more than there is when a game is won. If a man is conscientious in his work and has done his best, that is all that could be expected by the most rigorous manager. It is only when a man plays repeatedly in error that the knowledge comes that he must be dropped."

"What are the requirements of a player?"

"First of all, I should say without hesitation that I would demand speed. After that comes general fitness. He must have good sight for the ball, too. In fact, good eyesight is almost as essential as speed."

Mr. McGraw pointed out a broad, green fence, between two portions of the grandstands at the southern end of the field.

"When those grandstands were built there was no space between them," he said. "The stands formed one huge structure, like the one at the opposite side.

After a time it was discovered that the catcher facing that particular part of the field found difficulty in placing the ball. All he could see was an expanse of white faces and against that background the ball soon got out of vision.

"This defect in the field became so conspicuous a feature of the game that the authorities finally chopped down a good portion of the stands, and in the vacant space erected that broad fence, which was painted a dark green.

"Now, when the ball is ready for the catcher, he has not that mass of moving faces in which to look for it. It seems a little thing, but it meant a great deal to our men."

"What teams are the hardest to play against?" was asked.

"Oh, the Western teams, of course. They play the fastest ball of any and keep our men up to a higher standard of alertness and skill.

"In the league work we play the Eastern teams first in order to get such a high score that when we play the Western men we can start in so well that we are not terribly anxious as to the result.

"The Eastern men are the finest to play in the matter of courtesy. It is quite possible that a crowd of Western enthusiasts may show their animosity to a winning team or their disgust at poor playing by throwing a few hundred bottles at you, but the Eastern men are not like that. From them we get more professional courtesy, more appreciation of our work, too, than in any other part of the country.

"The New York men turn out in greater numbers to see us play with a Western team, for they know that in all probability they will see better work, a closer score and a more exciting finish.

"I do not believe in indoor training for men who can get out on the field and practice ball every morning. That is in the line of their work and keeps them in trim at the same time. Neither do I supervise the question of food and drink.

"The men on the team have to be in the best of health; they could not play otherwise, and it is assumed that each man knows what diet best agrees with him. Generally speaking, I believe all baseball men eat simply, get their regular sleep and spend the majority of their resting hours in some healthful recreation.

"Baseball is the most scientific game of any, much more so than cricket, although you would have hard work in persuading an Englishman of that fact. It is claimed by some that the American man cannot be satisfied with anything in the shape of sport which has not the element of danger in it; the more he balances himself on the edge of a chasm, the better he is satisfied.

"I think the national game disproves that. It is a healthy, wholesome game, without one element of hysterical excitement.

"Besides, it does not attract the gambling part of the community like horse racing and many other sports, nor is it a trial of brute strength merely, as football. It is a matter of brain as well as brawn and the men that play the professional game prove this, for they are educated men, even cultured, in some instances, gentlemen in society and gentlemen toward each other on the field.

"The enthusiasm of New Yorkers today is almost as great in the work of the Giants as it is in their own business interests. For many years it was taken for granted that the Giants would finish low in the championship race, and pride in the team was at a very low ebb.

"Love of the sport still remained, however, and after we had released players whose services were no longer required, and filled in with men who had a record, it did not take the fans very long to realize that they had a team for whom they could feel some esteem. Slowly but surely what baseball men were pleased to term a baseball morgue was transformed into a bee-hive of enthusiasm."

WILL FIGHT FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

ROBERT FITZSIMMONS. MIKE SCHRECK.

Latest pictures of Robert J. Fitzsimmons and Mike Schreck of Cincinnati, who will be his opponent on July 4, at Salt Lake City, when they fight for the light-heavyweight championship.

FITZSIMMONS AND SCHRECK

To Have Twenty-Round Battle At Salt Lake July 4.

Chicago, June 3.—Bob Fitzsimmons, the grand old man of the prize ring and winner of more championship titles than any man in the history of pugilism, and Mike Schreck of Cincinnati, have agreed to engage in a twenty-round battle at Salt Lake City, Utah, on the afternoon of July 4. This news item was chronicled throughout the country early in the week, and undoubtedly surprised followers of the game, inasmuch as they had taken it for granted that the "old un" had placed himself on the retired list after his defeat of George Gardner. Bob's physical condition, when he fought Gardner, was such that he thought he could never again fit himself to engage in battle, and stated he had severed his connections with the ring. A rest of several months relieved him of his aches and pains, and brought with it a hankering to engage in a game of wallops with the first man who blocked his way with a chip on his shoulder. That man happened to be Schreck, who also beat George Gardner, thus making him Bob's logical opponent for the lightweight championship, a title old Fitz lifted from Gardner. Little, if any, stock was taken in the match at the time of its arrangement, about a month ago, but when bids were opened on May 22 the proposition from the Athenaeum club for the battle was found among them, it looked too good an offer to permit of its petering out. The club, in its proposition, stated that it would hold the contest at the Saucer track, which has a seating capacity of about 8,000, and that it would range its prices from $1 to $10 which, if the fighters could draw the capacity, would bring the gross receipts close to $30,000. That amount of money, although it appeared only on paper, reminded old Bob of his halcyon days, and led the Schreck party to believe the ship they had longed for had hove in sight, with the result they accepted the offer. The men left for the vicinity of the contest this week. Bob will prepare for the battle at Ogden, with Hugo Kelley as chief trainer, and Mike will do his training stuntz on the outskirts of Salt Lake, and will be looked after by Johnny Hogan.

Although Fitzsimmons will be 43 years old on June 4, he states that there are several good fights still in him, and that after he defeats Schreck he will be prepared to fight any middle, light heavy or heavyweight in the world. Bob still claims the middleweight championship by virtue of his victory over Jack Dempsey. He is the acknowledged light heavyweight champion because of his defeat of George Gardner, and now that Jim Jeffries has declared himself out of the game, Bob says he will claim the heavyweight championship. Fitz argues that as Jeff won the title from him, and as he gave the big Californian the severest beating in his (Jeffries') ring career, he is entitled to the position vacated by the big ex-champion. Furthermore, Bob states that after his coming fight he will be pleased to give Jeff another fistic argument.

HANLON BESTS YOUNG CORBETT

'Frisco Boy Gets Decision In Twenty-Round Fight.

San Francisco, June 3.—Eddie Hanlon fought Young Corbett to a standstill during the last few rounds of a twenty-round contest last night and was awarded a hard earned decision by Referee Homan. The fight was an exciting one from start to finish. During the first part of the contest Hanlon had a slight advantage, but no harm was done to either man until the eleventh round. Then Hanlon rushed Corbett to the ropes, but the Denver man stalled him off and blocked a number of stomach punches. Corbett got to the center of the ring and in a mix-up land left and right swings on Hanlon's jaw. The San Francisco boy went to his knees and took the count of nine. He came up fighting, and in spite of Corbett's strenuous efforts to put him out, he finished the round strong. For the next four rounds Corbett went at his man and in the thirteenth had Hanlon very tired, but he could not land a knock-cut blow. Hanlon braced up in the fourteenth and seemed to have a slight margin over Corbett. The fifteenth was about even. Hanlon landed a left and right to the jaw but they did no harm. The sixteenth was Corbett's by a large majority. He landed a series of right upper cuts to the face and Hanlon was very tired. The seventeenth was Hanlon's round. He upper cut Corbett to the face and stomach. Corbett was apparently tired and unable to hit back. The eighteenth was about even, although Corbett had a shade the better of it at the end. The nineteenth and twentieth were all Hanlon's. All during the nineteenth he stood up close to Corbett, pounding away at the Denver boy's stomach. Corbett was tired and could not hit back. He made several wild swings, but missed his man and did no harm. The round closed with the crowd yelling for Hanlon.

In the twentieth Hanlon came up strong and went right at his man. They stood breast to breast, each with his head to the others, shoulder to shoulder and slugged for all that was in them. Hanlon was the stronger and forced Corbett about the ring, playing a lively tattoo on his stomach. He fought Corbett against the ropes and had him at his mercy. Corbett came very near going off the platform, but managed to stagger back to the center of the ring, but that only gave Hanlon a better chance at him. The round closed with both men on their feet and with Corbett all but out.

The decision was a popular one with the crowd, as Hanlon in the last few rounds clearly outfought Corbett.

BATTING IS LIGHTER

Patient Fans Seldom See Ball Knocked Over the Fence.

Murnane Sees Nothing But New York In National Race.

Boston, June 3.—Ball players are not hitting the ball as far as formerly, and yet the outfielders are playing deeper than ever each season.

In the first twenty games at the South end grounds here but one fair ball was hit over the fence, while a few years ago it was no uncommon thing to see the ball go over either the right or left field fence in every game, and often three times in one game. I don't believe that the fence has been hit on the fly over half a dozen times this season, showing the ball has not been hit as far as years ago, at least in the direction of the fences.

I mentioned this fact to Michael Grady, the St. Louis catcher, and his reply was "there is different pitchers nowadays." I couldn't quite see the logic in Grady's remarks, for I note several first-class pitchers still in the big leagues that were in the middle of the hunt when the balls were sent flying over the garden wall.

Just then there were two very ordinary pitchers working in the game for St. Louis and Boston.

'My opinion is that the batters are taking a shorter swing than formerly and meeting the ball for line drives, and when the ball is met fair it carries, but is more apt to keep to the center of the field. The bats are much heavier than were used ten years ago and the players make an extra effort to meet the ball instead of slugging it.

I see no difference in the pitching. The man doing the best work for Boston is a youngster with very little experience, but with a good arm and oceans of speed. He simply burns the ball over the plate, with no knowledge of the batsman's weakness.

This player is named Young, and receives $125 per month, while Vic Willis, who lost his first seven games receives $583 per month, showing that it's not the high-priced man that makes good in baseball. By the way, Mr. Young has already grown wise to the fact that he is being underpaid, and is in a fair way to get a substantial raise.

The most remarkable fact about a batsman's work is the few number of balls that he misses while at the bat. Two strikes are called on the average batsman to one ball missed, that is cutting out the foul tip, thus showing that men often go to the plate with no intention of hitting at the first good ball.

I find fewer strike-outs than formerly and the same can be said of bases on balls, the foul strike rule helps the pitchers materially. The three objectionable features in baseball to the average attendant at the games are bunting, strike outs and passes to first. I mean by bunting, deliberate sacrifice hitting. The batsman who shifts from a full swing to a clever bunt with the hope of reaching first base is an artist and appreciated. The good old-fashioned batsman who cramps his swing for a sacrifice is a drawback to the game. The success of the New York Giants this season is their ability to mix things up and keep their opponents guessing. There is not enough of this style of playing in the major leagues, where the pick of the clever, brainy players should be found and better exhibations of the game displayed.

The Detroit club of '87, were strong enough to win by straightaway work when it came to playing seven other clubs, but were never a match in a series with the clever Chicago club, with less natural talent, but quicker thinkers and more capable of shifting a play.

The Boston Champions have never played anything but straight ball, and won out by nerve and a great infield, including the batteries. The run-getting of the Boston men was due to long drives and not to cleverness on the bases, and this is one of the features they are forced to overcome this season and must keep on improving until runs can be made by cleverness on the bases as well as by continual long drives, for the long drives are gradually growing less in the American league, as each club has an abundance of first-class box men.

I notice the American association has more .300 batsmen this season than any other baseball organization. This means the pitchers are unusually weak or the batsmen are above the average. I find Barry McCormick, allowed to go from Washington for his weak stick work, hitting at a .320 clip, while Jack Doyle, a fairly good batsman, is hustling to keep in the .200 class. The Eastern league has some fine talent this season, while the smaller minor leagues will furnish an army of rattling good men for the major leagues next season. Batsmen will be at a premium, although extra fine fielders will always get a show. Take the Washington club, making a fine showing, and not one man above the .250 mark in batting. This is a pretty fair tip, however, to play—Washington will be well down the line next fall, when the clubs are straightened away for the great finish.

I have now seen all the clubs of the National league, and can see nothing but New York. McGraw has picked up a lot of natural-born scrappers, who can play baseball, and, with the disposition to work every wrinkle, McGraw and Brush will once more have the laugh on the National league.

Barney Dreyfuss' kick about McGraw is a baby move, and reminds one of Andrew Freedman. Barney should be too good a sport to take any notice of McGraw's remarks about making a wager about the championship. It was not long ago that Mr. Dreyfus was very conspicuous around trying to place bets on his own team. Now that the Pirates have gone wrong, Barney is no more a betting man. Fred Clarke informed me that the little mix-up he had at the Polo grounds with McGraw was not worth talking about. "The papers made a lot of nothing," said Fred.

In Mike Donlin, Sandow Mertes, McGann, Bowerman and Bresnahan, McGraw has picked out a council that would rather fight than eat, and nothing but a stiff proposition from some club with boys who will take a chance, and take it quick, will stop this band of tough ball players.

President Pulliam may have the courage of Ban Johnson, but that remains to be seen. The National league has lost prestige this season by the conduct of its ball players on the ball field, and the old organization must get a move on to keep respectable as long as men are engaged for their fighting qualities as for their ball playing.

Mr. Pulliam has all lovers of baseball at his back, and he can go as far as he likes to drive the bad actors to the bench.

The slump of the Cincinnati club in the East must have been a great source of annoyance to Garry Herrmann, who can enjoy a winner as well as any man I know of, and yet who takes his medicine when tied to a looser. I think Cincinnati has lost by too much fault-finding with the umpires, for, after all, the whole thing evens up. Umpires are there to make a reputation and work hard, for they know failure takes them soon back to the wood pile. They are like players, and will have off days, but no ball club gains anything by unnecessary kicking, and Capt. Joe Kelley has paid too much attention to the umpire.

T. H. MURNANE.

CALLED IT A DRAW.

Battling Nelson and Sullivan Fought Six Rounds.

Baltimore, June 3.—The six-round fight last night between Battling Nelson of Chicago and Kid Sullivan of Washington was the hottest contest seen in this city for many a day. To the spectators apparently without an exception, Sullivan seemed to have much the better of it, landing on Nelson's head and neck repeatedly and usually getting in a stiff punch in breaking from the frequent clinches. In the fourth round he knocked Nelson through the ropes. Nelson's blows were nearly all landed at close quarters and he showed an inclination to hold more than the spectators thought proper. Referee William Rocap of Philadelphia called it a draw.

THE JUNE MAGAZINES

The June Harper's is sumptuously illustrated. There is a fine engraving by Henry Wolf from the original painting "The Lovers," by Frans Hals. The frontispiece of the number is by striking color effect in the gown of Booth Tarkington's new heroine in "The Conquest of Canaan." There is a beautiful drawing of mother and children by Alice Barber Stephens, and Elizabeth Shippen Green is represented by some excellent pictures of little Rebecca Mary and her now famous rooster Thomas Jefferson. Other artists whose work appears in this number are Charles Johnson Post, William Hurd Lawrence, T. K. Hanna, Jr., Louis Loeb, Lester Ralph, and Sydney Adamson. There are fifty-three illustrations in the number, of which fourteen are in color and tint. The first chapter of Booth Tarkington's new novel—a strong and human American story of the best type—open the June number. In this story, "The Conquest of Canaan," Mr. Tarkington has returned to his own field, Indiana, the field wherein his genius has already reached its happiest development. The novel is illustrated by Lucius Wolcott Hitchcock.

There is so distinct a war flavor to the June Century that it might well have been called a Memorial day issue. Thomas M. Semmes contributes "A Pupil's Recollections of 'Stonewall' Jackson"; Leighton Parks, very happily told, "What a Boy Saw of the Civil War"; George Langdon Kilmer, "Boys in the Union Army," a subject of growing interest; and "by one who followed him," "Recollections of Jubal Early." Four stories sound the same theme: "Miss Sally and the Enemy," in Gouverneur Morris' happiest vein; "In the Virginia Room," by Arlo Bates, a story to read with heart full of sympathy; "Two Pensioners," by Harry Stillwell Edwards, bubbling over with quiet fun; and Ruth Kimball Gardiner's "John Edward's Friend," a Memorial day story of childish pity and patriotism. Coming down to later days. Capt. Horace M. Reeve recounts the stirring story of "The Defense of Baler Church" by Spaniards in the Philippines, and Herbert J. Hagerman has much of interest to tell of "The Russian Court."

The June number of Scribner's Magazine contains articles by distinguished writers, including Henry Van Dyke, Dr. George P. Fisher, President John Finley and Mrs. Wharton, and an abundance of beautiful illustrations, notably the very humorous drawings by A. B. Frost, which lead the number (reproduced in tint) and also the illustration in color by F. C. Yohn to accompany "The Soldiers' Recessional," a highly imaginative Decoration day poem by President Finley. This magazine has been always exceptionally fortunate in the letters which it has published from time to time, from the Thackeray letters in the first year of its existence, down to Madame Waddington's correspondence of recent years. In this number an unusually bright series of letters is published, which were written by Edward Everett's daughters when he was United States minister in England from 1841 to 1845. These two young girls were most observing and had every social privilege. Dr. George P. Fisher of Yale, describes "A Visit to Washington on the Eve of the Civil War," where he had intimate conversations with President Buchanan, Vice President Breckenridge, Charles Francis Adams, Gen. Cass, "Sunset" Cox and Mr. Seward. The ferment of the times is vividly pictured in these interviews.

The World To-Day has surpassed itself in the June recreation number in variety of topics and illustration. Mrs. Theodore Thomas leads off with an attractive story of her New Hampshire garden, which will appeal to all who love flowers and the country. The near approach of the vacation season gives special interest to the article by Henry N. Cope on "A Nation's Playground" and that on "English Inns" by Ralph D. Cleveland. "The President's Outing," described by C. Arthur Williams, is in a similar vein. Joseph E. Raycroft writes of "The Making of an Athlete," likewise befitting the season. Those who care for affairs will be interested in Charles M. Harvey's account of what Governor Folk has accomplished in Missouri in the way of reform, and in Mr. Woodruff's narration of the development of "National Municipal Organization."

"On the Newport Road" is the attractive title of the novelette which opens the June Smart Set. Sewell Ford is the author, and he has written as sprightly a piece of fiction as has recently appeared. The story tells of Mrs. "Billy" Redkirk's social ambitions, her desire that her daughter, Barbara, may make a brilliant marriage, the sudden loss of the Redkirk millions, and their ultimate recovery. The tale is comedy from first to last—bright, clean, clever comedy—and no reader can afford to miss it. Thirteen remarkably original stories will be found in the June number. One in particular, "The Ending of the Play," is so absorbing in its dramatic interest and so startling in its denouement that it will cause no slight discussion. Moreover, it introduces a new author to the public, Henry Sydnor Harrison. In "James Stiles, Widower," Gertrude Lynch has again written one of her subtle character studies. It is a story with scarcely a word of dialogue, yet it holds the reader from the very opening paragraph.

Two complete novels, five serials and nine short stories make up the contents of the June Popular Magazine—surely an imposing array of fiction for a dime. The novels are: "The Blucher of Wheat," by Howard Fitzalian, and "The Isle of St. Anthony," by George Bronson-Howard. The serials are by H. Rider Haggard, H. G. Wells, Andrew Comstock McKenzie, Richard Marsh and Louis Joseph Vance. A new serial, "The Private War," begins in this issue, and judging by the opening chapters, it will prove both uncommon and uncommonly good. Leigh Gordon Giltner, George Gibbs, Herbert Thompson, Charles Steinfort Pearson, Louis Tracy and others contribute the short stories. It is an exceptionally good number.

Harper's Bazar for June is an unusually good number. "Concerning the Saints," by Margaret Deland, contains some pertinent observations on the selfishness of unselfishness: "The Baddy Baby," by Juliet Wilbur Tompkins, is an amusing record of happenings during the nurse's "afternoon out;" and there are two interesting articles, "The Chicago Woman's Athletic Club" and "Among the Illustrators," both of which are fully illustrated by photographs taken especially for the Bazar. "Bernard Shaw and Women" is the title of an article in which James Huneker gives the dramatist credit for having discovered and popularized "The Unpleasant Girl." The fashion pages contain valuable hints for the June bride.

Among the many good things in "Success Magazine" for June, it seems almost invidious to select any particular article for special mention. Cleveland Moffett continues his articles on "The Shameful Misuse of Wealth" and the current installment which deals with the spirit of discontent created by the ostentations display of the idle rich, should be read and digested by all right-thinking Americans. William Jennings Bryan tells in his terse way "What Government Ownership Means." This is one of the burning questions of the day treated by a man who has made it a life-study. President Castro, of Venezuela, contributes an article on "My Idea of World Peace"; John R. Dunlap discusses the Standard Oil question under the heading, "Forty Thousand Miles of Pipe Lines." He shows that this method of transportation is the basis of the Standard Oil company's success. Fiction is represented by Emerson Hough's story, "The Lost Mine of the Uintahs"; "Trapped by a Tornado," by Frederick Upham Adams and "From Jungle to Jacket," by Michael White.

Ainslee's for June will amply satisfy the anticipation with which this magazine is awaited every month by its rapidly increasing number of readers. "The Outgoing of Simeon," by Elizabeth Duer, is the novelette; it is a genuine love story, but one of the unhackneyed sort. Its plot is original, but plausible, and it contains a number of intensely dramatic situations. David Graham Phillips continues his great serial, "The Deluge," in which he has, in the person of Matthew Blacklock, consummated one of the finest pieces of character drawing in modern fiction. Holman F. Day and Emerson G. Talor supply the humor of the number in their stories, "'Plug' Ivory and 'Plug' Avery" and "Green Devils and Old Maids," respectively.

The remarkable advance made by modern medicine in handling contagious diseases and the possibility, first suggested by Pasteur, of making all "infectious diseases to disappear from the world," is told by Dr. A. C. Seely in Leslie's Monthly Magazine for June. The writer shows what work has been done in bringing about artificial immunity through inoculation and indicates the lines along which physicians are working to curb the contagious diseases that now ravage the world's population. The other interesting special articles are: "The Jews of Walls Street," by S. A. Nelson; "The Bad Boy: How to Save Him," by Judge Lindsay, and "Speaking of Insurance," by Willard Helburn.

Wide human interest is the striking thing about the June McClure's. The college man is the first concerned in the senastional disclosures of "The College Athlete," which tells, for the first time some astonishing facts about the financial arrangements by which some of the "stars" are secured and kept in college. It is a story that will be a shocking disillusionment to everybody not familiar with the new spirit of commercialism that has crept into college athletics. Typhoid fever, Samuel Hopkins Adams proves in one of his powerful and illuminating articles, is an entirely unnecessary evil. He shows conclusively that the millions of dollars and thousands of lives America sacrifices to this disease might be saved by a little enlightened work. Helen Keller, who has been so marvellously educated in spite of her lack of sight, speech and hearing, has written the story of her college days, a charmingly modest story of her wonderful conquest of her limitation. It is a vindication of her splendid optimism.

In the Engineering Magazine for June there are some new and highly interesting suggestions concerning the development and extension of the gas engine. Prof. Reeve, one of the leading experimental investigators in the field, outlines the mode of construction and working which will make the gas turbine a practical success, and Dr. Adolf Gradenwitz discusses the application of the gas producer and engine to the propulsion of vessels, showing interesting illustrations of the results already accomplished in this direction on the continent.

The first of the early summer issues to appear, the June Metropolitan is a veritable garden of delight among magazines. It is rich pictorially, strong textually, and appeals to every taste. Beside a cover in four colors there is a superb frontispiece in full color, reproduced from a pastel painting. This frontispiece is the first of a series of six beautiful subjects illustrating "Old Fashioned Girls in Old Fashioned Gardens." The series, executed by George Gibbs in that most delightful of all artistic mediums—pastel—are reproduced with a fidelity to the originals that even in this day of clever reproductive processes must be acknowledged as both extraordinary and charming. The chief paper of importance in the June number is a contribution by the one man in the world who knows all about Alaska. It is surprising how little really is known of our big bit of northern territory, which comes within an ace of linking the United States with Asia. The man who has written about Alaska for the Metropolitan is Dr. Sheldon Jackson, the general agent of our government for the advancement of education in the great territory purchased from Russia in 1867.

Pearson's Magazine for June presents as its leading article the first in an interesting series entitled "The Profession of Getting Hurt." The author, Theodore Waters, spent five months visiting the various big cities, where he unearthed among public corporations and among the various municipal heads a most amazing state of affairs, showing how annually millions of dollars are "grafted" by this brand-new class of fakers. "New York's River Tunnelers," by A. W. Rolker, tells vividly of the difficulties and dangers encountered by the engineers and the men who are boring through the mud and slime, sixty feet beneath the waters of the East river. "Roosevelt's First Lesson in Statecraft," by S. Addison Wolf, tells of the cowboy days of our president, the most talked of person in the world, and how he fought against lynching. Sterling Heilig contributes a bright, interesting biographical article on Louise Michel, daughter of the Commune, who died recently.

The June issue of Country Life in America is the annual vacation number, and is the strongest outdoor issue of the magazine in its history. It gives 100 vacation experiences, ranging from deep sea yachting in a small boat to an automobile in the wilderness of the Canadian mountains. And the 100 first hand experiences are so many hints for each reader of the methods in which he can plan his own vacation. The first article of the number is entitled "The Black Bass, the People's Game Fish," and is written by the man that made black bass famous, Dr. James A. Henshall. Mr. Radclyffe Dugmore's illustrations of bass in the act of leaping are a photographic achievement that ranks with Mr. Dimock's now world-famous trapon pictures.

"Personal Magnetism and Auto-Suggestion" is the title of the leading article in Suggestion for June, a magazine of the New Psychology for thinkers (Chicago). The writer holds that personal magnetism may be acquired by all; that it is not a mysterious, occult quality, and he gives some rules for acquiring those qualities which make friends; other articles relate to psychic research, suggestive therapeutics, the power of mind to produce health or sickness, nature cure, hygiene, and in general the application of the New Psychology for health, happiness and success.

Jerome Hart contributes a very interesting article to the Argonaut of May 29. "Down the Nile to Cairo" is the title, and it is confined chiefly to an account of the notable people who are to be seen in Egypt. Ex-Empress Eugenie's last visit is described, and her former visit, when she was queen of France, is recalled.

The World's Work for June is full of interesting articles, handsomely illustrated from photographs. A full-page portrait of Joseph Jefferson appears as the frontispiece. In "The Public's Sake in the Trust Companies," there is a summing up of the advantages and faults of the present management of funds by the great trustees. Arthur Harris presents some startling facts on the debts and public expenditures of the powers in "The Purses of Nations." The real rulers of Russia and their benighting influence are dramatically pictured in "The Church's Blight on Russia," by Perceval Gibbon. Charles M. Harger describes "The Foresting of the Prairies"—the redemption of the plains of the Mid-West from barrenness.

The Garden Magazine for June is a superbly illustrated number of this most practical of all out-door publications. From the "Gardener's Reminder" on the first page, telling the actual things to do, to the many departments on "Hardy Borders," "Annual Flowers," the "Bulbs," "Water Gardens," and the like, it covers the subject of planting and of growing flowers, vegetables and fruits during the month, in the most adequate way. The leading articles have to do with such timely subjects as "Better Strawberries than You Can Buy," showing the best home varieties to be those that have flavor rather than shipping quality; "Unusual Vegetables Worth Growing," containing hints for adding zest to the growing of garden delicacies; and "Seven Weeks of Lilac Bloom," resulting from new varieties and a little thought to their care.

The Burr McIntosh Monthly for June, the first of the summer numbers of this magazine of pictorial perfection, is certainly attractive enough to please any one who delights in highclass photographic reproductions. The color work is exceedingly dainty, the pages in color being printed on tinted paper. In the theatrical section, superb portraits are shown of Lillian Russell as Lady Teazle, Amelia Bingham, Bonnie Maginn, Grace George, the ever popular Denman Thompson, Blanche Walsh and several others with reproductions of scenes from all of the most popular plays of the season. The panoramic pictures cover scenes in Persia, Canada, Hawaii and the United States.

It is now sixteen years since the Outlook began its annual practice of publishing abcut the first of June a special illustrated number having to do with out-of-door life, vacation experiences and recreation generally. As usual, the recreation number for this year contains a large variety of articles and several scores of pictures. The Outlook's "Spectator" shows with a dozen or more illustrations what may be done in the way of travel and fun in an automobile in a very brief time. Charles Wagner, the author of "The Simple Life," writes about "A Quiet Corner"—namely, the Isle of Oleron, where he is wont to spend restful days in summer.

The Reader Magazine for June is a strong number of this increasingly attractive and popular periodical. The opening chapters of Meredith Nicholson's new serial, "The House of a Thousand Candles," are certain to attract attention, while Octave Thanet's "Man of the Hour" reaches its conclusion in this number. An appreciation of Joseph Jefferson, by James S. Metcalfe, dramatic editor of Life, voices the sentiments of thousands of American playgoers. The article is acompanied by a full-page portrait, in tint, done by George Brehm, which is one of the most striking likenesses of Jefferson ever published.

"The Lady From the Sea," a new novelette by Cyrus Townsend Brady, apears in the June number. As the title indieates, this is a tale of the sea, so thrilling, so romantic, so full of adventure that it compels devouring interest from its first to its last page. The heroine is named Ellen Smith, and the captain, who is her gallant lover, and her jailer as well for a time, is named Jones, and he had begun his career at the age of 11 as captain's servant. This humble origin was displesing to his sweetheart's father, and only after three years of separation from the girl he loved Jones returned with a determination to seek Ellen and take her, willy nilly, for his own. A charming short story by Eleanor A. Halloweli is called "Hickory Dock." It is about "A Man and a Girl Who Trifled With Time." It is extremely diverting and is very cleverly treated.

A glance through the beautifully illustrated pages of the June Housekeeper is sufficient to show why this up-to-date publication has come to be known as the "Magazine of Helpfulness." In one or other of the many practical departments, edited by experts, the busy housewife will find solution for all of her daily problems. In addition to help and instruction, there is much of entertainment in the June Housekeeper. Among the short stories is one by the late Elizabeth Cherry Waltz, almost the last work from her pen. It is called "Bingle and the Brass Bedstead," and the hero is a lovably mischievous fox terrior.

The breezes of outdoor America stir through the handsome pages of the Country Calendar's June number. From Stewart Edward White's glowing account of how to reach and enjoy the snowy Sierras, his favorite camping ground, to John Burrough's prose poem of his peaceful woods and fields and flowers, there is throughout the freshness of the true outdoor spirit. It is also breathed by the beautiful greens of the "Mountain Torrent" on the cover, and the sumptuousness of the many large half-tone illustrations.

The Popular Science Monthly for June contains the following articles: "Von Baer and the Rise of Embryology," by Professor William A. Locy; "Galileo," by Dr. Edward S. Holden; "The Teacheing of Logic," by Professor Arthur H. Daniels; "The Mutations of Lycopersicum," by Dr. Charles A. White; "The Biology of the Rocky Mountains," by T. D. A. Cockerell; "What is Research?" by Professor Henry S. Williams; "Plants Hide From Animals," by Professor W. J. Beal; "The Carnegie Foundation;" "The Wistar Institute of the University of Pennsylvania."

Our architecture came in the first place from Greece. In the Agricultural Record for June Jean Schoepfer, the French art critic, begins a series of articles, in the course of which he will evoke before the Architectural Record readers the most famous edifices of different periods.

The contents of the June number of the North American Review are varied and timely. Henry James contributes the concluding article in the series entitled "New England: An Autumn Impressions." In "Suez and Panama," F. C. Penfield endeavors to estimate the prospects of the Panama Canal in the light of Suez Canal experience. Count Lutzow presents a study of the genius and work of the French writer, Stendhal (Henri Beyle). Dr. J. Sanderson Christison discusses "Science and Immorality," concluding that the former has produced no evidence which is destructive of a belief in the latter. James D. Whelpley describes the legislation that has been enacted by the various governments for the "Control of Emigration in Europe."

The Pilgrim for June comes with one of the most attractive covers this excellent magazine has ever had. As previously stated, the summer issues of The Pilgrim are to be given over almost wholly to entertainment. Therefore the number of short stories and light illustrated articles that lack nothing in interest if they be light are more than usually plentiful in the June issue. Director Reed, of the Lewis and Clark exposition, tells what the visitor to Portland this summer may see, and analyzes the purpose and scope of the great show as only one could who has scope of the great creation. A delightful fishing article by Kirkland B. Alexander is entitled "Six Foster Brothers of the Brook Trout."

Former President Cleveland's philippic against "The Clubwoman" has drawn an answering shot from the very stronghold of the enemy. In the June number of Madame, Mrs. May Wright Sewell, honorary president of the International Council of Women and of the Council of Women of the United States, gives the side of the question of the wife who belongs to clubs and organizations.

The leading article in the June Atlantic is a remarkably entertaining study by John Burroughs of the question of the protective coloration of birds, which has caused so much dispute among scientists. Writing, as he does, from a life time of study and observation, and with his characteristic humor, Mr. Burroughs has produced an outdoor scientific paper of the first importance. Timely and momentous issues are authoritatively considered in an article on "Federal Rate Regulation," by Ray Morris, managing editor of the Railroad Gazette, in "The Cause of South American Revolutions," by George A. Chamberlain, lately an American consul in Brazil, and in "A Letter From Paris," by Alvan F. Sanbor, the author of "Paris and the Social Revolution."

Most of the men work in town and their families and themselves, too, for that matter, are busy cultivating and clearing land.

The funeral of Engineer Fred Cargill, who was run over and killed by his engine near Murray, Monday evening, occurred Wednesday from the First M. E. church, Rev. W. E. J. Gratz preaching the sermon and the body was laid to rest in Lakeview cemetery. The funeral arrangements were in charge of the local lodge B. of L. F., of which deceased was a member. The church was well filled and a large concourse of friends followed the remains to their last resting place. Decedent's father and brothers from Osceola, Wis., came up to attend the funeral.

The accident which resulted in death was peculiar, both the engineer and Fireman John Coggswell were partly under the front of the engine when the locomotive started to move. Coggswell got out quickly, but Cargill was unable to do so and told Coggswell to "get on the engine" which Coggswell did, but only too late, not thinking of the air valve within reach by which he might have stopped the engine instantly. Cargill was rolled under the engine and killed, no wheels passing over him.

The coal trestles at the Negaunee mines was considerably damaged Friday morning. Three cars being placed on the trestle by a South Shore crew left the rails just as the first car entered the timber approach. It crashed into the timbers with great force, tearing them from the foundation. William Brisson, one of the switchmen, was on the first car. He jumped, barely escaping being caught beneath the falling timbers. Dan Hagerty, who was working under the trestle, also had a close call, just managing to get out of the way. It will take about a week to repair the structure.

John F. Burke of Ishpeming, has completed grading for the spur the Chicago & Northwestern company will extend from its main line on the Cascade range to the Richmond property. The track will lead to the ore crusier now being built. Mr. Burke had more of a task than he anticipated, as he encountered 60 yards of rock which he had to blast out. The earth taken out measured 1,400 yards. The Richmond property has presented a lively appearance since work was resumed a few weeks ago. Within a few days the Oliver Iron Mining company will have a diamond drill in operation at the former site of the Negaunee race course, in the eastern part of the city, a short distance from the Mass mine. The boiler and other equipments was hauled over from the Lumbers on Monday. Negaunee people consider this an important move on the part of the Oliver company, as it is very generally believed that the Mass mine deposit extends under the race course tract. The discovery of ore and the subsequent opening of a mine would mean many changes. The Oliver company owns the mineral rights on some ten or more acres of the land in and near Grand avenue, west of where the drill is being located.

Mrs. R. W. Olson entertained Friday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Fenner, who left the city this week for Marquette, where Mr. Fenner recently accepted the management of the Consolidated Fuel and Lumber company's business. About thirty guests were present. Mr. and Mrs. Fenner were presented with a handsome cut-glass vase.

The school board held a regular monthly meeting Friday evening, but no business of special importance was transacted. There are three vacancies to fill, the Misses Torr, Collins and Milroy having resigned. Miss Torr has secured a high school position, equally as good as the one she has here, near her home. She has done excellent work and the board would be pleased to have her remain. A number of applications for the places have been received, and the board will have no difficulty securing competent teachers to fill them.

Great preparations are being made by the ladies of the Catholic church for the success of their sale, supper and dance, which will be given at Burns hall on Wednesday evening of next week. These ladies have an enviable reputation as entertainers.

Cass Lake will have no celebration on the Fourth of July. A celebration was held here last fourth, and the people of Bemidji assisted with a large crowd of residents of that place, together with their hose team, baseball nine and band. This year Bemidji will celebrate and Cass Lake people, mindful of the neighborly work of the Bemidjites last year, will go to Bemidji en masse and help celebrate the natal day in an appropriate manner.

Cass Lake people have been watching with much concern the outcome of the illness of Senator J. D. Jones, who has been battling with serious sickness at his home in Long Prairie during the past three weeks. The senator made many friends in Cass Lake when he lived here and acted as register of the local United States land office, and there is general satisfaction over a report from Long Prairie to the effect that he is slowly improving.

There is a feeling of satisfaction over the announcement that the Great Northern has made a contract with the Cass Water, Light and Power company for furnishing the depot, roundhouse, coal sheds and pumping station with electric lights. Heretofore, the lighting facilities at the depot have been very poor. The depot is located on section 16, the Lydick allotment and outside the limits of the village proper. Chisholm

Chisholm, June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—About 12 o'clock Sunday fire was discovered in the planing mill of the Longyear Lake Lumber company's mill. There was a watchman on duty, but the fire appeared to get the start of him and before any water could be applied to extinguish the flames they had spread and were beyond control. The Chisholm fire department was called out, but were able to do little because the water mains do not reach to the mill property and so they had to start the pumps at the saw mill and attach the department hose. Between the planer and the rest of the property there is a space of 200 feet, the fire limit, in which no lumber was piled. The department threw water on all the surrounding lumber and in this way confined the fire to the planer, which was reduced to ashes within about two hours. It is estimated that the mil proper was worth about $20,000 and the lumber piled in and about the planer was worth about $15,000, making a total loss of about $35,000.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Warmer Weather Needed to Make Business Good.

New York, June 3.—R. G. Dunn & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Warmer weather is needed to restore normal conditions, both in trade circles and on the farms. The season opened bright with promise, dealers preparing for a heavy spring business, but abnormally low temperature and excessive moisture retarded spring business, but abnormally low temmoist be carried over, unless accumulations are reduced by clearance sales at bargain prices. A few weeks of hot weather would greatly improve the situation, however, particularly as to the agricultural outlook which would be reflected in other industries very promptly. A little weakness is noted in pig iron, but most lines of finished steel are in good demand and confidence is expressed in results a month hence unless there should be a serious controversy regarding wages. Other leading branches of manufacture are making favorable reports, the rise in prices of raw material acting as a stimulus at textile mills, but any excess inflation would prove injurious. Such reports as are available for the full month of May indicate much better results than last year, particularly statistics of factories and bank exchanges, while incomplete returns of railway earnings show an average gain of 7.7 per cent. Foreign commerce at this port for the last week was also favorable, exports exceeding those of 1904 by $4,837,389, while imports showed a small gain of $481,854.

Minor metals are fairly steady, and the only development in the coal market is the usual monthly advance in price of anthracite. Country ovens are less active, reflecting the reduced output of pig iron furnaces, but contracts are being placed for delivery durmg the first half of next year.

Textile fabrics are stronger in tone because of the upward tendency of raw materials, and also on account of the limited supply of goods in first hands, often making prompt delivery impossible.

Trading in packer hides is still confined to small purchases of late April and May salting for immediate requirements. New England footwear manufacturers are receiving liberal fall contracts for salesmen at the West, and plants are now operated close to their full capatcity.

Failures this week in the United States are 198, against 211 last week, 234 the preceding week, and 220 the corresponding week last year. Failures in Canada number twenty-nine, against nineteen last week, eleven the preceding week and twenty last year.

ENORMOUS LIGHTHOUSE

To Be Built By Japs as a Monument.

Tokio, June 3.—In response to thousands of suggestions and inquiries received, the navy department has decided to erect an enormous lighthouse on Okino island as a monument to commemorate Admiral Togo's great naval victory over the Russin fleet in the battle of the Sea of Japan.

It is planned to have the light show for a distance of sixty miles, practically covering the entire scene of the battle.

This plan has been adopted over all the others because the monument will be near the scene of battle and will stand constantly in the sight and memory of the officers and men of the Japanese navy and will also be a great convenience to navigation. If there should be a future war it will prevent disasters similar to those which overtook the transports Hitachi and Sado.

The lighthouse will be erected by popular subscription, which it is believed will be opened through Japan at once.

POSITIVE PROOF

Because it's the evidence of a Duluth citizen.

Testimony easily investigated.

The strongest endorsement of merit.

The best of proof. Read it:

L. P. Schneider, butcher at McAuley's Washington market, and living at 210 West Fourteenth avenue, Duluth, Minn, says: "A statement I made in 1898, recommending Doan's Kidney Pills, and which has been published in the local papers, very mildly expresses my opinion of that remedy. After suffering for a long time from pain through the back and loins, which made it almost impossible for me to stoop or lift anything without torture, Doan's Kidney Pills cured me, and the lapse of six years has proved that the cure has been permanent. I am sure that I suffered the worst tortures of kidney trouble. Often the pain felt as if a sharp knife was piercing me. At night, although tired out I could not rest or lie in one position without getting sore all over. The kidney secretions were irregular and contained a heavy sediment. Since I found this cure I have time after time advised others to use Doan's Kidney Pills, and I never miss an opportunity to speak well of them."

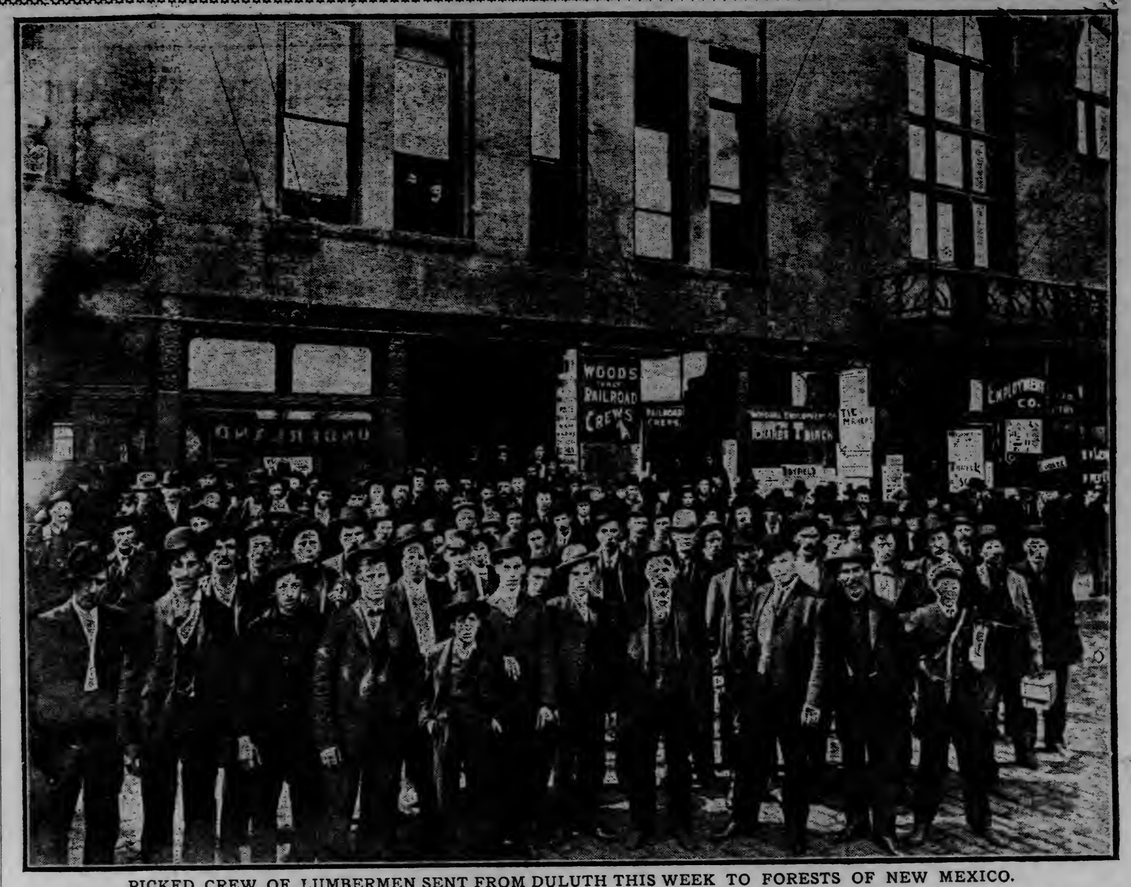
MINNESOTA LUMBERJACKS TO SPEND SUMMER IN NEW MEXICO



PICKED CREW OF LUMBERMEN SENT FROM DULUTH THIS WEEK TO FORESTS OF NEW MEXICO.

One hundred and two lumberjacks left Duluth for the South Thursday They will spend the summer in New Mexico. Their destination was Thoreau. They felt that the climate there would better suit their sensitive constitutions, and so bid farewell to the woods of Northern Minnesota, which have furnished them with their means of subsistence for many moons.

Not only will they spend the summer in the South, but the chances are that they will remain where the gentle breezes, redolent with the fragrance of the mountain forests and free from the cold and snow, may softly fan their sun-tanned faces for at least five years to come. It should not be understood from this that their trip is for pleasure alone. The habits of the average lumberjack are too well known to admit of such a claim meeting with any extended credence in Duluth. As a matter of fact, they left the Head of the Lakes as employes of the American Lumber company, for the purpose of working in the woods of New Mexico for that concern.

S. C. Jackson, formerly of the Clark-Jackson Lumber company of Duluth, now connected with the American concern as general manager in New Mexico, has a very good opinion of the worth of the Northern woodsmen, as is evidenced by the fact that he sent a man to Duluth for the express purpose of getting a bunch of these good-natured individuals together to start for New Mexico, where they will be expected to show the people of the Southwest how to log in a scientific manner. The National Employment company was requested to assist in getting the men collected, and within a few days after the request was made the bunch of 102 had signed contracts.

The men were selected with a considerable degree of care, for common labor is plentiful enough in New Mexico, and Mr. Jackson wanted only men skilled in woodcraft, who knew just what was expected of them when they were sent to the forests to get out logs. So the crew was picked with extreme care, and it was a likely lot that boarded the two special Omaha cars provided for their transportation Thursday afternoon. An extra car was necessary for their baggage. All of the men, both tie makers and lumberjacks of other classes, took with them their baggage, as an indication that they intended to remain in New Mexico after their arrival there.

The men will be able to work year in and year out for a period of five years if they so desire, for the American Lumber company has timber in New Mexico that it will take them that long to cut. It is located on plateaus from 850 to 10,000 feet above the level of the sea. The climate is said to be ideal, and not a single case of sunstroke has ever been known in that section. The men may live in tents ten months out of the twelve. Wages are good, even better than they are here in the North, and living is cheaper, so it is hardly to be wondered at that these men, most of whom have no particular home, expressed themselves as willing to sign a contract to work for the lumber concern in New Mexico. It makes little difference to them what part of the country they are in, so long as they get their wages regularly.

IN COPPER CIRCLES

Production on Increased Scale But the Demand Ample.

Introduction of Compound Stamp Continues Order of Day.

Houghton, Mich., June 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The actual figures of production of Lake Superior copper last year are 298,329,000 pounds of fine copper. This leaves a gap of about 4,000,000 pounds only between Michigan and Arizona, and there was every reason to anticipate that Arizona would displace Michigan and rank second only to Montana as a copper producer, until the recent accident at the United Verde mine. If this mishap proves as serious as stated in the press dispatches, the mine will be out of commission for a year or two, in which case Arizona will decrease slightly in net production for the year.

The recent estimates of copper production from Montana are wild. The litigation in Montana seems to have eased up a trifle, but whether because of a final settlement being in sight, or because both parties are out of wind, is not apparent, both theories having advocates. In any case the situation in Montana has ameliorated, and production from the Butte camp is on a large scale, but by no means upon such an immense scale as some of the recent estimates would indicate. The production of copper in a large way is an enterprise of such immensity, and with such numerous ramifications, that output cannot be increased 50 per cent upon short notice. An increase of one-half in any given district of importance as a producer means that several years must be devoted to the physical labor of opening mines and equipping mills and smelters, to say nothing of the millions of money required in the work. Suffice it to say that American copper production is upon a more extensive scale at present than has been known heretofore, and that the demand, fortunately, seems ample to care for the increased output.

Work on the construction of the Keewenaw Central railway has begun, and will be pushed actively to the completion of the line, which will have about thirty-five miles of main track. Exploratory and development work also is to be undertaken by the Keweenaw Copper company at various points along the line of the new railroad.

Production of the Calumet & Hecla for the calendar year 1904 was in excess of 90,000,000 pounds fine copper, an increase over the preceding year. The Calumet & Hecla now has seventeen modern stamps and six old stamps in commission, with a five-stamp section of the old Calumet mill torn down and under reconstruction. The work of rebuilding the Calumet & Hecla mills at Lake Linden has been proceeding at a little better than schedule rate, and from present appearances the final section of the second mill will be completed before Jan. 1, 1907. Upon the completion of the rebuilt mills the Calumet & Hecla will have a much greater stamping capacity than ever before. A portion of this increased capacity doubtless will be required to make up for the decreased percentage of mineral carried by the mine at great depths, but in any case there will be considerable excess stamping facility, which will enable the company either to increase production from the conglomerate mine, or else to work one or both of the amygdaloid mines. A second shaft on the Osceola amygdaloid has been opened recently, adding several hundred men to the pay roll of the company. Developments at the Kearsarge shaft of the Calumet & Hecla are of a favorable nature, and give reason to believe that this will prove a better mine than was opened by the company on the Osceola amygdaloid.

The plant of the Michigan Smelting company in West Houghton is now handling an increased tonnage of mineral, and within a comparatively short time will be in condition to care for the output of all of the Stanton-Paine mines that are interested in the ownership.

F. W. Denton has been made superintendent of the Champion mine, thus placing him at the head of the three copper mines of the Copper Range Consolidated company. The intentions of Dr. L. L. Hubbard, formerly superintendent of the Champion, have not been announced, but rumors are rife that Dr. Hubbard will take the superintendency of the mining end of the Keweenaw Copper company. This, if true, will be a most fortunate arrangement for the company, as Dr. Hubbard is a man who combines, in an exceptionally fortunate manner, high scholastic attainments with practical executive ability, and has proven his value as a mine manager and as a mine-maker at the Champion, which property he located and opened from grass roots, in a highly satisfactory manner.

The Franklin Mining company has begun diamond drill borings at the Franklin Junior, in an effort to locate the southerly continuation of the Kearsarge lode. A considerable amount of diamond drilling is in progress in the district, and it is probable that other work of this sort will be undertaken shortly.

The Bohemian range copper pool, which is operating in a heretofore untouched section of Keweenaw county, is sinking in a strong and well mineralized amygdaloid, and if this bed holds the present values the Bohemian will make a mine. The importance of this work lies, not only in the chance of opening a good mine, but also in the development of an entirely new field, from which nothing was expected before the beginning of the present work.

The compound stamps at the Champion mill are to be discarded and the reduction of rock by rolls exclusively may be tried. It is doubtful if rock can be crushed as cheaply by rolls as by the stamps now in use in this district, but the reduction of rock by rolls should result in considerably less sliming than is the case under the hands of the stamps.

The introduction of the compound stamp continues the order of the day. There is no doubt that the compounded head is capable of treating a larger tonnage of rock than the single-acting heads, but it is difficult to see where some of the mills installing the compound head are to better their condition. Increased crushing facilities necessarily mean that added washing facilities must be furnished, or that the percentages of copper in the tailings will be greatly increased. In the case of several mills of this district, which are installing compound heads, when unable to feed the stamps already in place, the advisability of this change seems most questionable.

Considerable changes are being made at the Quincy smelter, including a rearrangement of several of the buildings, a new slag dump, etc.

Secretary Bateman of the Mitchell Development company has arranged with the owners of the claims held under option by the company in the Huachuca mountains, Arizona, for an extension of time. Senator Charles Smith, who is president of the company, is expected to visit the property in the near future.

The Rhode Island company may sink a new shaft on the Powable lode about a quarter mile north of No. 2 shaft. If sunk, this will be because of the improved showing in the north drifts of No. 2.

The Globe property is now held by the Copper Range Consolidated company, and will be developed by a three-compartment vertical shaft to the point of intersection with the lode. It is altogether probable that the Globe will make a fine mine.

A PLATFORM OF PRINCIPLES

Setting Forth Achievements of the Arbitration Movement.

Lake Mohonk, June 3.—A platform of principles setting forth the achievements and purposes of the international arbitration movement was adopted in yesterday's session of the conference on international arbitration. The platform was as follows:

"The eleventh annual meeting of the Lake Mohonk conference on international arbitration expresses its gratification over the advance made in the cause of the Pacific settlement of disputes between nations during the past year. Numerous special treaties of arbitration have been concluded and are now in force. The Hauge convention commends increasing confidence among civilized people, its purposes and scope are better understood; its provisions have been resorted to with success in cases of difficulty, as in the settlement of the North sea incident and we now have a confident assurance that the tribunal which it has established, will become of increasing importance in maintaining the peace of the world.

"The interests that contribute to the promotion of the cause are ever broadening. Those of the wage earners are finding emphatic expression, commerce is keenly sensitive to disastrous interruptions by war, whether near or remote, the promoters of religion and philanthropy are alarmed at the hindrances of the work by every disturbance of international peace. These signs of promise show that the long darkness of barbarism is passing away and that the bright day of universal peace is dawning indeed.

"We are highly gratified with the efforts of President Roosevelt in promoting the causes of international peace and justice and we rejoice in his call for a second conference at the Hague. We confidently expect that any questions of international law that are now vague or undetermined will there find wise solution. We also hope that the conference will frame a general treaty that may more effectively meet the requirements of the situation than any special treaties yet proposed have done.

"We earnestly hope that if such a treaty is proposed the treaty making authorities of our government will speedily effect its enactment for this country. We view the treaty now in force between the kingdoms of Denmark and the Netherlands to submit all their difference to arbitration as presenting the ideal towards which we are moving.

"The evolution of the movement for universal peace clearly points to the early establishment of an international parliament with at least advisory powers as a necessary agency in its fulfilment and we renew our declarations of last year in reference to this."

CANNOT ATTACK

Bank Deposits In a Suit For Damages.

St. Paul, June 3.—The state supreme court yesterday afternoon handed down a decision affirming the decision of the Ramsey district court, in the case of A. J. Cummings against Edwards, Wood & Co., to secure an attachment of $44,000 deposits of the defendant firm in the First National bank of Minneapolis and the St. Paul National and the National-German American bank of St. Paul. The supreme court agrees with the lower court that under the law bank deposits cannot be attached pending a suit for damages.

Cummings brought suit against Edwards, Wood & Co. for $50,000 damages for alleged interference with the business of the plaintiff. Pending this suit, a second action was brought to attach the deposits in question. Edwards, Wood & Co. moved a few days ago that the supreme court affirm the decision of the lower court.

THEATER IS BURNED AT PITTSBURG—NO LIVES LOST

Pittsburg, June 3.—One of the most exciting and spectacular fires that has visited Pittsburg in recent years, broke out in the Avenue theater shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and before it was subdued, had completely destroyed the Avenue and partially wrecked the Grand Opera house adjoining, but fortunately no panic resulted and no lives were lost. The loss will reach $150,000, fully insured. The cause of the fire is believed to be due to cross wires.

MIKE HOOLIGAN.

"He's easy riled up to a scrap."

Do you know Mikey Hooligan?
He's a kid about my size;
Has hair as red as a brickyard,
An' the ole Scratch in his eyes.

He has freckles big as pancakes,
Has Mikey Hooligan,
An' he can use the boxin' gloves
As big as anyone.

He's easy riled up to a scrap,
An' would rather fight than eat;
A battle fit with canons
To Mike would be a treat.

But he went to school t'other day
To see what it was like;
The teacher called him up an' said;
"Spell Hooligan, for me, Mike."

Spell his name? Well, that was tough!
But Mike ne'r did say "nough!"
So up he got and just begun;
But the job he found was tough.

"W-h-o, who," he stammered out,
Then, troubled, shook his head;
"L-i-e, lie, g-u-n, gun;
That's how she's done!" he said.

Interesting things about Leaf-Cutting Ants

In the tropical countries there is a species of ant known as the leaf-cutter. It is the habit of these ants to go forth each day and cut the leaves from trees and plants that grow in their vicinity. In South America these leaf-cutters have been known to destroy whole groves of quinine and coffee trees by stripping them bare of their foliage. Orange and mango trees also suffer greatly from these ravagers.

But those who have made the ant and his ways of life a study tell us the little insect does not work such destruction through mere wantonness. Leaf-gathering is the means of his livelihood, as is the fruit and grain-gathering a means of sustenance to man.

After cutting the leaves the ants carry them to their underground dwellings, where they bite them into small bits and stack them in thick, close layers to ferment. This process of fermentation goes on sometime in the dark, damp place, and then there springs from the rich leaf mold a tiny, tender fungus. This crop of fungus is carefully watched by the ant-farmer, and when it is ripe it is cut and stored away for food. As the ants are extremely fond of this diet, they work constantly to keep an inexhaustible supply of rotting leaves in their fungus fields. Often, when the ant settlement is a large one, they are obliged to go long distances to obtain leaves enough to supply them and it is quite wonderful to see the splendid roads they make through the forest. These roads are laid out as straight as a chalk-line, and are kept clean and smooth by the busy little travelers. The leaf-cutter knows no obstacle, for he goes around nothing that happens to stretch across his path. If a log or stone interferes with his roadway he goes over it—never around it. If a stretch of unfit ground is approached he tunnels beneath it, but goes as straight on his way as though he were held in by stone walls at either side.

A NATURALIST.

A Scent Party.

Something to Test the Nose's Power and Make Children Laugh.

Little readers of this page, did you ever attend a "scent party?"

Here is the way to give one.

Blindfold each guest in turn (one at a time, of course) and seat him, or her, in the centre of the room, where all the other guests may keep the "trial" in view. Then bring in a basket of such articles as are here named: A bottle of turpentine, a bottle of camphor, one of peppermint, a moth ball, a rose, a bit of salt codfish, a leaf of rosemary, an onion, etc., etc.

Although the odors and perfumes of these articles are familiar to all—when scented singly, and with the eyes open—it is astonishing, and laughable, too, to hear the blunders of the blindfolded one as he endeavors to name the articles that are passed in rapid succession before his nose. He will declare turpentine is camphor, peppermint a rose, a moth ball will be a geranium, and so on, till his futile attempts create the greatest merriment to the onlookers. But when the test comes to those who laughed loudest their confusion is perhaps greater than his as they "grope blindly" with olfactory nerves to name things they know so well—but smell so badly!

During such a test one will learn how much the nose depends upon the eyes to tell one things.

Babes in the Barnyard.

[BY MAUD WALKER.]

Trot, trot, trot! It was the four soft paws of Trinket, the baby puppy, that made the noise. He was going down to the barnyard to ascertain what all those awful noises coming from there meant.

Each day since he had begun to prick up his little silky ears to listen to sounds he had heard those peculiar noises from the barnyard, and he had determined to investigate the cause at the first opportunity. And this morning the opportunity had come. Bobby and Fanny, his young master and mistress, had taken Trinket's mother to town with them, and Trinket would be alone for half the forenoon.

Sometimes he heard, "Baa-baa," "Quack-quack" and "Cackle-cackle." Then Trinket would turn his funny little noggin to one side, open his queer pink-lined mouth and let out a weak bit of a baby "Bark-bark!"

Of course, Trinket did not wonder at his own noise any more than he wondered at any other part of himself. Even his friendly tail—that wagged and wagged a welcome to Bobby and Fanny when they came each day to his kennel—did not rouse his curiosity. His tail was a part of him—the same as his feet, his eyes and his nose. So was his bark.

But Trinket was a curiosity to someone else, if not to himself. That someone was Bulger—the baby. He was a fellow 10 months old, who talked in a language all his own. But his mamma pretended to understand what he meant when he said "Dad-dad" and "Goo-goo."

Maybe she did.

As Trinket passed the back porch, going trot, trot, trot towards the barnyard,

Burglar and Trinket see many queer creatures.

Bulger was sitting there on a mat where the bright sun made his blue eyes blink and turned the soft, silky fuzz on his round head to spun gold. Bulger's cheeks stuck out round and fat to correspond in shape with his body, which his mamma would say was "a b'essed, b'essed little body, so it is."

Bulger was not saying "Dad-dad," nor "Goo-goo" now, for he was busy trying to eat one of his soft, pink fists. He had been chewing away with his four white teeth on a hard rubber ring, but not finding it possible to obtain a wee bite of it he had thrown it away with disgust.

As Trinket passed the porch Bulger, having nothing else to do, looked after him. Then of a sudden an idea came into his round poll. He felt inclined to follow Trinket. To be sure, he had never been off that porch except when in someone's arms or seated in his wicker go-cart. But this dependence on others could not last always. If he meant to grow into a big boy like his brother Bob-by—a giant of five years—he must begin to take care of himself. So, on all fours (he had not learned the trick of walking on two legs yet) he started towards the edge of the porch floor, which was raised only six inches above the softest and greenest of grass that grew all over the yard. On reaching the "jumping off place" Bulger deliberately turned round and proceeded to let himself down backwards, that is to say, he went over the edge of the porch to the ground—six inches below! feet foremost, just as he should. Bulger was no fool and knew that to crawl over head first would mean to land with his nose in the earth. Indeed, he was a wise fellow for his months. After depositing himself on the grass that felt delicious to his bare, pink feet, he turned toward the barnyard, going quite rapidly—seeing that he had all room to run on.

Trinket had stopped halfway to the barn and was frisking round and barking at a great black bug that was walking leisurely down the warm, dusty path. The bug did not seem to notice Trinket, which was very funny, indeed, since one point of Trinket's little paw could cover and crush the entire body of that huge bug. Now, I know that sounds strange—to say that Trinket was a little bit of a puppy and that one point of his paw could cover the body of a huge bug. But, my dears, your papas and mammas will explain how that can be.

Well, when Bulger reached the place in the path where Trinket was making himself rather conspicuous over the bug, he stopped to look wide-eyed at the black, many-legged insect crawling along. Now, Bulger was not hungry, but—what do you suppose he did? Why, he reached out his fat right hand and made a grab at Mr. Black Bug, opening his mouth the while to receive it.

But Mr. Bug, with all the wisdom of his kind, clapped his sharp-pointed legs round one of the soft fingers that hugged him and set his nippers into the flesh. Bulger's face puckered, his mouth drew down to whimper, he relaxed his fist and was on the point of crying when the bug dropped—right side up, for a wonder!—to the path again and moved off into the protecting grass. He had only acted in a self-preservation manner, but by so doing he had served Bulger a great kindness by preventing him from carrying out his cannibalistic intention. Had Bulger penned that big bug up down in his little stomach there would have followed an awful commotion, for black bugs—or bugs of any color—are not digestible food for babies.

But Bulger had to live and learn.

After recovering from his hurt Bulger turned his attention to Trinket, who of a sudden had begun frisking about Bulger, barking in a most sociable way. Bulger laughed so heartily that he sat right down in the middle of the dusty path. He did not have to wash and iron his little frocks, so what did Bulger care about dirt? And his feet—how soft the warm dust felt to them as it crushed up between the wiggling toes! He was so happy that he crowed, then said from a joyous heart, "Goo-goo!"

Taking it for granted that Bulger meant for him to continue on his expedition of investigation, Trinket turned tail and frisked off to the barnyard, a dozen steps farther on. He barked and sniffed at everything in sight, wagging his tail till it seemed it would come off. Trinket was very happy, and so was Bulger.

But the barnyard! Bulger sat down—or rather, sat up, for his sitting posture elevated him above his walking stature—and gazed about him. Very funny creatures swarmed about. Some round, dumpling-like things on all fours, and with very small curly tails, ran about sticking their little noses into everything and lifting their heads occasionally to say "Grunt-grunt-grunt!"

Trinket began to make things lively by frisking about the barnyard and setting all in a fright. There was one old hen with a brood of soft, white and yellow puff-balls—called chicks—that looked with some displeasure upon the impertinent fellow and clucked her babies to come to her. Trinket made a dart towards this old hen and said, "Bow-wow!" Before the poor puppy knew what was going to happen the old hen reached forth her head and took him, peck-peck, between the eyes. Trinket retreated and whined most pitifully, rubbing his face with his paw. The old hen lifted her wings like an umbrella, clucked softly to her chicks, who gathered close against her legs, then down she folded the wings and covered all but the babies' feet from sight.

Bulger, watching this proceeding, gurgled and crowed, and cried out: "Dad-dad!"

Trinket, not caring for further acquaintance with old Mrs. Hen, moved off round the corner of the barn. Here he ran into a bevy of broad-footed, flat-billed little feathered things that waddled in a most laughable manner as they followed one like themselves, who was much larger. "Quack, quack, quack!" they all said, and scattered on seeing Trinket. But Trinket had not forgotten the old hen, so he gave them a wide berth. He did not like feathered things that wore long, sharp noses on their heads.

Bulger had followed Trinket, and when he saw the old duck go off down the hill toward a pond of water, with all the little ducklings following, he decided to go, too; so away he crept on all fours, looking much like a little duck himself.

Meanwhile, Trinket had come across the fat-bellied, curly-tailed little creatures that went "grunt, grunt, grunt," and rooted their noses in the ground. Now, for some reason or other, Trinket was not the least bit afraid of these little piggies—for piggies they were. So he bounded after them and barked in a bold, soldierly way, as if to frighten the lives out of them.

The piggies ran under a fence with Trinket at their tails when, lo! Trinket went plump against a huge creature that was strutting about quite grandly. Now this proud creature was the old turkey gobbler—czar of all that dominion known as the barnyard. He did not permit anything that lived to run smash, dab into him, and he gave vent to a horrible "Gobble! Gobble!" and charged, with wings spread, full upon the hapless Trinket. Trinket, somehow realizing his danger, fled out under the fence just in time to save himself from the attack. Nor did he stop running till he had reached the edge of the pond which Bulger was headed for behind the duck and ducklings. A funny little calf watched from knee-deep clover Trinket and Bulger. He had never seen such strange beings befor. Down by the pond a young, slim-legged colt frisked about, now into the cool water, now out to nibble—like a grown-up horse—the tender grass.

"Ba-ba!" called a little white lamb from across the pond, and Bulger stopped, sat up and looked at it, answering "Goo, goo!" Then he fell to all fours again and started for the edge of the water, which glistened so beautifully in the sunshine. When he was almost there he was amazed to see old duck and ducklings wade right into the pond and sit on its surface like little boats floating out from the shore. Ah! he—Bulger—would do that, too! And he made an effort to hasten his gait. Trinket, too, seemed inclined to take a swim, for he leaped toward the water repeatedly barking at the duck and ducklings, getting his front paws quite wet.

Just as Bulger was within a few feet of the water a long shadow came bounding over the hillside, a voice cried: "Ah, here he is!" and in another minute Bulger's mamma had him in her arms, kissing the dirty little face. "Oo bad, bad, naughty boy!" she said. "Running away before you can walk!"

Then she turned and carried Bulger up the hills, past the calf, the colt, the piggies, the chicks and the old turkey gobbler, who was still strutting, to the back porch, where she put him on the mat again. And Bulger, chewing away on his little fists, wondered why Trinket could stray away without being overtaken, why the calf could play in the clover all day, why the colt and the lamb could be left by their mothers without fear since he, big smart Bulger, with four teeth, must be kept under close watch every minute.

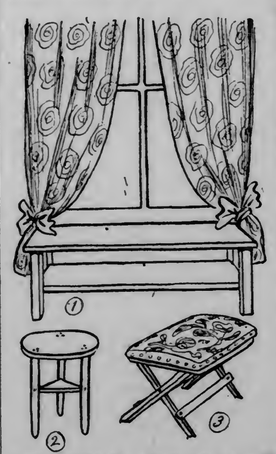
"Dad, dad!" he exclaimed in sheer desperation, kicking the floor with his dusty heels. And his mamma bent over and said: "Wait till my baby is grown up big before he tries to explore the world."

Understanding her, Bulger looked up, then snuggled his fat face against her knee and said contentedly, "Goo-goo!"

HOW BOYS MAY FURNISH THEIR DENS.

Often boys display much ingenuity and artistic taste in fitting up their "dens" with furniture and decorations from their own hands.

With the necessary carpentering tools, a few pots of paint and furniture stain, a few brushes, etc., the boy will show his room proudly to his parents and friends, who in turn will be not only much astonished, but highly pleased with what he has accomplished there. And often the furniture he builds is more serviceable, as well as more artistic, than the cheaply-put-together stuff that now floods the market and fills the homes. Besides this, his "den" is characteristic of himself, and he will feel a pride in its originality. A few rough-drawn designs for odd pieces to help furnish a boy's "den" are given here. In following them the young cabinetmaker will begin to discover points for improvement and gradually he will become his own designer, as well as being skilled in the use of tools.

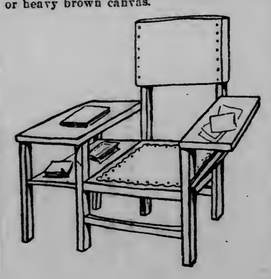


No. 1 shows a convenient and artistic window bench with shelf for newspapers, etc. It is made of any kind of wood the boy finds at hand, and may be simply painted to match color of woodwork in the room or stained some pretty contrasting color.

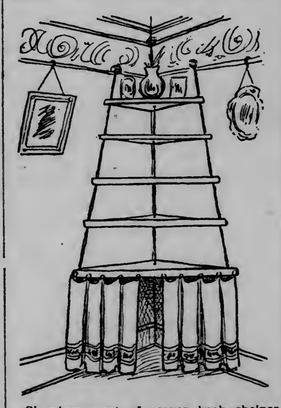
No. 2 is an odd bit of a table made with broomstock legs, a barrel end for top and a three-cornered shelf.

No. 3 is a "cross-legged stool," a necessary acquisition in a boy's den. It is of cherry-colored wood with padded seat covered with burlap.

"Odds and ends box" made from dressed pine, stained a dark blue-green. The lid, which is padded to form a comfortable seat, is covered with striped cretonne in warm shades of brown and red. The panels which form the sides of the box are studded at the edges with gilt-headed nails. The box may be lined with burlap or heavy brown canvas.



A large reading chair built of dressed pine and finished with a brown denim seat. A pillow placed at the back will add comfort. The wood is stained a walnut color..



Showing a set of corner book shelves hung on gilded, very small ropes. The curtain that drops from the bottom shelf makes a nice place in which to stack old magazines away from the dust, or affords a suitable nook for folios or drawings. The shelves are made of dressed pine stained some dark color.

CONUNDRUMS.

Why is a street car like raspberries? Because both get jammed.

When is a prisoner like a leaky boat? When being bailed out.

Why does a stylish woman resemble a boxer? Both wear gloves.

When is a house not a house? When it is brown stone.

What kind of horse has too many legs and yet never walks? The clotheshorse.

What apple is like the fashionable spring shoe? The russet.

AUTO ANIMALS FOR THE CHILDREN.

Cut out these auto-animals as they appear, paste them on a thick piece of paper, turn rapidly from left to right and see the animals go. The collection will amuse the little ones who have to stay indoors.

It's surely very funny
Why Billy, Nell and May
Don't like to go to school at all,
Yet "school" they love to play.

They put up on the sofa
Old Tommy Cat, who blinks,
And Barker Bite beside him,
Who sits and nods and wiuks.

And Ellen Belle, the wax doll,
With primer in her lap,
Sits quietly and ladylike
Beside the soldier chap.

The soldier chap looks very brave,
Though never draws his sword,
Nor even thinks to doff his cap
Or speak a single word.

In fact, the pupils all are good
And know their lessons well,
So say the little terchers three,
Billy and May and Nell.

Little Biographies of Big Masters.

Note to the Children.—A series of brief "Biographical Sketches of Big Masters" will be a feature of this department for a few weeks. Cut out the sketches and paste in a scrapbook for future reference. Portraits of the masters—when obtainable—will accompany the sketch.

HANS HOLBEIN.

Hans Holbein, of the German school of painting, was born in Augsburg in the year 1497. His father, grandfather, uncle and brother were painters and decorators in the then great city of Augsburg. Being on the direct route to Italy it became for a time the richest commercial city in all Southern Germany.

It was Hans' father who gave him his art training. In the studio of the elder Holbein worked Hans and his brother Ambrosius. The three remained together till the year 1516, when the two sons made a journey to Basle, at that time a city of learning and culture.

In Basle lived Jacob Meyer, who became Hans' most powerful and influential patron; a man who, though great during his life, is now remembered through the fact of his having been connected with the great Holbein and to have sat to him for a portrait. Thus it is that Fortune's wheels turn round.

In the year 1526 Hans Holbein, with a letter of introduction to Sir Thomas More, speaker of the English House of Commons, set out to London to try his fortunes in a strange land. Sir Thomas met him with a cordial welcome and introduced the talented young painter to many prominent men of the day, who sat to him for portraits. Hans also made many sketches of the members of the Portrait of Hans Holbein.

More family, these sketches to be used in painting a family group. But this undertaking was never accomplished.

In 1537 Hans Holbein became favored at court and was commissioned to paint the wonderful portrait of Henry VII. with Elizabeth, and Henry VIII. with Jane Seymour. This picture was hung in the Privy Chamber of the Palace of Westminster. The original, however, was destroyed by fire in 1698, but a small copy of it remained at Hampton Court and a cartoon of it is owned by the Duke of Devonshire.

Hans Holbein's life is wrapped with mystery, little being definitely known of his travels or his private life. He married, when quite young, a woman some years his senior, and was caused much domestic unhappiness by her long, shrewish tongue. It is said that she burdened his life and drove many of his friends from him.

Among his most noted pictures is the one, "terribly realistic" and impressive, called "Dead Christ." It was painted about the year 1521 and is yet to be seen in the Basle Museum.

Holbein made many wonderful designs for stained glass and furniture; also did much book illustrating. While this work was all highly artistic it is said that Hans did it to "make the pot boil." Often he found himself in financial distress.

The great German painter's death, like his life, is wrapped about with mystery. It is known that in the year 1543 Hans Holbein was residing in London, that the plague broke out, that Hans made his will on October 7 and soon after that his death was reported. But whether he died of the plague, whether or not he really was buried in London, is not known. Neither is the positive date of his death fixed, but it occurred sometime about the 29th of October.

The portrait—a copy of which accompanies this sketch—was made by himself with colored crayons when he was about 25 years old. The original shows a red hat and a grey coat trimmed with black velvet bands.

THE CIRCUS PROBLEM SOLVED.

A circus is coming to town—
Whoop-ee!
They say it's a whoppin' big show;
Hope I can go see the clown—
Oh, gee!
For the clown is so funny, you know.

But it costs so very much money—
My-me!
And I haven't a single red cent.
So it isn't so awfully funny—
You see,
For how can I see through a tent?

But I guess I can stand on my head—
Ha-ha!
With my feet up against the tent wall,
And peep 'neath the ole curtain-shed—
Ah, pshaw!
And the show won't cost nothin' at all.

Long legs, crooked thighs,
Bald head and no eyes.
Ans.—Tongs.
